Afternoon Fire Razes Nanaimo's Noted Chinatown

Several Blocks Burn, Find One Body in Ruins

NANAIMO, B.C. (CP) — The historic Chinatown in this Vancouver Island city was almost wiped out Friday night by a wind-fanned blaze that left several blocks and a half a dozen frame buildings in ruins.

Firemen found what may be the remains of a body in the rubble.

The 2½-hour fire started at 4:30 p.m. in a vacant house. With the help of the wind and the warmness of the street, flames soon engulfed several blocks of multi-unit dwellings, which a few hours later would have been filled with between 200 and 300 sleeping Chinese.

"This is a great tragedy," said Mayor Pete Maffeo. "But we are lucky that the flames did not start at night or it would have had some terrible results."

Nearly 200 persons were left homeless as the fire levelled all except nine of the buildings in the area. Some of the buildings were destroyed. First estimates said the damage would run to about $300,000.

Fire chief Colin McArthur said a 50-man fire unit examined the remains found to determine whether they were those of a human being. Police said no residents had been accounted for.

FIRE BEING INVESTIGATED

One elderly resident was overcome by the excitement and was taken to hospital suffering from a heart attack, but was well in a fill. There were no other injuries.

Cause of the outbreak was not known.

Residents fled from dwellings as flames leaped from building to building. Many elderly persons had to be persuaded to abandon their homes.

Firemen had only two hydrants for a water supply. They had to withdraw their streams at the height of the blaze because of the fierce heat. Fire from them crashed through flaming debris to safety after being cut off by flames.

Most of the buildings were owned by Chan Kee Company, the first Chinatown was wiped out by fire. The Wah Ling Company purchased the property in 1910 after owners threatened to burn it down.

TOURIST SPOTS LOST

Among the property destroyed were the Pus and Boots and Bottle restaurants, well known to tourists.

The 23rd Nanaimo regiment opened its barracks to the homeless. Bedding, including mattresses, was brought in from 30 miles west from Vancouver by the Red Cross, which also set up a kitchen.

Other Fleets To Dock Vessels Owing to Strike

MONTREAL (CP) — Forty ships of the N. M. Paterson and Sons, Ltd., fleet of Fort William lay idle today, the third day of a strike by the Seafarers' International Union (Ind.).

The Lake Carriers Association claiming the Paterson fleet was illegally abandoned by the union Thursday, plans to put the ships of its four other member companies out of service starting on Monday in support of the Paterson group.

A tie-up of the four companies, which operate another 64 vessels, would partially paralyze shipping on the Great Lakes at the height of the shipping season. Some 1,000 seamen would be affected.

About a dozen independent companies operate on the Great Lakes and inland waterways.

John Paterson, president of the association and vice - president and general manager of the Paterson company, announced Friday that all ships of the Paterson fleet had been moored. He said some of the ships had been left in positions dangerous to ships, cargoes and navigation.

NAMES VESSELS

"The Kinsale is moored in the Welland Canal, the Calgadoc has been abandoned at the entrance of the St. Lawrence River, just below the St. Lambert lock, and the Hornbeeker has been left further upstream just above the Iroquois lock," he said in a telegram.

"These are only three of the more flagrant examples of the way in which the union has ignored the provisions of the Canada Shipping Act, which specifically requires that ships be sailed in their normal ports", he said.

An SIU spokesman said it is the union's position, backed by its crews, where a ship will be tied up.

The St. Lambert lockmaster called us about the Calgadoc," he said. "We said we would be glad to move the ship and send a crew there. The union has not allowed aboard after waiting three hours. . . . The same applies generally to other ships. We are willing to co-operate with the authorities—harbor masters, transport department officials and others — in mooring the ships."

Child's Custody In Abeyance

WINNIPEG (CP) — The Manitoba Court of Appeal Friday reserved decision on whether the 3-year-old Bobbie Jean Child should remain in the custody of the Children's Aid Society of Winnipeg or whether Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Hallas, who have cared for him for nearly five years, should become his legal guardians.

The court asked for a report to regulate custody of the child on the grounds that he is a Roman Catholic and therefore could not be placed permanently in a Protestant home. Mr. and Mrs. Hallas, Protestants, took Bobby from the society when he was 9½ months old.

The Child Welfare Act says that no Roman Catholic child may be permanently placed in a Protestant home.

COLOR TELEVISION LONG WAY OFF DUE TO COSTS

'Lack of Viewers' Demand Says BBG

OTTAWA (CP) — Color television for Canada isn't just around the corner, after all. It may be a long way away.

Major factors are the high costs as well as an apparent lack of viewer demand for color, the Board of Broadcast Governors said in a statement Friday.

"The time has not yet come for introduction of color television in Canada," the governors concluded.

Color telecasting now is prohibited in Canada. Licences held by CTV stations call for monochrome only when black and white. In addition, the transport department has not yet set color TV standards and the BBG has withheld any recommendation that standards be written.

The board's statement follows expressed opinions of broadcasters—CBC as well as private ones—that "just around the corner." Some of the newly - licensed independent TV stations have asked the BBG to speed broadcasting color. The new Toronto station is reported to have plans for color telecasting next year.

200,000 SETS IN U.S.

The United States has had color TV for seven years, but intensive promotion has resulted in the sale of only 500,000 color sets. There are 50 million black - and - white receivers there.

Added to the viewer is a key factor. The cheapest color set in the U.S. has a $495 tag. The price drop is expected to come with expanded introduction of Japanese-made sets in Canadian and U.S. markets.

Necessary installations for color TV stations are estimated to cost up to $500,000. Network costs are 25 per cent higher than for monochrome and production expenses for color are estimated to range up to 25 per cent higher.

They are far out of reach for Canadian broadcasting, assuming the U.S. experience with viewer acceptance of color TV would be repeated here, experts say. The estimate is color receivers would yield only 40,000 color TV homes in Canada, not enough to warrant the huge expenditures required.

Child Born Aboard Plane With No Doctor

EDMONTON (CP) — The versatility of the RCAF has been put to the test with the first birth of a baby on a T33 flying Buzcar of Transport Squadron 412 on active service.

The birth took place Wednesday on a flight from Resolute Bay, North West Territories, to Edmonton.

Because of prenatal complications, officials of the RCAF decided Mrs. Edith Alec to the United States Air Force hospital at Thule, Greenland. The expectant mother was willing the baby delivered in Canada.

Doctors at the U.S. Thule hospital talked by radio-telephone to Capt. D. S. Durocher of Ottawa and he brought seven-pound, two-ounce baby Edmonton into the world while still an hour's flying time from Thule.

Nigeria Is Much Better Prepared For Independence Than Was Congo

LAGOS (AP)—Nigeria claims to be more prepared for its independence today than it really is. But the prospects are good, it is argued that the former Belgian Congo was made to look like a fool on that was ready for independence in name only.

Key to Nigeria progress is the part Nigerians play in public and private services as well as the educational system that has produced thousands of high school graduates and now has 2,480,000 Nigerians in school.

The Congo was not a single qualified African physician. Nigeria has more than 600, the first qualified in 1890. Nigeria has 644 lawyers, the Congo none.

The federal government staff totals 39,337, of whom 37,161 are Nigerians, 344 other West Africans and 1,812 overseas officers. The 1,536 key jobs are held by Nigerians.

Nigerians occupy 1,300 senior posts in trade and commerce.

Nigeria Holding Ceremonies To Honor Independence Day

LAGOS (CP) — Ninety-nine years ago British naval forces landed here to stamp out the remnants of the slave trade. Today many residents of this island city of 365,000 on Africa's underpopulated Nigerian Prime Minister Alhaji Sir Abubaker Tafawa Balewa will lead Nigeria into independence as the most important "of the many developments in Africa this year, "it is certainly the most constructive," he said. "It is the product of a high measure of statesmanship."

Messages of congratulation for Nigeria's independence poured in from kings, presidents and premiers.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker's message said Canadians "feel a special affinity to Nigerians . . . for, as you know, Canada was the first member of what is now the Commonwealth."

There were cries of gladness for independence but no curses for the British who had ruled this land of 36,000,000 people on the most populous in Africa — for nearly a century.

Civil Servants Start Battle To Seek Bargaining Rights

OTTAWA (CP) — One hundred civil servants set out today to start a new battle for the right of bargaining for government workers—both federal and provincial. Delegates to the annual convention of the 30,000 - member Civil Service Association of Canada that ended here Friday night they also will spend the next two days conferring with a labor lawyer with a larger CS organization and crusade for more members in the CSAC.

The week-long convention—the next one will be held in Vancouver in 1962—stressed the determination of civil servants to get collective bargaining.

Delegates also voted through some 350 resolutions in a 100-page agenda ranging from pay and working hours and conditions to better uniforms for commissionaires and "a more liberal" policy.

Impetus was added the resolutions by a guest speaker whose statements that the association will be 68,000 in the year 1970 if it doesn't get new members. Fees will be boosted by five to $15 a year, now a year, and between $15,000 to $30,000, full to $10,000, to help finance the drive. The present rate of 100 a month, officials said.

J. C. (Cal) Best, 33, a Nova Scotia-born Negro re-elected to the post as a Nigerian.

President is a provincial government and promotion in the civil service in the last three years has been 100 per cent.

Despite the growing Nigerian control of the civil service, many her maintain it is not growing fast enough. And as national feeling intensify after independence, that complaint may gain weight and become a political issue. But the Nigerian government has no in-

MIXED HARVEST FOR FARMERS DUE TO DRY SUMMER

West Wheat Crop High in Protein

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Just over most of the country it was a dry summer for farmers this year. The result, as seen in the autumn harvest of grains, fruits and vegetables, has been a mixed bag of good, poor and average.

A Canadian Press survey shows that in the prairie grain lands, the summer with its below-average rainfall has brought a wheat crop of average size but low quality, while the drought in Ontario ideal harvest conditions allowed the crop to be garnered quickly in most areas.

But in the Maritimes, summer drought shrunk the potato harvest and turned pastures brown, forcing many farmers to put their cattle prematurely on winter rations.

In Quebec and Ontario the hot, dry summer is expected to mean this cash in farmers' pockets, though some crops are a disappointment.

Generally, there has been no lack of hired hands to help in the harvests, though an Ontario official commented: "There's always trouble getting hired help."

OSHAWA (CP)—John Allman, 20, was arrested Friday and charged with the Sept. 10 armed robbery of the CNR station in which a railway employee was shot and later had his leg amputated.

Police said they seized a shotgun similar to the one used in the holdup.

Timekeeper Percy Thompson, 29, of Belleville was shot by the hooded bandit who escaped with about $200. The blast smashed Mr. Thompson's right leg and it had to be amputated above the knee.

UN Motion Poses Painful Decision For Eisenhower

Neutralists Urge Him To Meet Khrushchev

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP)—President Eisenhower faced a painful decision today, posed by a neutralist resolution in the United Nations urging him to meet Premier Khrushchev in Summit talks on easing the threat to the world."

He may make up his mind after a conference with Britain's Prime Minister Macmillan in Washington Sunday.

Prior to Friday's neutralist manoeuvre, White House officials said there was little or no likelihood that Eisenhower would agree to see Khrushchev. The Russian premier has made it clear that the RB-47 case, with the imprisonment in Russia of two airmen from the downed plane and Khrushchev's insults to the president, closed and locked the door to any meeting.

But the question now is: How to say "no" to the call in the UN?

U.S. diplomats called weekend strategy sessions to examine the dilemma.

SKIRTS QUESTION

Khrushchev smashed his attitude on the matter behind a slab of cheese cake.

Reporters at a reception given by the Afghanistan delegation asked him whether he personally heard the neutralist resolution and agree to see Eisenhower.

He forked a piece of cheese cake into his mouth and said: "I'm not going to answer pie. While I'm eating, I am deaf and dumb."

Since his arrival in New York, he has appeared to be adamant about on whether he would see Eisenhower but that the president must take the initiative for the say meeting. He takes the position that the U-2 spy plane and the RB-47 case make it impossible for him to make the first move.

IKE BEING SQUEEZED?

At the reception, and a dinner party for 200 guests, Khrushchev appeared to be gleefully—possibly feasting inside—that the neutralist resolution squeezes Eisenhower, not him.

The resolution came in the form of a letter to Frederick Boland, United Nations chief of General Assembly. The heads of five nations signed it. They are Soekarno of Indonesia, Nasser of the United Arab Republic, Tito of Yugoslavia, Nkrumah of Ghana.

Soekarno introduced it. Nehru moved to place it on the agenda before the assembly. There were no objections. Next week, the general debate will be interrupted to consider the neutralist resolution.

It said in part that the five countries are "gravely concerned with the recent deterioration in international relations which threatens the world with grave consequences."

"The present tense is kept" against the trend, it continued, "whereby the great powers should "renew their contacts, interrupted recently."

This was a veiled description of Khrushchev's volcanic explosion at the Paris Summit May 16, when he attacked Eisenhower to his face.

General Affairs Minister Howard Green flew to Ottawa Friday from Washington. He refused to say that the neutralist resolution will be discussed at a cabinet meeting today.

He said Canada had not yet de-

How Neutral Are Five Neutrals Pushing for Khrushchev at UN?

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) How neutral were those five "neutrals" whose resolution urging Big Two sum at the UN General Assembly Friday fitted its neatly with Khrushchev's primary objectives in coming to the UN?

President Eisenhower now is under the heaviest sort of pressure to put aside his serious misgivings and try again to come to a meeting of minds with Khrushchev.

From the outset of this 15th assembly session, Khrushchev has tried to create the illusion that certain countries that frequently support his objectives are part of a bloc of true neutrals.

The "neutrals" pushing the Khrushchev resolution are President of Yugoslavia, Nasser of the United Arab Republic, Nkrumah of Nationalist of Africa's Ghana, Soekarno of Indonesia and Prime Minister Nehru of India.

Tito, despite professed differences with Khrushchev over ideology, has gone down the line on Khrushchev proposals before this assembly.

Nkrumah has sided with the Soviet bloc on the issue of Africa, the Congo.

Nasser of the U.A.R. is deeply involved economically with the U.S.S.R., and owes his armed forces logistic future to continued Soviet friendship. Nasser has displayed no particular love for the West.

Soekarno of Indonesia is fascinated by Marxism. Despite Indonesia's troubles with Red China, tention of throwing away British technical knowledge until it feels sure it has an adequate force of technicians, educationists and medical specialists.

Greatest challenge facing independent Nigeria is how to end the poverty of centuries and to raise living conditions.

A high percentage of the population of 35,000,000 (42 per cent) are under 15 years. Another severe limitation is the low per capita income of $80 a year.

Limits are set on the quality and efficiency of Nigerian labor by a low literacy rate (5 per cent) and by a serious shortage of civilians in the north and provinces in the south, by low over-all educational standards and by barriers to the mobility of labor because of tribal divisions and regional jealousies. The most populated northern region has only one-fourth of the country's school enrolments.

Student Dies Being Initiated In Montreal

MONTREAL (CP)—Freshman week initiation activities at Sir George Williams University in this city were suspended Thursday when one of the new students died during an initiation ceremony.

Michael Levine ,17, of Montreal died six minutes after he collapsed and fell from a statue in Dorchester Square.

Levine had been told to run from the college to the square in two minutes, one second. A placard saying "I am Herb Elliott" — the famed Australian miler — was placed around his neck and he dressed in shorts, T-shirt and white buck shoes.

A witness, third-year commerce student Tony Yonopolsky, 22, said Levine stopped and posed for photographs about every 50 yards along the route. The run covered about eight blocks.

"He was tired when he reached the square he would have to make a speech concerning his great career as a runner and then announce his retirement," Yonopolsky said.

"Levine climbed up on to the statue — and started to make his speech . . . "Then he seemed to pass out and he slid five feet down the statue to the ground."

An autopsy was held but results will not be made public until an inquest Monday.

Will Charter Bus for Oct. LODA Meeting

TRENTON — Council met in committee-of-the-whole in the municipal office Thursday morning with Mayor Reg. Mayer, James MacDonald, Councillors Graham, Lange, Axe, Fraser and Hubbard and last rule Mr. Lacey; town engineer Walter Murdoch.

Sixteen resolutions were presented for Monday night's regular meeting of council.

Council agreed that a bus would be chartered for the use of any town citizens wishing to attend the Lake Ontario Development Association's municipal-industrial relations conference in Peterborough October 11. Citizens attending will gain an LODA membership. W. Lacey to speak to further development in the area, as well as advertising the town by their attendance.

Council will create a standard subdivision agreement for the use of the town solicitor. In the past, errors have crept in, due to the fact that there was no standard and fast rule for the subdividers to abide by.

The committee also agreed to give whole-hearted support in the matter to the town engineer and the town building inspector, William Anderson, in all matters pertaining to the enforcement of building and zoning by-laws. Contractors and private builders will be asked to submit sealed drawings of proposed buildings and must adhere rigidly to plans.

Council is pressing the waterfront development plan as outlined by Mayor Reg. Mayer. The program affects the bayshore area as well as the river front.

Citizens will be urged by the town council to attend the meeting outlined in the literature and advertising in connection with the Trenton Centennial, October 9-15.

On Monday night, consideration will be given to a replacement for Trenton Centennial Pageant Board for Grant Gooding, who has been moved to Toronto.

DEED LOT

Lot 17 on McLellan Ave. will be deeded to the Parks Board. The lot lies in the swampy area at the rear of Mount Pelee. Several offers to purchase the lot have been received in the past few years. As public utilities pipe lines run through adjacent lots there is no question of selling the lot to private interests.

Council approved the sale of lot 5 on Bridge St. East providing the town engineer approves of the use to which the lot will be put. Mrs. Mary Mackow bought them for $330.

Lot 1 from the Lakeland Natural Gas Company to buy lot 32 on the west side of West Ave., will be dealt with.

On the subject of the gas company, the town engineer and the public works department will look into the matter of gas mains in town streets incurred in the course of gas installations and the consumer will not have to pay for patching.

Along the lines of economy, the Chamber of Commerce will be asked to pay $25 for the use of the hall for its meetings. When the price of $5 was originally set, it was specifically stated that only Boy Scouts and Girl Guides would be exempt from this charge.

The traffic committee was asked to investigate the possibility of signs on Dufferin Ave. in the vicinity of Prince Charles School advising motorists to slow to 25 miles an hour.

Heavy Frost May End Supply Of Tomatoes

The local market was a bower of color, despite the heavy frost throughout the Quinte district last night and the threat of more to come. It could be seen in some gardens that the tomatoes took a licking and probably this will bring the end to the supply of this delicious vegetable. As one vendor said "it was a heavy frost for this time of year." He also stated that winter was fast approaching, as large flocks of geese were seen on Friday afternoon winging their way to their southern habitat after spending the summer in the northland. There were nearly five hundred in one flock.

In the city the official low was 33 degrees, but the mercury fell considerably lower in some rural areas.

Although there was plenty of produce available, the supply was not unusually crowded for Saturday. The price of eggs remained firm, at 60 cents a dozen for large and 53 cents for the medium. Corn was also plentiful at 50 cents a dozen ears, and potatoes were at $1.50 a basket. Cabbage sold for 15 to 20 cents apiece, while tomatoes of excellent quality sold for 35 and 65 cents a basket and were eagerly picked up. Celery was 10 cents a bunch or three for a quarter, while green onions and radishes sold for the same prices. Cauliflower sold up to 50 cents each, according to size.

Carrots were 15 cents a box.

Fruit of all kinds was available, with plums being in good demand. One prune plum sold for $1.35 a basket, while the Damsons brought $1. Peaches also a dollar a basket. Beautiful McIntosh apples were in plenty and brought 90 cents a basket, while Kings sold for 75 cents. One vendor had a Wolf River on display that would make a delightful pie of just a few but would not sell it. With respect to McIntosh apples the supply will not be as great as last year due to the wet weather when the trees were in bloom. Preserving cucumbers were 75 cents a basket, while pickling cucumbers were from 25 to 75 cents apiece according to size.

Peaches were abundant and sold for $1.25 a basket, while pears were 90 a basket. Grapes were in profusion and sold generally for 50 cents a basket.

Mushrooms were available in huge quantities and sold from 10 to fifty cents, according to size. On the inside market there were only a few vendors but they were busy selling products of the home and some honey. The honey-packed lambs were especially busy as housewives stocked up for the weekend.

Ontario Places First, Second In Plowing

STE. ANNE DE BELLEVUE, Que. (CP) — Ontario Friday placed first and second in the Canadian plowing championships at Macdonald College farm in this Montreal suburb, a performance the province's representatives have recorded in each of the seven previous annual events.

Bill Dixon of Brampton won the national crown and Grant Wells of Caledonia finished a runner - up in the contest that drew two entries from each of 10 provinces.

Dixon will represent Canada in the 16-country world championships in France next year with Albert Raymond of St. Benoit, Que., who placed third.

Canada has a regulation that its two representatives must come from different provinces.

Canada's 1959 champion, Bob Timbers of Mount Albert, Ont., and 1958 runner-up Allan Hammond of Lachute, Que., were spectators Friday. They will leave shortly for Rome to represent Canada in the world matches Oct. 8-9.

SAFETY CAPS URGED

CALGARY (CP)—Alberta doctors Friday urged Canadian drug and patent medicine companies to put safety caps on medicine bottles to prevent young children poisoning themselves. The recommendation by the public health committee of the Alberta division of the Canadian Medical Association was approved at the division's annual conference here.

Canada's Contribution to UN Operation in Congo Becomes More Effective Each Day

By REYNARD DUFRESNE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LEOPOLDVILLE (CP)—Canada's contribution to the United Nations Congo operation is becoming more effective daily as nearly setbacks, frustrations and delays in getting soldiers slip quietly into memory.

There still remains a lot to be done, however, before the 57th Signals Regiment, specially formed for the UN Force in The Congo, is performing its communications role smoothly.

"In another six months it will all be routine," said Major Robert C. Bindoff, 39, of Kingston, Ont.

His apparent confidence that the Canadians would still be here six months from now was in contrast to the confusion of the first three weeks after the arrival here by Congolese troops and demands for withdrawal of all Belgian troops, the latest a significant Congolese factor in the future of the UN force.

TRAINING NIGERIANS

But since the end of August attention by Canadians and other white members of the UN force have subsided into the more routine task of concentration on their job of establishing a communications network.

Some of the work remaining to be done includes planning and development of a central transmitter site grouping all UN communications in the Congo and between Leopoldville and New York and Geneva.

Also, Ghanaian and the Canadians are being asked to train wireless operators from Nigerian troops arriving here.

The 333-man squadron, including a 50-odd-man headquarters complement to provide its own administrative services, came to the Congo in two "lifts" of 150 men, last being formed Aug. 1 at Rivers, Man.

SEVEN DETACHMENTS

With their own equipment and vehicles, the Canadians' job was to provide communications for a country a third the size of Canada and in a part of the world in which modern day communications had never served. Now the squadron has signal detachments in seven cities and town: where the UN maintains regional field head quarters.

These sites are Coquilhatville, capital of the province of Equateur; Stanleyville in northeastern Congo; Luluabourg in central Kasai province; Bukavu in Kivu province, southeastern Katanga; and Matadi, Congo River port southwest of Leopoldville. Also, one link between this capital and the site of huge Inga dam is being built to Matadi and roughly 1,600 to Elisabethville.

Wireless telegraph and teletype communications, with each site linked to Leopoldville by radio, emitter-receiver on wheels parked on a 5-ton chassis, and the Ad. hoc Royal school where the Canadians live here, go on 24 hours a day, with messages sent in code and run more than 500 words a minute.

The Canadians also man a 100-line switchboard at UN headquarters, a seven-story apartment-hotel.

EMERGENCE

Setting up radio communications in a country astride the equator, where temperatures are high noise levels and interference from thunderstorms is frequent.

Technicians have been busy day and night looking for frequencies that could be used regularly with a measure of reliability.

There was no one in the Congo to allot clear frequencies or advise the Canadians. By trial and error the technicians narrowed the choice to a number of frequencies between 300 and 1300 megacycles.

The Canadians did not have to fight the jungle to get established but they had to face a people not yet removed from jungle ways.

FIGHTING CONTINUES

Fighting among tribesmen armed with machetes, spears, poisoned arrows and home - made wooden barreled muskets and rifles still goes on in the interior. Occasionally, unconfirmed tales of cannibalism filter through from the bush.

Airport incidents here Aug. 17 and 18 involving Ghana and Tunisia which Canadian signallers and American flyers were beaten by Congolese soldiers, caused bitter feelings here.

The Canadians did not fight back, though they carried personal weapons such as revolvers and sub - machine-guns. They knew that such an incident could set UN personnel and Ghanaians at fire in the tense early days of Congo's drive to make itself a united nation.

Nor did they retaliate when a Canadian Air Force Yukon transport crashed on landing at Ndjili airport where Congolese troops clubbed, kicked and spat on 12 Canadian signalmen and Capt. C. A. A. Taschereau of Montreal unconscious with a rifle butt.

MISTAKEN FOR BELGIAN

The Congolese said they had taken the Canadians for Belgians. The Canadian government protested to the UN and to Premier Joseph Congolese Premier Lumumba said it was the fault of the Canadians, nevertheless they had refused to show their identification cards. UN officials denied this.

Four days later Lumumba declared that the incident was Col. Mobutu, Congolese army chief of staff, to the attack committed by a few "irresponsible persons" against whom action had been taken. Mobutu is a friend of the Canadians.

Also on Aug. 22 two more incidents occurred in which Involving identification. Four signalmen and three airmen were beaten up quickly when Ethiopian UN officials intervened.

In a later letter, however, two Canadians and eight American signalmen said that prime minister Patrice Lumumba's home area, 800 miles northeast of here; a troop pile spot; the nine-man signals team were forced to remain in their hotel under Ethiopian protection after the Aug. 27 incident; Congolese hostile; by the fourth week of September tension was easing.

At Luluabourg, capital of Kasai, where inter-tribal warfare caused heavy loss of life and atrocities, about 600 miles due east of here; the nine-man signals team working with Tunisian troops; capital unaffected directly by fighting in remote parts of the province.

At Kamina, big former-Belgian army camp about 950 miles from Leopoldville; seven signallers working with Belgian equipment bought by the UN; Kitona Base, 100 miles from Leopoldville; seven Swedish and Belgian technicians in army signal unit; no trouble anyway, but they now are becoming more isolated as Belgian troops are evacuating taking their vast stores with them.

Matadi, Congo's port on the Congo River is a Leopoldville province, about 215 miles southwest of here; eight signallers working with company of Moroccans who have the port securely under control.

Prisoners Knew Where to Get Key to Section

HALIFAX (CP)—A committee investigating conditions at the Halifax County Jail was told Friday that sexual relations have been going on regularly between male and female prisoners since 1957.

The evidence came from Detective Inspector William Cleary and Policewoman Ruth Donald, who documented their testimony with statements from prisoners and former prisoners.

The only entry to the women's section is through a single padlocked door but several female prisoners said in statements that some of the men knew where to get a key.

One woman said that occasionally guards have had relations with female prisoners.

A police investigation started 10 days ago when the heated affair with Congolese Premier Lumumba said it was the fault of the Canadians, nevertheless they had refused to show their identification cards. UN officials denied this.

Four days later Lumumba declared that the incident was Col. Mobutu, Congolese army chief of staff, to the attack committed by a few "irresponsible persons" against whom action had been taken. Mobutu is a friend of the Canadians.

NIGERIA HOLDING

Commonwealth," a prince from eastern Nigeria said. "Like piano keys, the blacks and whites will produce harmony."

Lagos was crammed to the rafters of its hotels with Nigerians and visitors from many parts of the Commonwealth. All are mull and noise—hardly surprising because there are about 250 tribes, tribal and linguistic groups in Nigeria.

At dusk, the northern peoples dominate those of the old slave coast. Observers in Nigeria say that the potent mixture of ethnic groups will not fly apart before the Federation of Nigeria is safely launched.

TO ATTEND UN

Nigeria can hardly wait to take a hand in world affairs. It has a delegation already picked to go to the United Nations the minute it is admitted to membership.

And in a few weeks about half a battalion of Nigerian soldiers is expected to be serving with the United Nations force in the Congo.

There appears little possibility of a repetition of the violence experience here.

Prime Minister Sir Abubakar Tafawa Balewa, 48, who will head a large Nigerian delegation to the UN, is a tough customer who is regarded by diplomats here as having his feet on the ground.

Quick diplomatic recognition of Nigeria's independence came from several powers, including the Soviet Union, Czechoslovakia, Red China and West Germany.

Nixon Asserts Truth Twisted By Kennedy

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senator Kennedy re-enters the presidential campaign almost-today and finds it crackling with charges by Vice-President Nixon.

While Kennedy rested Friday at his summer home in Hyannis Port, Mass., Nixon stumped through New York state and secured the Democratic candidacy and debate on radio and their television debate Monday saying "the Soviet Union by 1970 will be producing more rower than we are." Nixon added that if the United States stood absolutely still, the Russians would have to build eight new plants each year to keep now still 1977 in order to catch up. "That is perfect nonsense," he said.

He also quoted Kennedy as saying he was tired of reading newspapers and finding out what Soviet Premier Khrushchev and Cuban Premier Fidel Castro were doing. He wanted to read what President Eisenhower was doing.

"If he would quit talking and start reading," Nixon said of Kennedy, "he'd find out what President Eisenhower is doing."

Nixon told Kennedy to read Hansard, N.Y., to Ohio and Indiana today, Kennedy heads for Chicago and Minneapolis.

CRACK DOWN ON CADDIES

TORONTO (CP)—The Ontario Transport Department said Friday any 1961 Cadillac limousines exceeding the 83-inch width limit may have to carry extra clearance lamps front and back. Only the 1961 model, the Cadillac Fleetwood 75, exceeds the limit, at 85.6 inches. Only about 300 are brought into Canada each year, an estimated 15 to Ontario.

INCO Employees Want Increase At Mine Centre

WINNIPEG (CP) — Negotiations over wages and fringe benefits for the International Nickel Company of Canada's employees at Thompson, Man., Lynn Lake, Sherridon and Snow Lake, Man., and Sioux Lookout, Ont., began Friday in Winnipeg.

The union is expected to ask for about 2,000 by next summer. The present unionized rate for the mining agent for the employees June 18.

Mine - Mill Local 1026 represents about 300 miners and surface workers at the Thompson site. Other locals are based in Winnipeg. The work force at the main site is expected to reach about 2,000 by next summer. The present unionized rate for the mining agent for the employees June 18.

Mine - Mill said the union has asked for wage increases ranging from 25 cents an hour to tradesmen and 47 cents for laborers. Current rates at Thompson are $2.50 an hour for tradesmen and $1.53 for laborers.

He said the increases, requested would cost the INCO each worker 20 cents an hour more than men in corresponding jobs classifications in northern Ontario operations. The Sudbury employees are represented by the mine-mill union.

10-HOUR WEEK ASKED

Mr. Smith said the union also is seeking a 40-hour week, a sick pay plan, time-and-a-half pay for Saturday and Sunday work and other fringe benefits.

The Thompson workers now have a 54-hour, six-day week, generally approved by Manitoba labor standards for northern projects.

Mr. Smith said the company has recommended that no immediate changes be made in the 54-hour week, but that a 48-hour week, to be introduced next February.

A company spokesman said INCO does not wish to discuss the negotiations publicly at this time.

Four Arrested For Carting Away Safe, $57,000

EDMONTON (CP) — Four men were arrested Friday and charged in connection with the theft of a safe containing $57,000 from the provincial legislative building.

RCMP said they still are looking for one more man in the case.

Charged with armed robbery were Robert Gardner, 20; Robert Winder, 20; Fred Lee Lochi, 19, and Walter Horst Lucht, 22. They appeared in court Friday and were remanded to Oct. 5 without plea.

Police masked man brandishing knives entered the legislature buildings through a window early Thursday. They threatened one night employee, Oscar Stephenson, 67, and Robert Danard, 40, before carting out the safe.

MIXED HARVEST

caused a sudden "drop" of Manitoba's spring wheat. Much of the fallen fruit was salvaged for processing.

Here is the harvest summary for Ontario:

Cash returns from crops are not expected to reach last year's figure.

A small grain harvest was completed completed by mid-September, but, warm weather was needed to bring on soybeans and corn which were planted late because of the backward spring. Special crops showed a mixture of good and poor returns. Tobacco, an important cash crop, is expected to be better than last year.

Early Election On the Books

OTTAWA (CP)—Federal returning officers begin taking instructions here Monday on how to run the next general election — whenever it may be.

Eleven ROs from Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Prince Edward Island and Ontario start a three-day course under chief electoral officer Nelson Castonguay and two assistants.

They will be the first of 263—from every constituency in Canada — who will take the courses during the two-week session.

There has been some speculation that Prime Minister Diefenbaker will call a general election next year to coincide with the government's term of office does not expire until 1963.

Mr. Castonguay has ordered the calling of the ROs together as the "normal course of procedure" and discounted any notion that it is necessarily tied to possible early election.

HOW NEUTRAL

ry supports its admission to the UN.

Nehru of India supports Red China's UN entry and has his own perilous border troubles with the Chinese. Evidently he considers himself a statesman whose wisdom transcends that of any American leader, but he probably reluctant to impute any ulterior motives to Khrushchev's bewildering proposal.

This is a committee, evidently packed against the United States to begin with.

Yet, in the long run, the whole manoeuvres could have a healthy effect. It could demonstrate, somehow, that the United Nations is really no such thing as a neutral ubc as such.

PLOWING ON EST

ST. STEPHEN, N.B. (CP) — A. V. Langlois, Elgin county agricultural supervisor, announced here Friday the international plowing match at nearby Springfield Oct. 13-14 will be conducted by eastern standard time. The Ontario Plowmen's Association and Provincial Plowmen's Association of New Brunswick officials decided on the change after the contest would be run according to daylight saving time. This year the contest switched back to standard time.

Mr. K. Pities Folk Who Live In Concrete City

NEW YORK (AP) — Premier Khrushchev, scheduled to leave Cuba Sunday, arrived on Long Island, unexpectedly announced today he would attend a United Nations session next week.

Word of his plans to attend the session dealing with such issues as the seating of Red China.

Asked whether Khrushchev would speak at the assembly, a spokesman at the Russian headquarters said, "that would open the question."

The premier had been scheduled to leave at noon for a Russian estate on the north shore of Long Island. Aides said that, so far as they know, Khrushchev would go there later.

The Soviet leader's second weekend in a row that the Kremlin hopped to the estate of Soviet Ambassador Mikhail Menshikov at his mansion at Glen Cove, about 30 miles from Manhattan.

The secret leader said reporters Friday night he didn't like the "concrete city" of "concrete." He added:

"I'd like to live in the country. There is no greenery. The people who live here, it would be good to speak at the assembly.

A LONG STAY?

Exactly when Khrushchev will leaving for Cuba was the subject of wide speculation. There was a growing feeling that he might stay in the area until October. The city already has received the Soviet leader Barkhausen-Khrushchev's ship — permission to stay at its Pier 90 for an additional 15-day period starting Tuesday.

Meanwhile, President Sukarno visited Khrushchev at the Soviet headquarters after he had made a resolution at the UN calling for a meeting between President Eisenhower and Khrushchev "as an urgent first step" in easing world tensions.

Neither man would comment on their encounter.

Asked about his meeting Thursday with British Prime Minister Macmillan that he agreed with Macmillan that the talks were calm and reasonable, but that neither side changed its view.

WENT TO RECEPTION

Khrushchev went to a Afghan reception Friday night. He passed up another one given by Iran in return to his Pair Arya's president where he was host at a dinner for the heads of the Communist-line nations attending the UN session: Bulgaria, Albania, Rumania, Red China, North Vietnam, Outer Mongolia, Czechoslovakia, Hungary, Poland, Soviet Russia, Yugoslavia, Cuba, Ceylon, Indonesia, Guinea, Ghana, Morocco, United Arab Republic, Guinea, Republic of Cambodia, Cyprus, Iraq, Kuwait, Laos, Nepal, Somalia, Yemen, Ethiopia, Mali, Tunisia, Libya, Liberia, Sudan, Togoland, Upper Volta, Ivory Coast, Dahomey, Niger, Nigeria, Cameroon, Chad, Central African Republic, Congo, Gabon, Senegal, Mauritania, Malagasy Republic, Algeria, Ceylon, Brazil, Ecuador, Mexico, Bolivia, Uruguay, Venezuela, Costa Rica, Honduras, Nicaragua, Panama, Haiti, Dominican Republic, Guatemala, Peru, Chile, Colombia, Salvador, Ireland, Austria, Finland, Sweden, Iceland, Canada, Switzerland, Netherlands, Belgium, Luxembourg, Portugal, Spain, Italy, Turkey, Greece, Denmark, Norway, France, West Germany, United States, United Kingdom, Australia, New Zealand, Union of South Africa, Japan, Philippines, Thailand, Malaya, Liberia, Ethiopia, Libya, Tunisia, Morocco, Sudan, Iran, Iraq, Afghanistan, Saudi Arabia, Lebanon, Premier Sadi Falaise, and Premier Ra Kasala of Nepal.

The Russians described the meeting as "partly business partly social."

The Debate Returns

Vice-President Richard Nixon and Senator John Kennedy engaged in a debate Monday evening, a verbal duel which must have been heard, and watched,—by many thousands of times as many people as ever before heard a campaign debate. Television has multiplied the audience, as well as modifying the atmosphere, of what was once a common election procedure in many lands.

The return of the debate as a campaign weapon will be of great interest to historians, but we doubt whether, at this moment, even the shrewdest political observers can say with certainty what effect it will have on the fortunes of the candidates in the U.S. presidential campaign.

It would be possible, of course, to keep a score sheet and to determine the winner of this, and future, debates, in the same fashion as that used in declaring the winner of any debating contest.

This, though, would not provide an answer to the most important question, which is not which of the two men, Nixon or Kennedy, is the better debater, but which of them is the better vote-getter. The two things are not necessarily the same.

It would certainly be impossible for any Canadian to judge with any accuracy how the performances of Nixon and Kennedy appealed to the U.S. voters. The answer will depend as much on the temperament and prejudices of the voters as on the fluency and deportment of the candidates. What might impress a Canadian will not necessarily win the vote of a Detroit auto worker, a Tennessee hill-billy, a Kansas farmer, a Manhattan office worker or a Florida tourist resort operator.

It will be interesting to see whether, in this as in many other things, the U.S. sets a pattern which will be copied in Canada. Will the next Federal election see the party leaders debating the main issues of the campaign? In Canada, instead of the "affirmative" and "negative" atmosphere of a two-party debate, we might see something like a general discussion," with everybody disagreeing with everybody else. It would be interesting, informative—but not necessarily a real help to electors striving to select the best possible government.

The Little Phony

"The other day I had coffee with a young woman who used to be a nice, honest girl, full of ideals and determination; and who has turned into a little phony, mourning for her lost integrity."

Now there is an attention-attracting sentence. It was used by Frank Tumpane, the Toronto Telegram's talented columnist, to open a recent article.

Tumpane went on to explain that the girl "was the one who rebelled loudest the other way," and to provide some of the details she listed, apologizing for possibly buttering them up, not caring about attempting great things, not worrying about what is right and true.

Tumpane, who does not butter people up and who cares fiercely about any number of things, could not be expected to diagnose the disease. Most of us could. The girl is getting old, at least older.

How many of us have escaped that feeling of a lost integrity? Only a fortunate few like Tumpane, or an unfortunate few, who never had it, who always were spongers and fawners.

The rest of us have sadly learned that discretion is often the better part of valor, and have hated ourselves for our discretion and our cowardice.

Is this, perhaps, the reason why the young can sometimes be so infuriating? Is our anger our envy in disguise?

Or, worse still, can it be that the cult of winning friends and influencing people has infected even our teen-agers? Are there a few of them today ready and even eager to say and do the unpopular thing? Or is this, perhaps, just a change in styles? Was shocking people once the thing to do and is the school of charm just a substitute?

Or, worst of all, did we ever really have that integrity so many of us think we have lost?

Perhaps, we should all make a New Year's resolution to practise calling a spade a damned shovel.

STRENGTH FOR THE DAY

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

AND PEACE AT THE LAST

Once in a while we quote in this column something which appears to be of such rare and exquisite value that readers would appreciate having it read over again.

One of the most beautiful prayers ever written was a short addition by Cardinal John Henry Newman, who, among other things wrote also the famous hymn "Lead Kindly Light."

Here is Cardinal Newman's prayer: "O Lord, support us all the day long of this troublous life until the shadows lengthen and the evening comes, and the busy world is hushed, the fever of life is over — and the end is reached. Then in Thy mercy grant us a safe lodging and a holy rest, and peace at the last." Amen.

Life is indeed often "troublous," using Newman's quaint and archaic word. We need all the help from above then we are supposed to have it. The shadows lengthen, the evening comes, the busy world is hushed, the fever of life is over — and the end is reached. Life has not had its purpose. But when there has been purpose in life, faith in God and in Jesus Christ the Everlasting Arms to support us, then there is hope for triumph on earth and illumination and increased knowledge in the world beyond.

Let us never lose hope. God has made us for triumph, not for defeat. And the end of it all is "a safe lodging and a holy rest, and peace at the last."

Peale's Plea Anti-Positive

Spectator Reviewed

The Rev. Dr. Norman Vincent Peale seems to have fetishized himself from his predicament which resulted when he allied himself with a Protestant church that asserted that a Catholic could not be trusted as a President. Out of the U.S.A. Dr. Peale has explained to the huge New York congregation at Marble Collegiate Church (O wondrous name!) that he did not really know what the committee was up to, that he had only been chairman at one meeting and that he was not a man of strong intelligence: "I've never been too bright anyhow," he said. Dr. Peale has a head of himself, and his congregation have forgiven him a thousandfold.

some of them, the New York Times reports, in tears for their shameful doubts.

We are still puzzled as to how Dr. Peale got himself into such a pickle. He is, as all the world knows, the Apostle of Positive Thinking. Now, it may be positive thinking to engage in politics, and to hold a definite opinion about the fitness of a Roman Catholic for the Presidency; we see nothing anti-positive (our new jargon-word for the old, new outworn and negative) about such a stand. But to get into a commitment without knowing will advocates, to vote with it on an exclusively political matter, and then to worm out of the subject by saying that you have always been a little stupid — we don't understand that at all. Except that, from Dr. Peale has pointed out to his congregation that Dr. Peter himself was a wobbler; but then, St. Peter never wrote a book on the benefits of positive thinking when he had engaged in political activity. The question of cutting an ear off a servant of the High Priest, and of trying to stick the ear back on again with soft soap.

We confess to puzzlement about Dr. Peale. He is the idol of millions, and a tireless advocate of the merely positive world to Life was be so positive that he jumped into politics without looking where he was going? And, when he found himself in trouble, was he merely positive about wanting to get out of it? We expect to lose a lot of sleep over these torturing questions.

Should Lands Have Morals?

Ottawa Journal

On Monday in these columns we sat somewhat on the sidelines as Senator Kennedy and Eldred Baker debated whether or not the "West" should use nuclear weapons in retaliation. The following evening we listened to an argument around a family fireside that arose out of our Monday article.

The private argument dealt with the thorny problem of whether nations should observe moral standards. It wandered back and forward, earnestly, inconclusively, yet importantly. It was we thought, like many arguments on the morality question not susceptible to convincing proof either in over-simplified form, was how it went.

We must defend our people as best we can.

To do so we must have great enough power to retaliate to deter an enemy attack.

But the power to retaliate will deter the enemy only if he knows it will be used.

So we must intend to use it.

But how can that if the enemy attacks we will use it.

Whether we use it or not we will be destroyed.

Retaliation will only kill millions more, perhaps most of mankind, including us.

This would seem to be immoral.

So it appears we should not use it.

But we will use it unless we intend not using it.

We should not intend not to use it but say publicly, to convince the enemy, that we would use it?

Not without a great risk that the enemy would find out.

Taking that risk would be unfair to our people.

So we can not intend not to use it without making it useless as a deterrent, of no value to the defence of our people.

But we must defend our people as best we can.

And so right we packed up and went home, but the trouble is that the argument won't pack up and go home.

Domestic Relations

Wall Street Journal

There has been speculation in recent months about this question: Is young Jack Kennedy big enough for the White House?

After reading about his family on the march — his mother, grandmother, brothers, sisters, in-laws and assorted kith and kin — we answer: the question shouldn't be put the other way.

"It's so dark here, I always sneak out without paying."

Humanities Get Backing

Milwaukee Journal

In the last decade nobody has argued more forcefully than Dr. James R. Killian for training more and better scientists in this country. He criticizes schools and parents for producing "a nation of mathematical illiterates".

But, at the same time, Dr. Killian is pressing for stronger courses in the humanities at Massachusetts Institute of Technology, where he is chairman of the MIT corporation. He explains his thinking in an interview in the September issue of Think.

"The specialist", he says, "must shun the view that his steadiness is laudable; he must be politically and morally responsible; he must test his actions by their human impact. The social effects of science must be considered to be understood if we're to deal with the issues they create."

Politicians and others who deal with human destiny must understand the potentialities of science and scientists must understand the social effects of their technologies. They too must understand each other if mankind is going to build the kind of a world it is capable of.

Indonesian's Wise Words

Ottawa Journal

The Afro-Asian resolution to the General Assembly of the United Nations supporting the position of the government in the Congo and opposing any military aid to the Congo except through the U.N. was not only a defeat for the Soviet bloc but also a useful lesson for the West.

The lesson can be phrased in the words of President Sukarno of Indonesia in 1957 when he warned "that it would not be wise to ascribe every deviation from Western thought in Asia to Communism or Communist influence . . . All Asian problems cannot be solved by Western formulae".

Indonesia has seemed of late to lean toward Moscow and Red Guinea and the United Arab Republic, but it is not alone in the states which originated this principle in the United Nations.

We of the West are sometimes tempted to see our contest with the Communists as a kind of universal struggle in which every country must be counted. But the nations of Afro-Asia may feel that their most pressing struggle is not with any political system or ideology but with poverty, disease and illiteracy. Their governments need help from East as well as West, even plus the one off against the other if that fits certain needs. Such help, does not necessarily mean that they are willing to accept domination by either.

There is frequent disappointment in the West at the attitude of some nations of Africa and Asia which, in the United Nations in apparently cozy deals with Moscow. But there should also be room in the Western policy for this resolution that he that is not with us is not necessarily against us.

Refrigerate In New Way

UNESCO Feature

A process of refrigeration discovered accidentally by a French research student during the last war is the subject of a thesis presented to an Italian Unesco fellowship-holder in the Soviet Union. The thesis was successfully defended at the Institute of Refrigeration at Odessa by Mr. B.S. Parkulan, a member of the faculty of the Indian Institute of Technology, who, after a year's study in Odessa in 1958 on a Unesco fellowship to conduct research on vortex-chilling.

The results of Mr. Parulekar's research are reported in Paris by Prof. Vladimir Martinovsky, formerly of the Odessa Institute, who is now director of the laboratory of the Unesco secretariat, assigned to the department of Paris that the "vortex tube cooling effect was accidentally discovered, over 30 years ago, during the War, by a French scientist, Joseph Ranque, who was conducting research for the steel industry. He noticed that air which had been seeking a way of removing dust from pipes, during the experiment, he used a tube with an air-blast-gauge on one end and a throttle valve on the other end. When he introduced high-pressur air into the tube, he discovered that his manometer showed a marked difference in the temperatures of the air escaping at the two ends of the tube.

He reported his findings, but the phenomenon was not given its measurement. However, a German scientist later made the same experiment and confirmed the result.

Odessa, Professor Martinovsky began to work on vortex tubes in 1949, achieving a temperature of 50 to 60 degrees centigrade at the "cold" end of the tube and 120 degrees at the opposite or "hot" end, with air at a pressure of only 5 kilograms per square centimetre.

Inside the vortex tube, the air rotates rapidly in the form of a spiral, hot air, on the rim of the spiral, escaping through the diaphragm at the outlet.

This process is simpler and less expensive than the classical process of refrigeration, but, as Prof. Martinovsky pointed out, it is not as efficient. It can, however, provide air instantaneously and Prof. Martinovsky believes it could be used wherever intensive refrigeration for a short period is required, such as in industry where tools must be cooled periodically.

Will Mean Revolution

Yarmouth, N.S. has delayed its road-paving program until its water and sewer mains are installed. The council decided it would be a waste of money to put the pavement in and then tear it up again. If the idea spreads it will mean a revolution in municipal works programs.

To Your Good Health

By Joseph G. Molner, M.D.

EXCESS WEIGHT PUTS A BURDEN ON THE BODY

"Dear Dr. Molner: I had a friend complaining and my wife, too, that I was getting fat, but still I can't understand it. I eat most of the day my ankles and feet swell. I have no desire for anything sweet, I admit I am overweight. Do you think it could be my heart?

Mrs. J. W."

Whenever the body (like money other things) is a commodity of lots of parts, and lots of factors.

Fatty corpuses it is a refinement of the "corpulence" being as fast as it should go. What causes that? Well, maybe because the sales need lubrication, or perhaps the engine is using a lower grade of fuel than usual, or perhaps it's a bigger-than-engine loan, or maybe it is going around curves comparing with straight roads. Usually, or the plasma sa worn, or the train has a lot of steel in its cars instead of a cargo of wood, brick, tissue paper and life preservers.

See what I mean? With all those variables, there might be only one or two causes for which an inspector (or, in the case of you, a doctor) would detect and say, "That's faulty; replacement is the only cure."

Keep the train overloaded for two years and the tracks will wear, the engine will wear out, and in time something is going to break.

It's the same way with the body. The heart may be functioning well, and the lungs, too, and the other organs. But if they are called upon to accept (meaning that you are overweight) the added burden and the task of operating a body (meaning how much freight) something is going to break down sooner than it should.

Now, I'm not going to ask the specific tests go — but if you have been losing weight you are surprised if one part or another of your system begins to rebel.

Looking for an explanation for being "allergic to nylon hose" is merely trying to find excuses. All you could long since have found out by simply taking off the hose and gone without them for three or four months to see whether it made any difference.

No, don't come to me to help you bolster your excuses. Don't tell me that just because you passed your general examination in Latin 10 years ago that you're overweight and not expect it to have its effect one way or another.

In short — stop lighting your fires. Stop trying to explain away those facts, and get your weight down to where it should be, and you'll be quite surprised how much your overweight, didn't feel! Then be thankful that the only thing was all right. He said — and I said, and Mrs. J. W. said.

"Dear Dr. Molner: Is there any connection between dandruff and excessive sinus condition? Mrs. K. B."

The doulourous, painful neuralgia of nerves in the face) can come from various causes and sometimes we cannot even trace them. It is not connection with sinus trouble, however, since infection may be one of the causes of it. We have to look for local infections of the sinuses, teeth, etc. This ailment, by the way, which is much more frequent in elderly people.

Note to C. M.G.: No, lupus erythematosus has nothing to do with cancer.

"You can Stop Sinus Trouble!" is the title of my booklet explaining what sinus trouble is, how it develops, causing sinus sufferers to do something about it. Pick a copy write to Dr. Molner in care of The Ontario Intelligencer Syndicate, P.O. Box 158, Dundas, Ont., enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 10c in coin to cover handling.

Declare War On Slowpokes

Louisville Courier-Journal

Local traffic and safety officials are debating what to do about the slowpoke driver, who ambles into the high-speed, left-hand passing lane and sets the pace at 30 miles an hour, while frustrated drivers jam and honk and try to pass him on the right side. Or there is the pleasure driver who ambles along as if many cares who can't see why the drivers all around him in such a hurry, or why they seem so annoyed, as he wanders from lane to lane at his own pace. Or there is the hesitant driver who winds his rod up to 55 when all the laws of state, traction and common sense say that anything over 30 is asking for it.

Some significant facts are many cases of people when they get behind the wheel of a car. The old codger who cuts from a side road and then squats in the middle of the highway road at 25 miles an hour knows perfectly well that he is creating traffic hazard. He for a mile or more, and that eventually some desperate driver is going to cut around him and perhaps be killed in the attempt to get by. Or the man who turns in and out of lanes at 30 miles an hour without looking to the rear to see if everyone around him, is probably not impolite or brutal person to his unconscious fellow drivers.

Yet no appeal to reason or logic seems to convince the slowpoke or the inconsiderate that he is not completely within his rights. And no driver ever thinks those cursing and pulling around him. Strict law enforcement is apparently the only way to deal with them, and the increasing number of states are finding it necessary to curb the slowpoke with a minimum speed laws.

We think something of the sort is in order for our expressways. The purpose of highways, after all, is to move traffic, and it can move neither swiftly nor safely if the left lane of expressways and road hogs are permitted to roam at will. Like the speed merchant, he is a threat to highway safety.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

ON GIVING TONE TO LIFE

There is so much more to life than the mere living. It needs a dominant tuning. There are a few things to be made, viewpoints to be altered, and many things to be created. We need to keep step with this life of ours. All life begins somewhere, it is the task of one of us to put life together so that its richness is felt and recognized.

Beauty gives tone to everything that it touches. It regulates every movement of our thoughts and our feelings. It unites us as human beings, giving us hope and aspiration, courage and pride of good conduct.

Our whole nature responds to that which is evident at the falling of a maple leaf, during the early morning when the whitening dew is now in shades and hues, warming the Earth as it breathes its fragrance in the coming year.

The flowers of Autumn take to their sleep, and become more pungent and pronounced than at other times of the year. One can keep busy, however, and keep awakening the mind and heart of the world by appealing to every phase of life. There are no false steps.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

It has been my experience that it is people with nothing but a tenner or dollar bill who hustle to get first in the line. The man who has a fiver or a tenner will wait for a taxi rather than the fare is ten cents. On rainy days, this is specially true. Also, I have noticed that many of the people standing in the rain are not conscious of the stares of the passenger and, then takes a while before it makes the change.

But there is another type. It is people wanting directions who hustle to get first in line. The man who is fuzzy about the more complicated their enquiries as to how to get to Queen Elizabeth Street, not Queen Elizabeth Drive or Queen Elizabeth Crescent. It is people who, not being well versed, the more nimble and determined they are to be first outside.

And there, blocking the queue of taxis, is the man or woman where we are going, they stand questioning the driver at great length, producing pieces of paper with quotations on them or maps or even groping in their handbags for a letter from Cousin Aggie telling them just how to get to Queen Elizabeth Street.

And then you encounter a bad driver who doesn't know and so make three inconsiderate people stand aside and come last.

God Sustains Man's Enthusiasm

By DR. RALPH W. SOCKMAN

A famous statesman once said: "Enthusiasm is the genius of sincerity and truth accomplishes no victories without it." Enthusiasm has a contagious power.

But enthusiasm is not self-sustaining. When we say a person is an "enthusiast," we are not paying a compliment. We mean he is a person whose enthusiasm flares up easily and quickly but often is not very lasting. He is caught by some new fervor. He is like a match which soon burns itself out. What we need is sustained enthusiasm which resembles the incandescence of the electric light. The steady glow of the electric lamp is fed by a current which comes through long wires.

The fleeting flares of fickle enthusiasm are not good enough for these times. And is it not true that our enthusiasms tend to become shorter-lived as the tempo of living is speeded up? The headlines of today's papers are crowded to the back pages by tomorrow's news events. In our search for happiness we turn quickly of our pleasures and are ever seeking new thrills.

PLUCK AND COURAGE

How can we rekindle the fires of enthusiasm when they die down? Of course, our own pluck and courage can do something. When we hold on past the point of quitting, we are likely to release a new current of energy.

Some time ago I heard a bishop of my church telling of a time in his early 30's when he wanted to quit the ministry. He felt he was not accomplishing anything, that he was getting nowhere. He went down to the business place of his leading layman to resign. As he opened the door of the layman's office, he found him talking on the telephone. He was hopping from one foot to the other and gesticulating angrily with his free hand. Finally he banged down the receiver and shouted, "I'm going to quit this business. I'm through."

"Well, then," said the young minister, "I guess we're both in the same boat, for I'm quitting, too." Then they stood and looked at each other, the saving grace of humor to their rescue, their hot heads were tempered by the warmhearted-ness of their friendship, and both recovered their pluck and courage to carry on. It proved the turning point in the young man's ministry in that parish and he became an honored bishop of the church.

Pluck and courage and the encouragement of friends can do much. But more is needed. The Greek origin of the word "enthusiasm" is suggestive. It is "en," meaning "in" and "Theos" meaning "God."

That is what the Psalmist revealed when he wrote "Why art thou cast down, O my soul, and why art thou disquieted within me? Hope thou in God, for I shall yet praise Him."

God sustains enthusiasm in our good works by convincing us of their purpose and permanence. "Be ye steadfast, immovable, always abounding in the work of the Lord, for as much as ye know that your labor is not in vain in the Lord." ENDURING HOPE

The late Robert E. Sherwood, writer of Pulitzer Prize-winning plays, knew war intimately through his service as Director of Overseas Operation of the O.W.I. during World War II. Writing a chapter in the "Famous Future" five years ago, he declared that if the objective of disarmament is not achieved by 1960, we may as well write Finis to the human story. Then he went on to assert his enduring hope.

"All I can do is express the belief — or if you will, the faith — that before 1960 the threat of a third world war will be a belodorous memory, existing only on the library shelves and not on the front pages. If you ask me for convincing reasons for my optimism, I can provide no facts or figures, no blueprints, no statistics or charts or expert analysis. I can say only that my confidence in the future is founded on the fact that I believe in God. I believe in His assurances, given in the first chapter of the first book in the Bible, that 'God created man in His own Image.' He that fact we can renew our The Creator is still creating enthusiasm for going ahead.

ENGAGEMENT NOTICE

Mr. and Mrs. William McCaffrey, Corbyville, announce the engagement of their elder daughter, Wilma Madeline, to Frederick William Furnidge, 4th of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Furnidge, also of Corbyville. Marriage to take place in Canniton United Church on Saturday, October 29th, at 2.00 p.m.

Mr. and Mrs. K. R. Drew have returned home to the city, after a trip to Prince George, B.C., where they visited their daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Vogel, and family.

Miss Janice Pope, four-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Pope, and cousin of the bride, was flower girl at the Wallbridge — Flower wedding at Massassaga United Church on September 3rd. She wore a floor-length frock of white nylon over pervalse taffeta, and carried a basket of mauve and white baby 'mums with bandeau of matching flowers.

JARVIS — BREARLEY

All Saints' Memorial Church, Belleville, was the setting for the marriage of Patricia Jeanne Brearley of Belleville, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Gage Brearley, to William Frederick Jarvis, Winnipeg, Manitoba, son of Mrs. Frederick Richard Jarvis of Attokaan, Ontario, and the late Mr. Jarvis, on Saturday, September 24th, at 2.30 p.m. in a candlelight ceremony with the Rev. H. M. Davis officiating.

The wedding music was provided by Mr. S. Alec Gordon, organist of Bridge Street United Church, who accompanied the soloist, Mrs. R. C. Brown, of Picton, in the rendition of the Lord's Prayer," and "Entreat Me Not to Leave Thee," by Gounod.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was radiantly lovely in her regal bridal gown of silk taffeta richly appliqued with French lace on skirt and bodice, bodice being appliqued with delicate lace motifs to the neckline with long V-shaped lace sleeves, and by graceful, flowing skirt ended with chapel train. She wore a crown -type headdress encrusted with pearls and crystals, with short bouffant veil, and carried a crescent bouquet of white gardenias.

Miss Pauline Gibson, of Belleville, attended the bride as matron of honor, gowned in amber chiffon with bodice of matching lace. Miss Marna MacKenzie, of Georgetown, Ontario, was bridesmaid, wearing gown similar to that of the maid of honor. Both wore organza and pearlized-petal headdresses, both carried cascade bouquets of yellow Shasta 'mums.

Mr. Murray Ramsbottom, of Ottawa, attended the bridegroom, while Mr. Robert Brearley, of Kitchener, and Mr. Donald Brearley, of Belleville, both brothers of the bride, were ushers.

The reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, which was beautifully adorned with the Shasta 'mums and red roses. The guests were received by the bride's mother, wearing costume green silk linen, with brown accessories, and corsage of yellow cymbidium orchids, the bridegroom's mother assisted in receiving, wearing a dress of plum-colored wool crepe, with grey accessories and corsage of feathered carnations.

The bride's table was appointed in the traditional manner with a hand-crochet cloth centred by a three-tier, all-white wedding cake embellished with tulle and rosebuds. Tall pink tapers in silver holders added an additional nuptial accent as did the lovely bouquets of the bridal attendants.

For the wedding trip to Winnipeg, Manitoba, and later driving to Prince Edward Island, the bride wore a travel suit of ombre tweed with brown accessories and corsage of gardenias. Guests came from many parts of Ontario.

The bride, previous to her marriage, was entertained at a miscellaneous shower given in Mrs. R. B. Gibson and Miss Pauline Gibson at Hotel Quinte; at a kitchen shower at the home of Mrs. R. S. Gibson with Miss Pauline Gibson as co-hostess; at a towel shower at the home of Mrs. L. Wilson; at a dessert tea and presentation at the home of Mrs. L. A. Kelly, with Mrs. H. C. Brown of Picton, and Mrs. A. Summerside.

Ont. Authors' Textbooks to be Used in Schools

The Queen Elizabeth Home and School Association met in the school auditorium on September 27th for the first meeting of the season.

Mrs. S. Reston presided. She expressed her thanks to the past executive and called on Mrs. A. J. Fort, district vice-president of the Belleville Home and School Council, to install the new officers for 1960-'61.

The new president, Dr. T. Burnett, took the chair and introduced the new principal of the school Mr. McDermott. Mr. McDermott introduced the members of the teaching staff, following which he called upon the guest speaker for the evening, the Hon. A. Kelly, superintendent of Public Schools.

Mr. Kelly stated there used to be the recitation method of teaching, then the Americans set up the class method, which he cancel established in the Province of Ontario, as the best method. The graded program followed. In 1949 the Porter Plan began.

UNIT SYSTEM

At that time, the unit system started in a minor way. It is an organizational procedure by which the school can carry through the education of children. Children of different abilities have the opportunity to learn. There will be a great change in text books this year, were Kelly stated. Textbooks by Ontario authors are also being written to a greater extent.

The unit system has differences in children. The units are divided into 12 parts. There is a preliminary training and watching period for two years. Able children continue to maintain good grades.

Gifted children at the elementary school level are few. There are probably not more than ten in Belleville.

Dr. Burnett thanked Mr. Kelly for his informative talk.

Coffee was served by Mrs. J. M. Locke.

This - - - and That

BY HARRIET STEVENS

The Rotoehu State Forest in New Zealand is experiencing an infestation of opossums. It appears that Manhattan Island, New York City, is experiencing an infestation of pests of another kind, the young people.

The New Zealanders are attacking their pest by the use of color. Already a million have been rung forward with the last word to solve the Manhattan problem, T & T throws into the melting pot or International intrigue the suggestion of using color. Surely nothing could be more inoffensive or more innocent than a few dabs of paint. The idea however has its dangers and on no less an authority than the British Prime Minister, who would realize this danger is all about us. In New Zealand it is a question of "color" because either the opossum must be destroyed or the forest will be. In Manhattan it appears at the moment to be a question of "noise" too.

Traps, under in New Zealand, bait is being set out and the trials with toxic and non-toxic vegetable dyes are showing good results. It is not as simple as that, however. There is a long struggle between a mighty forest and a mighty midget in quantity and, in addition, the constant threat to the little fellow. So far there have been three that have been discolored with a spray gun to deter the birds from sampling them. The opossum, in his greed, is colored as he feeds and is spotted friends of the forest and man are duly warned and protected. The leads naturally into the idea of color.

Your reporter has seen the General Assembly of the UN, not for the first time, but to recall what color that august chamber is painted. We wonder if there isn't room for a simple vegetable matter that could be dyed to suit the delegates, the opossums of power politics, without harm to all, at the same time deterring, thus saving, the millions of us little fellows caught in the struggle.

Again as Mr. Macmillan warned that we must find, or at least the "so called" statesmen must discover, the simple and basic things to make the first step "in the right direction."

There is more to this color business than meets the eye. It is a fact that bright blue discourages birds. Man is affected by color and movement when gazing thoughtfully into an open fire.

Then, too, color is given consciously or unconsciously by a person's dress. It often hear it said that a truism is colored or distorted as it travels through which is it reported. A recent headline the morning after Mr. Khrushchev and dramatic Mr. Macmillan spoke, discolored reaction. American papers, by burying Canada's reply, discolored Canada's forthright and right reply to Mr. K.

The satisfactory answer may be found guilty. If we sound the color we may plead not guilty. We plead guilty, rather what is happening and being done in the name of Canada is not discolored by our own interpretation. We plead that the bails for the opossum of suspicion be colored green before they are freed to protect the small, and that the nets of their own nets so that the vival of a civilization may be assured. We would like to see the painter to remove the icy look from the face and ear and paint the bails in some colorful to a meeting of minds. Color, Canada's color, plays where men meet to seek the highest is holy ground."

Going Places

Bargains And Beauty Beckon To Travellers in Fall Season

By SHIRLEY & BOB SLOANE

From a couple of weeks ago to about six weeks hence, we count no less than seven big conventions of the travel industry.

Traditionally, these are scheduled in the fall because it's about the only time of year business is supposed to be slow enough for hotels, motels, and vineyards to tear away from doing short U. Moreover, such monumental savings on transportation and accommodations are now available that those who must leave their kids in paid care can pay for it with the profit from their patience. And for those who can't swing either of these plans, we suggest our Fall Windfall Program, the most underrated travel plan going.

Now, to talk about it a moment and, you'll excuse the pun, wherever you live, the region the ideal time of the year for going almost anywhere, and why people have to be coaxed we'll never know. Consider:

It is now possible to take advantage of unbelievably discounted trans-Atlantic fares on both the airlines and steamships. Family plans are once again in effect. And, miracle of miracles, there is availability.

Hotels that a month ago did not have the room for you being your own sleeping bag into the boiler room now do anything but post their managers in the streets to promote necessarily lush luxury suites at cost-minus rates.

Plush resorts, hoping for compliance, have begged the chef from looking for another job between the summer and winter seasons, have it on the throw-in. They throw in everything but the post office and add to the owner's safe deposit box. Restaurants, which would like to look more like forests, less like boob jungles.

Highway traffic has thinned out to where you can see the horizon and a long way during it. Waiters actually wait.

There is no longer a look in outdoor bridge conventions. The divots have been replaced, the lost balls found and gone to their happy hunting grounds.

Deer and rabbit have started getting coolly out of the woods, just asking for it.

For those who missed their swimming and sunning it's mid-summer below the Mason-Dixon line, but so's you wish it weren't. And from Florida to Florida natives have graciously abandoned the cowboy beaches and caressing surf in favor of visitors.

Even the extended two sessions of this commission, in New York in 1958, and in New York in March, 1959.

MODERN MANNERS

Carolyn Hagner Shaw

TEACHING TABLE MANNERS TO CHILDREN

The never-ending battle of teaching youngsters their table manners can be helped by a rather simple procedure. Allow junior and little sister to help set the table. Mother will have to be willing to trust them with her precious dishes at first. Table setting isn't a gift but comes only after one is skilled about the effect you want to create. What's a broken dish now and then compared to giving your child a creative experience? Of course Mother has to be a tactful patience and encouragement (and plenty of both), but I think the reward she will receive will make it worth while.

When teaching them, follow the rules for the placing of eating utensils as carefully when it is just for the family as you would if you expected company. In this way they learn just where each piece goes, and, when you take them out to dine, they will not be self-conscious about which piece of silver to use.

Letting children assist in setting an attractive table for at least one meal a day will accustom them to be careful and sloppy eating habits. They won't want to spoil their handiwork! A spotless table cloth, pretty dishes, glasses placed just right and the silver where it should be, with perhaps a posy in a vase in the center of the table, will make any meal a happier one for the child particularly when he is partly responsible for it. Dad should not forget a complimentary remark about how nice things look. He can give a feeling of pride to the youngster.

Encourage your children to make special guests of their little friends at mealtime now and then. Let them help with the food planning and table setting when little Jimmie comes to lunch.

The important lesson to be learned by this procedure is that one has to "take trouble" to get most of life's enjoyments. At the same time that the child is learning to be a host, he has the feeling that the home is his, as well as yours, which is important for him for his growth in assuming responsibility.

So, Mother, try this little "game" and see if it doesn't eventually reap its own reward. It will take perseverance and tact, but the rewards for both Junior and sister can do a good job on their own, but it will be worth it!

QUESTION BOX FOR TWEEN - AGERS

Question: Every time I take my girl out on a date, we seem to run into one of her girl friends. She seldom bothers to introduce me (particularly if the other girl is pretty). It can't be because she has forgotten the girl's name, because she has a wonderful memory. Anyway, I stand and cool my heels on the sidewalk while they yak away. What can I do to stop this irritating habit? —Mr. P.T.T., Detroit, Mich.

Answer: Short of telling her that you consider it very thoughtless to keep you standing around, there isn't much you can do (except to walk off and leave her!).

Her attitude is very rude. Not introducing you is inexcusable (and a little childish, also) and have obviously figured out why she does it). Why not tactfully laugh her out of this "act" she is putting on?

Question: I'm always confused about what to do when I meet a boy that I only know slightly. Should I speak first or shortly after? Do we shake hands? —Miss R.B.D., Trenton, N.J.

Answer: It has always been considered correct that a girl should be the perceptive speaking first, and offering her hand, when meeting a boy. In years gone by this rule was followed rigidly and the boy who didn't abide by it was considered extremely rude. Today, however, this rule has been somewhat simplified. In most cases it has become entirely less automatic for the girl and the boy to offer their hands simultaneously, with the girl speaking first. However, if you know a boy only slightly, and there is a chance he doesn't remember you, adopt the safe approach and keep on going.

Question: We have a number of new students in our school this year. They look sort of lost and I try to make them feel at home. But a lot of the kids in my class make it a point of leaving them out of things. They even make unkind remarks about the dress of them are around. I think this is terrible manners. What do you think? —Miss E.V., St. Peters-burg, Fla.

Answer: I certainly agree with you. People who act in this childish manner should always remember that they might be a stranger in a strange place some day. A little kindness and consideration towards others never hurt anyone. You are to be commended for offering the hand of friendship to these newcomers. Try to get some of the others in your class to do likewise.

Question: "A friend of mine has written to say that she expects to visit her town in the near future. She mentions a hotel where she expects to stay, but not how long she intends staying in town. Would it be rude for me to tell her that we would like to have her visit us for a few days, and that how many days we would want her? Our house is small, and putting her up for more than a few days would become too crowding. —Mrs. H. F. D.

Answer: Certainly you may ask her for a set time, perhaps saying "Friday until Monday", giving the dates. This is not as abrupt, or rude, as it sounds. It makes sense. You know what to expect and so does your guest, so no misunderstanding can develop.

Bay of Quinte W.I. Enjoys N. Electric Tour

...ind SIDNEY — On the evening of September 14th the Bay of Quinte Institute ladies took a tour of the Northern Electric Company of Belleville under the guidance of Mr. Doherty and Mr. George Cunningham.

This is such a vast place to visit; it took one hour to go through. It has always been considered correct that a girl should be the perceptive in speaking first, and offering her hand, when meeting a boy. In years gone by this rule was followed rigidly and the boy who didn't abide by it was considered extremely rude. Today, however, this rule has been somewhat simplified. In most cases it has become entirely less automatic for the girl and the boy to offer their hands simultaneously, with the girl speaking first. However, if you know a boy only slightly, and there is a chance he doesn't remember you, adopt the safe approach and keep on going.

The personnel on an average is from 900 to 950 people, with 85 per cent of their output being telephone equipment, 45 per cent electronic equipment and 10 per cent commercial equipment (radio, TV and public address).

They have a work's manager and foreman for telephone instruments, one in Montreal for telephone exchange equipment, one for general manager at Belleville for research—wires and cables, commutators, office equipment division, telephone consumer equipment and sales.

The delicate intricate work is done by girls (where hundreds work) and men. At the close of the tour Mr. Doherty took the group into the dining room to see if they wished to ask any questions.

Mrs. Sanderock thanked the Northern Electric Co. for its kindness for the tour, saying she had never dreamed there was so much to electric things.

The Institute held its meeting at the home of Mrs. H. Simmons, Belleville. There were 18 members present. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. G. Clapp, Trenton, with Mrs. A. Gilchrist as convener of home economics and health.

'Education' Topic at W.I. Meeting

MADOC — Harris-Riggs Women's Institute held its program on Education at the home of Mrs. Max Burnside on Wednesday evening. The local teachers and men of the community were invited to attend.

The president, Mrs. Franklin, was in charge and opened the meeting.

The roll call, "A School Time Verse," was well answered by lady favorites from the "Merchant of Moses" to the "Merchant of Venice," and last, but not least, "Mary had a little lamb."

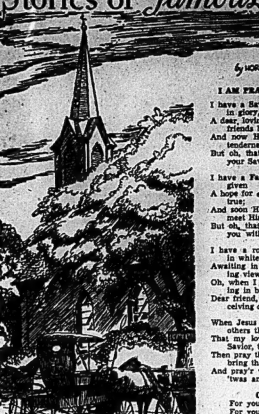
GUEST SPEAKER

Mrs. Cecil Woods took charge of the program, welcomed the visitors and called on Mrs. Florence McCoy to introduce the guest speaker, Mr. Nelson, the public school inspector of the district.

In his address he took all present back to the beginning when home, church and school were the aims of the early settlers, bringing them, step by step, through the years of bettering educational systems. Teaching of today are attracted to the large, well-equipped schools and it becomes harder each year to get teachers who are willing to teach old eight grades. More individual attention can be given by the teacher who has only one or two grades.

Madoc township has ten schools and some of them not too well equipped. A new six-room school or two four-room schools would accommodate all pupils and cut down the expense of caretakers, teachers and repairs. Many pupils are now riding on buses.

In closing, Mr. Nelson asked all to think and consider the advantages of the amalgamation of the schools would effect to the children.



Mrs. Leonard Trotter thanked Mr. Nelson for his address and stated that all parents are interested in their children's education and that he had left something for all to think about and discuss.

Two vocal numbers were given by Katherine Burnside and Betsy Ketchenson.

The Women's Institute awards for the year were won by Allan Sexsmith of Harris School, and Allan Dale of Riggs' School.

The ladies and her helpers served pie, cheese and coffee. The remainder of the evening was spent in discussion.

Stories of Famous Hymns

by HORACE B. ROWELL

I AM PRAYING FOR YOU

I have a Savior, He's pleading in glory,
A dear, loving Savior, tho' earth friends be few;
And now He is watching in tenderness o'er me,
But oh, that my Savior were your Savior, too.

I have a Father, to me He has given
A hope for eternity, blessed and true;
And soon He will call me to meet Him in heaven,
But oh, that He'd let me bring you with me, too!

I have a robe, 'tis resplendant
in whiteness,
Awaiting in glory my wonderful view;
Oh, when I receive it all shining
in brightness,
Dear friend, could I see you receiving one, too!

When Jesus has found you, tell others of Him,
That my loving Savior is your Savior, too;
Then pray that your Savior will bring them to glory,
And pray! we will be answered - 'twas answered for you.

CHORUS

For you I am praying,
For you I am praying,
For you I am praying,
I'm praying for you.

Ira D. Sankey, the famous singer of gospel songs, found these verses one day in a newspaper in Ireland and, when he met them so much, they made one of the most popular revival hymns of the nineteenth century.

The hymn's favorite Dr. Dwight L. Moody with whom Mr. Sankey held famous evangelistic tours, in Great Britain and Europe and in North America. In time was one of the first almost more than Moody himself sang its way into more hearts than many of his later songs.

In the soul-winning campaigns which the two great Christian leaders conducted together for several years, Mr. Sankey's songs were a powerful aid to Moody's sermons. Even today, such gems as "The Christian's Good Night," "Under the Mists Have Rolled Away," "There'll Be No Dark Valley," "When Jesus Comes," "Beneath The Cross Of Jesus," "The Ninety And Nine" and "The Lily of the King Is Coming" are known through the tunes which the singing evangelist gave them, which those tunes have given them.

Usually, when Dr. Moody had finished preaching, Mr. Sankey would sign "I Am Praying For You" as an invitation hymn. Almost always, its message led many to come forward to kneel at the altar and accept Christ.

A New York gospel worker one day he "I Am Praying For You" won two non-Christians, a man and his wife, to become converts at a prayer service. They moved by the message, the words of the refrain, "For you I am praying, for you I am praying," through her mind all the next day. That night, with her husband, she returned to hear another sermon and, before the meeting closed, both gave their hearts to God.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a women's editor and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actual case history. The Council reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counsellors.

Mrs. L. R.— Betty needs a psychiatrist.

Betty R.— I'm not crazy.

Mrs. L. R.— I am terribly upset about my 17-year-old daughter, Betty, who has become a serious problem.

Recently I discovered she had stolen some things from a store. None of them were things she needed. I give her an adequate allowance for her personal use. Then I learned she had had relations with her boy friend. Now I am scared to death every time she goes out of the house.

I feel that she needs help from a psychiatrist. I don't know how to cope with her. She says she doesn't want to go and you can't drag a 17 - year - old. I have threatened to bring a psychiatrist to the house, but I'm afraid she'll suspect who he is right away and will run away.

Betty R.— I am not crazy and I don't need a psychiatrist. I certainly will refuse if my mother brings around any strangers.

I know why I did the things. It was spite. I am very unhappy in school because I am behind the rest of my group. The reason is that one teacher had it in for me when I was a kid and kept me back. After that everyone thought I was dumb. Later a teacher told me that I have a good IQ and should never have been left back.

If my mother doesn't stop pestering me about the psychiatrist I'm going to leave home anyway. I'm very unhappy here.

The Council: It is most unfortunate that Mrs. L. R. has used the psychiatrist as a threat, almost as a kind of punishment to Betty for her misdeeds.

The girl is frightened, definitely needs help and her mother's deep concern is quite understandable. But nobody can be taken to a psychiatrist against his will and a psychiatrist, in most cases, will not visit a home to see a patient who doesn't wish to be seen. It may be helpful if Mrs. L. R. to go to a psychiatrist herself and talk about the problem to get some insight into ways and means of handling her daughter until Betty wants to see the doctor of her own free will.

Betty should understand that a psychiatrist's business is by no means confined to "crazy" people. In fact, patients ill enough to be in hospitals represent only a small fraction of the average doctor's practice. Their patients are individuals like herself—unhappy, confused, doing things they don't really want to do.

She should also understand that a psychiatrist is not a person who imposes judgments or punishments, any more than a medical doctor imposes judgments or penalties on a person who comes to him with a physical ailment. His sole interest is in ridding the person of whatever "bug" is plaguing him.

Although Betty believes she understands her own motives, she should try to recognize that this is not necessarily the case. Even if it were, it wouldn't help her to cure herself.

For example, a person who catches pneumonia might say, "I got my feet wet and was chilled in a rainstorm." That doesn't explain well. Besides, his theory about the cause of the ailment is only a partial explanation, an explanation of why he may have been susceptible to the disease on that day. Many other people get their feet wet and were chilled by the same rain storm, yet they did not get pneumonia.

Why? This is a fascinating question when it is applied to the human mind and behavior. Betty can learn all about that if she is willing to let the doctor try to help her. She is now young enough to benefit greatly.

Readers' Saturday Column

As conducted by Mary Moore

Question: . . . pleased to see that you have put in a request for like yourself has to improvise at times. My improvisations sometimes meet with family approval, and other times they are better not talked about. My husband likes substantial cooking and complains loudly when I try out the fancy stuff but it is always easy to please. I like to see recipes for desserts, mainly different kinds of puddings, that are simple to prepare. Also menus that are definitely economical to operate on a limited budget. Like to see your comments on your family life, it makes you seem a real person, not just a name in a cooking column. Also would like to see very simple recipes for a young beginner. My 13 year-old daughter is beginning to want to do things in the kitchen, and would like to encourage the urge. . . . Mary Mac S.

Answer: Thank you for the recipe for Pudding Powder Cookies. You may be interested to hear that Mrs. Ida Bell has passed over 100 responses to my recipe request.

The following pudding is economical and seasonal.

BROWN BETTY

1 cup fine bread crumbs
1-2 cup cracker crumbs
1 1-2 pounds ground beef (chuck is good)
1-3 teaspoons salt
1-4 teaspoon pepper
1 teaspoon dry mustard
1-4 cup chopped onion
1-2 cup chopped green pepper

Before you start, turn on the oven to moderate (350 deg. Fahr.) Put all ingredients into a large mixing bowl. Mix all ingredient thoroughly with a wooden spoon. Line a medium-sized loaf pan with heavy waxed paper. (This makes it easier to take the baked meat loaf out of the pan. And the pan is easier to clean too!) Spread meat mixture in pan. Put meat loaf in the oven. (Be sure to place it in the centre of the oven for even baking.) Bake meat loaf one hour in the pre - heated oven. Take from oven and drain with pot holders. Let stand 10 minutes. Carefully turn meat loaf out on platter, being cautious not to splash yourself. Remove waxed paper.

Comes September and the town pace quickens. We pack away our pretty summer duds and choose a dress or a costume which, while light-weight, has an urban, urbane air about it.

The handsome suit shown here, by Rona, is a taupe wool and silk print.

The frock has a peg-topped skirt and a bodice of the printed silk in beige-to-taupe tone, with self belt.

The collarless, cropped jacket permits the high-rising turtle neck of the dress bodice silk to add a decorative touch to the jacket neckline.

Progressive Indians Press For Reduced Government Direction of Their Lives

By ARCH MacKENZIE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP) — Two main problems face the Indian affairs branch and the federal government.

One is the time-bomb implicit in the big expansion of the Indian population, straining facilities to provide training and help required if the Indian is to achieve full potential as an equal citizen.

The other is the inevitable chafing that occurs when a people are subjected to the paternal supervision bound up in the Indian Act, limiting local responsibility to a minimum.

More-progressive bands freer rightly—about the wide discretionary powers it provides the government and chafe at some of them from Indian superintendent in the field to the cabinet in Ottawa.

PRESSURE EXPECTED

"The problem is to provide flexibility for an act that must cover such a wide variety of conditions and degrees of development," says Citizenship Minister Fairclough, whose department includes the Indian affairs branch.

"That is why we have this discretion."

Says a senior civil servant: "As the Indian becomes more educated and articulate, we expect to face more and more pressure to extend local responsibility."

Chief Burton Jacobs, chief of Walpole Island reserve between Sarnia and Windsor, is one of a minority who welcome the granting of the federal vote to Indians this year.

"The next few years will be interesting and I think there will be a lot of progress for Indians," he says. "But we have to get more responsibility put on our own shoulders."

LIMITED SELF-RULE

In providing assistance today on an unsurpassed scale, the federal government strives to encourage self-reliance among Indians to avoid building a something-for-nothing philosophy.

Among the handicaps are shortages of land by all fields, a good deal of red tape and Indian attitudes ranging from timidity to more independence to the indifference of some bands intent on just getting enough to live on.

Most Indian bands now elect a chief and councillors for two-year terms. Their resolutions are all subject to Ottawa approval and most lean heavily on the guidance and advice of Indian superintendents although the avowed aim is to throw more responsibility their way at every opportunity.

For all that, only 27 of the 565 bands can make their own bylaws on certain matters, and even these are subject to discretionary power.

STRONG LEADERS

"What the Indian needs is some strong-man leaders," says H. M. Jones, director of the Indian affairs branch. His branch hires Indian staff where available—310 teachers last year out of 1,289—and provides leadership-training courses.

But knowledge of what rights they have remains hazy among the rank-and-file, it was made plain in testimony this year before a parliamentary committee on Indian affairs.

The Indian population, now 170,000, is expected to reach 400,000 in 30 years. Meantime, federal spending has soared in the last Many 15 years and will have to con-

POPULATION GROWTH

Rapid growth of Canada's Indian population is straining facilities of the Indian affairs branch of the federal government.

Anthropologists estimate there were 200,000 Indians in what now is Canada when the white man arrived. Present population is about 179,000 and federal officials estimate it will reach 400,000 by 1980. (CP News-graphic) tinue to increase if the Indian is forced by over-population from the reservations — many barren economically—are to catch hold in the outside world.

Supplemental federal spending began only after the Second World War when money was available for the first time in contrast with the depression of the 1930s and the indifference to Indians before that.

WAYS OF SPENDING

A factor was the pricking of the social conscience caused by the return of hundreds of Indian war veterans from overseas to conditions they had learned were deplorable.

The Indian affairs branch budget this year is an estimated $44,800,000—more than four times the $10,400,000 spent in 1948. Education will take $25,000,000 compared with $8,500,000 in 1948.

"I just wish some of my predecessors had had that kind of money to spend," says Mr. Jones.

The program does not include the $23,000,000 allocated to the Indian and northern health services branch of the national health department, which provides medical care to Indians and Eskimos. Its Indian responsibilities are assessed on a "moral" basis rather than legal—a definition lost on most Indians—with cost estimates impossible on a means test.

FEDERAL HOUSE LOANS

The Indian affairs branch has helped finance nearly 10,000 reservation homes since 1948 at a cost of $12,500,000. It has provided loans from an $1,000,000 fund because Indians usually have trouble obtaining credit from banks.

The cost of relief in food rations last year totalled about $5,800,000, underlining the need to achieve more economic stability on and off reservations.

The Indian affairs branch, in managing the reservations, holds band funds in trust, paying interest at five per cent. These total about $29,500,000, with 41 bands owning about half.

The Sarnia reservation's sale of land at $6,000,000, subjected to an inquiry, is a major example of one-band wealth. Oil on a few Alberta reservations is another example.

SCHOOLS MEAN HOPE

The branch also provides education from grade 1 to university level, if there are any takers that far. Here social welfare and economic development and other keys.

The bonanzas across the country is that education—learning in skills as well as book learning—is the hope of the future and a growing per cent of Indian children to integrated schools already shows results, many say.

"The younger integration takes place the better in most cases," says F. E. Anfield, acting Indian commissioner for British Columbia. But he cautions that integration of pupils from less-developed bands can backfire, exposing children to discrimination in an education system too far removed from their comprehension.

In certain areas, like Northern Ontario and the Prairies, the social election of their Indian children are a year or two behind non-Indians of corresponding age—not because they are less intelligent, but because they are handicapped by environment.

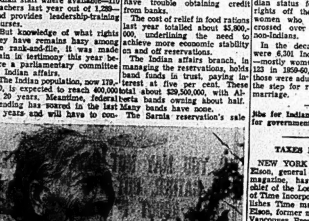
The problem is to provide an incentive to stay in school. Statistics, although much better, still are discouraging.

FEW FINISH SCHOOL

There were 40,500 elementary school pupils of Indian race at the end of the 1959-60 school year, most in Indian schools. This compared with 23,000 in 1949.

In high schools, there were 2,381 in all grades compared with 611 in 1949, and 41 in universities compared with nine. Vocational training courses were given to 434 Indians, against 41 in 1949.

But statistics still show that the numbers who finish are small compared with the starters, an indication of the toll taken when Indians are confronted with a way of life to complex for many to embrace easily.



It helps explain why most of the Indians giving up their Indian status for full citizenship rights off the reservation are women who automatically succeed over by marriage to non-Indians.

In the decade 1948-58, there were 4,301 Indians enfranchised —mostly women. There were 1,123 in 1958-59, but only 221 of those were adults electing to take the step for reasons other than marriage.

Ink for Indians is difficult task for government officers.

Digging and Storing Your Dahlias

By FLORA M. SAVILLE

The dahlias flaunt their brilliant hues these days but all too soon killing frosts will blacken the leaves and cut short the development of the numerous buds.

Before you start to dig the tubers it is sound practice to have the storage place in readiness. If you have a number of prize dahlias take every precaution to preserve them. Clean up and fumigate if they are to go into a green house or storage shed. Sprinkle surfaces with metaldehyde slug killer and spray-to destroy the woodlouse pest if this pest is present. They are responsible for a great deal of damage, eating out the eyes of growth points.

Storage sheds should be dry and frost free. An earth floor is preferable to a cement floor. During unusual weather the tubers are apt to sweat, and excess moisture will be absorbed on a dry earth floor.

STORAGE PROCESS

The weight and structure of tubers will influence the storage process. Thick bunched tubers will need little other than a frost-free space to winter over well. Long tubers with thin neck and small crown ridge carry little moisture and if the neck crown dries out the tuber will be of no use. Cactus type dahlias often have this formation and they should be stored with leaves covered up to, but not over the crown with earth, sand, peat, vermiculite or sawdust. I have used coal ashes with fair results also.

A good basement is fine for storing the tubers if it is frost-free. It has good ventilation and is not too dry. Dryness can be overcome by an occasional sprinkling with tepid waters. They need enough moisture to keep the tubers plump but not enough to encourage the growth of moulds.

Before you start to dig be sure you have on hand tags with string or wires to attach the lable to the stock. Tie it on as you dig one to prevent mix ups. Cut off the tops and then carefully dig down to drain.

On light dry soil a fork is best for digging. Cacti types need special care in digging. Stack the tubers upside down, indoors if there is danger of frost, and allow them to drain for a week or ten days. Cut away damaged parts and dust the cut, the whole tuber and the crown with a mixture of lime and sulphur.

For those fragile tubers which are thin and long you can pack them loosely in a shallow wooden box, cover with soil up to the crown after dusting. Water all and this will pack the soil around the tubers. After the water has drained away fill up to the crown with loose soil and store boxes. Dampen lightly if the soil surface becomes too dry. Storage temperature for tubers should be from 45 to 50 degrees.

THE GOLDEN YEARS

Locate Others in Same Business And 'Incorporate' at Retirement

By THOMAS COLLINS

You are somewhere out beyond age 50 and facing compulsory retirement.

You are beginning to add up your prospects on savings and pension. You are not unconscious as most other people your age, and you really don't want to talk to anybody about your situation will be when retirement comes.

But golly, how you'd like to be hearing into something important instead of oblivion!

Here's how you can —

1. Start looking up other men or women of your age who are in your same business. Salesmen, lawyers, buyers, engineers, newspapermen, accountants — it doesn't matter what.

2. Send these fellow retirees a postcard, or phone them, and invite them to your house next Friday. Tell them you want to set up a Society of Retired Accountants — or whatever your business is — in order to have somebody to talk shop with, and make a bit of money.

3. You'll need at least ten charter members (10 would be better), and in the group you'll need at least one extroverted flotation to get things your ball and start running with it. He's a guy who'll organize your guests, Step aside and let him. He'll help your wife serve the lemonade and cookies.

4. The organization, at least at the start, will need a social center. Every Friday night some member's house, with the wives and the spinister sisters lend with lemonade and cookies.

A POSITIVE NAME

5. Give the organization a positive name, like Salesmen, Inc. or Plumbers, Inc., or Tax Accountants, Positive Society. This may take some legal steps, but by this time, if you're smart, you will have found a company lawyer who is going to be retired like ordinary mortals are, and brought him into the club.

6. The first meeting, which gets along, will need a business address and a business phone number. In most office buildings in most cities, there are small business operations (such as public relations firms) that will provide this for a small fee — answering the phone in the name of your organization and accepting the mail.

7. As charter members of the organization come over the threshold into retirement, they become officers of the company that has been formed. Each one who takes the title of vice-president, secretary, treasurer, or whoever is running the show, takes the title of executive vice-president.

8. When as many as six members of the organization have retired, business starts. The six vice-presidents — say the organization is Salesmen, Inc. — sit down and decide who in town needs some sales help. Maybe a department store. Maybe a filling station chain. maybe a used car company. The vice-presidents study the problem, work out a sales program, then send one of their members to call on the company and offer the services of Salesmen Inc. for a fee or commission.

VALUABLE ASSETS

9. Members of the organization still not retired have two valuable assets. They would be expected to send in to the group good leads on business needing the group's specialized services.

10. Income of Salesmen, Inc., would go into a pool, and each member of the organization would share equally in it provided each member did his share of the work. With the collective wisdom of a few retired men poured into a pool to solve some particular business problem, the odds are that the company would benefit and that the fees could be substantial.

The organization such as the one described here would probably seem way, way out to any good School of Business Administration. But in the oddball circumstances of modern retirement in business it is not unlike the hen and the egg.

There is a retirement house that would not view with concern a competitor that hired the services of all the retired experts in its field. There is nothing more hopeful for a man forced into retirement than a chance to capitalize on what he knows best . . . and retire into a vice-presidency.

Car Mufflers And Tailpipes Need Attention

By EUGENE B. MILMOE

Car mufflers are subject to rust, corrosion, carbon accumulation, heat and constant vibration which may result in looseness and leakage. But the foremost enemy is rusting. And, as pointed out recently, the main cause of muffler deterioration is not exterior but interior rusting (due to moisture and corrosive driving that fails to vaporize and expel the byproducts of combustion).

Tailpipes need replacement almost as often as mufflers. They're damaged by rusting — and by loose brackets and hangers that cause them to hang low enough to scrape the ground when the rear end dips or when the car travels on a rough road. Many a tailpipe has also been damaged because the driver backed into a snowbank or other obstruction.

From H.P.: "I have a 1959, 4-cylinder foreign car. How often should the spark plugs be serviced? I'd like the manufacturer's specification, not a service shop recommendation".

(A) The manufacturer of your car says the plugs should be cleaned and regapped every 3,000 miles.

H. B. asks: "When taking a compression gauge test, all the plugs are removed and the engine is cranked as the gauge is inserted into one plug position at a time. Is this right?"

(A) Correct. But before doing this, run the engine until it reaches operating temperature.

From M.S.: "As you say, an overfilled fire causes waste in the centre, while too little air will cause the fire to wear on the inner and outer tread areas. But what causes irregular or spotty wear on a tire?"

(A) Spotty tire wear is usually the result of an unbalanced wheel.

Liquor Becomes Major Problem In Arctic

OTTAWA (CP) — Liquor and the Eskimo may become a major Arctic problem, Rt. Rev. Donald B. Marsh, Anglican bishop of the Arctic, said Thursday night.

The problem already is evident at Frobisher Bay, on the southern end of Baffin Island, he told the Ottawa branch of the Fellowship of the Arctic. Eskimos anxious to learn from the non-Eskimo were picking up the latter's bad liquor habits.

The Eskimo had to be shielded by teaching him how to handle problems rather than keeping things away from him.

Town Will Sever Trade Link With East Germany

BONN (Reuters) — West Germany has decided to break off a trade agreement with Communist East Germany, a government spokesman announced Friday.

The action was ordered as a countermove to increasing pressure by the Communists against isolated West Berlin.

The Western authorities said Bonn would withdraw the cancellation if the Communists take the best off Berlin.

Felix von Eckardt, press spokesman for the Bonn government, said this meant the Communists would have to guarantee freedom of movement in and out of Berlin and within the city itself.

The East Germans have been blockading traffic in Berlin, which lies 110 miles from the nearest point in West Germany, despite claims by Britain, France and the United States that they, and not with the Soviet Union, are the sole authorities over this phase of the city's life.

Today's action nullifies an agreement which provides for East-West trade totalling around 2,000,000,000 marks (about $470,000,000).

Von Eckardt told a press conference the Western powers had agreed to join in the trade embargo, provided a new contract could be negotiated by the end of this year.

Advises Nigeria To Pattern Rule Upon Canada's

"Canadians have welcomed the contacts that have already existed between our countries. We feel that Nigerians are our friends and my hope is that the contacts between us will multiply and that your friendship will grow in the years to come.

"It is with confidence in our increasing friendship and understanding too that I now, speaking for Canadians, welcome you into a Commonwealth brotherhood of nations. May prosperity and success be yours always."

Believes Split Between China, Russia to Come

TIMMINS (CP) — James S. Duncan, Ontario Hydro chairman, said Thursday night he believes a split between China and Russia will come some time.

"It won't be in my time," he told the Porcupine branch of the Canadian Institute of Mining and Metallurgy, "but I believe the time will come when Russia will be fighting on our side against Communist China."

There are cracks in the wall now, but these will be plastered over," he said, and the two countries will continue to co-operate on many issues.

Mr. Duncan told the meeting that Cyrus Eaton, United States industrialist who was born in Pugwash, N.S., is no Communist.

"I believe he has a genuine desire to break down some of the misunderstanding that exists between the West and the Communist world. I think over-all he is going a good job but is inclined to go a little overboard."

Market Prices Blamed for Poor Cattle Showing

LITTLE CURRENT (CP) — Market conditions are blamed for a poor showing of cattle at the 17th annual cattle sale Thursday and rain is blamed for the poor attendance.

The largest single annual event held on Manitoulin Island, this year's auction saw 2,718 head sold for an estimated $400,000.

Highest price paid was $22.10 with most prices averaging around $15 cents per pound.

In 1959, when more than 3,000 head were sold for over $600,000 the top price was $26.85.

Island agricultural representative Emerson Jennings said the present condition of Ontario markets is responsible for the drop in the number of cattle.

Hoffa Assails Labor Alliance With CCF Party

VANCOUVER (CP) — James Hoffa, president of the International Teamsters Union, said tonight Canadian workers will rebel against the recent alliance formed by labor and the CCF party.

"It is a sad day when union leaders use their high office for political aspirations and seek power to form a new type of government," he told about 1,200 persons at a Teamsters rally. He warned union members not to let nationalism stand in the way of a united labor front with United States Teamsters.

The alliance, backed by the Canadian Labor Congress, which expelled the Teamsters for raiding, was never the intention of union members when they elected leaders, he said.

Mr. Hoffa, here for talks with local Teamsters, drew a round of applause when he urged the financial resources of the 1,600,000-member brotherhood to British Columbia Teamsters in future strike action or to "fight any employer who defies your right to bargain for you and your family."

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Theodore Samuel Williams, that spry old codger of 41 years of age, is going fishing. He's going to teach "Mr. Golfer," Sam Snead, how to hook the big ones.

After all the "Silver" and "Shootin' Sam" are partners in a sporting goods project in Florida, specializing in fishing equipment.

As Casey Stengel tabs him, "the greatest hitter in baseball," has retired and has all the time in the world to devote to his second favorite sport. Ted's series films will see handsome Ted salmon-angling on a New Brunswick river, a favorite spot of his these many years.

It was back in the 1939's that Williams, a moody, temperamental youngster came to the Red Sox. He didn't make a hit, figuratively, with the Sox but they saw the potential and sent him to the minors, knowing he would be back. Hugh Duffy, Boston batting coach at the time, prophesied that Williams would be one of the greatest all-time hitters.

And he could have added that the Boston silver would possess the greatest "eyes" in baseball. The story goes that Williams was given a record test by one of the eye doctors and record was being played. The disc was travelling at full speed but Williams had no trouble reading the label.

While Williams may not have reached the monumental records of 714 home runs established by Babe Ruth, it is only fair to state that the four seasons he lost while in the service of his country cut down the possibility of even nearing the Babe. He passed the mark of 511 held by the Giants' Mel Ott, and now holds down third place in the Homer League.

Of all the probable Hall of Fame candidates the two ballplayers whose glamorous careers were damaged by service hitches were Bob Feller and Williams. Robert was streaking along at a pace of 36 victories a year when he went into the navy.

Since he lost almost four seasons his final total of 266 triumphs was remarkable. It could have been more. He should have racked just behind Cy Young, Walter Johnson, Grover Cleveland Alexander and Christy Mathewson. Instead, he didn't even reach the exclusive "Three Hundred" Club.

Williams enlisted as an aviator after a four-year batting average of .360 and a home-run average of 34. He was at his peak. He was close to that peak in 1952 when he was yanked back into service for the Korean mix-up.

Baseball experts estimate the Silver lost 150 home runs during his five years of flying prop planes and then Jets. He should have been far above the 650 mark, well beyond Ott and Jimmy Foxx. Those five years did to his batting average one can only conjecture. It might have lifted him to well above .350.

Speaking of Jimmy Foxx, it was back in 1938 when he was the big slugger of the Red Sox. In fact he hammered out 50 home runs. Weighing canny canoe a string-bean rookie named Williams, the freshest kid Manager Joe Cronin had ever encountered.

Ted thought he was ready for the big time, to nose out Ben Chapman, Doc Cramer or Joe Vosnik. He was sure which for he was good and he knew it. He said so, too. He could belt a ball farther than any one in camp.

"Listen, kid," said a caustic old-timer, "just wait till you see Foxx hit."

"Just wait until Foxx sees me hit," said the cocky young Williams.

He was too much for Cronin who sent him to Minneapolis where Ted "was to learn to be a big leaguer." The old guard jeered him on his way.

"So long, busher," said Cramer.

"I'll be back, wise guys," snarled Williams, "and some day I'll make more money than the three of you combined. He waved at the "three" of Chapman, Cramer and Vosnik. He came back as promised. And he earned more than the three of them. Twice as much.

A year later the "Splinter" was booming 'em for the Red Sox. He was a rookie he hit a meagre .327 with 31 homers. Then he took off to capture six batting championships, and to win acclaim as the greatest natural hitter since Shoeless Joe Jackson.

Riders Toss Big Scare Into Eskys

EDMONTON (CP) — Edmonton Eskimos, in a bruising game of great defensive play, had a scare before coming up with a last-quarter touchdown Friday night to defeat Saskatchewan Roughriders 9-2 in their Western interprovincial Football Union game.

The Riders, inspired by their first victory of the season last Monday against Calgary Stampeders had 14,997 Edmonton fans worried until midway through the final quarter.

Until 7:40 of the fourth quarter, the last-place Riders led 2-1 of second and third-quarter singles. Edmonton quarterback Jackie Parker then turned the tide by driving around end for the game's only touchdown. It was the Eskimos' sixth straight win and moved them to within two points of Winnipeg Blue Bombers, who lead the league with 20 points.

The Roughriders missed a chance to pick up ground on the Eskimos and Stampeders and lost the services of quarterback Bob Package, who reinjured his ankle. Coach Ken Carpenter said that Placek may be out for two weeks.

Ferdie Burket and Reg Whitehouse kicked singles for the Roughriders. Vic Chapman got two Eskimo singles. Tommy-Joe Coffey converted Parker's touchdown.

Yankee Bats Stretch Win String To 13

White Sox Tie Orioles

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Staff Writer

New York Yankees, marking the 32nd anniversary of Babe Ruth's first year with the club, today won their American League banner mark, 13 in a row, winning streak as they barrel along toward the world series.

But they still haven't received a convincing pitching performance from any of manager Casey Stengel's nominees for the starting assignment at Pittsburgh next Wednesday against the National League champion Pirates.

Home runs by Tony Kubek and pinch-hitter Jess Gonder gave the Yankees a season total of 192 bettering the league record they set with 190 in 1956, as they beat Boston Red Sox 6-4 Friday night with three runs in the ninth inning.

Ruth hit his record 60th, off Tom Zachary of Washington Senators at Yankee Stadium Sept. 30, 1927.

NONE A STANDOUT

Of the three likely starters considered by Stengel — Whitey Ford, Art Ditmar and Bob Turley — neither Ford nor Ditmar has been impressive lately. Ditmar had won a winner but gave up five hits, seven walks, four runs, and two runs in five innings at Washington Wednesday. Ditmar, the Yanks' ace hurler with 15, was tagged for five hits and one run in 3⅔ innings Monday night, Turley (9-3) gets his chance today against Bunker.

While the Yankees rolled up the majors' longest streak since Boston won 13 in 1904, Chicago White Sox tied the idle Baltimore Orioles for second place by beating Cleveland Indians 5-4 in 13 innings on Joe Ginsberg's single.

Detroit Tigers beat Kansas City Athletics 3-1 with four unearned runs in the only other game played scheduled.

Four singles and a mental lapse by Rookie second baseman Marion Coughlin gave the Red Sox gave the Yankees their runs as they came from behind in the ninth inning.

After striking out by Bobby Richardson, pinch-hitter Jeff McKnight, Hector Lopez and Roger Maris flied out, Kubek and Lopez trotted in with the winning runs. Gonder then passed up a throw to home on Coughlin's ground ball and attempted to run down Maris.

Bruins Defeat Frontenacs

The Boston Bruins worked out here last night and showed 1961 paid pewters the difference between Eastern Hockey League hockey and that played in the understudy Eastern Professional Loop.

They defeated the Kingston Frontenacs by a 8-1 score outshooting them 39 to 23 on the night's performance, and could have pushed the tally into double figures.

Sparked by the "The Line" of Buzyk, Stasiuk and Horvath, the Bruins pushed in five answered goals in the first period and added three more in the second one after the Frontenacs counted their lone tally. The third shift was scoreless.

The "Line" netted the greater of the scoring glory accounting for 11 of the Bruins 18 points.

Buzyk had two goals and two assists, Stasiuk one goal and four helpers and the Bronco one and one.

Gendron scored twice with Erickson and Bill Carter getting the others, Carter, Flaman and Toppazzini drew assists.

There were a few lurty wallops handed out but none calculated to do any injury. The Bruins merely kept the Frontenacs in place. The clubs split lengthy sentences, two of them going to Harry Biggs, Kingston Whitby Dunlop now with the Frontenacs, "Goose" Gosselin, who played with the McFarlands in the world championship scored the Frontenacs' lone goal assisted by Carter Burns, ex-Dunlop and Panagabo.

The Frontenacs failed to do much with the ragged Bruins defence with their own rearguards baffled at times by the precision passing of the National Leaguers.

Boston coach Milt Schmidt loaded the Frontenac nets for goalie Don Simmons for the last two periods with Jacques playing in the Boston net.

Braves Hand Pirates 12-2 Setback

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Staff Writer

The return of shortstop Dick Groat was something less than a spirited success for Pittsburgh in National League champion Pirates in their final time-up for the World Series.

Groat, the sparkplug as the Bucs won their record 92nd victory, slapped a weak bouncer and was thrown out as a pinch hitter Friday night as Milwaukee mauled the Pirates 12-2 game winner Vern Law 12-2. It was Groat's first at-bat since suffering a broken wrist Sept. 9.

Groat's batting average was shaved to .2946 but he stayed atop in the race for the NL bat crown, Runner-up Norm Larker of Los Angeles went 0-for-2 and skidded to .333 although driving in three runs in the Dodgers' 7-5 victory over the Chicago Cubs.

AMERICAN LEAGUE

Milwaukee's victory, triggered by Hank Aaron, who hit his 30th and 31st home runs plus two doubles and drove in five runs, assured the Braves of no worse than second place money with St. Louis. The Cards lost 2-1 at San Francisco as Philadelphia beat Cincinnati 7-4 in 14 innings in the other NL game.

Law, manager Danny Murtaugh's choice to start the World Series opener against the Yankees in Pittsburgh Wednesday, was roughed up for 10 hits and eight runs while lasting less than three innings against the only club he has failed to beat this season. It was his ninth defeat.

Lee Maye, batting for Bob Shaw, also reached his limit but not relieved his lineup but rookies J. C. Tremblay, Bob Rousseau, Dan Osinski and Gary Pennington may get a chance to play Sunday after a brief rest for last year's game.

All-star catcher Dutch Imblach, also coach and general manager of the Toronto Maple Leafs, signed a two-year contract.

Chicago Black Hawks goalie Glen Hall played his 300th league game in the nets while Allan Stanley and Red Kelly of the Maple Leafs, Marcel Pronovost of the Red Wings, Pierre Pilote of the Black Hawks, Bob Armstrong of the Boston Bruins and Jacques Plante of the New York Rangers will play on defence.

Gordie Howe of the Red Wings, Bobby Hull of the Black Hawks and Bronco Horvath of the Bruins will lead the all-stars up front. Others forwards are Norm Ullman of the Red Wings, Bill Hay of the Black Hawks, Ed Stasiuk and Don McKenney of the Bruins, George Sullivan, Andy Bathgate and Andy Hebenton of the Rangers and Frank Mahovlich and Bob Pulford of the Leafs.

Leafs Defeat Colonels 6-2

TORONTO (CP) — The little world series moves to Louisville today with Toronto Maple Leafs carrying a 2-1 edge in best-of-seven round.

Leafs clamped Louisville Colonels 6-2 Friday night, and as it was on Thursday when Toronto won 3-0, it was goalie Johnny Bower and his big bat that told the tale.

The portly Leaf netminder equalled a little world series record as he blasted out two homers and drove in four runs. He raised his playoff home run count to four—all in the last two series.

Bob (Riverboat) Smith, seeing action for the first time since he slammed his pitching thumb in a car door during the season, concentrated on a slider and partially held Colonels to three shots.

The only run scored off Smith was a circuit clout by left-fielder Bob Taylor.

The remaining necessary games of the series will be played in Louisville. Bob Haggert is Toronto's mound choice for tonight. Louisville will pitch either Vic Rehne or Bob Setti.

Demeter started Louisville star off right with a single to left. On way to the showers when he blasted the first pitch to the fourth inning over the left field wall. Then in the fifth he tagged reliever Ken MacKenzie a savage mates on base.

It was the first appearance in Toronto this year by the International League champion Leafs. While the first two games were played in mild weather, Friday night's encounter saw the mercury dipping to the freezing mark.

Louisville staged a last inning rally that saw the American Association champs with the tying run at the plate before Smith got the side out.

Smith had retired nine in succession when John Da Merli singled and catcher Al Grandcolas walked. Smith went into deeper hot water when the wild-pitched the runners to second and third. Then Jim Pisarcik singled to left and Louisville's Hank Aaron stepped up to the plate with the bases loaded and downed him on strikes to fall away the game.

Leaf players mobbed the lanky hurler on the way to the dressing room. The win sent the Leafs' veteran Golden won in his major league debut with relief help from Don Drysdale. Reliever Mel Wright (9-1) was the loser.

The Dodgers, setting a National League attendance record of 2,336,856 with a turnout of 14,-305 Friday night, had eight hits. Two of the first major league homer by catcher Doug Camilli, son of the old Brooklyn star Dolph Camilli.

Sam Jones won his 18th with a three-hitter against the Cards. A triple by Orlando Cepeda and a double by Jim Davenport cracked a 1-1 tie in the fourth inning and beat Ray Sadecki (8-9). The Cards scored in the first inning without a hit when leadoff batter Don Landrum walked, stole second and came around on an infield out and a wild pitch.

League Considers Whitby An Entry

TORONTO (CP)—A meeting of prospective entries in the new Ontario Hockey Association eastern senior division Friday resolved to form a league, although the number of teams is still in doubt.

Certain series are Belleville McFarlands, Oakville Oaks, Galt Terriers and Welland Warriors. Whitby Merchants are almost sure to be a fifth entry, but Kitchener's hopes for icing a team are clouded by arena troubles.

Ernie Goman, sponsor of the Kitchener entry, said the Kitchener arena commission is "obviously stalling" on the question of whether suitable dates can be arranged for the team's home games.

Goman said the Dutchmen would prefer Saturday night nights are available," he said. "It's a question of whether they'll give them to us."

The Kitchener sponsor said the arena commission fears a senior OHA entry would hinder the success of Kitchener's new entry in the Eastern Professional League. The EPHL entry plans to play all home games Sunday afternoons.

The meeting decided to give Goman until Tuesday midnight to give a definite yes or no on Kitchener's prospects. Meanwhile, OHA convener Lorne Cooke has drawn up tentative schedules for both five and six-team leagues. In either case, the season would start Oct. 31.

The meeting approved several league rule changes, most important of which would require all goal judges at senior games to be over 21. The teams also agreed to play one 10-minute overtime period following a game during the regular 40-game schedule.

Will Wait 124 Hours For Opener

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Ralph J. Balcom of Chicago blanked a stool down by Forbes Field Friday and started a 134-hour wait to see the first game of the world series.

Balcom is the first in line to buy a standing - room - only ticket for the series opener between Pittsburgh Pirates and New York Yankees Wednesday. He arrived at Forbes Field at 8.30 Friday morning after travelling by bus from Chicago. He had with him a topcoat, a bag of sandwiches, a travelling bag and the stool.

Standing - room tickets go on sale at 12:45 p.m. Wednesday.

Balcom said he has seen 94 world series games in this manner since 1903.

Last year he waited eight nights and seven days outside Briggs Stadium in Chicago to get a bleacher seat, to break his "previous record of seven nights and six days in Brooklyn in 1956".

The Tracks

TORONTO (CP)—The final meeting of the Canadian Thoroughbred season, which opens Monday at Greenwood, will be the year's most lavish session with purses of $7,500 being distributed in 46 days. The overall average more than $20,000 daily.

Greenwood's 46 days will be highlighted by 17 major stakes races, including the Queen's Plate, Dominion Championship scheduled Oct. 22. The championship will have a purse of nearly proximately $60,000. Also on the Oct. 22 program will be the $10,000 Grey Stakes for two-year-olds.

The opening program Monday will feature the Seaway Handicap, a 6½-furlong sprint at $10,000.

Four major races highlight Thanksgiving weekend. The $15,000 Jockey Club Handicap goes Oct. 8 and the Woodbine Stakes will be run the Saturday before. The Bolton Handicap Monday will be marked by the $15,000 Breeders' Stakes and the $10,000 Princess Elizabeth Stakes.

TORONTO (CP)—New Provincer, winner last year of Canada's "triple crown" for three-year-olds, is scheduled to return to racing Friday at Old Woodbine after a year's injury-forced layoff.

He was ridden in the featured Dominion Day race at Fort Erie Avelino Gomez who, with the exception of a brief spell on the sick, North America's leading jockey victories at the end of the day.

Hartack, currently at Atlantic City, left for Toronto Thursday and brought his season's total to 231. Gomez has 247.

New Providence, while training for last October's Canadian Championship race, injured ligaments in one of his forelegs. Friday he came home nearly two lengths in front and was timed for the 6½ furlongs in 1:19 flat. Winston was second and Foxy Phil third.

Owned by Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Taylor, New Providence is stabled several of the big money races to be run during the 46-day windup meeting which opens Monday at Old Woodbine.

Miss Supertest Will Race for Governor Cup

MADISON, Ind. (AP) — Miss Thriftway of Seattle, with Bill Muncey at the wheel, can clinch the U.S. unlimited hydroplane championship here today and Sunday but the northwest boat will face the strongest field ever assembled for the Governor's Cup race.

Miss Thriftway needs a third or better in the Madison regatta feature to pile up enough points to be out of reach of the other 180-mile-an-hour craft.

A field of nine hydros are expected to start. One of the fastest is Miss Supertest, owned by James G. Thompson of London, Ont., which took the Harmsworth Trophy away from the United States last year.

PURCHASE STALLS

VANCOUVER (CP) — Milwaukee Braves executives left for home Friday night, their projected purchase of the Vancouver Mounties baseball club stalled at least until after the world series. Representatives of the National League team met Friday with Mounties executives, but the two sides weren't able to agree on terms.

A LONG WAIT FOR WORLD SERIES — Ralph J. Belcore of Chicago has been standing in line for bleacher tickets to the World Series for years. He arrived at Pittsburgh Friday to learn bleacher ticket patrons are having their seat reserved for the series opener on Wednesday between Pittsburgh and New York. Nonetheless he established a beachhead and plans to buy a standing room only ticket for the opening game next Wednesday. (AP Wirephoto).

Blues Trample Mustangs

TORONTO (CP) — University of Toronto Blues unveiled an overpowering attack Friday night that could take them all the way to the top of the senior intercollegiate football loop as they trampled the University of Western Ontario 28-7 in the season's opener.

Led by the accurate passing and direction of freshman quarterback Norm Turner and backed by a rock-solid defence that held Mustang's vaunted running attack to only 96 yards, Toronto scored two touchdowns in the air, and two more on the ground.

Johnny Metras' Mustangs looked embarrassingly weak with their ground gaining record by an eight-and sometimes nine-man line, they failed to gain through the air.

OUTHUDDLED THEM

"We were outhuddled," Metras said after the game. "They got the jump on us right off the bat and were knocking our boys on their seats of their pants."

Turner, 20-year-old physical education student, showed the potential that prompted Toronto Argonauts of the Big Four league to take an interest in him.

He completed 11 of 22 passes for 183 yards and directed a well-rounded running offence that kept Mustangs guessing.

About 9,000 chilled fans watched Blues, draw first blood, but it was not until late in the second Toronto got the ball, Turner threw a screen pass to Captain Paul Burroughs who weaved his way 30 yards before evadine tackles for the 43 - yard touchdown, Turner converted.

Western zeroed it up four plays later after a 72-yard kickoff return by Frank Loftus, when Boy Wood plunged over from 16 yards out. Barry Job converted.

The second quarter all-Canadian Zoroski who counted 10 of their 28 first downs. Western managed only four in the entire game.

SECOND MAJOR

With the quarter only two seconds old Burroughs scored his second touchdown in a plunge from the three. Turner again converted.

Turner then kicked a single and with less than three minutes remaining in the quarter, John Gabriel intercepted a Lou out who wears a mask to protect a jaw injury, plunged over him through centre, Turner's convert made it 22-0.

Metras' scoring play in the game came in the third quarter when Toronto wingback Wes Lemon pulled a perfect Turner pitch right up the middle and between three Western defenders.

Next Saturday, Blues meet the highly touted Queen's University Golden Gaels at Kingston in a game that could show where the Blues will rest at the end of the six-game season. Queen's defeated Redmen in Montreal this afternoon.

The 'Barber Doesn't Like Being Trimmed

TRENTON, N.J. (AP) — Sal Maglie, former major league pitcher, Friday filed a second $250,000 suit charging he was libked of a possible $40,000 profit from a stock purchase.

He sued Mrs. Amelina Giordano Pelto. Last year he sued stockbroker Stanley Pelto of Flemington for a similar amount.

Maglie charged that he told Peltz to sell 1,500 shares of a stock and to invest the $12,000 proceeds in 4,000 shares of Permachem Inc., then selling at 50 cents a share.

The former pitcher charged Peltz did not buy the stock, but converted the $2,063 for his own use. Maglie contends he did not find out about the fraud until he buy the stock until August, 1959, when it had climbed in price to $12.50 a share.

Maglie, who became famous as a dazzling pitcher for New York Giants and Brooklyn Dodger championship teams, now lives in Niagara Falls, N.Y.

Yankees Win World Golf

ARDMORE, Pa. (AP)—The big question at Merion Golf Club today was not who will win the world amateur golf team title, but rather what happened to the foreign countries.

The United States team has nothing much more to do than go through the motions in the final round, collect the Eisenhower Cup, and then go to Washington Monday for personal congratulations at the White House from President Eisenhower.

The American team continued their fantastic performance with four sub-par rounds for a 54-hole aggregate total of 616 strokes. That put them 36 ahead of their closest competitors, Great Britain-Ireland and the defending champions from Australia, who were tied for second with 654 each.

Then came South Africa, 660; New Zealand, 662; Mexico, 666; Canada, 672; Rhodesia and Nyasaland, 673; Argentina, 677.

Canada's 672 was low three-way in an English League Third Division soccer match.

Harness Racing Bits

By Phil Scrunot

The races at Picton Fair were disappointing in that the track conditions were far from ideal for many of the horsemen.

Bob Polls of Kingston Whitdrew his good pair of 3-year-old trotters and Bill Faulkner of Carrying Place, aerated, "Captain Kid," races produced slow times but the second heat of the 3.30 class had a good finish between "Miss Triplevy," owned and driven by C. Gallogly of Kingston and Ike Corcoran's "Stewart's Wilby," with Miss Triplevy taking the heat at the wire.

"Buddy O Abet", owned by Miss M. Wellbanks of Belleville was the first heat of the 2.16 class but ran into some tough luck and finished fourth in the second. "Country Mike" of Odessa, was a double heat winner in the 2.35 class.

The F.F.A. produced a good race with wins and thirds being shared between "Island Song" owned by D. and H. stables of Brighton and "Don McKay" of Goderich. "Hyland Glenn" was a fair second. "Island Song" received the blanket for the fastest mile of the day, trotting in 2.13½ and "Don McKay" was 2.14 2/3. This was one of the best 3-run races meets at the fall fairs this year.

At Kingston on Wednesday "Buddy C Abbe" ran into some tough racing luck, finishing last in the 3-horse field. On Thursday "Smithfield Boy," owned and driven by Herman Lucas, was twice second.

Jack Jeffrey has purchased the yearling filly by "Hyland Ben" from Herman Lucas and has started to train her at the Belleville fairgrounds.

This week saw local horses racing at Campbellford and at Kingston fairs.

At Campbellford on Wednesday, "Captain Kid," "John De-Kryer," owned by John Weeks, and "Widower Don", owned and driven by myself, started in the 2-34 class. Captain Kidd won 4-6, Widower Don was 6-5 and John DeKryer 7-7. "Brenda Dillard, owned by Thean of Rosenath, was the double best winner in the 2.16 1/3 and 2.17 2/3. John Murphy was 3-2 with "Prince George" and "Sir Alfonso E" was 3-2.

The 3rd class was won in straight heats by "Our Abbe" driven by Ken Hardin in 2.17 and 2.17 2/3.

Ivan Thackeray's Londa's Girl was third second.

The 2.26 class was split with "Johnny Dillard 2-1 and "True Pete," driven by T. Hughes 1-2 in 2.17 2/5 and 2.15.

Don't forget the Quinte Driving and Riding Club's annual meeting on October 17th is which plans for next season will be laid.

Exhibition Hockey

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

The National Hockey League's Detroit Red Wings and Boston Bruins will open up lop-sided exhibition schedules against members of the Eastern Professional Hockey League.

Detroit, starting strongly despite the fact it was the club's first game in 11 days, rewarded all over the Warriors and forced Winnipeg goalkeeper Harry Lumley to make 25 saves to beat them difficult.

Murray Oliver scored twice and Gord Hower, Val Fonteyne and Norm Ullman connected with singles.

Gerry Brisson scored for the Warriors on a penalty shot.

Boston Bruins moved into high to the second frame and goals by Harry Hayes, Eddie Shack and Billy Dea put them in front for good.

Lions Boss Fined $50 For Talking

WINNIPEG (CP) — Manager Herb Capozzi of British Columbia Lions has been fined $50 for "unsportsmanlike conduct" by interprovincial Football Union game officials, football commissioner G. Sydney Halter said Friday.

Halter said the criticism was made during a half - time television interview of the Lions-Hamptoners game at Calgary Sept. 24.

The criticism was directed at a call involving a Lions player contracting the Calgary punter which the game pictures disclosed "clearly to have been the proper call", Halter said.

Capozzoli claimed that as the punt was blocked on the play the call of "roughing the kicker" should not have been made. Referee Paul Dojack ruled the player called for roughing the kicker was not the same player who blocked the punt.

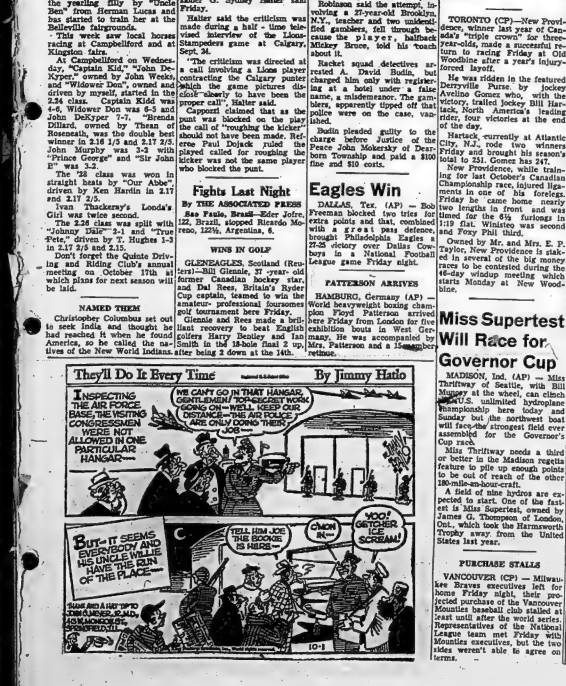
Bribe Bid Falls Through

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — State police said Friday an unsuccessful attempt to bribe a star Oregon football player was made before the Michigan-Oregon game here last Saturday.

Details of the case were disclosed by Lieut. Carl Rohlman of the state police rackets squad.

Rohlman said the attempt, involving a 27-year-old Brooklyn, N.Y., teacher and two unidentified gamblers, fell through because the player, halfback Mickey Bruce, told his coach about it.

Racket squad detectives arrested David Budin, 27, and charged him only with registering at a hotel under a false name, a misdemeanor. The gamblers, apparently tipped off that police were on the case, vanished.



Budin pleaded guilty to the charge before Justice of the Peace John Mokersky of Dearborn, a suburb of Detroit, and paid a $100 fine and $10 costs.

Will Report On Protest

TORONTO (CP) — Hap Shouldice, eastern representative of Canadian Football League commissioner G. Sydney Hallet, said Friday he might be will round to Hallet on a protest by Montreal Alouettes over a botched convert last Saturday when Als lost 21-3 to Toronto Argonauts in a Big Four game.

Shouldice watched films of the play Friday night with Perry Moss, Als' coach and general manager. The convert by Montreal's Bill Bewley was disallowed by referee Johnny Munro because of motion on the Alouettes line.

The disputed convert came in the third quarter, with Argos leading 13-7. Moss, who has already protested the ruling to Hallet, said the referee made an improper ruling and loss of the extra point influenced remainder of the play to Als' disadvantage.

Shouldice said: "I will write to Mr. Hallet before the weekend with my recommendations." He declined to say what the recommendations would be.

EARTH PEOPLE

Astrological Forecast

By CARROL RIGHTER

Sunday, October 2, 1960

General Tendencies: This is one of your best Sundays in a long while to decide the broadest scope of a life for the future than you can possibly conceive in which you are greatly aided by attending the services, studies, worship of your choice. Consult with the most influential persons who can aid you from every walk of life.

Aries (March 21 to April 19) — If attuned properly astrologically, you arise feeling perfectly wonderful and are then able to have a most inspiring day. Be sure you spread some of this sunshine to others who sorely need a word of encouragement, a happy smile.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) — Your closest ties should be your prime concern today and tonight. Be sure you first go to church, then do everything in your power to please loved ones. P.M. have guests in instead of going out. You can have a wonderful time.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) — You are so mentally alive and alert now that it would be a good idea to confer informally with one of great wisdom so that you can learn how to get ahead faster in the future. P.M. go out sociably with bosom friend. Have fun.

Moon Children (June 22 to July 21) — You can expand now if you will revert to the principles under which you were reared and make the most of proven principles in own experience. P.M. sit down and plan the days ahead in a practical and wise fashion.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21) — Know just what it is you want to accomplish in the future and then later in the day go about contacting key persons who can help you to attain goals. P.M. fine for social affairs. Be at your dynamic and charming best.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 23) — Serious meditation and reflection today can bring about greater success and happiness tomorrow. Don't limit yourself to petty ambitions. You are capable of great things. P.M. be particularly devoted to loved one.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) — It is possible to confer with a wise and experienced comrade today who can give you excellent ideas how to expand in the early future. P.M. fine for being with good pals and having a good time.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) — A good day to analyze just how much progress you have made toward your goals and then to quietly go about seeing the right people informally so that you can get ahead more swiftly with more ease. Be charming.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) — Ideal day to get closer to your friend. Be sure you attend services and digest the pearls of wisdom expounded by religious leader. Then put new philosophy into practice the remainder of the day and evening. Be happy.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) — If you will get into the so-called silence, you can get some excellent intuitive flashes which you should follow immediately. P.M. get coming days planned wisely. Fine for romantic leanings, too. Be devoted.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) — You will know what your exact relative position is with all associates today. Get together and iron out any seeming differences. P.M. fine for social life as best suits your mood. Be happy and charming.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) — Ideal day to do for others and conduct yourself in such a way that you become an inspiration for them. Then plan your future along such humanitarian lines and you cannot help but succeed. Be thorough, practical.

If your child is born today — he, or she, will have such a brilliant mind and charming way that those in the highest brackets will want to assist your progress. However, it is important you early teach that what is enjoyed most is what's ever is earned by the sweat of the brow. Accepting too many favors will only lead to disappointment in the long run. Also, use disciplinarian methods early so that the fine promise in this chart can be realized to the full.

Monday, October 3

General tendencies: This can really be a Blue Monday, called you refuse to be drawn into any arguments or discussions and hold your temper under complete control. You find most everyone is apt to have a chip-on-the-shoulder without really knowing why. Be a good Samaritan and don't judge but help everyone with his, or her problem.

Aries (March 21 to April 19) — Don't permit a private worry to disturb you. Keep working steadfastly and you can accomplish a great deal. Besides having an opportunity to assist others in need of encouragement. Your problem will take care of itself. Be gentle.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) — If you permit, troubled friends could now disturb your own tranquility. Listen quietly to what they have to say, assure them that all will work out well, given time, and then get busy on own affairs. Don't argue with anyone.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) — Instant you must be careful not to act unwisely throughout the day or you could lose precious. Be sure you are civic - minded and particularly clever in dealing with higher - ups. Get real credit higher — a part payment is better than none.

Moon Children (June 22 to July 21) — While you are still enthused to get into new and more interesting outlets, it is best first to clear up any unfinished business. Meet all outstanding commitments. Then you can study new material in the evening quietly.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21) — Don't give in to that temptation to brag your ire on an expert you have hired to give you valuable advice, since you believe it to be erroneous. Listen carefully instead and you find he, or she is right. P.M. be more kindly with loved one.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 23) — You are tempted to be overly critical of an associate today, and also to speak unwisely to one who is not terribly impressed by you, anyway. Refrain from any such foolishness. Counsel instead brings far better results. Be cheerful.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) — Begin week properly by getting your duties performed efficiently and thoroughly. Then take on the assignments that you need and be sure your wardrobe is in good condition.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) — You are most anxious to enjoy yourself today, but most of your friends are busy at work, and it would cost you a good deal of money to tag along with new acquaintances. Be gainfully employed yourself or seek simple pleasure.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec 21) — Worries at home, or other disturbances, could make this a rather miserable day for you, if you permit. Take the initiative. Do whatever work needs to be done and bring order out of chaos. It is up to you to take the lead.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) — Drive carefully and be sure your vision is good, or you could get into trouble today. Also, talk in a quiet manner, though you may be upset about something. Do not let depression get hold of you or you lose a great deal.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) — If you gamble unwisely today, you are apt to jeopardize much of your hard - earned savings or property that is secure. Keep at regular duties and impress the trade, others that you operate very sensibly. Don't be gullible.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) — Important you are very diplomatic today or you could get in trouble with one who is vital to your welfare. P. M. take health treatments and put clothing in order. Then you can improve your affairs instead of making them worse.

If your child is born today — he, or she, will inherit a hybrid mind and be forever asking questions. However, there will be an early tendency to be overly critical of others. Teach to replace criticism with a kind suggestion. Give the benefit of much physical exercise in order to keep the mind fertile. Then the chart is fine for any connections with the government, especially in trouble shooting capacity.

Mourning Dove Is Popular in U.S.

Back in 1922 the mourning dove was first legal as a game bird in Pennsylvania. Having hunted these birds for many many years in the southern part of the county I knew what the Pennsylvania law was missing, so I spoke my piece one evening at a meeting of the local sportsmen' association. My suggestion that they ask the petition the Game Commission for an open season on mourning doves was greeted with loud and emphatic silence.

Time went on and eventually, by devious means, we did succeed in having the bird recognized as a game bird in Pennsylvania. To be sure, the announcement was greeted by many with derisive remarks. They'll be shooting canaries next, they said; who wants to waste a ten-cent shell shooting at a bird the size of a robin?

That, as I say, was back in the early nineteen forties. Today there are many thousands of enthusiastic dove hunters in my home state.

Time was, perhaps ten years ago, that the bobwhite quail was the nation's number-one bird. Not so today. The last compilation of total reported kill in the United States was somewhat in excess of 19 million.

ANYBODY'S GUESS

How many millions of shells are fired annually at these little speedsters is anybody's guess. It has been said jokingly, no doubt, that one of the ammunition companies has erected on the lawn before its office building a bronze statue of the mourning dove. Moreover, it is the daily duty of one of the vice-presidents to dust and polish this statue, granting it all reverence. I wouldn't know about that.

At the present time the mourning dove is on the game-bird list of 30 states. But, as you know, our climate is changing. Now the average daily temperature of our northern states is some ten degrees warmer than it was ten or fifteen years ago.

The dove is a hot-weather bird and this change in temperature has widened his range considerably. Several other states are conducting studies of this bird and are considering opening the season. After all, the mourning dove is found in every state in the union, save Alaska.

There is much to learn about the technique of hunting mourning dove. Now and then a retriever is used but generally dogs are not needed as most of the birds use cornfields as feeding grounds, stuffing their crops with the seeds of foxtail weed, smartweed, etc. Thus, where the flocks are scattered, as they are here in north-central Pennsylvania, was not them up in the cornfields.

Mourning doves are creatures of habit. Having selected a certain area in which to feed, roost, drink, bathe and rest, they establish definite flyways through which they move from one place to another. If you can find a good flyway, and have a considerable number of birds you can enjoy some of the trickiest wing shooting imaginable. But therein lies the rub; good flyways are usually come by.

WIND DIRECTION

Wind direction must be taken into consideration when taking your stand under an established flyway. On any day last September I chose a flyway stand at the corner of a cornfield that is used each year by a good-sized flock of doves. The birds came over me in satisfactory numbers and had some excellent shooting. But the time the wind was blowing directly toward me. Still.

Two days later I took that same station. This time the wind was at my back, blowing away from me. As usual, the birds were coming in flywise but the influence of the wind was evident. Not until I faced the flock and moved my station to the downwind side of the flyway did I have any shooting worthy of mention.

Equipment and ammunition for dove hunting is optional. For flyway shooting I prefer to sit on a stool, rather than stand or sit on the ground. So we use a small aluminum shoulder which hooks through my belt. While walking cornfields, I don't tote one. I know I have it, when I miss it it weighs very little. Then, if I wish to take up a stand on a flyway, my little stool is with me.

A good many hunters use No 7½ and No. 8 shot for doves. We use some No 9 shot and find it quite satisfactory. For general use, both in cornfields and on flyways, we prefer our regular field guns with barrels bored to No. 1 and No. 2 shot. However, two men I know—both excellent shots—use full-choke duck guns.

Admittedly, these fellows can reach out and bring down birds at which I don't even shoot, but at medium ranges their hits too hard, often resulting in complete demolition. So I stick to my old field gun and manage to bring home enough birds which have not been shot-up too badly.

Should you live in one state which holds mourning dove in satisfactory quantities, but in which there is no open season on dove, start the ball rolling to have this great sportsbird placed on the game-bird list. Believe me, you are missing excellent sport and top-notch wing shooting if you don't shoot mourning dove.

UN MOTION POSES

cided what position to take on the resolution.

It is scheduled to give final approval to the agenda for this 15th meeting. Some explosive items will come before it.

They include the question of seating Communist China, Soviet actions in Hungary and a Russian - sponsored item charging United States aggression.

The steering committee voted several days ago against putting the Red Chinese proposal on the agenda, and it referred the "United States aggression" topic to the political committee.

COULD BE UPSET

The assembly, however, must ratify these actions.

In other actions in the UN Friday:

Ethiopia's deputy prime minister Aklilou Habte Wold presented a resolution for an assembly speech. "Why could we not provide a resolution or declaration renouncing the use of atomic weapons while awaiting the settlement of the disarmament question?" he asked.

Kwame Nkrumah proposed a modification of Khrushchev's demand for a three-man secretariat to replace Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold's office. The Ghanaian president suggested three deputy secretaries - general, acceptable to the West, East and the neutral states. But he said Hammarskjold "would still be the boss."

K CHANGES HAMMARSKJOLD TO QUIT

President Rejects Neutralists' Call To Meet Nikita

Menzies and Macmillan Talk With Eisenhower

WASHINGTON (CP) — President Eisenhower rejected Sunday the plea of India and four other neutral countries for immediate new summit talks between Eisenhower and Soviet Premier Khrushchev.

However, he suggested the summit may be revealed eventually if Khrushchev takes concrete measures to ease tensions. Any summit would have to be preceded by an East-West foreign ministers' conference bearing prospects of fruitful results.

This was Eisenhower's reply to the call of India, Ghana, Indonesia, Yugoslavia and the United Arab Republic for Eisenhower, Khrushchev and Macmillan to ease a deepening and dangerous world crisis.

Eisenhower said he fully sympathized with the motives of the five neutral leaders that led them to make their plea for action by the United Nations General Assembly.

COULD BE GESTURE

But he didn't want to be party to a "review of issues" that has enlisted those desirous of peace. Regardless of his own feelings, there was nothing in the President's words or actions "which gives me any reason to believe that the meeting you suggest would hold any such promise" of productive results.

Eisenhower's reply was drafted before after he held an 85-minute conference with Prime Ministers Macmillan of Britain and Robert Menzies of Australia. Menzies is the next major Western spokesman in the UN debate. He is to address the General Assembly Wednesday.

It is known Macmillan is deeply concerned over the turn the events at the United Nations. He conferred with Menzies Saturday night and held another hour-long conference with him Sunday before returning to New York.

In making their move for a summit, the neutral leaders of India, Indonesia, Ghana, United Arab Republic, President Sukarno of Indonesia, President Nkrumah of Ghana and President Nasser of the United Arab Republic, well aware of Eisenhower's arguments against a meeting with Khrushchev at this time.

Khrushchev has followed one attack against the U.S. with another, heaping abuse not only on Eisenhower but also on Macmillan. Khrushchev has set the stage politic of increasing tension

Hal Patterson Leaves Before Practice Ends

MONTREAL (CP)—The Star says what amounts to a revolt within the ranks of Montreal Alouettes, who have been having their troubles with football games, confronted the club brass today.

Hal Patterson, star offensive end, stomped off the club's training quarters Sunday after quizzes before the end of a practice and film-viewing session ordered by coach Perry Moss.

The session was prescribed following Saturday's 19-15 defeat by of the Als by Toronto Argonauts.

Patterson's abrupt departure came after Moss had raced his players through sprints and then left greasy and sloppy by rain.

Moss complained the players were out of condition. The players disagreed. Patterson vigorously says The Star.

When the players left the field at 4 p.m. for a 90-minute session with films, Patterson kept right on going. He showered and dressed quickly, brushed off several questioning teammates and headed for home.

Books Worth $10,000 Canada's Gift To Nigeria on its Independence Day

LAGOS, Nigeria (CP)—Prime Minister Alhaji Sir Abubakar Tafawa Balewa of Nigeria said Saturday he would ask the United Nations General Assembly to set up a special plain he will criticize both the Communists and the West.

He will tell the UN, he said, "I will speak my mind whether UN members agree with it or not."

The prime minister was speaking in reply to Duncan Sandys, Commonwealth relations secretary, who said Canada would be placed in a national library here.

Ceremonies formally ending 100 years of British rule were held at Lagos race track Saturday. More than 50,000 persons attended Britain's farewell party.

Sandys formally handed over seven gifts to Sir Abubakar.

A 21-gun salute boomed out in the harbor from the Canadian destroyer Ottawa and the British cruiser Bermuda as the West African nation assumed its new status as an independent member of the Commonwealth.

Sandys' gift rule was accompanied with unrestrained praise for Britain's colonial policies by Nigerian leaders.

The prime minister said:

"We come to this task better equipped than many. For this we pay tribute to the manner in which successive British governments have gradually transferred the burden of responsibility to our shoulders."

Nigeria has a population of 36,000,000.

Diefenbaker Regime Wants BNA's End New Constitution

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government wants eventual enactment of a wholly-Canadian constitution and repeal of the British North America Act, at present the basic constitutional document, a federal authority indicated today.

The step might be the final one in a three-stage plan which may be outlined at a constitutional conference of provincial attorneys - general and Justice Minister Fulton starting Thursday.

The first step may be a bypass of the long - standing difficulty about whether unanimous agreement of provincial and federal governments should be a requirement of an amending formula.

In place of an amending formula on which previous constitutional conferences have bogged down, the federal government may seek agreement from the provinces to ask the British Parliament to pass an amendment giving the Canadian Parliament all of Britain's present powers to amend the BNA Act.

Federal authorities are understood to feel that the decades-old impasse on constitutional reform could be solved by first getting agreement to transfer Britain's amending powers to the Canadian Parliament and by later, if separately the question of a formula for actually making a constitutional amendment.

The theory here is that there would be no basic change in the position of the provinces if Britain's amending powers were transferred to the Canadian Parliament.

At present constitutional amendments on questions involving both federal and provincial governments have a statute in force by the British Parliament at the request of the Canadian Parliament.

Unanimous consent of the provinces in such cases is not essential although no Canadian government has requested an amendment without first having established the provinces' prior agreement to it.

Mr. K Backs Algerian Rebels Says Force Only Solution

NEW YORK (AP) — Soviet Premier Khrushchev has rallied publicly for action by the Algerian people to free themselves from France.

"The colonialists know no other reason but the reason of force," he told Algerian leaders Sunday.

While dodging a question as to whether Soviet arms were reaching the Algerial rebel regime, Khrushchev said, "The government does exist."

Khrushchev's move was a blow at Secretary - general Dag Hammarskjold, who has declared that Algeria is a matter for negotiations between France and the Algerian rebels. Khrushchev once supported.

"The French say the North Africans are a flock of sheep and De Gaulle has avoided any recognition of the rebels as a government.

Khrushchev met with three cabinet ministers of the new provisional government for two hours at the Russians' Glen Cove, L.I., estate Friday.

A spokesman for the Algerians said "we were in full agreement" with Khrushchev and expressed his wishes for liberation of all colonized countries and for peace.

Khrushchev's session with the Algerians was one fragment in a weekend flurry of diplomatic activity which observers speculated might be the start of a dramatic Khrushchev exit from the big stage of the United Nations.

The Soviet premier started off Saturday with a free-ranging speech at the General Assembly till Sunday. Last included Fidel Castro, Cuban premier, spokesmen, mostly with African countries, for Communist China and by the Chinese delegation, and meetings with newspapermen.

He has no announced appointments later than Tuesday. Several governments have also scheduled to leave this week, starting with Soviet Premier President Thursday. However U.S. security men said they have not yet received departure notice from the Russians.

Conservation Council Takes Grim Look at The Province

TORONTO (CP)—The Conservation Council of Ontario Sunday painted a grim picture of the land and told Premier Frost and his government that unless there is intensive agricultural production, a cleanup of polluted streams and a national land use plan:

In a 60-page report, the council said that the annual soil loss in Southern Ontario is polluted. It called for a broad land use plan to be in force by 1970 and demands that may treble in the next 50 years.

By the year 2000, the council said, Ontario will have to produce twice as much food to meet its population. Only about 12,000,000 acres of land are now classified for agriculture, but by the year 2000 about 1,500,000 acres would be needed for urban use, leaving 10,500,000 acres for recreation and fertility.

The report, two years in the making, recommended that sufficient money be allocated for research on wetlands, which cover one-quarter of the land area.

Southern Ontario, except for Ottawa, St. Lawrence and Niagara Falls areas, has a shortage of parks unparalleled by any other province, the council said.

It said in one day at the Ontario conservation camp near Thousand Islands Provincial Park over 6,000 persons crowded every inch of the beach. The total park area in the Ontario Provincial park system was 2,000 acres compared with 60,000 acres in the Chicago area.

The council said Canada helps to implement land use plans to help underdeveloped countries in the Colombo plan but so far has shown little interest in setting up parks in Canada's colonial policies by Nigerian leaders.

The prime minister said:

"We come to this task better equipped than many. For this we pay tribute to the manner in which successive British governments have gradually transferred the burden of responsibility to our shoulders."

Nigeria has a population of 36,000,000.

FOUR COMPANIES WILL TIE UP FLEETS OF SHIPS

1,600 Seamen Will Be Put Ashore

MONTREAL (CP)—Four fleets of ships were to start tying up today in a move by the ship-owning companies to support the strike-bound fleet of N. Paterson and Sons, Ltd.

The grain season, one of the busiest periods for ships, is expected to be drastically affected by the strike and the shutdown that will take 104 ships out of service and put about 1,600 seamen ashore.

The four companies, who with the Paterson firm form the Lake Carriers Association, decided to shut down shortly after the Seafarers' International Union (Can) struck last Wednesday to enforce wage and working - hours demands.

The association charged that the SIU illegally abandoned many of its members when some of them in positions dangerous to the ships, their cargos, and other water traffic.

DENIES CHARGES

The SIU has denied the charges and terms the shutdown a lockout.

The association and the union were both negotiating through federal conciliators. There was no quote, but no progress was reported.

Sunday, the association charged that it had asked SIU co - operation in manning the ships "illegally abandoned" or left in dangerous positions, but had received no help.

The union said it would co-operate with any federal government authority that asked for it—"as soon as this, but there is a strike in progress" and there will be no co-operation with the companies.

The union said it gave the companies plenty of notice that a strike was coming and arrangements for key jobs could have been made well in advance. The crew had no say as to where a ship would go, but "there is a lot to the company or the ship's master.

"We're not going to sail ships to their home ports," a union spokesman said.

ARGUE OVER VANDOC

Squabbling during the weekend was over the Vandoc, one of the Paterson fleet of 40 ships, which was loading grain at Port Colborne, Ont., miles northeast of Buffalo, N.Y.

The association asserted that the ship was left when her hatch covers open and has sprung a leak. There was danger that wa-

Kennedy Suddenly Turns Slugger, Thus Delighting Ex-Champ Truman

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice-President Nixon returns to the political campaign wars today to find the tactics of Senator Kennedy apparently changed.

Kennedy, the Democratic candidate for president, had opened the campaign in a general key, avoiding direct attacks on Nixon, the Republican candidate.

But, after a strategy meeting with his advisers Friday, Kennedy apparently changed his plans. He now looks more like a slugger, Nixon said.

In St. Louis Sunday night, a Democratic slugger, former president Truman, obviously enjoyed himself as Kennedy attacked Nixon.

Kennedy said that Nixon had called him "another Truman."

"I regard that as a great compliment . . ." Kennedy said.

"I consider him another Dewey.

"Like Mr. Dewey, he represents the Republican party's status - quo - ism. Like Mr. Dewey, he is a say-nothing candidate, and like Mr. Dewey he will win nothing in November."

Kennedy was referring to Thomas E. Dewey, defeated by Truman for the presidency in 1948.

Kennedy outlined a program to drive a wedge between Russia and the European satellites, especially Poland. But it would be through peaceful means.

"We do not want to mislead the people of Poland or Hungary into the belief that the United States is prepared to liberate them."

Nixon said Kennedy was another of his "position papers" on medical care, and cited Kennedy's "great new offensive against the age-old scourges of mankind."

Nixon said Kennedy's four-point program: The award of federal fellowships to medical students, federal support of medical research, more building of medical facilities and research laboratories and the use of the president's office to call a conference to rally support for medical schools, hospitals and institutes.

Nehru Opposes Any Basic Change In UN Structure

Khrushchev Threatens To Ignore UN Decisions

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) Indian Prime Minister Nehru, appealing today for summit talks between Premier Khrushchev and President Eisenhower, said Eisenhower has not closed the door.

He appealed to the General Assembly for unanimous approval of a neutral nations resolution calling for the Big Two talks. Nehru said the U.S. president has not wholly rejected the idea," added.

"The door is still open for consideration and the president has expressed his deep anxiety to help in the lessening of international tensions."

OPPOSES SOVIET MOVE

Nehru also opposed any basic change in the UN structure, in effect lining up against the Soviet bid to abolish the office of secretary-general.

In a policy declaration before the General Assembly, the Indian leader said the organization has been effective "even as it is and definitely say the United Nations has amply justified its existence."

Nehru's statement came prior to Soviet attacks on Dag Hammarskjold, UN chief, and the move to place him with a three-man executive. The Indian leader said the opposes any change which would involve amending the UN charter. Such an amendment would be necessary to abolish the office of secretary-general.

King Hussein of Jordan declared today the Soviet Union has always tried to destroy the United Nations.

The young Jordanian monarch told the United Nations 99th regular General Assembly immediately after Soviet Premier Khrushchev.

At the outset King Hussein said:

"I want to make sure that there is no mistake where Jordan stands in the conflict of ideologies endangering the peace of the world.

Concerning communism the king said:

"On almost every vital issue nations are offered a choice, between the views of the Soviet empire represented to the dictates of Communism and the free institutions.

"It is a choice and it is for every nation to decide."

His said his Arab kingdom had made its choice and it was prepared to reaffirm we reject communism."

Sunday's Rain Proves Welcome In Rural Areas

The slightly over half an inch of rain which fell Sunday was welcomed throughout the Bay of Quinte district, which had experienced one of the driest Septembers on record.

Many wells in the rural area were running short of water while cisterns in some instances have been dry for weeks.

Local truckers with tank trucks have been drawing water steadily from the Belleville water filtration plant. The water goes to customers in both the Hastings and Prince Edward county areas whose wells or cisterns have gone dry.

Cool, Sunny Weather Greets Record Crowd at Tweed Fair, Exhibits up in All Classes

TWEED — One of the largest crowds in the history of the Tweed Fair turned out in cool, sunny weather Saturday for the final day of this year's two-day fair sponsored by the Tweed Agricultural Society.

Society president William McCrea said, "it wouldn't be surprised if this was a record crowd".

Secretary-treasurer D. E. Spencer said attendance Saturday totalled 4,000 with "well over" 2,000 paid admissions. Gate receipts totalled about $1,400 compared with $900 in previous years.

Traffic backed up from the fair grounds well into the downtown business area and pedestrians converged on the fair grounds in great numbers, giving the appearance of doubling the village's population for the day. Village and provincial police had their hands full directing and controlling traffic but they managed to get by without any untoward incidents occurring.

All of the exhibits, with the exception of livestock and poultry, were on the grounds Friday morning. Judging of livestock was held that day. Poultry judging one building was available to accommodate the exhibits, that the exhibitors lacked in space they vied for in the quality of their displays. Most judges reported finding it difficult to award first prizes as there were ties in most cases, much difference between first and second place calibre exhibits.

The cattle show was said to have been slightly larger than in past years, while the horse show was considered "excellent". There were small poultry, sheep and swine exhibits, as well.

While midway rides clustered around an enclosure in which the livestock judging took place, others packed the midway area and filled the grandstand to capacity while an exciting auto racing card progressed throughout the afternoon.

MAKE WAY INTO FINALS

Owen Ketcheson of Moira topped the 33 entries in the 4-H Club cattle exhibit, closely followed by Allen Thompson and Clare Treverton. Ketcheson and Thompson will attend the Madoc Fair on September 17 to participate in the group championships.

Ketcheson's good 23 Club contests was the Black and White show which saw 21 Holstein cattle in competition. Mac Thompson had the top Holstein calf while Mr. Ketcheson and Garnet Gean followed two-three.

The Treverton - Ketcheson - Thompson Holstein judges judged best showmen in that order.

Mr. Ketcheson's Ayrshire competition and Allen Robinson came first in the Hereford class. Mary Lockwood won the Shorthorn competition while Jack Hall was third member.

In the children's pony races, Nancy Hunt of Marlbank, came in first ahead of Sandra Day and a half dozen other beautiful ponies.

BABY SHOW POPULAR

A popular feature of the fair was the baby show, which this year had the largest entry of many years. Proud parents and fanns between the ages of one month old and one year, took honors in the "baby beauty show".

Little Christina Brock, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Brock of R.R. 1, Tweed, took first prizes in the girls' one-to-six-months class, Brian Robinson, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Robinson of Actinolite, took first prize in the boys.

The judge was Mrs. Harold Varty, and Lila Wannamaker in charge of weighing-in the babies.

The exhibit building was congested during the fair hours as crowds of spectators filed through to view the home-baking, needlecraft, vegetable and fruit and floral exhibits.

The show was held in the centre of the building drew many favorable comments from spectators. Arrangements were largely and artistically arranged, in various sections. The cut-flower section featured a colorful display of gladioli, dahlias, pansies, zinnias and petunias. The decorative section included floral baskets and floral arrangements for dining table and mantelpiece, which also were artfully done. Also on display were potted plants.

The vegetable science class exhibit included a delectable mouth-watering display of jams, home-baking, and a large array of bottled fruits. This class featured a Canada Packers' special domestic pie and cake competitions.

FINE CHEESE SHOW

The Ladies' Work section featured a fine display of examples of needlecraft talent. What this section lacked in entries, it made up for in quality. Colorful hooked rugs, crocheted afghans, and patch-work quilts, were displayed beby clothes, embroidered tea cloths, guest towels, ladies' and men's wear, children's fancy knitwear and crochet work adorned items on display. Foamcraft articles, paintings and metal-craft articles also exhibited.

A wood-work display produced by pupils from grades six to eight, a few merchants' exhibits, and a large commercial cheese exhibit were also to be viewed in exhibit building. The latter featured excellent quality white and colored July, August, and September cheese. Stilton cheese, and Asiago cheese. Prizes were also offered for both these classes.

He cited Khrushchev's threat of rocket retaliation against the U.S. and other countries; the shooting down of the RB-47 on July 1 over Russian territory; the U-2 incident and the Russian walkout from the Geneva 10-power disarmament negotiations.

"If the United Union seriously desires a reduction in tensions it can readily show the way for useful negotiations by actions in the United Nations and elsewhere," Eisenhower said.

Apparently waiting for Eisenhower to make the first move on the summit proposal, Khrushchev fenced with reporters all week-end, saying he hadn't made up his mind.

But after Eisenhower made public his letter, Khrushchev promptly issued a speech for today that undoubtedly will make Eisenhower's life less soothing the neutrals all through his New York stay.

Whaling Ships Lie Rusting Off Newfoundland Coast As Industry Dying Off

By JOE DUFUS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—Four whaling ships lie rusting in harbors along the Newfoundland coast, testifying to the demise of a once-prosperous industry that played a big part in Newfoundland's great sea tradition.

The old ships are all that is left of the whaling industry that at the start of the century was a thriving exporting their $300,000 worth of meat and oil processed in 45 factories.

Only one such factory remains; at Dildo in Trinity Bay, to process the meat of the baleen whale. It is a seasonal operation; with little relation to the spring when blue or fin - back whales were hunted by men with harpoon guns from steamers.

ANNUAL SLAUGHTER

The polished whales which appear along the coasts for a few weeks each summer are driven ashore by men in dories and slaughtered in shallow water. The meat is in demand, here and on the mainland—and in the United States, Britain and Europe—as feed for animal farms, such as mink ranches.

There still is money to be made in ocean whaling, says Cheslie Crosbie, whose firm successfully engaged in the whaling industry for 20 years.

But it demands a huge initial capital outlay, and he says, "I'm not sure it would be worth the gamble."

Capt. Johan Borgen, of St. John's, owner of the 500-ton Sir Whalers each worth about $30,000, says there's a fortune yet to be made in whaling. But he can't find investors for the whaling operations he is trying to promote.

WIDE MARKET

The Norwegian - born Capt. Borgen says there now is an unlimited market for whale meat in the U.S. and Europe. One British firm, he said, annually buys 500,000 tons.

Co-op Store Not Identified By Speaker

HAMILTON (CP) — Wholesale cooperative that cost $4.50 to produce only 75 cents in a Canadian owned co-operative drug chain, the National Union of Public Service Employees was told during its annual convention here.

"The co-op store we need" was identified by James MacDonald, Ontario executive secretary of the national labor co-operative committee.

Mr. MacDonald said trade unionists are defeating their own cause through their buying habits. He urged the delegates to get behind the co-operative movement.

"We, blast the chamber of Commerce or the man next door," he said, "Yet we spend almost every dollar we have in its members' stores on the other hand."

"We are willing to use money to oppose trade union activities. They are totally opposed to our social and economic aims."

Larry Sefton, regional vice-president of the Canadian Labor Congress and director of District 6, United Steelworkers of America, told the convention that while solidarity is given the high cat - paid workers in industry "low wage blights" remain in Canada.

Mr. Sefton said many employees of steel firms in areas within his jurisdiction have received substandard wages. He said the Steelworkers in Orillia and Strathroy were getting 96 cents and $1 an hour, respectively, before the union was certified.

He added that first-class electricians in a St. Thomas firm are paid "the same as a floor sweeper" at the parent firm's plant in Chile. Some Canadian workers should receive "some of the same pay as some of their American counterparts, he said.

The convention ended Saturday.

Survey Shows Nixon Has Slim Lead Over Rival

WASHINGTON (AP)—Neither Richard Nixon nor John Kennedy now has a substantial lead in the race for president, Experts rate the states with the electoral votes they control.

At this stage of the campaign, Nixon, the Republican candidate, apparently has more electoral votes in his pocket than Kennedy, the Democratic candidate.

But Nixon's lead is slim and his total far from a majority.

These are the conclusions that emerge from a survey of 30 states by The Associated Press.

The survey showed Nixon leading in 22 states with 181 electoral votes and Kennedy leading in 14 states with 138 votes.

A SLIM LEAD

The difference is only 38 votes, and neither man comes within 100 votes of the 269 votes needed to win the presidency.

The survey rated six of the largest states — New York (45), California (32), Pennsylvania (32), Ohio (25), Texas (24), and Michigan (20)—among the toss-ups, although there was some indication Kennedy had an edge in Ohio and Texas.

If either Kennedy or Nixon could take all or most of these 178 votes, he probably would win the election.

There were some indications Kennedy's Roman Catholic religion was hurting him, particularly in the south, somewhat in California and Illinois, and increasingly in Arizona.

At the same time, the issue seemed to be waning in North Carolina and Oklahoma and helping him in Pennsylvania and Wisconsin.

Other reports from the survey:

1. There seems to be no major former revolt against the Republican party in the middle west.

2. There is a major dissatisfaction with the Democratic platform, particularly the civil rights plank, in the south. Because of this, six of Alabama's 11 electoral votes and all of Mississippi's eight votes may go to another Democratic candidate.

Two Voices, Same Language

In style of delivery, there could hardly be a greater difference between two accomplished orators than that which exists between Prime Minister Harold Macmillan of the United Kingdom and Prime Minister John Diefenbaker of Canada. Yet every person who has read their speeches to the United Nations Assembly must be forcibly struck by the fact that they speak the same language, not merely technically, in their use of English, but basically, in their whole approach to the international situation.

This is, indeed, in this sense, a language which is understood and appreciated by the whole Western world, as has been amply proven by the praise heaped upon Mr. Diefenbaker for his earlier speech and now being accorded Mr. Macmillan.

It is, understandably, not a language which finds favor with Khrushchev, but that was not to be hoped for. What remains to be seen is how it appeals to the uncommitted nations, particularly those of Asia and Africa. Will these voices of caution and reason, of transition through evolution, win out over Khrushchev's colorful, abusive and revolutionary effusions?

Those few commentators in the Western world who found any fault with Mr. Diefenbaker's address did so out one of two grounds, either that it was platitudinous or that it was harsh.

If these were valid criticisms, they could not be applied to the address of Mr. Macmillan. And yet we may well wonder whether he could have been so conciliatory in tone, if some preceding speaker for the Western powers had not made the blunt outline address which were being ignored by the Communists and to bluntly set them aright on the facts of international life, past and present.

Indeed, in the one important area of international friction with which Mr. Diefenbaker did not deal, the German question, Mr. Macmillan was as blunt as any speaker could be. "Western Germany is accused of seeking allies. They have at least sought them freely and openly. Eastern Germany has as their friend. He grew up in the fishing industry of the Grand Banks and knows the ways, the new techniques so that he is able to

Strictly Personal

A Criminal Doesn't Enjoy His Work

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

My dinner partner the other evening was remarking, impatiently, with what she considered my moral self-righteousness, that she said she had no sympathy with people who so evidently enjoyed life beyond the law.

Now, it seems perfectly evident to me that (except for a small number of psychopathic personalities) no man really "enjoys" living beyond the law, nor thinks it a desirable existence for himself.

The attitude of criminals toward their children furnishes striking proof of this. Many of them want their sons to follow in their father's footsteps in the profession; but I have never known a criminal who wanted his son to imitate the father.

Quite the contrary: successful criminals usually encourage their desire to have their children go to the best schools, establish a conventional background, and lead a decent and respected life. The sons and daughters of crooks are often precisely the ones who repudiate and adopt other protective colorings.

If a man truly enjoyed and delighted in criminality, he would not deny such pleasure to his offsprings. It follows, then, that almost every criminal feels forced to engage in his activities against his conscious desire for more or less character, but cannot help it or enjoy it.

It is a blind and callous mind that assumes that fallen people rejoice in their transgressions — as much as they may feel impelled to rationalize their lives by blaming society for making them. Every crook thinks of himself as a good and honest person "at heart" — indeed, many of them may be, in their own tortured ways.

Simple as it would make matters, it would be unrealistic to divide people into the two broad and distinct classes of criminals and non-criminals.

Rather, there are those who work out their reactions anti-socially, and those who work out theirs socially. Accepted rules of society, like the unbrotherly love of Beethoven that he might have the pleasure of writing his 9th symphony, or the unbrotherly love of Napoleon that he might have the satisfaction of ruling Europe.

The whole thing seems to go back to a deeper higher than our own. We lie in the centre of a Hand which, we can be sure, is entirely sufficient for our life and our security.

The great wonders are not Biblical miracles. The great wonders are the everyday circumstances which we usually take for granted.

Rich Catch for Eskimos

Dupont News ....

The starr, a fish with a disguised ancestry, but unmistaken flavor, is opening a new industry for the Eskimos of Canada's Eastern Arctic. With tenders and deep sober like the salmon and a taste similar to trout, the fish is just starting to catch on as a palate-tickling delicacy on the menus of the best restaurants throughout the country, according to Dr. Fisheries Research Board of Canada, recent to Chicago, Toronto to New York.

The Eskimos are being called on to supply the growing demand. The season begins the end of June and ends late in August.

Char fishing has now completed its second commercial year. With the guidance of the Department of Fisheries, Arctic Industrial division, it has expanded to the town of Frobisher Bay at Baffin Island, N.W.T. From here 10,000 pounds of silver-sided beauties are exported to the markets in the southern parts of the south. Another 30,000 pounds will be flown from Rankin Inlet in Ungava, and 18,000 from Port Burwell, N.W.T. This, so far, is the limit. Federal and provincial fisheries boards will at present allow no more to be taken for commercial use. Their efforts are to conserve the char for long-range exploitation — for the Eskimo as a northern counterpart of the Scot for the gourmet as a taste treat.

Hammarskjold Is Brave Man

Ottawa Journal

There are many faces of Mr. Dag Hammarskjold, Secretary-General of the United Nations. There was the physical bravery of his presence in the Congo. But the ice in this man's soup was never more impressive than in his extraordinary defence of his office and his conduct of that office before the Security Council of the Soviet Union in the UN Assembly.

Mr. Hammarskjold's manner, the observers reported, was coldly correct and aloof. But the ice was not that of indifference. It seemed of even a paler blue than that of an exercised his right of reply. His pale eyes blazed and his words seemed metallic hard, full of the clang of steel.

. . . this is a question not of a man but of the organization for whatever word you like, independence, impartiality, objectivity — they all depend on the existence of what, without exception, must be the first duty of the Secretary General."

There is why the elaborate detachment and persistent courtesy, the manner perfectly comfortable with the criminal, the manner of a man speaking who could be suspicious of neither angry and natural human emotions. That was an instrument, an instrument of nations of the world and of the challenging themselves United.

Here the ice could not break through once. He broke through with the quality of courage: "I shall refuse (as my last office for the Secretary General) break on the principle of independence, impartiality and objectivity than drift on the basis of compromise, even at the choice daily facing the Secretary General."

Premier Khrushchev, who was there to see, was not impressed. He pounded his desk and he fist. The Russian spokesman who declined to say whether the government indicated approval or disapproval of Mr. Hammarskjold's speech was as well as diplomatic. For it might have indicated neither, but something that Mr. Khrushchev does not often experience. It might have been frustration.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

October 3rd, 1940

The evolution of the newspaper from the time of the Roman Acta Diurna and Chinese editions ago to the modern presses was described by Owen Hertig, dean of the district's inter-collegiate speakers, to the Kiwanis Club from a treatise on the development of the Chinese nation which not only discovered the printing process, but paper manufacture, and later gunpowder. Mr. Hertig took his listeners down the path of printing and newspaper progress from the movable type of Johann Gutenberg, to the rousing rotaries of the present day. Printing was introduced into England by William Caxton who learned the process in Germany and printed 100 books in 15 years. Printing came to Canada 200 years of anniversaries in the printing business. Mr. Hertig told the clubmen that 400 years ago the first printing press operated in Massachusetts; and 30 years ago the first newspaper in Belleville, Canada was printed in Boston. It was called "Public Occurrences" and was suppressed because it was believed too revolutionary.

Belleville's first newspaper, the "Upper Canada Gazette" was printed in 1831, the speaker said, but it lasted only a few months. Next came the "Phoenix", a company paper made from rags. Later in his address, Mr. Hertig read humorous excerpts from a copy of the "Phoenix."

October 3rd, 1930

There has been considerable criticism, more on the part of pedestrians, that there is no yellow or safety light on the signal at the corner of Bridge and Front Streets. Pedestrians, it is said, have no chance against traffic; they say that it does not matter whether the light is against them or with them — there is no chance to cross the intersection at the corner.

The crowded floor of the upper bridge has been poured and the footing poured for the middle pier with the whole centre pier being finished before the weekend. This is excellent progress.

40 YEARS AGO

The Y's held a party meeting at the residence of Miss Deecon on George Street yesterday. It was decided to purchase a Victrola for the furnishings sale.

Members of the city council went to Picton today to attend a meeting at which could be considered the details of the proposition which is to be submitted to the electors next January relative to the purchase of the Picton plant.

Mr. B. R. Quinney, head of inspector, submitted his report to the city council which showed that he had made 191 inspections during the year, and had found that the law was being obeyed in every instances bread was overweight.

Mrs. John McCroden spent Sunday in the city.

Mr. J. S. McKeown has returned from Boston, Mass.

Mr. William Appleby, an old Belleville boy who is now in the Yukon Territory for some time, is here on a visit.

Mr. J. C. Sinclair and wife, of Inverness, Scotland, are visiting at Mr. Sinclair's home, Forin Street.

Mr. J. E. Wise, secretary of the Local YMCA, has gone to Toronto to consult with the executive committee of the association for the new YMCA building here. The association's campaign will be commenced next week.

Even Space Now Crowded

New York Herald Tribune

Ever since the second man-made satellite went into orbit, people have quietly wondered about traffic collisions in space. Would we duplicate above the heavens the parkways on earth, where speeding chunks of machinery leave regularly into one another?

The airy lanes are already as crowded with aircraft as the roads below. Now the parkways of space are beginning to fill up. The other day the launching of the Discoverer XIV satellite had to be delayed for a quarter of an hour, not for the usual reasons of bad weather or technical failure but because Discoverer XIII was in the process of breaking into pieces. As soon as the way was clear, the youngest satellite went up to join its elders.

There are now well over a dozen satellites proper circling our globe, as well as an equal number of rocket bodies, metal objects and capsules, the unfortunate debris of experimentation. If there is an actual collision, the bits and pieces will presumably clog up these lanes.

Eventually list science fiction will have its heady, the planet may be encircled by a belt of orbiting scrap, through which new Pioneers will have to be launched with instruments — and with accident insurance.

BALANCED DIET PROVIDES ADEQUATE MINERALS AND VITAMINS

The following letter, I think, is one that any reader might have sent to me. I receive many like it, varying only in detail.

"Dear Doctor: Is it harmful to take 6 calcium tablets daily? The waters contain: Calcium, 1,000 milligrams; phosphorus, 215 mg.; Vitamin C, 32 mg.; Vitamin D, one mg.; Iodine 04 mg. All natural organic substances. I have cut down to two daily since I was afraid they might harden the arteries. Also, are eggs harmful to the arteries? — Mrs. R. B."

When people start worrying about how many pills to take a day, and dwelling over how many milligrams of this, that and the other are in cholesterol, each pill — the plain, simple answer is that they have subconsciously fallen victim to the food faddists and pseudo-scientific manufacturers of tonics.

That business about "natural organic substances" is another phrase that sounds good and is exact, but doesn't really mean much. Even the purest water is made in a laboratory. It's salt, H2O, and a few other trace elements, but it doesn't matter whether it comes from a test tube or from a location which has provided a natural formula. It's iodine, no matter what the source.

The fallacy in the reasoning of faddists (commercial ones or sincere but misguided ones) is that a normal, balanced diet will provide adequate minerals and vitamins. The fact that the body needs only a certain amount of calcium does not mean that you have to eat calcium wafers. Eat a varied diet — meat, fish, milk, cream, vegetable and other sources of calcium. In short, we should be sensible about our diet, not afraid of — sensible but not fanatic, worried.

People in Butte, Canton, Professor, Kansas, and Lyons, Iowa, where eat something differently, dwindling to the foods that are available and reasonably economical. The "green, leafy vegetables" will vary in name and texture, perhaps, but basically they are about the same.

It is only in special cases that a person has to worry about "additives" or pills. Of course, the amount of minerals, whether calcium, iron, phosphorus or whatever. (I do, of course, frequently remind readers that, as the Irishman said, "Everybody shouldn't decide that milk is "a child's food," or that spinach is it, or of getting the equivalent of iron or other calcium-rich foods.)

As to hardening of the arteries: I question whether calcium in the diet has anything to do with it. In any event, the processes of hardening start long before anybody ever begins to worry about calcium and my advice is to forget about that.

WHAT A CHANCE!

Every time I go into a free library and see the hundreds of men and women, young and old, reading, I feel like a child in a candy store, I say to myself: "What a chance!"

I have never am freed of this thought, no matter where I go. It seems as though there are so many things to be read and so little of the grasp and vision to take up the big and important tasks that call so loudly for help.

With confusing improvements in modern appliances, I feel where is the advent every day, it seems, of more and more perfected devices for travel and living, the dream and complainer should be hopelessly in the minority.

What a chance a man or woman has these days!

Knowledge is so free. You can fairly pick it up on the streets, and see their chance.

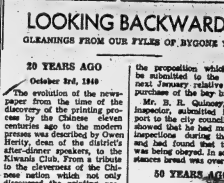
Or over the radio, or TV. And then, the books and the "how worlds to conquer". The biggest task a man or woman has today is to think. And then he has the privilege of going to scores of free libraries where all the ideas have been already worked out by people who thought. The task to do is take fresh steps and go farther than the one before him. What a chance!

Every time I enter my library I feel where I have. Hundreds of men have come in covered volumes to tell me about what they have felt in the world.

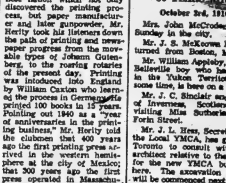
What a chance, we who have been highly favored, have. Let us do all that we can to help others to see the chance, the meagerly cared for by fortune, to find

Rattlesnakes Demobilized

New York Herald-Tribune



The disbanding and merging of famous old British military units has produced some shocks in recent years to the lovers of tradition, but the furling of the colors is about to overtake an unusual military surplus in the form of three of the smoothback rattlesnakes.



The snakes are members of the Royal Air Force's 85th Flight Squadron, based at Acklington in Northumberland. The squadron will be disbanded in December, and the snakes will have to be abandoned (although not to the eleven-year-old English boy who wanted one for Christmas) unless somebody else will find a new home for the reptiles. The snakes are among many, dead and alive, which the squadron received from enthusiasts in the United States after it first made its need known through the pages of the squadron's motto is: "Beware, you have been warned!" so rattlesnakes were the perfect mascot. A special officer was assigned to their care, and the separation is not being taken lightly by the new owners of the reptiles we must await formal demobilization.

THE PACKSACK

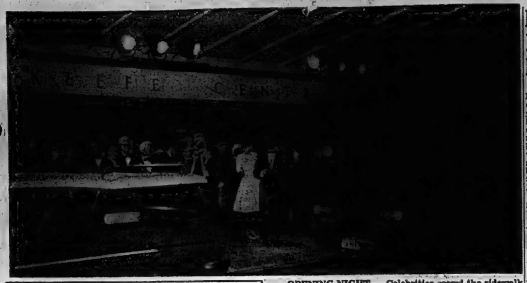
The busiest shop in the business block of the downtown of the city of a shoe repair shop. Sixteen men are employed in the rear of the shop behind a long partition, and you see only their backs as they bend over their work. It takes long training to become a good shoemaker. It takes long training in a life-time cobbler, while your shoes are being fixed, to know whether that slight limp in the customers who stream in and out. Sometimes the shoes have broken one of those personal-habit soles of their shoe; women calling for a pair of favorite shoes that have been resoled and dyed; men calling for a wanting half soles and rubber heels. Sometimes the shoes are brought in by children, bringing their father's shoes, now that the fad has day and age. No wonder the shoes and they won't wear their ears happy. They are cheerful. They are, in short, artists."

STRENGTH FOR THE DAY

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

WONDERS OF EVERYDAY



A man fell ill some months ago as the result of an infection, and his health was restored by the use of one of the new wonder-working drugs which science has recently discovered. In his gratitude, the patient sat down and wrote a letter to the scientist who had made this great discovery. The scientist in answering said: "Your drug is performing cures far beyond our expectations. Particularly enough, we haven't the least idea how it brings about cure."

And it might be added that we have no idea how anything occurs. One of the marvels of life occurs in the transforming of thought into action. A man concludes that he will raise his arm, the impulse is somehow conveyed to the muscles and the arm, ed.

A man will insist: We look out upon landscapes and behold its marvelous colors; we hear people talking and shouting about us; we lay our hand on an object and feel it. How we hear, hearing, or a sense of touch take place? What is the origin of parents' love for their children, or the love of men and women for each other? Whence comes the desire of man for a life lived above the level of animal existence?

The whole thing seems to go back to a power higher than our own. We lie in the centre of a Hand which, we can be sure, is entirely sufficient for our life and our security.

The great wonders are not Biblical miracles. The great wonders are the everyday circumstances which we usually take for granted.

O'Keefe Centre Is Opened With Premiere of Camelot

By ROBERT H. TANNER

The opening of a theatre the size and magnificence of the new $12 million O'Keefe Centre for the Performing Arts would be an event of great importance even in the world's largest cities. In Toronto, it was an occurrence which cannot be matched during this century.

Saturday night a glittering audience assembled amid bands and the glare of television lights to mark this wonderful occasion and to watch the world premiere of the Lerner and Loewe musical "Camelot".

The management of the Centre deserves tremendous credit for the initiative, drive and showmanship which went into the making of this opening night. The eagerly - awaited successor to "My Fair Lady" and "Brigadoon" could hardly be matched for popular appeal, and has the added attraction for Canadian audiences that Robert Goulet of TV fame plays one of the leading roles and will be making his Broadway debut when the show opens there next month.

FOUR HOURS LONG

As Director Moss Hart explained in a short speech before the curtain rose, there may be disadvantages even to a world premiere, in this case the uncut length of the production, which ran for nearly four hours. Doubtless there will be considerable pruning before the New York opening; at present the wealth of scenes, musical numbers and dances made it hard to know which to start on. No doubt, as with "My Fair Lady", it is the music which, by way of radio and records, will first introduce "Camelot" to the public, and here one can say with conviction that Mr. Loewe has done it again. Even by the one and only interval, he had his audience humming and whistling (with varying degrees of success) the tuneful themes of the first act.

Without Merlin's powers of prediction, it is difficult to say which numbers will prove most popular, but it is probable that "Maiden-head", "What Do Simple Folk Do", and "I Loved You Once in Silence", may approach the fame of the hits of "My Fair Lady". However, the fact that the words of the songs are all so closely tied in with the moral of the story may reduce this general popularity.

BURTON OUTSTANDING

In the tremendously colorful production, the acting of Richard Burton as King Arthur stands out. His development from the shy lad who has unexpectedly been proclaimed king, through the successful ruler, to the care-worn monarch who sees his dreams vanishing like smoke, is beautifully portrayed. Mr. Burton's Shakespearean background obviously stands him in good stead. Miss Julie Andrews makes a most appealing Queen Guenevere, both in her appearance and her singing, giving a warm and lively picture of a very human person. Robert Goulet has a difficult time at the start of his role, when he has to portray Lancelot as the paragon of all human virtues. Oddly enough he seems to lack the humor which his words so clearly intend. Later, when his character achieves greater warmth, he carries much more conviction. Robert Coote as King Pellinore is a joy whenever he is on stage, as is the shaggy dog which accompanies his first entrance. The remainder of the large cast of actors, singers and dancers performed with obvious enthusiasm and apparently a complete lack of "first night nervers". In fact, first night mistakes and mishaps were conspicious by their absence.

The beautiful and marvelously equipped theatre, the delightful production, the distinguished audience and the general excitement of a spectacular theatrical occasion all contributed to a most wonderful and successful evening which will live long in the memories of all who were fortunate enough to attend.

September Dry But Not Record For This Region

The month of September was dry, but it was not the driest September on record in the Belleville area.

For the month just ended the rainfall totalled only .72 inch, while back in 1948, just 12 years ago, only .52 inch of rain was recorded in the local area.

A year ago, September saw 2.19 inches of rain, still less, however, than the 10 year average of 3.16 inches.

However, September was both cooler as well as drier than the corresponding month a year ago. High for the month was 84 degrees with a low of 38, and a mean temperature of 62.2 degrees. A year ago the maximum was 93 with a low of 33 and a mean reading of 64.9 degrees.

Hasty Pees Hold Service, Drill Contest

Members of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment paraded in the Bellevilla Armouries yesterday for the annual drumhead service and inter-company drill competition. The Regiment's Padre, Capt. Alex Wakeling of Carrying Place conducted the service and the lesson was read by Major Ken Willcocks. A bountiful lunch was served by the Q. M. Staff under Capt. Ross Hart.

A highlight of the day was the presentation of an engraved stein to Major Barney Sowden of Port Hope on the occasion of his retirement after 20 years' service.

Each Company in turn then showed its proficiency at arms drill. Support Company led by Capt. Jack Fullerton, led off. Major Percy Gray of Marmora showed B Company's ability and Lt. Keith Rose of Port Hope commanded "C" Company. "A" Company of Trenton and Picton commanded by Major Beck Riordan of Belleville, won the competition.

HIGHLY PRAISED

Lt.-Col. Saxby of 13 Militia Group H. Q. Peterborough, in making the presentation, explained the marking system and stated that the standard of drill demonstrated by the Regiment was equal or superior to any in the country.

Col. Saxby was assisted in the difficult task of judging by two former commanders of the Hasty Pees, Lt. - Col. Everett S. Fairman and Lt.-Col. William Davern.

The color party was directed by Lt. Paul Davis of Stirling with the Regimental Color carried by Second Lt. Frank Atkinson, of Belleville.

TAKE NICKEL PLANT

HAVANA (AP)—Cuban workers have taken over operation of the $110,000,000 U.S.-owned Nicaro nickel processing plant in Oriente province. The United States announced last Thursday it was closing down the plant because of harassment and confiscatory taxes imposed by the Fidel Castro regime. The move by the workers was viewed as a preliminary to outright seizure of the big installation.

Pharmacists' First Aid Plan Goes Into Effect

Ontario cities, towns and highways this month will be blanketed by close to a thousand commercial and private vehicles carrying the most utilitarian aid service ever devised for accident victims.

This is the result of a decision by the Ontario Retail Pharmacists' Association last spring to make available pharmacists' first aid training to the public during this time of rising death tolls on streets and highways.

The ORPA has adopted a new "life saver kit—gear that is designed to halt heavy bleeding and revive asphyxia victims by mouth-to-mouth breathing. Vehicle identification is a green and white ORPA window sticker with the accompanying words, "First Aid Service."

Pharmacists carrying the new gear will be prepared to aid the injured or offer their kits to doctors on the scene.

In June, the ORPA, at its 42nd annual convention in London, Ontario, endorsed the long-term province-wide plan. At the time, ORPA executive member Crawford Gould of Toronto, described the venture as, "one way in which pharmacists can further their efforts to assist their fellow men. The pharmacist is a man well equipped to help injured people in minor emergencies, because of his close association with doctors and his knowledge of treatment methods."

In the following month, newly elected ORPA president, Carl Wilson, Toronto, received notifications of approval from Commissioner W. H. Clark of the Ontario Provincial Police and Highways Minister Cass.

POLICE APPROVE

"This is indeed a commendable contribution," said Commissioner Clark, "and should not in any way conflict with the safety program conducted by the Ontario Provincial Police, or otherwise interfere with ordinary traffic law enforcement."

He added that first aid equipment would be both a source of supply in the event of emergency, and suitable gear for those qualified for administering first aid treatment.

Highways Minister Cass said he "would be glad to endorse your plan to have members of the ORPA carry first aid gear in their cars. Anything that can be done to aid the unfortunate people who experience accidents on our highways is to be highly commended."

Although all pharmacists have had full first aid instruction, many intend to take refresher courses. At the same time, the ORPA hopes, through the first aid public service project, to foster interest in the first aid treatment with residents across the province.

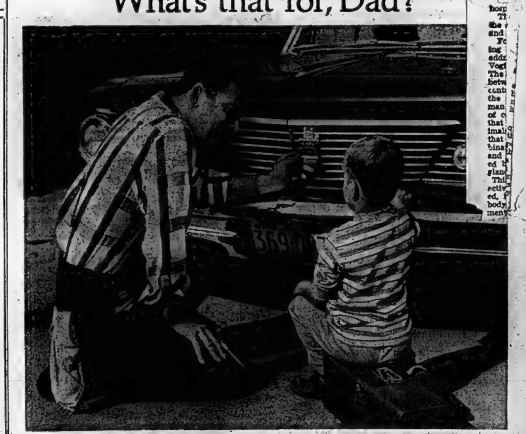
"Dad. Look at this snake wriggling," Ken called. "I want it."

But his father was more interested in an old parrot cussing away happily in its cage. "You've got a mighty fine selection here. A pity there's no monkey," he told the owner of the little petshop. "How many birds?"

The old man smiled. "Well, the lad can figure that out," he replied. "Altogether my stock have twelve heads and forty legs, and they're all perfect specimens."



Now you can figure it out!

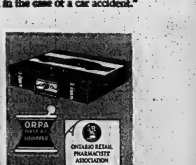
"What's that for, Dad?"



"That's to show that I am ready and able to give first aid in the case of a car accident."

There's quite a story behind that simple question and answer. It started last June at the 42nd annual convention of the Ontario Retail Pharmacists' Association in London, Ontario. It was decided there that pharmacists would render first aid to the public during this time of increasing accidents on our streets and highways.

Now, beginning with PHARMACY WEEK (Oct. 2-8), most members of the Ontario Retail Pharmacists' Association will be carrying the new "life-saver" kits in their cars. Each member's car will be identified by a windshield sticker and a plaque. These pharmacists are now immediately prepared to aid the injured or to offer their kits to the doctors on the scene.

Simply—this is but one more example of how your neighborhood pharmacist is always prepared to be of service to his community.

What's Life? Topic at Gamma Mu

The first fall meeting of Ki Alphha Mu Chapter, Beta Sigma Phi, was held at the home of the president, Mrs. J. Joblin. The president opened the meeting with a few words of welcome and noted with pleasure that all members were present.

The president and other members reported on their visit to the Cancer Society headquarters. It was suggested that the chapter hold a supper dance at the Kiwanis Centre. This suggestion was with enthusiastic approval.

At the conclusion of the business session an interesting program was provided by Mrs. S. Wormwood.

Refreshments

Refreshments were served by the hostess and Mrs. Alston Read and Mrs. Jack Sisson.

SECOND MEETING

The second meeting of the month was held at the home of Mrs. J. A. Johns, with the president, Mrs. J. Joblin in the chair. A short business meeting was held during which both social service and future programs were discussed. The president announced that leave of absence had been requested by Mrs. D. Black and Mrs. L. Read, and that Mrs. J. Snetsinger had resigned. These two valuable members will be greatly missed. Mrs. Jack Sisson is to take Mrs. Read's place as social convener. Members of the chapter are to contribute books to the Pocketbrix ward at the hospital.

The next meeting will take the form of a visit to the "Land of Cradle Fate" on October 5.

Following the business meeting a most thought-provoking address was given by Mrs. J. Lyman on "What is Life?" The speaker drew a comparison between the lower animals existing in the cells, and higher animals of which we, as one, consisting millions of cells. She went on to say that differs from other animals in his ability to think and mental activity is a combination of physical, chemical, electrical energies developed in the nerves, muscles and cells of the human organism. A vast collection of mental entities, the speaker contends, is generated by the human brain as the result of environment, which drives the mind of the body. The three most important part emotions play in the physical and mental health and concluded that the emotions revealed the calming effect of the simplicity of nature, especially in the high-tensioned whirl of today's environment.

Mrs. Wortman closed with an illustration of this point by reading part of Wordsworth's "Intimations of Immortality."

The speaker was introduced by Mrs. V. McLean and thanked by Mrs. R. Smith.

Following the speaker, a discussion period was held under the direction of Mrs. S. Wormwood and the meeting concluded with refreshments provided by Mrs. J. L. Acton and Mrs. G. Badgeley.

'Historical Hastings' Topic At W. A. Meet

Mrs. W. Dallas presided at the first fall meeting of the Women's Association of Bridge Street United, and welcomed all back after the summer recess. The singing of "O Jesus, I have promised to serve thee to the end" and prayer by Mrs. Dallas was followed by a short business meeting.

The program was in charge of Mrs. H. D. Arnott and Mrs. J. Musgrove, and their group. The devotional exercises, conducted by Mrs. Arnott and Mrs. Musgrove, were based on St. Paul's letter to the Galatians. His call to service is still sounding and the Christian woman has many opportunities to show their devotion by acts of helpfulness and love. A prayer that one may clearly see what God would have her do, and gain strength to do it, closed this part of the service.

Mrs. H. Reid sang beautifully, "Tell me the old, old story".

SPECIAL SPEAKER

The special speaker for the afternoon Mr. Gerald Boyce, head of the History Department and president of Hastings Historical Mohra Secondary School, and Society was introduced by Mrs. F. D. Armour.

Mr. Boyce outlined the aims of the Society, now in its third year and members three of the projects: "Historic Hastings" a speaker feature in which interesting items of history are reported; the work that is being done by the Society toward the establishment of a Museum, and the library of slides and pictures which is being collected.

Some interesting slides of Belleville in the early days of the middle of the 19th century to the early 1900's were shown.

Mrs. Musgrove thanked Mr. Boyce, on behalf of the group, for his interesting address.

'Catering an Art' Topic At Coronation W. A.

"Catering is an Art", discussed by Dorothy Batchelor at the September meeting of the Coronation W.A. at Bridge Street Church proved to be a most interesting and informative subject. A large number of new and old members received many tips and suggestions pertinent to the serving of food for catering.

In her introduction of the speaker Mrs. O. Maddocks told of the training of Mrs. J. MacKinnon, who is professionally known as Dorothy Batchelor, travels extensively in her capacity as home economist for the Poultry Products Institute of Canada. She has a regular C.B.C. radio program entitled, "Food Facts"; has substituted on radio C.J.B.C. for "Harriet Stevens", and has previously worked as Home Economist for the Consumer Section, of the Department of Agriculture in Ottawa.

"The Table Setting Presents a Picture", was the first topic discussed. The speaker stressed the importance of every guest being well spaced place settings to present a pleasing appearance. Table centres and ornaments should be low so as not to interfere with the view of the guests. Also all the head table should be floor-length so as to hide the feet and legs of those seated at the head table.

HYGIENE STRESSED

Hygiene in the handling of foods, dishes and cutlery was also carefully use of refrigeration and its value were stressed. The speaker reminded of proper sanitation laws that are enforced in all public eating places, should be followed to strictly by all those serving food. In the washing of dishes very hot water, a disinfectant and thorough washing and drying were all important health. Foods should be left in room temperature only a short time, mean length of time to avoid danger of spoilage.

In arranging the food on each plate keep in mind the color, texture and flavor blending of each food. Although menus must vary tremendously in accordance with the type of meal required, many useful ideas for variety in foods and garnishes were suggested. There is an abundance of handbooks and recipes available from the Consumer Service, Department of Agriculture, such organizations as Poultry Products Institute and many other food processing companies.

UNIFORMITY IN SERVINGS

Uniformity in servings and care that each guest receives her equal share, no matter how large the crowd, is the duty of the server. In discussing this topic, "Service is an Art," Doreen Chandler said a great organization and plans essential to make the most of food appear effortless, smooth and efficient. Whether serving a cup of tea or a many course banquet the comfort and well being of the guests are the prime concern of the caterers.

Many members took advantage of the social half hour at the close of the meeting to obtain pamphlets and further information from Mrs. MacKinnon.

The meeting was opened by Mrs. B. Kerr with gracious words of welcome to the old and new members. The devotional was conducted by Mrs. J. Seeley, group, which included Mrs. K. G. Baird, Mrs. H. E. Davis, Mrs. G. Shaver, Mrs. O. Dunmore, Mrs. E. Oram, Mrs. D. Maddocks and Mrs. M. Ralph, who gave a delightful solo.

THANKS TENDERED

Mrs. R. Edwards, convener of the Coffee Party, thanked Mrs. Davis for the use of the parsonage and all her willing help on that occasion. Mrs. Edwards also thanked the treasurer, Mrs. F. Taylor, the president, Mrs. B. Kerr, and the members whose efforts contributed towards making the Coffee Party a success. Mrs. Edwards is also of the Coronation W.A. expressed sincere appreciation to Mrs. Edwards for a successful and enjoyable evening.

The meeting closed with tea served by Mrs. Seekings group, residence.

MODERN MANNERS

Carolyn Hagner Shaw

TIPS ON TABLE MANNERS

The process of eating is not a particularly pretty sight, I think we all agree. But we must eat, of course. It's how we eat that counts. Do we guard carefully against affronting others with unsightly table manners?

The following are a few "don't do's" with which we are all familiar. They are so simple that one is apt to disregard their importance and become careless.

Let's take bread, for example, the most mishandled of all foods. Bread should be broken, a small piece at a time, before it is buttered. You don't take a whole piece, lay it on the plate in the hand, and butter it as though you were painting a fence. Making little mounds of bread, by fiddling with it during the meal, isn't very attractive either. The use of a piece of bread as a "push object" also is frowned upon. This habit is only for the very young. Neither bread nor crackers should be crumbled up and dropped into the soup. Break off a small piece of either, and eat it separately.

Other things to watch: Never reach across the table for anything. Ask courteously to have what you want passed to you. Never leave the spoon in a coffee or tea cup, nor in a half-stemmed dessert dish. The spoon should be placed on the accompanying saucer without actually in use.

Never dip your own spoon into the sugar bowl, or the jelly. Always use a serving spoon or fork when helping yourself. Do not cut up all your meat before starting to eat. One bite at a time is enough. And, of course, never talk or drink with your mouth full of food.

The rules regulating the placing of bows on the table have been what modified in recent

However, one elbow on the table at a time is enough. Never should all over the place. Also, don't cultivate the unpleasant habit of leaning on the table, fork in hand, and leaning down to your food. One should sit up straight when eating, and the food should be lifted to the mouth, not vice versa.

In the days of Victoria, it was considered piggish and impolite to consume all the food on one's plate. This rule definitely has been modified today, but don't make yourself conspicuous by mopping around to get that last crumb.

Party Dessert Smash Hit

By Mary Moore

Little fifteen - month - old Susie is in her high chair helping herself her oatmeal porridge. Marianne is washing dishes and Eleanor and I are in my office trying to act as if all were normal.

This is a very active and happy household, and running through my mind all the time are plans to keep organized and operating at full capacity with a little baby girl as a visitor. For you see Marianne is going back to England and leaving her with me until they are posted back to Canada — to arrive for Christmas.

Can't you see me baking one tiny potato for Sue and making about 1-3 cup of porridge in a double boiler and, most surprising of all, staying home?

We had a party for Marianne. During the next little while I will tell you more about the menu, but because the dessert I made was a smash hit I want to give it to you today. It will serve 30, must be made in advance, and Pete and Wiff say it tastes like Swiss chocolate.

DELUXE CHOCOLATE PARTY DESSERT

8 squares unsweetened chocolate
1 1-2 cups white sugar
2-3 cup milk
12 eggs, yolks and whites, separated
1 lb. 4 pounds unsalted butter
2 cups sifted icing sugar
1-4 teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon vanilla
6 dozen split ladyfingers about 2 cups strong, cold coffee
1-2 pint (10 oz.) heavy cream, whipped about 2 cups shaved or shredded brazilia or pecans or pistachios

Melt chocolate in top of double boiler over hot — but not boiling — water. Combine white sugar, milk, and egg yolks. Add to chocolate, and cook until smooth and thickened, stirring constantly. Cool to room temperature. Be sure there is no warmth left in this chocolate mixture. Cream butter well. Add 1-3 cups icing sugar, and cream thoroughly. Add cooled chocolate mixture, and mix well. Beat egg whites with salt until stiff, gradually beat in remaining 1-3 cup icing sugar. Fold into chocolate mixture. Add vanilla. Line bottom and sides of 3 buttered standard - size loaf pans (Or 2 10" angel food cake pans with removable centres) with split lady fingers which have been quickly dipped in and out of strong cold coffee. (This is a job which requires patience. The skill with which you do it gives the professional appearance to the finished dessert.) Pour the chocolate mixture into the ladyfinger lined pans, filling them brimming full then banging the pans on the counter to make the chocolate mixture flow into the cracks between the ladyfingers. Smooth the top, cover with foil and chill overnight — 24 hours. Turn out on serving dishes by loosening sides with knife and dipping bottom of pans in lukewarm water for about 5 seconds. (If you mould this in angel food cake pans with removable bottoms it is simple to unmould them.) Garnish tops (or edges and sides) with unsweetened whipped cream and sprinkle it with shaved nuts (and/or shaved bitter chocolate). Serve very cold. It slices neatly. Even the strict dieters broke training over this.

A dinner was held later at the Riviera Inn, Campbellford.

The couple were recipients of many lovely cards, flowers, and gifts. Congratulations were received from the Queen, Mr. Diefenbaker, Mr. Frost, and Mr. Goodfellow. Mr. and Mrs. Ben Thompson called during the evening.

Friends from Toronto, Lindsay, Peterborough, Cobourg and Ottawa were present and a telegram from friends in Barrie also helped to make it a happy occasion for the couple.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

Editor's NOTE: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a marriage counsellor, a magazine editor and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actual case history. The Council reports on problems that have been faced successfully by ancestors and counsellors.

Karen E. — I'm in trouble for trying to do good.

Mrs. L. E. — She's been listening to gossip.

Karen E. — I am 16 and in a lot of trouble just because I tried to do the right thing.

My cousin Ann, who is 23, was married about a year ago. Her husband is very handsome and quite a ladies' man. The first time I met him, I noticed that he took quite a shine to me. He made a lot of remarks about the way I am "stacked," how I do my hair, etc. After that, he didn't say anything but I noticed his eyes were always on me when I was around.

I felt sorry for Ann and finally spoke to her kid sister about this. Ann's sister, Marie, is my age and I thought she would be the right person to tell Ann wise. So what does Ann do. She goes back and tells my mother I'm a bad girl ought to be spanked. Now I'm not allowed to date for the rest of the term.

Mrs. L. E. — I don't feel we have chosen too harsh a punishment for what Karen did. She is old enough to know she couldn't talk like that, but the only way things make an impression on her mind is through depriving her of something she wants very much.

I felt like punishing Karen much more severely for this because I know it is the result of her listening in on some gossip around the house. Ann's husband has quite a reputation and I notice that every time he becomes the topic of conversation, Karen is all ears.

Ann closes her eyes to nearly everything that goes on about her husband, but she shouldn't be completely blind and she should make him keep away from teenagers. So in a way I'm not too sorry Karen acted up about this thing.

The Council: Mrs. L. E. seems to talk out of two sides of her mouth in this case, and as a result her "punishment" will be totally ineffective. Karen now has every reason to believe she is being condemned for the sake of public opinion. Inconsistencies like these can create great moral dilemmas for youngsters.

If Mrs. L. E. believes Ann's husband spoke or behaved in an unsuitable way to Karen, she should have told the man so directly. If she does not believe this, she must know that Karen is wrecking an erotic fantasy based on no more reality than a few casual, essentially meaningless words.

If the latter is true, it is important for Karen to understand this is something that can happen to anyone, but read, especially a person who lives a great deal in day dreams. Teenagers are prone to day dreams, and for the most part this is harmless, but they must be alert to the distinction between dream and reality.

It is, however, much more alarming when an adult slurs over this distinction — and we think this has happened to Mrs. L. E. The "gossip" she describes is a lurid form of daydreaming and has no place in the life of any mature, principled person.

Mrs. L. E. should recognize that she has supplied the soil for the growth of a habit that can be harmful to her daughter. She can help rectify things by letting her daughter know how wrong and dangerous it is to gossip. She should also tell her that if any men behaves toward her in a way she finds wrong or disturbing she should discuss it with nobody but her mother.

INDIANS AT WORK — A rapidly growing population is adding to the problem of finding employment for Canada's Indians. Federal placement officers were first appointed in 1957 and have had success in finding work for 500 Indians. This portable mill, operated by a gang of Indians in Northern Ontario, produces lumber in line by cabins the government helps them to build. (CP Photo).

Finding Industrial Jobs For Indians Is Difficult Task for Goverment Officers

By ARCH MacKENZIE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

HUDSON, Ont. (CP)—"The Indian is his own worst enemy," says a typical northern Ontario businessman.

The words ring familiarly to Arnold J. Boisvert, a placement officer with the northern Ontario regional office of the federal Indian affairs branch — one of a handful of men across the country striving to open more industrial jobs for Indians.

"Kindness is just a sign of weakness to the Indian," says the businessman who recalls lending $10 to an Indian who asked for help and being told a year later when he tried to collect that he was stupid to have loaned the money in the first place.

Mr. Boisvert has heard most of it before in making his rounds over a huge area stretching from home base at North Bay, Ont., to the Manitoba border.

FALSE IMPRESSIONS

He also knows that the criticism of the Indian he has heard in this CNR mainline hamlet is refuted elsewhere across the country by thousands of Indian workmen in steel, railroading, logging, fishing and construction.

Four placement officers were appointed in 1957 and more have been added since — but many more are needed because of the huge area that must be covered.

The first emphasis has been on quality rather than quantity, says the branch, with the view "to dispelling false impressions as to the desirability of the Indian as a worker and laying the basis for a more widespread demand by employers for Indian employees as their worth becomes proven by actual experience."

About 500 persons have been placed so far in nursing, teaching, clerking, as technicians or construction hands. The placement officer works closely with the National Employment Service to locate jobs, picks suitable applicants who are likely to succeed and then keeps on with financial assistance and encouragement to fit the young man or woman into a strange community.

"The problem in a province like Manitoba, for example, is to find an industrial job, an employer and a trained applicant," an official in Winnipeg said.

Mr. Boisvert's selection of applicants for jobs in Sault Ste. Marie, Port Arthur or Sudbury must often come from brighter members of bands literally a few years from the northern Ontario keepee where the seasons and sun are the clock, and time, saving and work in the non-Indian sense are indecrous.

"The essence of life was found in being—and NOT in becoming something we are NOT today," says Dr. Ben Reitel, American son of a Sioux mother and German father, in suggesting the essential aspect of the Indian tradition which most non - Indians fail to grasp.

The appointment of placement officers indicates recognition of a major shift in the attitudes of Indian economic life.

NOT FARMERS

The Indian generally is no farmer—historically or by training—and the branch now seems inclined to agree that farmers tend to be born rather than made.

Mechanization in logging and sawing have hit many Indians hard. Traditional game and furs, main sources of income still for many northern Indians across the country, are economically hazardous, although many will have to depend on them for years to come.

There are some standing attitudes inside and outside the Indian affairs branch.

CAN HOLD LIQUOR

"The southern prairie Indian has been spoiled," said one senior official. "We have done too much for him and now he won't do enough for himself. The northern Indian hasn't reached that stage yet and I hope he never will because he works hard for a hard existance and encouragement to fit the young man or woman into a strange community.

Liquor? The public image of the Indian tends to depict a loafer with a bottle of beer in one hand and a family allowance cheque in the other.

But only two of a number of observers queried across the country put the Indian occidental hold his liquor or that he invariably indulged to excess. Most favored full liquor rights. One dissenter had been in Indian work for 25 months and the other was commenting on northern Ontario bands where beer parlors are a novelty in the main, to be experienced a few days every month.

"The Indian drinks no harder than the white man around here," said an Ontario provincial police constable at Sioux Lookout along the line from here. "He comes out and the whites set him a bad example but he's no worse by a long shot."

"If I had as little trouble with the non-Indians as I have with the Indians, I'd be out of a job," said an RCMP officer in British Columbia. Back at an interior B.C. city after a six-year absence, he said he noted an improvement.

"Perhaps it's television that keeps them off the streets now. Anyway, they don't hang around much anymore."

WOMEN SUFFER

That is not true everywhere, but tends to be where the Indian is making enough money on his own to be economically independent. The bad spots are the economically-barren zones, by and large.

The B.C. Indian handled the beer parlors pretty well when they came in," says F. E. Anfield, acting Indian agent for B.C. "Once the novelty wore off, it worked out pretty well."

But, in the tremendous transition facing the Indian in the last few years, the woman may have suffered more than the man, he suggests. Oakalla prison is a point. So is the situation in Moosehide. Women prisoners of Indian ancestry predominate in both Oakalla and the Moosehide Jails.

Woman picked up for being drunk and disorderly enjoy a prison term in comfort—and often are vastly superior to their own homes and then elect to take a prison term in Oakalla or Winnipeg rather than being sent back to their homes. They start a cycle of prostitution, vagrancy and re-arrest that rarely breaks until the victims are hopeless derelicts.

DRUG PROBLEM

So far, says Mr. Anfield, there that narcotics addiction is not a leak back to reservations have not been borne out, perhaps because Indians could ill afford the money. The ring of reservations and distance has been a stabilizing factor for the local Indian population.

The experience of off-reservation Indians in cities has led numerous groups to urge a change of assistance for Indians taking jobs there. Federal medical care for Indians stops 12 months after they leave a reserva tion and most municipalities and provinces tend to assume—wrongly—that the Indian is a ward ward for keeps.

The B.C. Indian, which has its allied Metis problem, there is no question of any large surge of Indians to the city. Welfare statistics don't list recipients by race but a survey indicated that most Indians had been there for years.

"There appears to be a certain flow back and forth and most would prefer to stay on the reservation," says F. Floyd Lenton of the welfare council of Greater Winnipeg. The pattern is for arrivals with little money to head for lower-income areas.

"The men know what to expect but it is tough on the women, especially if they have children."

DRUNKEN KILLING

The pattern shows plainly the slender hope of successful integration for these classes, who invariably wind up with the "poor white" or Metis popula tion, the latter even worse off than the Indian—and more numerous in Manitoba—because they have no one to lean on.

As a criminal, the Indian most frequently offends as drunk and disorderly, invariably in murder cases the charge is reduced to manslaughter because the Indian was drunk, legal authorities say.

Some areas are worse than others and Grassy Narrows in northern Ontario, 80 miles west of here and 90 miles north of Fort Frances, is one case.

"If they don't have one slaying a year, they have two to make up for it next year," says a provincial police official.

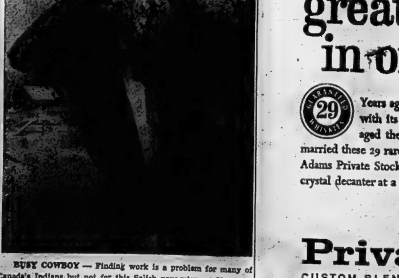
Mother Very Ill, So Diefenbaker May Miss UN

SASKATOON (CP)—Mrs. Mary Florence Diefenbaker, 87, mother of Canada's prime minister, was in critical condition in hospital today with a lung infection.

She has been confined to wheel chair since 1957 and 18 months ago suffered a stroke.



The prime minister and his wife flew here from Ottawa Sunday night to be at Mrs. Diefenbaker's bedside. They were greeted at the airport by Mr. Diefenbaker's brother Elmer.

The prime minister had planned to return to the United Nations General Assembly in New York sometime this week but his emergency flight here may force a delay in the trip. Officials said his plans are indefinite and will be dictated by his mother's condition.

MOTHER RALLIES

Dr. David M. Baltzan, Mrs. Diefenbaker's physician, said Sunday night she rallied enough to recognize and say a few words to her two sons. The doctor said her condition "remains serious".

Two-Run Homer Did It

Long Latest Yank Hero

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—"Well, that makes it 15. I said we'd win 15. Four more to go."

Dale Long, whose two - run homer Sunday had sent the New York Yankees into the world series with a 15 - game winning streak, was talking in the Yanks' clubhouse.

A few minutes later he was posing for the photographers in manager Casey Stengel's office with old Casey and co-owner Dan Topping.

"You did a remarkable job, swinging that bat for me, since we got you out of the Giants' bullpen," said Stengel. "You don't know it but you were supposed to catch the last inning but we got a little mixed up."

ONCE WAS ONE

Stengel smiled. Who knows if he was kidding? Long once did see action for the Chicago Cubs as a left-handed catcher, just as Branch Rickey had trained him.

"I wanted to show you I could hit the lefthander," said Long. (His winning homer came off rookie southpaw Arnold Earley). "He was only the third lefthander I saw all year."

When Long left, Stengel started to talk about the day's pitching.

"I decided (Whitey) Ford was my best pitcher today," he said. "I was more than enthused about him. The catcher (Johnny Blanchard) told me he had so much stuff he couldn't catch it. I wouldn't be afraid to start Ford any time."

ASKS LEADING QUESTION

Was it safe to say that Gil McDougald would play second and Bobby Richardson third base in the world series opening Wednesday at Pittsburgh?

"I'm almost sure I will start (Clete) Boyer at third base," said Stengel. "If you ask me about the others, you'll have my lineup with three days to go and nothing to write about.

"My starters (pitchers) are in fairly good shape. They got enough work all around. Maybe (Ryne) Duren would have been better off if he just threw fast instead of monkeying around with some other pitches." Duren walked two, gave up a single and was charged with a wild pitch in a brief trial in the seventh).

Stengel said the club will work out this morning at the stadium and fly to Pittsburgh in the afternoon. They will work out Tuesday afternoon at Forbes Field.

Exhibition Hockey

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

National Hockey League teams, swinging into high gear for the league's openers this week, limited challengers to five goals in six exhibition victories during the weekend.

Chicago Black Hawks took on the Eastern Professional Hockey League's Sault Ste. Marie Thunderbirds twice, defeating the Soo team 3-0 Saturday and running up a lopsided 10-1 score Sunday.

In the first game, watched by more than 5,000 children whose Kiwanis Club, Ed Litzenberger, admissions were paid by the Soo Ron Murphy and Ken Wharram all scored.

In Sunday's contest, leftwinger Bobby Hull, last year's NHL scoring leader, got three goals and Wharram scored twice.

DOWN HULL-OTTAWA

Fired by Leo Labine's two-goal attack, Boston Bruins downed the EPHL's Hull-Ottawa Canadiens 5-1 in a game broken up by a third-period brawl.

Referee Gordie Pranschke issued 10 penalties as a result of the fracas. Five-minute majors for fighting went to Bruins Fern Flamas and Dick Meissner and Canadiens Al McNeil and Willie O'Dee.

Montreal Canadiens exploded with third-period goals by Don Marshall, Dickie Moore, Billy Hicke and Jean Beliveau to defeat Quebec Aces of the American League 7-2.

Other AHL teams fared less well. Buffalo Bisons lost 5-0 to Toronto Maple Leafs and Hershey Bears watch Detroit Red Wings fire seven unanswered goals and wind up their exhibition season with their 13th straight victory.

In Montreal, the EPHL's Montreal Royals took a three-goal lead and managed to hold off the AHL's Cleveland Barons to win an exhibition game 3-2.

Say Gordon Will Manage Kansas City

DETROIT (AP) — Joe Gordon, an old figure in controversial managerial switches today was rumored ready to quit the Detroit Tigers to sign as manager of the Kansas City Athletics.

He would replace Bob Elliott, Athletic manager only one season, a reliable source told The Associated Press.

Officials in both the Kansas City and Detroit front offices said they knew nothing of the report.

Gordon has been with the Tigers only since Aug. 3 when he traded managerial jobs with Jimmie Dykes, who left Detroit and took over the Cleveland Indians.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

The McFarlands training camp starts in Memorial Arena tomorrow night between six and seven o'clock but there will be a number of the familiar faces missing.

Coach Gordie Bell who has little less than three weeks to whip a team into shape to meet Whitby in the loop opener October 21 has a player problem on his mind.

Bell released the statement yesterday that Paul Payette, Moe Benoit and Floyd Crawford will play with the Omaha team of the United States League.

They will join former buddy Bep Guidolin who goes to the team as a player after coaching the Kapuskasing club of the Northern Ontario senior league last year. The coach of the Omaha club is Kenny Campbell, ex-defenceman of the defunct Pembroke senior "A" club.

Minnie Menard, who apparently has been cut or released by the New York Rovers amateur club, will also play for Omaha this season, according to Coach Bell. So it looks like a reunion of the former Val D'Or group of players who came here in a body when Guidolin was signed as player coach of the Belleville team a few years ago.

Bell left for the Niagara Falls peninsula last night and will remain there today and the most of tomorrow on a player hunt. He will be back in time for the opening of the training camp.

He said he has Marv Edwards, goalie who accompanied the McFarlands to Europe during the 1959 world championships, also Billy Colvin, former high-scoring Kingston centre ice star, who has been trying out with the Frontenacs professional club.

Toppazzini and Roy Patridge also of Kingston, will try out with the McFarlands, Bell said.

The Omaha management must have dangled some enticing offers before Bep Gidolin, Bep declined according to manager Wren Blair of the Kingston Frontenacs, "wanted too much money," so was let go. Benoit told this department he turned down the Frontenac contract.

Paul Payette stated last week he had decided to hang up his hockey gear for good because of security reasons.

The departure of Crawford and Benoit leaves Coach Bell with a big defence problem. The McFarlands were never overloaded with good defencemen and the situation has worsened with the absence of the above-mentioned pair.

Bell said the McFarlands management had held a meeting with the players a few days ago and laid the financial cards on the table. They had been told what the maximum salaries would be and that was that.

As a matter of fact the Macs are one of the two or three teams in the all-Ontario Senior Hockey League that are paying players on a salary basis. The rest—the greater majority—will operate on a share the wealth plan.

THAT BASEBALL GAME

Bobby Strachan said yesterday that arrangements have been completed for the baseball game between the Belleville Kenners, the Ontario junior "A" major champions, and the ex-Belleville Kiwanis juniors squad of over a decade ago.

The game will be played in the CNRA Park next Sunday afternoon starting at four o'clock. Tickets for the game will go on sale immediately.

The entire proceeds of the game will be used to augment the $200 gift of appreciation from the city council and the entire amount will go towards the purchase of jackets for the 1960 junior baseball champions.

More about this tomorrow.

Great Ready And Able

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Staff Writer

PITTSBURGH (AP)—A right-handed pitching duel between Vernon Law of Pittsburgh and Art Ditmar of New York was forecast today for the opening game of the 1960 world series here Wednesday between the National League champion Pirates and American League champion Yankees.

Law was officially named by Danny Murtaugh Sunday after the Pirate manager was assured the 30-game-winning right-hander had completely recovered from a slightly sprained right ankle. The injury hampered his work in a series tune-up against Milwaukee last Friday night.

Another encouraging note to Murtaugh was a report from Doctor Gerard on the left wrist he fractured last Sept. 6. The Pirates' captain and shortstop, who Saturday made his first start in more than three weeks, rapped two hits and fielded flawlessly, reported no ill effects.

"Great positively will play in the series," said Murtaugh. "This is the best news I've had since we clinched the pennant. My mind-saying I was worried about him although I had confidence that young Dick Schofield would do a satisfactory job, Schof did a tremendous job for us filling in for Great."

NAMES PITCHERS

Murtaugh was so happy he even named his pitchers for the second and third games.

Right-hander Bob Friend (18-12) will pitch here Thursday and southpaw Harvey Haddix (14-6) will hurl the first game in Yankee Stadium Saturday.

Yankee Manager Casey Stengel is expected to open with Ditmar, his 21-game ace, and call Whitey Ford, his veteran southpaw, for Saturday's game. Duke Hurley, another right-hander, is the second-game possibility. Ford (15-9) has worked on Friday, pitching five innings against Boston.

A capacity partisan crowd of some 36,000 is certain to fill every available nook and corner of Forbes Field in hope the Pirates will avenge the Yankees' four-game world series sweep in 1927, the last time Pittsburgh won the National League pennant.

GET UP TO 200

Excitement over Pittsburgh's first championship in 23 years has reached a boiling point. The games have long been sold out and scalpers are asking and getting $33 for a $7.70 reserved seat and as much as $60 for an $11 box seat.

All games are slated to start at 1 p.m. EDT except that of Sunday, which will start an hour later. The weatherman predicted partly sunny skies and cool weather but no rain. All games will be televised in the U.S. and by the CBC in Canada.

SWITCH TO RIGHTIES

Stengel plans to employ the same lineup regardless of the opposing pitcher. The possible exception is behind the plate where Elston Howard may spell Yogi Berra, provided Howard's injured finger heals in time. If Howard catches any of the games, Berra might replace Decker Lopez in left field.

The other positions are set. Bill Skowron will be at first base, Bobby Richardson at second, Tony Kubek at short and Clete Boyer at third. The Yankees' two top guns, Mickey Mantle and Roger Maris, will be in centre and right field, respectively.

Leafs Trail 3-2 In Little Series

By BILL HUDSON

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—Louisville Colonels could wrap up the junior world series tonight, starting Colonels' ace Yale graduate never took up the industrial engineering profession he pursued during his off-season.

Ken MacKenzie, a strong-arm southpaw out of Gore Bay on Manitoulin Island, took to baseball instead. And he's getting plans the wisdom of his choice was proved Sunday as he baffled the Colonels' array of potential trouble in a 4-0 decision over the Toronto Maple Leafs.

The Colonels took a 3-2 lead in the best-of-seven series and Louisville ace Jim Coates, rookie Bobby Headley, to try to end the proceedings tonight.

Headley in 19-10 is the American Association's winningest left-hander this year. He'll be opposed by Steve Ridzik, formerly with several National League clubs, who beat him in the second game of the series last Friday.

FORCED TO RUN

MacKenzie drew a walk in the bottom of the fifth inning Saturday night and forced in the winning run as the Colonels squeaked out a 5-4 win.

He had come to the mound in the top of the 10th in relief of Bob Botz, who had pulled out of trouble for Rehn in the bottom of the second.

Tom Hennae, Toronto's third pitcher, delivered the fatal walk. Starter Bob Chakales went out in the sixth and Wynn Hawkins took over.

Four hits and two walks at the expense of Al Cicotte gave Louisville all its runs in the first inning Sunday.

FILLY ENTERED

LONDON (AP)—Bettie Elsie, the greatest of the late Prince Aly Khan's race horses, has run her last race, Tyninec Stud Inc. boss announced Saturday that the four-year-old filly is being retired to stud. Bettie Elsie won more than $168,000 during her career.

Birds Finish Second

Yankees Color Flag With Records

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Staff Writer

Pete Runnels won his first batting title, and a couple of young right - handers, Jim Perry and Chuck Estrada, were the winningest pitchers as the Washington Senators won 73 games, their best total since 1953. And Baltimore's modern-day Orioles finished second, their highest yet.

But the American League champions? The New York Yankees, and no doubt about it.

With Mickey Mantle winning the home run crown with 40, one more than a teammate Roger Maris who took the RBI title with 112, the Yankees broke league AL home run record, gave manager Casey Stengel his 10th pennant in a dozen years, and finished with a 15-game winning streak—the longest ever for a club headed into the world series.

The Yankees, their pride stung by last season's frustrating third-place finish, romped back for a 97-57 record, their sixth 90-win year, and clinched Sunday afternoon's surprising bid by winning 19 of their last 21 games.

TYING WITH CLEVELAND

They finished with a flourish coming from behind in Sunday's regular-season windup for an 8-7 victory over Boston Red Sox on a two-run homer in the ninth inning by Yogi Berra that sent them barrelling into next Wednesday's world series opener at Pittsburgh against the Pirates.

Long, 34, a left-handed hitting first baseman visited us from the Pirates in late August, batted .366 and drove in 10 runs while filling in capably for the Yankee pasture of pluckling bench power off the NL waiver list for the stretch run. His game-winning shot against the seventh - place Red Sox, 5-3 victims of New York Saturday, was his third as a Yankee.

Cleveland Completes Sweep

That was the 190rd home run of the year for the champs, who had set the old standard with 180 in 1956 (the same year Cincinnati tied the New-York Giants' NL home run record of 221).

Duke Maas was the winner for a 5-1 record as the fifth in a string of Yankee pitchers which also saw Ralph Terry and probable series opener Whitey Ford, Harold Keeley (6-1) was the loser as Boston (65-89) closed its worst season since owner Tom Yawkey took over in 1933.

Runnels, 33-year-old Red Sox second baseman, set out the final game and finished with a .320 average, Al Smith, injured Chicago White Sox outfielder was second with .315.

FIVE-HIT SHUTOUT

Perry (18-10) pitched a five-hit shutout for Cleveland as the fourth-place Indians defeated the 1959 champion White Sox 4-0 Sunday after edging them 2-1 Saturday. Early Wynn, last year's top winner with 22, was the loser Sunday for a 13-12 record.

Estrada, a rookie who lost 11, won his 18th for Baltimore Saturday with a three-hitter as the Orioles defeated Washington 3-2.

Baltimore clinched an undisputed runner-up finish by beating the Senators 2-1 Sunday on Jackie Brandt's 15th home run in the eighth inning. It was the seventh straight defeat for the fifth-place Senators, who missed the first division by winning only three of their last 10.

Last - place Kansas City beat sixth-place Detroit 2-1 Sunday after losing 6-4 Saturday for an almost even-break in the Tigers-Indians managerial swap of Aug. 3. Jimmy Dykes, who left the Tigers for Cleveland, was 26-32 with the Indians. Joe Gordon was 26-31 with the Tigers.

Campbell Will Coach Omaha, Not Guidolin

PEMBROKE (CP) — Ken Campbell, coach of Omaha in the International Hockey League, denied reports Sunday night that Bep Guidolin, former National Hockey League player, will take over the Omaha coaching job this season.

Campbell said Guidolin will merely play for Omaha and that Campbell will continue as coach.

Guidolin, who has played for Detroit, Boston and Chicago in the NHL, last year coached Kapuskasing Huskies of the Northern Ontario Hockey Association senior league.

Temporary coach for Kapuskasing this season is Ted McAuley who played in Scotland last year.

Judd Whips Stoney Creek

STONEY CREEK (CP) — Lad Judd pitched a one-hitting of Ray Judd, Peterborough Clarkes as they beated Stoney Creek Quigleys 3-0 Saturday to win the Ontario Amateur Softball Association intermediate A semi-final series 2-1. Carletons now meet Sudbury for the finals.

Judd struck out 20 to take the win. Marty Butler was the loser.

Tiger-Cats Defeat Ottawa Riders

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Toronto Argonauts, the last-place team of last year, and Hamilton Tiger-Cats, who went that deep mainly so far this season, call their way to important Big Four Football Union victories Saturday.

Toronto Argonauts whipped Montreal Alouettes 27-13 and Hamilton took Ottawa Rough Riders 37-18.

In winning Toronto and Hamilton dressed a pair for their own head-on collision next week, and which, depending on the Toronto - Montreal outcome, could tangle for four-team standings into two ties.

Quarterback Bobby Kuntz broke one passing record and tied another as he threw Argos to victory—three touchdown passes to Dick Shatto and one each to Dave Mann, Ed Ochinko; Boyd Carter and Cookie Gilchrist. Cookie was seven-for-seven with the opener and Mann punted a 90-yard single.

HERE FOR TWO

Sam Etcheverry passed for touchdowns to Tom Moran and Bill Bewley, who converted both and added a single.

Rote's seven touchdown passes over Etcheverry's 1954 record of six, which the Montreal quarterback equalled in 1956, and seven beaves also tied the team set—also created by Montreal.

Tommy Grant picked off two of Bernie Faloney's touchdown passes — the Hamilton signal caller clicked on four payoff passes in 20 minutes in the first row and Garney Henley got the others. Garney McDougall kicked three converts.

All-Stars Defeat Habs

MONTREAL (CP)—The National Hockey League's All Stars, featuring goalie Glenn Hall of Chicago Black Hawks in a spectacular role, lived up to their billing Saturday night by defeating the Stanley Cup champion Montreal Canadiens 2-1 in the 14th annual All-Star game.

All goals came in the second period. Frank Mahovlich of Toronto Maple Leafs and Andy Hebenton of New York Rangers scored for the Stars, Hebenton counting the winner while his team was short-handed.

Claude Provost gave Canadiens a brief 1-1 tie on a clean breakaway, saving the champions ignominy of what would have been the first shutout in the history of hockey's pre-season showpiece.

The game drew a crowd of 14,030, nearly 400 short of the pulled his RS-80 within 13 seconds of the leader. But he couldn't catch Ryan who added as much as three seconds to his lead until the end.

It was good enough to set the fastest time of the day at 1:30.3 for the treacherous 1.9-mile course — a phenomenal mark for after-dark driving.

WIN FEE WEE BALL

SARNIA (CP) — Frenchman's Bay downed Sarnia All-Stars 5-3 Saturday to take the Ontario Amateur Softball Association peewee A final two straight. Colley the winner, allowed seven hits. Loser Clarke gave up eight.

Blue Bombers Win Over Calgary 31-21

WINNIPEG (CP) — Winnipeg Blue Bombers got back on the winning track again Saturday by defeating Calgary Stampeders 31-21 to move into first place of the Western Interprovincial Football Union season with a 31-21 victory over Calgary Stampeders.

Bombers, who lost 15-2 last Monday to Edmonton Eskimos after winning their first 10 games had to call on the bench in the fourth quarter for their triumph over the unpredictable Stampeders.

Quarterback Vernon Cole, who had been in only one offensive play in regular competition this season, took over from Kenny Ploen in the fourth quarter while his team was down 31-17. His led Bombers to two touchdowns in the quarter to even the game and a four-point margin over the second-place Eskimos in the findings. Stampeders remained in fourth spot one point back of British Columbia Lions.

Veteran halfback Leo Lewis shared in Saturday's with Cole as he scored one touchdown on an 85-yard run in the fourth quarter and set up a touchdown in the third quarter when a punt return while his team was down 21-17. His led Bombers to two touchdowns in the fourth

Bob Hope Only Comedian To Survive Regular Stint

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Bob Hope enters his second decade in television tonight with another of his monthly NBC shows.

Though Red Skelton appears more regularly, Hope is the only comedian who has been able to survive a regular stint in TV; this ratings are always among the season's highest), and still maintain his career in films. Yet he has no despair for the future of comedy.

"People ask: where the new comics will come from," he said. "I'm not worried. There are plenty of good ones coming up through the rough schools of night clubs and local TV.

"That's the only way they'll develop: Through the school of hard knocks. NBC found that out when they tried to run a school for young comedians. The network found out there weren't any teachers."

CAN BE ENJOY

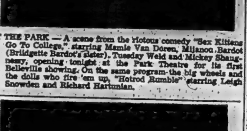
Can a master comic like Bob Hope enjoy other comedians?

"Absolutely," he said. "I can laugh as much as anybody. Of course, I won't laugh at anything that is old or contrived. That's why I never sit in the front row because I won't laugh out of courtesy. I always sit in about the 12th row, so I can react naturally."

He watches the work of his colleagues and enjoys them. Among his favorites: Groucho Marx, Milton Berle, Red Skelton ("He has grown tremendously"), Jackie Gleason ("A great character—a beefy, dressed-up burlesque clown").

Riot Marks Soccer Game

BUENOS—AIRES, Argentina (Reuters)—At least 20 persons, including two policemen were injured Sunday when fans at a soccer game rioted in protest of a decision by the referee.



The fans ripped up installations and made a bonfire on the middle of the field. Police retaliated with tear gas and arrested nine persons. There were about 20,000 attending the game.

After the crowds were dispersed they marched down neighboring streets, breaking windows and raiding wine storehouses.

One man lost an eye in the fighting. Several others suffered broken limbs and concussions.

AT THE PARK — A scene from the riotous comedy "Sex Kittens Go To College," starring Mamie Van Doren, Mijanou Bardot (Brigitte Bardot's sister), Tuesday Weld and Mickey Shaughnessy, opening tonight at the Park Theatre for its first Belleville showing. On the same program the big wheels and the dolls who fire 'em up, "Hotrod Rumble" starring Leigh Snowden and Richard Hartunian.

AT THE McCARTHY — Martha Hyer and Richard Burton in a dramatic scene from "Tom Pollock's Former Wife" elimination of Edna Ferber's dynamic novel of the taming of Alaska and the exciting coming-of-age of this last great frontier as the 49th state. Robert Ryan, Carolyn Jones and Dan Backus also star in the Technicolor film starting today at the Odeon McCarthy Theatre.

'Superstest' Had Engine Trouble; Muncey Wins

MADISON, Ind. (AP) — Bill Muncey, of Seattle captured the Governor's Cup race Sunday at 102.66 miles an hour and clinched the U.S. unlimited hydroplane championship for his boat, Miss Thriftway.

Muncey had an even faster preliminary heat at 105.468 miles an hour in the 15-mile runs on the Ohio River. He won all three of his heats in the two-day show.

Seattle boats took three of four places in the championship heat and the other driver also was from Seattle. Bill Brown finished second in Miss Marshall at 101.67. Jon Musson was third at 100 in Miss Dan Du Pont's Nitroque from Wilmington, Del., and Bob Gillam took fourth in Kol-Hoy. Norm Evans got Nitrogen, another Du Pont boat, into the finals but the engine stopped.

Yanks Clinch World Golf

ARDMORE, Pa. (AP) — The United States, with Jack Nicklaus contributing his fourth straight sub-par round, won the world amateur golf team championship Saturday by a whopping 42 strokes.

Nicklaus, playing the Merion Golf Club course in windy, cool weather, finished with a two-under-par 68 for an outstanding 72-hole total of 269.

His score Saturday, with ordinary 72s by Deane Beman and Bill Hyndman, put together a three-man aggregate of 218 for the final round and a four-day total of 834. Only the best three scores of each four-man team each day are counted in the team scoring.

Australia, the defending champion, finished second with an 876 aggregate while the British-Irish team was third with 881. Australia won the inaugural world team title at St. Andrews, Scotland, two years ago, beating the U.S. in a playoff after they had tied at 918.

South Africa took fourth place with an 883 aggregate, followed by New Zealand 885, Canada 906, Mexico 909, Rhodesia-Nyasaland 914 and Argentina 917.

Bob Wylie of Vancouver led the Canadian team with a 72-hole total of 286. He had a 70 Saturday to go with earlier rounds of 71 and 73. He stood 13th in the individual scoring.

Keith Alexander of Calgary had scores of 76-73-77-83—309, Gary Cowan of Kitchener, Ont., and Trevino tied for 40-75-80—310, and John Johnston of Vancouver finished with 76-77-79-81—313.

Sunday Afternoon Culture On TV Quietly Disappearing

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—Once upon a time television's critics complained bitterly that just about everything that was worthwhile on the three networks was to be found on Sunday afternoon.

Then the time was filled with such shows as Omnibus, Wide, Wide World, music programs, discussion programs—and somebody a long time ago tagged Sunday afternoon TV as "the intellectual's ghetto." The label stuck.

Well, Sunday afternoon culture has surely but quietly been disappearing from the tube. The Sabbath has never before been in such a program bind. To give you an idea of what has been happening, Ted Mack's Original Amateur Hour had its CBS premier Sunday afternoon at 4 p.m.

As a matter of fact, during the five hours after 1 p.m. an eager viewer would be hard put to find anything more cultural on the screen than sports and old movies.

Hooray for Love took over CBS for an hour Sunday night. The performers were a talented quartet — Art Carney, Janis Paige, Tony Randall and Jane Powell—but they had pretty thin material.

It was all, as they say, a spoof of love. The bidding followed the familiar TV line, including beatniks, Tennessee Williams plays and foreign-language films with dubbed subtitles.

This was followed by Candid Camera, such a success last year as a regular feature of Garry Moore's variety hour that it has been detached for a career on its own. Arthur Godfrey has been entitled to introduce each film stunt and set the scene, which he does with much chuckling.

Candid Camera is amusing enough, but I suspect the gag will thin pretty quickly and Allen Funt, the man behind the lens, will wish he were still safe and snug in his brief segment of Moore's show.

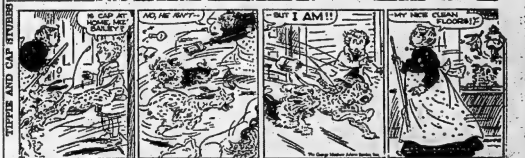
THURSDAY IS THE LAST DAY



Astrological Forecast

By CARROLL RIGHTER

Tuesday, October 6

General tendencies: This is a Full Moon Day when every sort of test of self — control, patience and the ability to really live the Golden Rule and to see the other fellow's point of view is necessary to keep you from going off in some ill - thought - out or impulsive tangent that can bring much grief or disappointment to you. Be gentle,

Aries (March 21 to April 19) — You feel that by being forceful with others you can get them to see things your way, but this is poor bad psychology, and could lose you the support of important persons in your life. Be thoughtful instead and helpful.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) — You are convinced that you should speak out about something that could hurt others, since you cannot tolerate conditions as they are any longer. Reflect before you say anything a d it would be better to wait some time longer.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) — This is one of those days when you want to lash out at some really good friend because you think there has been talking behind your back. This is only erroneous thinking — don't lose a valuable friendship. Be kind and loving instead.

Moon Children (June 22 to July 21) — Attend all civic affair in a fine spirit of co-operation and comradeship and be an inspiration to others instead of getting nervous and irritated. You are ideally suited for design, with the public — so, up and at 'em!

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21) — You are apt to give up all the fine security and position you have worked so hard to get in order to follow what seems new and glittering. That would be most foolhardy. Stick to the tried and true — labor in more efficient manner. Grow.

Virgo (Aug. 23 to Sept. 23) — You feel that if you get the assistance of a seeming specialist in your field you will get the fine results you anticipate. But this would only cost you much time and money. Carry on with what you know is right. Work.

Libra (Sept. 24 to Oct. 23) — Dynamic associates understand your good idea now and want to keep you from advancing, and will use force, if necessary, to dissuade you in your plans. Use these clever Libran tricks and win out.

Scorpio (Oct. 24 to Nov. 21) — While you have much work awaiting you, it is important you are particularly careful with it and should strive for absolute accuracy, or it will lead to loss and grief. Also, be sure you are kind and gentle with everyone — u-r-r-a-n-n-n Now is the tife for alig

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) — Refrain from giving in to that temptation to spend so much for pleasure that it means your having to scrimp so much in the future. Remember that the simple, wholesome, inexpensive pleasures are the best in the long run.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) — Affairs at home are pretty muddled right now, and this is no day to endeavor to improve them successfully. So, be sure you are active in the business world and make progress. P. M. be devoted to close ties and all is well.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) — Important you are the soul of serenity and wisdom today and tonight, or you could start arguments that would be quite disastrous. You may receive letters that are quite disturbing, but take them in your stride. Smile.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) — Any gambling with finances this day could really bring you grief. Concentrate upon better ways to save instead and this can be a most productive day. Rid yourself of that negative thinking you have been doing lately.

If your child is born today — you must early provide him, or her, with sufficient exercise so that the talent - loaded mind will not literally explode, or society used in the wrong channels. Also, arguments with others will thusly be avoided and a

NEW YORK (AP)—In a sensational last-to-finish rush, Fox-hall Keene's Berlo won the 22nd running of the Belmont Stakes Saturday to just about clinch three-year-old Filly-of-the-Year honors.

The 1½-mile race, contested at weight-for-age for the first time, found Berlo off so badly as to appear to be in trouble when she stopped around the field and gained by two lengths as the third choice.

Second in this event for fillies and mares was Royal Native. Make Sail was third and Silver Spoon fourth.

The winner returned $10.10, $5.20, $4.10, Royal Native $3.90, $3.30 and Make Sail $3.60.

Berlo covered the distance in 2.31 4-5.

At Chicago, Mrs. Mary Im's Herohogala was a 5-2 choice in the straight Hawthorne stakes by defeating George Stribling's Moon Spell.

Victory was clinched by a nose after a stretch duel in the 1¼-mile running of the $42,375 Charles W. Bidwill memorial handicap.

Herohogala found her track record for the 1¼-mile distance with a 1:47 3-5 clocking.

Three lengths behind the leading pair were Jungle Jet and Second-On. Herohogala paid $8.60 to win.

TORONTO (CP)—Three - year - old Gus Terry, owned by Mrs. Ruth Tucker of New York stunned the 16,440 crowd at Woodbine Saturday by defeating mature horses in the $25,000 autumn stakes.

Given a well-judged ride by jockey John Adams, he hit the wire a head before Major Tuthill, owned by Mrs. Ruth Tucker, and a quarter back.

Gus Terry's win was challenged by John Arterburn, who rode Major Turkey. He claimed foul but the stewards allowed the result to stand after studying films of the race.

It was Gus Terry's fourth consecutive success and his eight in 13 starts this season. His earnings reached $134,045.

Earlier, Bill Beasley's Ramblin Wreck carried a spot in the front rank of this year's Queen's dash-foaled two - year - olds by Prince John and Adams triumph in the $7,500 display stakes.

Lauralane won the first race of the day and Adams rode a second to provide a double for Hall of Fame jockey.

The autumn stakes was the closing day headliner at the east-west track. Ontario racing now shifts to suburban New Woodbine for a 46-day meeting which ends the Canadian season.

Terry Cathy said $22.70, $5.00 and $4.00, Major Turkey returned $5.40 and $4.30 and Grey Monarch $2.60.

Colts Romp Over Bears, Browns Win

NEW YORK (AP)—With John Unitas putting on a spectacular passing performance and his team mates putting up a rock-ribbed defense, the champion Baltimore Colts continued their mastery and another National Football League title Sunday with a smashing 42-7 victory over the Chicago Bears.

In other NFL games, Green Bay defeated Detroit 28-24, New York beat St. Louis Cardinals 34-14, Cleveland downed Pittsburgh 38-20, and San Francisco edged Los Angeles Chargers 20-17. Dallas 24-14, New York Titans edged Dallas 24-21, Minnesota 27-23, and Denver beat Oakland 31-14.

Unitas matched his best single game record for touchdown passes as he pitched for four, including a 66-yarder on the first play. The Colts were equally deadly in pass defence, intercepting seven Bear passes.

Quarterback George Shaw of rotsier New York Giants matched Unitas' performance, pitching four touchdown passes to Tom-downs against the Cards.

The 10-year-old veteran of six pro campaigns came off the bench with New York trailing 7-0 in the second period Sunday and threw four touchdown passes. He flipped one of them to Joe Morrison in the last 3½ minutes of the period for lead the Giants never relinquished.

Golden Gaels Nip Redmen By Point

MONTREAL (CP)—Queen's University Golden Gaels edged McGill Redmen 21-20 in the first senior Intercollegiate Football League game between the two teams before record 12,500 fans at Molson Stadium Saturday.

The victory gave the Golden Gaels a first place tie with Toronto Varsity Blues.

Although the Redmen outhustled and outpassed their opponents, the Golden Gaels capitalized on McGill mistakes to snatch the victory from the host team.

Queen's quarterback Cal Connor was instrumental in his team's victory.

He scored two touchdowns on a pair of quarterback sneaks from four-yard line and threw another to Don Rebb.

Halfback Robin Ritchie scored the other touchdown for Queen's and kicked three converts.

REASONS FOR TWO

McGill quarterback Tom Skypeck drove for McGill by going over for a touchdown and passing to John Moore and Willie Lambos for two more. Halfback Bob Milligan scored the other on a 15-yard rush.

Queen's opened the scoring early in the second quarter when McGill fumbled the ball on its own six-yard line. Queen's took no time in capitalizing by scoring a few plays later.

In the fourth quarter, the Redmen were called for pass interference on their own 18. From there, the Gaels scored their final touchdown.

Milligan was the outstanding player for McGill. He picked up 133-yards in eight carries, a total of 50 less than Ritchie and four yards less than Greig.

Queen's led 13-6 at halftime.

Average Chinese Who Owns Wrist Watch, Radio, Bicycle, Sewing Machine Prosperous

Ronald Farquhar wound up a 21-month assignment as Reuters correspondent in Red China with a 2,000-mile tour of industrial Manchuria and the wheat-growing province of Honan. In the following story, see pt 3 series, he sums up his impressions.

By RONALD FARQUHAR

CHENGCHOW (Reuters)—The common man in China today has four status symbols—the wrist watch, the sewing machine, the radio and the bicycle.

Any family possessing two or more of these articles considers it is doing well. Those who own all four are definitely prosperous.

Although commonplace in the West, these four articles, costing the equivalent of several months' wages, are something the average Chinese is proud to have.

As far as this correspondent could judge during 21 months in China, most families in big cities and towns appeared reasonably well endowed with them.

NEW CARS

There must be hundreds of thousands of bicycles in regular use in China. Many more are in other Chinese towns and cities, cyclists, mostly in the North on road traffic. Cars are few compared with the number seen in Western cities. Nearly all are official vehicles.

Many other features and comforts of modern life, taken for granted in the West, are rare and sometimes even non-existent in China.

This makes it difficult for a Westerner w ith no personal knowledge of conditions in the "old China" to assess what it means to the ordinary Chinese.

But those who knew the country as it used to be and have visited it again since the Communists came to power usually confirm that living standards generally have risen, although they are still low by comparison with the West and some other Communist countries.

CRAMPED HOMES

Modern flats, apartments and peasants' houses built in the last two years appear cramped and drab by Western standards.

Stone floors, walls decorated only by a few poster-like colored pictures, a few essentials of furniture and one naked electric light bulb suspended from the ceiling were characteristic of new houses I saw during a 3,000-mile tour of northeast and south-central China. Some residents shared a bathroom and a small kitchen, equipped with a stove and a sink, with the family next door.

Their occupants told me, always in the presence of at least two accompanying Chinese officials, that their new homes were much better than the old ones. From what I saw of the cheerless, unsanitary shacks and huts where some of them used to live, this was true.

In Fushun, a leading coal centre in the industrialized northeast, a miner and his wife and six children lived in a single room about 10 feet long by eight feet wide. Most of the space was taken up by a large bed on which all of them slept.

Their home was one of a bundle of ramshackle wooden shacks where about 200 miners' families lived. Everyone was to be moved into a new red brick block of apartments being built nearby.

FARM CONDITIONS

In town and country, people seem to be adequately clothed and fed, with warm padded coats and trousers for the winter. The Communes appear to be industry, a normal stint is nine hours a day, with an hour's meal break in the middle and a 48-hour week.

After work, people may have to go to meetings or classes where they study politics or read.

The Communists say there is no unemployment. Beggars are rare although I have been told once in Peking, Shanghai and Canton.

Wages for the average industrial worker seem to range from about 31 yuan (about $12.40 at the official rate of exchange) to about 140 yuan (about $56) a month. Salaries of managers and top technicians, such as chief engineers, range from about 200 yuan (about $80) to about 330 yuan (about $132) a month.

Peasants working in peoples' communes earn their pay in receive free food and are allowed to market produce grown on private plots.

Rents are cheap—about four yuan (about $1.60) a month, and in one Anshan apartment, 2.21 yuan (about 88 cents). Food is the most expensive item on all budgets.

Food supplies in the cities are adequate, especially meat, fish, eggs and vegetables. They seem likely to remain so, with the country harder hit this year than last by natural calamities, particularly drought.

MINISTER DEAD

MANITOU, Man. (CP)—Maurice E. Ridley, 45-year-old municipal affairs minister in the Manitoba government, died Saturday night. His death left standings in the provincial House: Progressive Conservative 34; Liberal-Progressive 11; CCF 10; Social Credit con; and vacant one for a total of 57.

"I understand you are soon to be married, Vicar. How's the expectant bride?"

Many of the coats modelled were designed and cut like cloth ones. A brown Persian lamb, for example, had sleeves set in a simulated cape.

Among smaller fur pieces was a square stole in reversible mink and red moleskin and a flared jacket of Russian pony treated to look like Russian broadtail and trimmed with mink.

A huge cape stole of Norwegian blue fox was suggestive of the "mink" character of the show. Miss Bennett claims French-Canadian origin and says the original spelling of her name was probably Beaumont.

BAGS SIX BEARS IN BACKYARD — Roy Cardew of National Mine, Mich., is shown with six bears he shot out of a maple tree in his yard early on the morning of September 29. Awakened by dogs barking, Cardew investigated and found seven bears—two adults and five young bears—in the tree. He ran indoors grabbed a rifle and felled six of the seven intruders. The seventh, one of the adults, managed to escape. Conservation Officer Art Savilucto of Ispheming said he had never seen anything like it in his career as an officer. (AP. Wirephoto).

Tyng Up Ships Disperation Move Against Union

58 Per Cent of Lake Ships Will Soon Be Idle

TORONTO (CP) — More than half of the Great Lakes domestic shipping fleet has started to tie up on the eve of the fall rush in shipping.

The move came yesterday by the Lake Carriers Association, four major companies which operate 58 per cent of the lake ships. In what was termed a desperation move against demands from the Seafarer's International Union (Ind).

J. D. Leitch, president of Upper Great Lakes Shipping Company told a press conference the federal government might have stayed out of action," he said.

FARMERS ASK ACTION

Farmers in Saskatoon the Saskatchewan Farmers Union asked the federal government to take immediate action to ease shortage of grain exports.

The union's Board of Trade Minister Churchill and Labor Minister Starr. The SFU said it hoped they "will be successful in making management and labor union representatives see their responsibility to farmers and the economy as a whole."

J. H. Wesson, Saskatchewan union president, said the pool would be in favor of the port of Churchill being kept open for another month in addition to the 12,000,000 bushels Great Lakes grain boats remain tied up any length of time.

He said any way to keep grain on the move, emptying country elevators so farmers could deliver more grain to the elevators to the wheat pool.

The association began tying up vessels in response to the strike called last week by the Canadian Merchant Service Guild and Scott Misener, president of Scott Misener Steamships Limited said: "We have decided to do the work of five canallers and earn five times as much except for the cost of labor and fuel."

Suspend Sentence On Youths For Two Years

Two Belleville youths, John Oyzell and Donald Richard Bowen, were given two years suspended sentence in Madoc magistrate's court Monday after they pleaded guilty to the theft of two calves from Stirling district farmers. The youths appeared before Magistrate R. G. Saunderson.

The youths were charged with the theft of calves from farms in the Stirling area which were left at the Hoard's Station sales barns for sale. Provincial police from Madoc were waiting to make the arrest when one of the youths returned to the sales barns to pick up the proceeds from the sale of the calves.

Prepare Town Store Closing Hour Bylaw

TRENTON — Town Council last night ordered into the controversial discussion of store closing hours in Trenton.

Eighty-four per cent of the town's grocers had submitted a signed petition asking that a by-law be passed by council to the effect that all grocery stores in the town should remain closed all day Monday, the year round, with the exception of the month of December and when a statutory holiday falls on a Tuesday.

There are 19 grocers in town. The 84 per cent represents about 16 grocers.

"I'd like to hear the viewpoint of the dissenting 16 per cent," said Councillor Lange. "The merchants have made a study of the town's business this year. According to the many extensive surveys the Chamber of Commerce has conducted, the whole town is split on the question of store closing hours. If we pass this by-law are we going to confuse people? Can't we persuade them to help the merchants get together rather than remain split?"

There was some discussion about a "blanket" by-law setting all store hours the town over. It was pointed out to council by the mayor and clerk that each merchant category must be considered by a by-law. The town's barbers tried the Monday closing, but had the by-law rescinded after one year so that Wednesday afternoon closing. The hardware merchants have made it known they will not close on Monday, no matter what.

"The majority should rule," the mayor said.

"The act states that we may go along with the majority," said Councillor Fraser. "Why should we force the minority to do what the majority wants?"

"Let them stay open or close as they please, unless a by-law is," suggested Councillor N. J. McNair.

"We're driving the people to Belleville," said Councillor C. W. Graham.

"I don't think council is going to solve this tonight," observed the mayor.

The by-law was prepared, but final decision will be made at the next council meeting.

Graham Berates Public Works on Road Projects

TRENTON — Councillor C. V. Graham caused a tempest in a teapot at last night's council meeting by berating the committee of public works for "ignoring" ward 2 in the resurfacing program".

Councillor Graham, who is in charge of Ward 2, said that work had been carried on in newer sections of the town but that residents in his ward, some of whom had paid taxes for more than 30 years, had been ignored.

Town engineer Walter Murray read a list of roads which have been resurfaced.

"Why there's 10 of mine's at least on that list," said Councillor Graham. "I'm told that nothing had been done in my ward."

"I said that nothing had been done in the newer sections of the area," said the engineer.

Mayor Harold Ketcheson said he had been considering a program whereby the town would issue debentures to help the cost at once.

Councillor McNair said that more than $15,000 had been spent on mending pot holes last year.

Councillor Fraser said that more than $60,000 had been spent altogether on resurfacing and mending.

In the near future, the town engineer and Dr. W. A. L. McDonald, chairman of the Trenton and Suburban Planning Board, and Councillor F. A. Taylor and representatives of the Department of Highways will meet to discuss a traffic survey of the town. It is hoped that out of this survey will come an agreement on financial arrangement for resurfacing Dundas St.

Council voted to authorize the signing of an agreement between the province and the Department of Highways to reconstruct Division Street from Front St. to Dundas St. West.

Fire Department Had 18 Alarms In September

TRENTON—Fire Chief Cecil Ellis submitted his September report to council last night.

During the month, 18 alarms were answered. Two calls were answered at the scene of two downings. On Sept. 2 mutual assistance was administered to Leonard Mell who drowned after he fell from No. 1 Dam. Sept. 25 the firemen assisted RCAF divers and civilians in the recovery of the body of Mrs. Florence Kerr, who drowned when she fell from No. 2 Dam while fishing.

The largest property loss through fire was at premises of James Lawson, 337 Sydney St., where damage was estimated at $1,839.40.

Chief Ellis' calls answered fell into the following categories: 3 grass fires, oil burners, electrical fires, 2 brush fires, each, 1 car fire, town dump, truck fires, rubbish fires, 2 false alarms, 2 complaints, smoke reported, each 1, mutual aid Murray township were answered.

Fire Chief Ellis attended a four-day convention at Cobourg. The main topic at the convention was new methods of fighting fires and inspection and the present day methods.

A lecture on the use of fire extinguishers was given to the caretakers of the town's public schools and high school.

One member of the department was injured when a spectator parked 20 feet behind the fire truck at a fire, instead of the required 500 feet.

Two training sessions were held for firemen and one session held for volunteer firemen.

All members of the department have finished their vaccinations.

On Sunday, the department will stage a street parade in connection with Fire Prevention Week. Five trucks will take part in the parade. Brownies and Guides, Cubs and Scouts will march with the firemen. The parade is at 2 p.m. and will follow a route from College St. school, down Dundas St. East to Dundas St. West, to Queen St. and so on down to the fire hall on King St. There will be two floats in the parade and either a band or some other source of marching music.

Senior Citizens Housing Project Well Under Way

TRENTON — Welfare administrator A. Gordon Bayly told council last night that the senior citizens' apartment block program was well under way. He said his department had secured a vacant lot on the corner of Wragge and Division Streets where the block could be located.

Efforts to secure an adjacent lot have been temporarily forestalled by the refusal of the owner to sell the land. However, council will explore the possibility of expropriating the land.

Mr. Davis asked council to consider a 50-year tax-free arrangement on the land.

Councillor Vagn Lange moved that the town exempt the land from taxation for 50 years after he had been assured by Mr. Davis that the town would not be required to pay anything towards the project at a future date.

Mr. Davis said he hoped service clubs would join in paying for the land. Otherwise, arrangements can be made with Central Mortgage and Housing Corp. to build apartment units. The Corporation would recover its investment over 30 years through rentals.

It is expected that three units will be built in Trenton in the near fut ra. Many citizens indicated they were interested in such a project, during a recent survey of the town's needs.

"Could it be under winter work?" asked Councillor Graham.

It was explained that since the project would not cost the town anything, it could not be considered under this program.

"Anything to help the old people," said Trenton's 90-year-old councillor N. J. McNair.

Council Votes $1,800 Grant For Ambulance

TRENTON — Four out of the five councillors present at last night's council meeting voted to grant a subsidy of $1,800 to the Weaver Ambulance Service to cover the last six months of 1960, and to ensure ambulance service for the remainder of the year.

Heated discussion has been carried out on this subject for the past few months. Other avenues of obtaining ambulance service have been explored, but Councillors Graham, Fraser, Langs and Aziz were convinced it subsidizing the Weaver ambulance was by far the cheapest and best way of dealing with the matter.

Councillor N. J. McNair, as he has all along maintained that the subsidy is unnecessary, Councillor R. J. Whitley was absent.

"I've been watching the Weaver's business and it's building up other ambulance business in the country," said Councillor McNair. "He should be ashamed to accept a grant for this subsidy. He's never shown a loss. He's been making money. He got $6 for an ambulance trip, and now he's getting $10 a patient from Tweed to Bellevile hospital. Our solicitor has ruled that this ambulance question is not an emergency at this time. Weaver quits tomorrow morning I can have an ambulance for the town by noon."

However, Mr. McNair refused to divulge the name of another ambulance service he said he could get.

"If you were acting in good faith," said Councillor D. R. Fraser, you'd tell us about the alternate solution, and we could discuss the two."

"I have a man ready to take over," said Councillor McNair, "but if you don't want him—"

Then you'd be giving the other man a monopoly," replied Councillor Fraser.

Before the meeting the subsidy was read by town clerk D. W. Barry and Mayor James MacDonald polled the councillors.

Councillor McNair voted against it in the first, second and third readings. Councillor Fraser asked that a clause be added making auditor figures of the Weaver Ambulance business available to council.

"You're using the taxpayers' money illegally," said Councillor McNair.

"Some people want to take steps to make you answer for this."

New Fire Hall Is Considered

TRENTON—The only business left by-law at last night's council meeting was one providing salaries for Professional and Professional Women's Club.

"We'll pass this one," said Councillor Lange.

A replacement for Grant Spalding on the Trenton and Suburban Planning Board will be considered by the finance committee of the whole meeting of Council.

Council will also consider prices and location for a fire hall in the east side of the town. They are going to be considered at the intersection of Bowen Ave. and Dixon Drive and the other between Stella Crescent Campbell St., Byron St. and Dixon Drive.

Councillor Graham said he thought the latter location for a hall would cost between $4,000 and $5,000. It would be a one-story building with a garage for two trucks and space for the serial truck.

It would be built under winter work if the councillor insisted.

Will Consider Blanket Bylaw For Toilets

TRENTON — Council last night explored the possibilities of passing a blanket by-law to cover the fixed installation of sanitary conveniences including the sewer connections in a number of the town's homes where outside toilets are in use.

Town solicitor R. S. Campbell told council that such a by-law could not be applied to the situation.

However, he said he thought a number of such installations, considered by the Board of Heath and approved by the Minister of Health, could be covered by a single by-law.

Some of the councillors were concerned about owners of one or two-room dwellings being able to find roomier the installations.

"Would they put the toilet in the parlor in the kitchen?" asked Councillor Graham.

GARNET S. TAYLER
(Wellington)

FICTON — Funeral service was held in the village of Wellington on Tuesday afternoon for Garnet S. Tayler, who died suddenly on Sunday. He had just returned to his home following attendance at church where, at the time, he assisted in the Communion service.

In the 1935 Federal election, Mr. Tayler was nominated Liberal candidate for Prince Edward — Lennox & Addington riding, and was defeated by Hon. R. H. Stevens who broke with Prime Minister Bennett. Garnet Tayler was elected with James Clarke of Napanee as the Liberal candidate.

Mr. Tayler was known across Canada as a poultry breeder and many of his birds set Ontario and Canadian laying records. He served some years as president of the Canadian National Poultry Records Association and the Prince Edward Poultry Co-operative. Before coming here, he was the first president.

Enlisting in 1940 with the Royal Engineers he served four years in France under Byng. Returning to Canada, he commanded a farm near Wellington, where he was also engaged in the manufacture of incubators.

Surviving are his wife, Hazel, nee Sheils, to whom he was married 89 years ago, a son, Douglas, at home and a daughter, Mrs. Gordon Hamel of Wellington. A son, Flight Lt. Melvin Tayler died in 1941 while serving with the RCAF in Africa in World War II.

Council Briefs

TRENTON — Councillors agreed last night that the town clerk should notify residents of Trenton Gardens that cheques, covering the required $200 for the non-resident fee for sewer service after a year were received by Friday morning, the town engineer will take steps to have the sewer service put in. Residents of Devere Gardens at the west end of the town have either paid their $200 or have indicated that it will be paid this week.

The Recreation Commission will be known officially as the Trenton Recreation Commission according to a by-law passed by council last night. The committee is comprised of seven members, two of whom are councillors and five of whom are town residents.

Councillor Vagn Lange, the chairman of finance, warned the council last night that unless rates of town land and supply mentary assessments improve some degree of parity will exist and the year with a deficit. The public works department and the sanitation and waste department have had numerous projects pared from their 1961 programs in an effort to forestall deficits. Council will consider further economy measures in these departments around the first of November.

At a meeting of council today, councillors will discuss measures to be taken to collect rentals for property with welfare officer A. Gordon Davis. Efforts may be made to sell some of this land which is not supplying the town with the necessary income.

Post mortem was to have been held today at Parkham.

Police said the truck under which Mr. Jarvis' body was found had been stolen from Kingston in July.

Packman Spent Evening Touring Bars

TORONTO (CP) — Rev. Arthur Packman spent Monday night touring the bars and beverage rooms of downtown Toronto and said afterwards he had reached two conclusions.

The beverage rooms "are quite pleasant and well-controlled" and "I must now that I made the right decision."

His decision—to leave a comfortable life as a United Church minister at Stirling and become a living link between Christianity and the public drinking places.

His arrival in the bars in clerical collar created a stir. No one approached him, so Mr. Packman went to them, offering counsel before it was needed, friendship if it wasn't. He didn't try to preach the gospel.

GANG GETS 20 YEARS

CHICAGO (AP)—Six members of the Vice Lords, a teenage gang, were sentenced Monday to 20 years in prison for the slaying of a man who refused to share his wine bottle with them. Cicago police could not determine which of the Negro youths, 15 to 17 years of age, fired the sawed-off .22-calibre rifle which, police said, killed Malcolm Williams, 32.

Taking part in the Niagara Grape Festival over the past weekend were the Belleville Gayettes baton twirling team, seen above with their instructor, Gail Hendricks Chapman.

Robert Brown, Well Known CNR Expressman, to Retire

Back in 1918 following overseas service with the 48th Highlanders in World War I, Robert Brown of this city got himself a job as expressman with the Canadian National Railways.

Today, 41 years, two delivery horses and three express trucks, Mr. Brown is all set to recall it quits with the railway. Tomorrow he retires.

"I've seen a lot of changes, but I really missed the horses when the express delivery service became motorized back in 1932," the genial expressman noted yesterday.

For the past ten years, Mr. Brown, now living at R.R. 5, Belleville, on the Point Anne Lane, has been at the north station checking express on and off incoming and outgoing trains.

A lifetime Belleville resident with the exception of his overseas service, the retiring expressman recalled the early theatre days in the city when road shows were playing at what is the old Bridge Street Griffin theatre.

At one time he acted as usher at the Griffin theatre and also at the Regent theatre.

One regret is that he didn't stay with the theatre.

"I had my chance and had I stayed I could have been a theatre manager."

REMEMBERS HORSES

One of the delivery horses which Mr. Brown drove in the early twenties became really popular at many of his delivery stops and quite regular guests in for treats of sugar lumps and other goodies.

One morning when stopped outside Lynch's Grocery, where Mr. Brown, now an Air Force Veterans club rooms now are situated, the delivery mare got tired waiting for her daily treat from the store proprietor.

When Mr. Brown emerged from the store, the mare had pulled the delivery wagon onto the sidewalk, was poking her nose into the store door and impatiently striking her steel shod hoof on the sidewalk.

Catholics and the Labor Movement

It is difficult for most Ontario residents, even those of the Roman Catholic faith, to conceive of a society in which the church, any church, has as much influence as the Roman Catholic Church has in Quebec.

For this reason, it is doubly interesting to read of the proposal, almost certain to be made an actuality, that the word "Catholic" be dropped from the name "Canadian and Catholic Confederation of Labor."

The proposal for the change was made by the executive of the CCCL and has been approved by a study committee. It is worthy of note that in the opening of the convention a statement from the bishops of the Catholic Church in Quebec said there would be no objection from them to a change of name. This is a clear indication, if any were needed, that the change does not indicate any lessening of the influence of the church. Rather it is impressive proof that the church is ready to recognise that there are some spheres of activity in which differences in faith should not divide one man from his brother.

The CCCL executive has apparently suggested that the word "Christian" be substituted for the word "Catholic," but this suggestion was overwhelmingly rejected by the study committee. It would appear apparent that this group did not wish to exclude workers of other faiths—Montreal has a large Jewish population. It may be objected that this interpretation hardly jibes with the fact that the committee did recommend that, while all references to the social doctrines of the Roman Catholic Church should be eliminated from the constitution, this constitution should state that the Confederation will act in accordance with Christian belief—but here the word "Christian" is probably best interpreted as a reference to ethical standards to which Jews, and indeed devout followers of most other religions, also subscribe.

Finally, if any proof were needed that this change in policy is being undertaken with the blessing rather than against the wishes, of the church, there is the fact that the committee recommended union chaplains continue to have veto power in certain issues, but that the chaplain general of the Confederation, Canon Henri Pichette, has announced he will endeavor to have this decision changed and the veto power of chaplains eliminated.

Nkrumah and Lumumba

There may be some people who will be sceptical about the authenticity of the letter Prime Minister Kwame Nkrumah of Ghana is reported to have written to Patrice Lumumba, former premier of the Congo.

There ought not to be. All the evidence points to the accuracy of the quotations used and none of them are out of character with what is known about Nkrumah.

Some may find it difficult to believe that the head of a Commonwealth country would advocate trickery, "work with your bitterest political enemies," and show implacability, "the only colonialist or imperialist I trust is a dead one."

But Nkrumah came to the present position of power through a hard school, he is not a believer in democracy in the sense that we use the phrase and Lumumba appears the only, or at least the most powerful, representative in the Congo of a cause dear to his heart.

In many ways, he is a realist with a dream. He may quite possibly believe dictatorship is the best possible system, but democracy, if it is to work, demands an informed and disciplined electorate. That Ghana does not have. So Nkrumah is autocratic. As for his support for Lumumba, it stems from one main factor, the fact that Lumumba and Lumumba alone of the chief figures in the struggle for power in the Congo believes in a strong central government.

All the emerging African nations have to fight the bogey of sectionalism—even Nigeria, long and carefully prepared by the British for complete independence, is having trouble at the time of achieving complete self-government—and a pattern of federalism set in the Congo could have grave repercussions elsewhere. Moreover, Nkrumah has his eyes fixed on an even larger goal, an eventual United States of Africa. He may think Lumumba a weakling—but a weakling with the right goal is much to be preferred to a strong man headed in the wrong direction—that may very well be his reasoning.

STRENGTH FOR THE DAY

DON'T ADMIT DEFEAT

A friend of mine told a large spelling bee when the end of all opportunity. Opportunities never end until there is a slow train to end. We are never shocked when we are, and if we ever say that the conquest is near at hand we find ourselves on the beach closed its thousand protests to the contrary will not change the fact. That is not something external but something internal. We are never defeated until we are fain to look to humanity, and in ourselves.

Don't take the count. Even if his education all right. He the bank does fail or the loved to college and graduate ones dies; even if health we spend, and probably twenty or the job you have always expected years after the bank closed he find goes to someone else, just remember that you are never as a hardly conscious of the weakened until you raise your hand financial loss which on the and say, "I am through."

Gimmicks Hide Poor Writing, Bad Acting

By SIDNEY J. HARRIS

If ever I write a play (this is a speculation, not a threat) I will see that it contains at least two gimmicks to be used in the modern theatre.

First, there will not be a telephone in it; second, none of the performers will be permitted to light a cigaret on the stage.

As a professional observer of plays for several decades, I have become grimly intolerant of these two shoddy devices for concealing bad writing and bad acting.

Before the advent of the telephone, playwrights had to ingenuine their ingenuity to get a point across. Characters had to be developed, plots had to be unfolded by straightforward, effective, illustrious means, not by the eavesdrop in front of the audience.

Those days, the artists rises, a telephone rings, one of the characters (usually a maid) answers it, and says: "Yes, this is the residence of George Spelvin. Mr. Spelvin is at the football game, his wife is out of town with her sister Margie and I'm taking care of the house until the butler returns from his day off".

If this is brevity, I am Pliero's puppy. The first task of the dramatist is to be dramatic; and this sort of telephonic eavesdropping is about as alive and challenging as a mummy's bandage.

Actors commit a comparable sin when they fill in the interminable lighting of cigarets to breach an awkward pause, a forgotten line, or a lack of acceptance of activity to an otherwise dull scene.

Much of the time, in modern plays, the stage is so wreathed in cigaret smoke that a person stumbling in from the street might be excused for a turn in a fire alarm.

Actors cannot and seem to have a baful of tricks to signify dozen different emotions of the rubber cigaret. Now all they do is reach for a cigaret, light it deliberately, and blow smoke through their nostrils in what they hope is an impressive fashion.

There is almost a direct ratio between a bad or mediocre play and the number of cartons of cigarets that are consumed during the proceedings. The author is running out of material he begins to compensate by supplying with such trivial stage business as cigarets, matches, doorbells, wet umbrellas, middle duchies, ties and whatever other physical paraphernalia the playwright's mind can conceive.

Plays are play by Shaw and you immediately see how all this obvious nonsense is missing. Shaw's plays are great prose, not a meaningless motion, not a gesture that fails to lead to the structure of the drama. That "No Smoking" sign in a sedate theatre needs to be nailed to the stage even more than to the auditorium.

Trio Tackles Tricky Task

Manchester Guardian

When the day of final doom comes, not most of Europe will be reduced to radioactive rubble, three aged men will probably still be sitting in a secluded conference room in Geneva — Mr. Trygve Lie, Mr. Dayeau Wadsworth and Mr. Ormsby-Gore.

They have already talked interminably about the means of tests, and they are to resume the current series of discussions later this month. Good luck to them, though their task hitherto has been a thankless one.

If each of their governments could come to terms quickly, they could come to terms quickly, and if there could be a satisfactory

Casa Loma Bower of Beauty As 130,000 Roses Exhibited

...TION — An historic castle to be surrounded by stone walls and with round turrets towering over balconies into a sunlit sky, Casa Loma in Toronto was the unlikely on Saturday for some 150 members of Prince Edward County and Kingston Horticultural Societies, along with representatives from other Societies in the district, No. 3, of which Mrs. J. S. Shepherdson, R. R. 1 Kingston, is district director.

It was the occasion of the first International Rose Show which was opened that day by the Lieutenant - Governor of Ontario, Hon. J. Keiler Mackay. More than 130,000 same blooms combined to form an awe - inspiring panorama of beauty and fragrance. Roses were brought by air from England, France, Denmark, Holland, Italy, Spain and Germany while Canadian growers contributed about two - thirds of the blooms.

The entrance hall gave a glimpse of the beauty within as tall clipped rose trees and baskets of Better Time roses brightened the medieval - like appearance of the castle. In the great hall facing visitors was a breath-taking display to represent "the world of roses". Against a background of lush tropical green plants, a huge globe turned slowly, each country being made from different colored roses. At the top, a mammoth crown of roses with a crystal ball above, sending flickering rays of light over the scene. Some 25,000 roses were used in this feature which was banked at the front with red and yellow roses. Nearby, an organ was played, adding to the enchantment of the scene.

OF EVERY HUE

Hanging on the walls and stately pillars were arrangements of roses in every hue. On a copy of the Coronation chair was a single rose of great beauty, this queen of flowers having close attachment to British history. Though the castle's historical background lent itself to novel displays, there were such modern decorations as flying saucers and satellites to remind one of the 20th century.

Visitors who planned short stays found hours necessary to go upstairs and down and every corner brought a surprise of delight as new and novel arrangements were found.

A highlight was the conservatory where an international rose garden had been set up by Ontario Landscape Contractors Association, at a cost of $2,500. Roses in the beds were all named and their beauty set off by shrubs and trees. The words Tawney Gold, Bocara Red, Red Briarcliffe, Queen Elizabeth, Fernet, Rapture, Pink Delight, Orange Talisman, Red Richmond, were heard as visitors identified favorites and noted the kinds they would like to grow.

NEW ROSE DEVELOPED

Here, too, was the new rose developed in Canada, and to be named by ballot at this show as hybrid tea, fully double bloom, 35 to 40 petals, bi-tri-or (rich pink base and white outside) and a spicy fragrance. It was developed by J. Von Elswck, a Canadian. It had keen competition for attention from the other 1,400 outdoor rose bushes and 2,000 award-winning blooms which formed part of the garden.

Wonderful arrangements were not alone an attraction. The Society of Interior Designers of Ontario has set up eleven rooms complete with furniture and roses were arranged to suit each.

Going up the long staircase to the second floor, the railing entwined with myrtle, visitors were greeted with a bridal scene —a bride and groom cutting the wedding cake at a small table, long buffet table, some in roses, myrtle, candles, all in a yellow and white theme. On the second floor, rows of displays using almost every possible medium to emphasize the use of roses and their beauty. Eye-catching displays included a ballet girl made from roses, wearing a skirt composed of flowers and surrounded by baskets of flowers that might have been semi following her performance.

LONG REMEMBERED

Some of the corner rooms, with their antique furniture, rugs and dishes, with roses as the central theme, were outstanding. As viewers went on the balconies to get a glimpse of the landscaped grounds and towering turrets, further arrangements of shrubs and roses greeted them.

On the third floor, arrangements of roses had been set up especially for amateur photographers, and there was a garden bench beneath an arch of roses where friends could be posed.

Down in the basement, there were demonstrations of flower arranging, while many were interested in books on flower culture, which were on display. Noted consultants were on hand to give advice on growing roses. Everywhere, there was special lighting to enhance the beauty of roses arranged in just about every type of container imaginable.

The show was non-competitive and visitors will long carry with them in memory the great beauty of cleverly arranged

BCIVS Home, School Assoc. Holds Meeting

The first meeting of the ...C.I.V.S. Home and School Association was held in the boys' gymnasium with Mr. Mc. Linscott, president, in the chair, who extended a warm welcome to all present, and commented that all were working for home and families. "Children are examples of the learning received at home and their training during their school years. What better way is there to keep in touch than through Home and School."

Mrs. B. Stenson gave the secretary's report. Mr. A. Orr, principal, introduced the school organizations' leaders, who informed all present of what they are; how they are formed, and how to get into them.

Barry Simpson, president of the Student Council, presided and called upon representatives of the Art Club, School Band, Boys' Athletic Society, Perfect Organization, Boys' Hi-Y, Drama Club, Elevator Society, Girls' Athletic Society; Girls' Hi-Y, Glee Club, Key Club, Keyette Club, Library Club, Radio Club and Stage Crew. Barry explained that it is the duty of the Student Council to keep all organizations running smoothly and harmoniously. He also showed the fire engine red student council card, which also carries insurance coverage of $100 for each student.

Mr. Orr explained how proud he is of both the student body and excellent staff. Also that the word "service" mentioned so often during the evening, is the doing of things for school and community by these future citizens of tomorrow, stressing the splendid co-operation received from all clubs, telling that at the head of each organization is one teacher adviser.

Mr. A. Wynne led a hearty sing-song, accompanied on the piano by Mr. C. Templer.

There have been 445 insurance program policies sold, with others still obtainable.

Anyone wishing to act as room representative please contact Mrs. R. G. Williams or Mr. M. Linscott, as soon as possible.

Mr. Orr introduced all to the head of the departments, who in turn, introduced the H.S. Association to its staff

Refreshments were served in the school cafeteria, ending a most enjoyable and successful meeting.

Officers Named By Chess Club

The eighth annual meeting of the Belleville Chess Club was held last evening at the Belleville Recreation Centre, with president Bruce May in the chair. The officers, president May and secretary-treasurer T. R. Menzus, were re-elected by acclamation.

The club is seeking new members its ranks having been depleted by the departure from the city of many of its most active members. Mr. May appointed Dick Payne as membership chairman. Any chess player, beginner or expert, will be welcomed as the club's weekly meetings, which will be held every Monday evening at the Recreation Centre.

Mr. May also named Martin Hamelink as tournament chairman. He will arrange a ladder tournament.

N.B. Woman Lawyer Joins Parole Board as Member

By ELIZABETH MOTHERWELL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—Mary Louise Lynch, a corporation lawyer in Saint John, N.B., for the last 17 years, has joined the National Parole Board as its only woman member.

"I'd have a pretty easy time if I was to deal only with parolees of my sex," said Miss Lynch Monday night.

Only 216 of the 6,200 convicts in federal institutions are women. About 85 of them were committed for murder.

Miss Lynch, 50, is a 1933 graduate of the University of New Brunswick law school.

"I have had a lot of experience dealing with people, although not with prisoners," she commented in an interview.

MUCH THE SAME THING

As a member of the Lord Beaverbrook scholarship committee she helped in the selection of 100 students a year sent to British universities.

"Of course being sent to Britain is quite different from being let out of the penitentiary—but it's still a matter of evaluating people, their records and their files. I thought 'this is the same sort of job.'"

Five national women's associations had urged the government to appoint a woman to complete the five - member board. The groups were the Elizabeth Fry Society, the National Council of Women, the University Women's Club and the Business and Professional Women's Club.

"It is not a matter of choosing a woman but of choosing a person of intelligence and common sense—and that is what we have got," said board chairman Ian George Street.

Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Patrick Grant are shown cutting the wedding cake following their marriage in Our Lady of Loretto Church, Belleville, on Saturday, September 17 at 11.00 a.m. The bride is the former Miss Shirley Ann Van Wyk, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herman C. Van Wyk, of Belleville. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Grant, of Chatham, Ontario. (Photo by William E. Riley, Belleville.)

GRANT — VAN WYK

Assorted gladioli blooms formed a lovely setting on Saturday, September 17 at 11.00 a.m. in Our Lady of Loretto Chapel, RCAF Station Trenton, when Flight Lieutenant, the Reverend F. Proulx, united in marriage Shirley Ann Wyk, of Belleville, only daughter of Mr and Mrs. Herman C. Van Wyk, to Hugh Patrick Grant, of Chatham, Ontario, son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Grant.

The traditional wedding music was rendered by a guest organist of the Station.

Given in marriage by her father, the lovely bride wore a floor length bridal gown of white Chantilly lace with satin, and fashioned with fitted bodice, having a scalloped neckline accented with iridescent sequins and seed pearls, and long lace sleeves ending in V points over the hands. The bouffant, floor-length skirt fell in graceful folds. She wore a crown type headdress encrusted with seed pearls; waist-length veil of lace-edged silk tulle illusion and carried a bouquet of red American Beauty roses. Culture-pearl drop earrings completed the nuptial costume.

She was attended by Miss Lindsay Hunter, of Belleville, as maid of honour, and Miss Hilda Turcotte, as bridesmaid. Both were similarly styled gowns, the former in mauve silk organza over satin, and the latter in yellow silk organza over satin, fashioned with fitted, strapless bodices having matching bolero jackets with tiny shoulder sleeves and pert stand-up collars. The bouffant skirts were in ballerina length. They were watching headdresses and carried contrasting bouquets of yellow and mauve chrysanthemums, respectively.

Mr. Brian Grant, of Chatham, brother of the bridegroom, was groomsman, and Mr. Samuel Mann, of Trenton RCAF, unhired the guests.

Following the ceremony, the reception was held in the Airmen's Club, which was prettily decorated with pink and white streamers, and white wedding bells.

The bride's table was daintily appointed with white damask and centred by an all-white, pillard and mirrored wedding cake, topped by a tiny bride and bridegroom beneath an arch of lily-of-the-valley, and surrounded by scattered blooms of russet-toned gladioli.

The bride's mother, Mrs. Herman Van Wyk, received the guests wearing a green lace sheath with matching hat and navy face veil; brown accessories and corsage of pink Sweetheart roses. Assisting in the receiving line was the bridegroom's mother, Mrs. Peter Grant, gowned in a pink, semi-fitted gown with beige hat, beige gloves, black accessories and corsage of pink carnations.

For the wedding trip to Ottawa, West Virginia, and Chatham, the bride donned a pink Dacron knitted ensemble with matching jacket, matching pillbox hat, beige accessories, and corsage of pink carnations.

Guests attended from Trenton, Chatham and Belleville.

Previous to her marriage, the bride was the honored guest at a miscellaneous shower given by Mrs. Lillian Turcotte, Mrs. Marlene Vaughan and Mrs. Jean Van Wyk.

Mr. and Mrs. Grant are residing at 301 Victoria Avenue, Belleville.

Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Pearce are shown signing the register in Christ Church, Belleville, following their marriage. The bride is the former Miss Doreen Joyce Hallowday, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Hollomby of Belleville R.R. 5. PEARCE — HOLLOMBY

Baskets of white gladioli, mums and lilies adorned the altar of Christ Church, Belleville, on Saturday, September 10th at 3 p.m., for the wedding of Doreen Joyce Hollomby, daughter of Mrs. Harold Willam Hollomby, R.R. 5, Belleville and the late Mr. Hollomby, and Anthony Pearce, son of Mr. Sidney Pearce of Belleville and the late Mr. Pearce. The Reverend J. D. Creggan of Belleville, performed the ceremony.

The bride, Mrs. Julie Pearce, aunt of the bride of Ottawa, who sang "Jesu Joy of Man's Desiring," before the service and the "Wedding March" by Handel during the signing of the register. She was given in marriage by the organist, Mr. John C. Wilbert, who played "Trumpet Voluntary" by Purcell and Mendelssohn's "Wedding March."

Given in marriage by her brother, Mr. Kenneth Hollomby of Montreal, Que., the bride wore a gown of crystal silk organza over parchment white peau de soie. An original model, it was fashioned with rosepoint lace accent and the full, bouffant skirt swept gracefully into a miniature bustle at the back. Her headdress was a coronet of seed pearls and sequins and it held an elbow length veil of silk illusion. She wore cultured pearls and earrings, the gift of the bridegroom and carried a cascade bouquet of red Sweetheart roses and white stephanotis.

Mrs. Ray Dearborn of Belleville was the matron-of-honor, and Miss Barbara Jean Hollomby, also of Belleville, sister of the bridegroom, was bridesmaid. Both of silk organza, featuring bouffant skirts of cotillion length, with full bell sleeves emphasizing capelet collars etched with flower motif. Mrs. Dearborn was in autumn green, and Miss Pearce in golden amber. They wore small hats with shoulder-length veils to match their dresses and carried bouquets of white and yellow mums.

The bridegroom was attended by Mr. Michael Tooley of Belleville, and the ushers were Mr. Ernest Pearce, brother of the bride, and Mr. Mickey Wiedman, both of Montreal, Quebec.

A reception was held in Christ Church Parish Hall, where the bride's table was centred by guests, wearing a needlepoint crepe gown in Benoir blue, with a hat of dusty rose feathers and a corsage of pink Sweetheart roses.

The bridegroom's mother assisted, wearing a charmeuse sheath - style dress of silk shantung, with matching feather hat, brown accessories, and a corsage of white Sweetheart roses.

She was installed as director of the local chapter of the international organization, a social and cultural sorority for young women, on September 12th.

Regarding her new duties as director, Mrs. Tatham said she still has a great deal to learn. "This is a new experience for me and for a time I will be more of an observer", she explained.

She said she has a keen interest in the organization whose members are concerned with developing and accenting their feminine qualities, in self improvement and in developing an interest in cultural subjects which young women are expected to know.

The "extremely feminine program" includes appreciation of music, literature, poetry and other cultural subjects, as well as the art of being gracious and social. In addition the members learn to develop responsibility.

Mr. and Mrs. Tatham and family moved to their new home on the Redoubt Road last April. Mrs. Tatham is with the Tatham Construction Company at Rossmore.

SENATORS TOUR

BONN (AP) — Speaker Mark Drouin and four members of the Canadian Senate left Bonn Monday to begin a 10-day tour of West Germany at the invitation of Upper Germany, president of the Bundestag (lower house). Also touring are Progressive Conservative Senators Wishart Robertson, Ontario, and Arthur M. Pearson, Saskatchewan, and Liberals William Horsman, Perth, Ontario, and William M. Wall, Manitoba.

New Director of Chapter Had 'Fingers in Many Pies'

Mrs. William Tatham of Rednersville Road, who was recently named director of the Alpha Lambda Chapter of the international Beta Sigma Phi, a woman who has had her fingers in many pies.

Her sense of responsibility has taken her into the municipal, county, and provincial political fields, as well as the nursing and teaching fields.

Prior to coming to the Belleville area last April from Campbellford, Mrs. Tatham has chalked up an enviable record.

She served as town Councillor for six years, recently concluded a two-year term of office as provincial president of the Women's Conservative Association of Ontario, and is at present the second vice-president of the provincial executive of that organization. She recently retired from the same term as county secretary-treasurer of Northumberland County Progressive Conservative Association.

Mrs. Tatham, who is also a registered nurse, taught a night school course in first aid classes for four years at Campbellford District High School, and also taught the St. John Ambulance course and found time to be a club leader for three or four years.

All this in addition to running a home and raising a family of two, a son and a daughter. Her two sons are in their first year at Queen's Secondary School and her daughter is a student at B.C.I.V.S.

A native of Ottawa and a graduate of the Ottawa Ladies College, Mrs. Tatham received her nursing training at Cornwall General Hospital's School of Nursing. She kept active in her former career by helping Dr. Ethel Lemieux at Belle Hospital when needed.

AUGUST WIFE PROGRAM

Commenting on her amazing record of achievement, she said she felt taking on these new responsibilities was a "means of paying one's rent for enjoying the benefits of a great community."

"You find you can do so much more than you expected, when you learn to do one thing at a time", she said.

Mrs. Tatham will now put her many talents and energies to work assisting with the Chapter's cultural program.

Aged Resident Honored on 92nd Birthday

The library of the Hastings County Home for the Aged was the scene of a delightful event on Saturday, September 17, when Mrs. Isabella Reeder was honored on the occasion of her 92nd birthday.

Taken completely by surprise, Mrs. Reeder was the happy recipient of many lovely gifts, cards and a corsage of red roses and pom pom 'mums.

After an enjoyable afternoon a lunch was served by her family during which Mrs. Reeder cut and served a large birthday cake to guests.

Mrs. Reeder has four children. Her two sons, Fred and James both live in Toronto and her two daughters, Isabella (Mrs. W. Bush) and Jess (Mrs. W. Bushell), live in Belleville. All were present for the afternoon festivity.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a women's editor and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actual case history. The Council reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counsellors.

Mr. J.N. – We want the twins to go to seperate colleges.

Gary N. – But we like being together.

Mr. J. N.: My sons are 17-year-old twins. They are planning to enter college next fall and are getting their applications ready.

They want to go to the same school, but their mother and I think this would be a mistake. They have been so close all their lives. It is time for them to get out on their own.

An important consideration is the fact that Jack is a much better student than Gary. He walks off with all the awards and is always in the limelight. Gary is proud of him, but he needs a chance to shine on his own–at least we think so.

Gary N.: My parents are so worried about my ego. They seem to think I may feel small just because my brother is so good. That just isn't so. Not many guys can keep up with Jack–so I'm not the only one.

It just happens that we both want the same school and the same major. The college is known for its excellent engineering department. I may not be accepted because my marks are nowhere near as high as Jack's, but if I am I want to go.

Aside from that, Jack and I enjoy one another's company. when we aren't with a group we are usually together and we are never bored.

The Council: The N.'s should be proud of themselves and their boys that such a fine relationship has developed between them.

We think, however, that the parents are right. The boys should go to separate colleges.

A very important aspect of college life is the breaking of some of the old patterns. Most college freshmen find themselves entirely on their own for the first time – away from all the old sources of security. The situation has all the elements of being plunged into cold water to learn swimming. It is a kind of proving for the more serious business of swimming in the world of jobs and business.

If the twins go to the same college they will show up with water wings. They will have one another as defenses against an entirely new social situation.

The N.'s concern about Jack's superior abilities as a student is just one side of the issue. Actually Jack may be rather dependent upon Gary socially, and Gary may be the stronger of the two in a psychological sense. Dependency of some sort must exist between the brothers or they would welcome the chance to go their separate ways.

However, we do think it is important for students to go to the college of their choice – if they meet the requirements. So Gary and Jack should be given a complete explanation of why it would be best for them to go to different schools, but the final decision should be up to them.

G. G. Mothers' Aux. to Hold Rummage Sale

DESERONTO — The Girl Guides Mothers' Auxiliary of Deseronto held a meeting at the High School auditorium on September 26th at 8 p.m.

It has been decided to hold a rummage sale on the morning of October 29th at Burkett's store. No collection will be taken for this fall and winter left over from the auction sale in June are to be disposed of.

The Guide leaders were invited to attend this meeting and give a report on their needs. There is a great need for leaders in both the two Guide packs and the two Brownie packs. The leaders especially asked for a different mother every week to go to one Guide or Brownie meeting. These mothers are needed to count, while the girls skip, watch them sew on buttons and darn, so that they may pass their tests.

Some of the Guides and Brownies are ready for stars and their Golden Hand or Bar, but the packs are so short of leaders that the time cannot be taken from the group to test individuals.

Mothers are asked to please attend the auxiliary meetings so these needs may be explained in detail.

It is feared that unless help is soon found the packs may have to be closed.

A statement was given on the amounts paid to Deseronto's share of Camp Waupoos. The proceeds from the rally, the auction sale and donations bring the total to $877. All should be proud of the people of Deseronto who backed the Guides, Brownies Auxiliary in paying off this debt.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Betty McVicker, on October 24th at 8 p.m.

After the meeting closed lunch was served.

QUESTION BOX

Question: I am paying very heavy court to a young lady. I am hoping some day she will be my wife. I take her out to a show or to dance three or four times a week. Should I take her a corsage every time we go out? She seems to expect me to, but it costs so much!

Mr. T.W.C.

Answer: It certainly is not necessary that you present a corsage every time you escort this young lady, and she really should not expect it. Corsages are for special occasions, such as when attending a formal dance or celebrating a birthday.

Question: ...My daughter is being married next month. I do not wish to embarrass her by doing something wrong. After the ceremony in the church, do we form a receiving line at the back as the guests leave. Do we form another receiving line at the reception, which will be held at the club afterwards? — Mrs. R. D. S., Baltimore, Md.

Answer: . . . If a reception is to be held after the services are over, it is not necessary to greet guests as they leave the church. Only in the case where no reception is to follow the nuptials do the bride and bridegroom (and only them) greet the departing guests in the back of the church. Otherwise, they are the first to leave the church to go where the reception is to be held. The guests leave after their departure, and not before.

1960 "Starter" Fruit Cake

By Mary Moore

Last year I gave you a recipe for a starter fruit cake and somewhat to my surprise it was a popular idea. It appealed to small time and big time cooks alike.

So, encouraged by your receptive natures, I am doing the same this year. Today's fruit cake is notable for its excellent slicing quality and comparatively low cost. It will be welcome when unexpected guests drop in. We know for we have had plenty during Marianne's visit.

"STARTER" BRAZIL NUT FRUIT CAKE:

1 cup chopped Brazil nuts, 2 cups raisins, 2-3 cup currants 1-3 cup finely cut pitted dates, 3-4 cup finely cut candied cherries, 1 1-3 cups mixed peel (1 9-oz. can), 1 tablespoon finely grated orange rind (from 1 big orange), 2 1-2 cups sifted all-purpose flour, 3-4 teaspoon salt, 1-1 teaspoon soda, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, 1-2 teaspoon allspice, 1-2 teaspoon cloves, 1-2 teaspoon mace, 1-2 cup best quality shortening, 1-2 cup white sugar, 4 large eggs, 1-3 cup molasses, 1-3 cup orange juice.

Combine Brazil nuts and fruits in a bowl, then together dry ingredients; mix 1-3 cup with fruit-nut mixture. Cream shortening with sugar. Beat in eggs one at a time. Combine molasses and orange juice; add alternately with remaining flour to creamed shortening mixture. Fold in prepared fruits and nuts. Turn into 2 greased and wax paper-lined standard loaf pans, top smooth top. Bake at 225 deg. Fahr. for 1 hour and 35 minutes. Remove from oven and finish with

SIMPLE GLAZE:

Combine and bring just to a rolling 1-2 cup light corn syrup and 1-4 cup water. Remove from heat, cool to lukewarm. Pour over cold cake before or after storing.

If desired after cake is glazed and glaze is set decorate with Brazil nut chips, candied cherries and angelica; dipping undersides of fruits and nuts in simple syrup or plain icing and pressing firmly into top surface.

NOTE:

If desired half of cake batter may be baked in 2 1-4" paper baking cups placed in small muffin tins and baked only 30 to 35 minutes.

Casual Employment Given Malecite Indians to Pick Or Store Potatoes in Maine

By ARCH MacKENZIE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

PERTH, N.B. (CP) — American potatoes balance the economy of this Malecite Indian reservation in New Brunswick's Saint John Valley. Federal government relief fills the gaps.

Descendants of forest-dwelling hunters, their bleak well-ditched by European ancestry, they travel by car across the international border to plant, pick or store Maine potatoes.

Ashwood baskets, sole relic of a traditional art, are woven for the industry to provide additional income.

Tobique for all its cosmopolitan economy of casual labor is rated among the most progressive of Maritimes reservations. The tidy settlement of wooden homes, many freshly painted, sits at the confluence of the Saint John and Tobique Rivers 75 miles northwest of Fredericton and eight miles by road from here.

DENIED LIQUOR

The 678 registered Indians—compared with 250 in 1930—hold 8,000 acres remaining from the original allotment made in the 1790s. Television aerials stop many homes and electrical appliances within help form the image of a village much like many small Canadian communities.

A few cars, the Roman Catholic church, the community hall and shouts from hordes of children on clipped lawns or in the swimming hole strengthen that impression.

But the shadows of past wrongs, social segregation and modern economic deficiencies are there—still apparent despite the band's long association with the white man.

The Malecites, allies of the French against the British and Iroquois, cannot vote in New Brunswick. They are denied liquor although the nearby U.S. border and the bootlegger mock that law.

FISHING IS DEAD

Their reservation, hilly and well-treed, offers only wood for fuel or their own building. Canadian work opportunities and wages are dwarfed by that available across the line. There is no local industry aside from farming and some pulpwood cutting.

Guiding for salmon anglers once meant up to $10,000 a year for the band members, says Norval MacPhail, hardware merchant here who served as Tobique Indian superintendent for 30 years before retiring.

But the goods vanished when provincial power dams were installed on both rivers. There was no recompense although a lawyer is studying the possibility by agreement with the Indian affairs branch.

Piddleheading — the plucking of tender fern shoots each spring to provide a Maritimers table delicacy — has disappeared locally for the same reason, Indians say.

CASUAL LABOR

The key income is potatoes—27 cents for picking a 165-pound barrel or $21 or more a day for a good day's work that may be available about five weeks of the year. Casual labor is paid $1 an hour in the Maine fields.

Ashwood baskets bring between $9 and $15 a dozen depending on season and locality and a man may turn out one an hour.

This lack of full-time work reflects in the mental attitude of the band members.

"They have all week to think up reasons and questions and I have the time it takes to get here to predict the answers," says Eugene McGinley, Indian superintendent who was 24 when he was appointed last year as the youngest of 90 superintendents in the country.

ASK FOR ADVICE

He's a brisk, brushcut man who, a little disenchanted, has decided to return to university to take law.

Dogging Mr. McGinley's footsteps around Tobique provides a glimpse of problems facing both the Indian and the official who represents the Indian affairs branch.

A man who has been drinking with a friend drops his basket-work to ask—his advice about starting a village widow.

One of four elected band councillors labs him on a hot political issue—a band council decision to grant a nearby municipality garbage-dumping rights on reservation property. A petition protesting that son - unanimous recommendation was shot off to Ottawa and came bouncing back to Mr. McGinley for an explanation, which he supplied.

Now, caught in the middle, he's pressed to stop the band decision going through but he can only reply that it is up to Ottawa, which can reject or accept all Indian band resolutions.

He calls on a young mother of three whose husband has been allocated a new house to replace their neat but decrepit home. He points out two partially - finished homes built with government assistance whose owners will be "made examples of" for failing to complete the structures. Most

Malecite Indians at the Tobique reservation in New Brunswick find jobs planting and picking potatoes just across the border in Maine. Map locates the 8,000-acre reservation about 75 miles northwest of Fredericton. (CP Newsmap.)

Tobique housing is post-war—through veterans' grants or federal welfare funds sometimes matched by the prospective owner.

Mark Francis, 34, making baskets in a cool shed, drops his tools to chat. One of nine children and with three of his own, he quit school at Grade VIII because his father was hurt. He says children today have it much easier.

Twenty Indian children — a record—will attend Perth's high school this year and the population reservation is expected to squeeze a growing number from the reservation day school into integrated elementary classes here.

EXPECTS RELIEF

Would Mark leave the reservation if he found a good job?

Yes, but it would have to be good enough and he made plain that he would prefer to live where he is.

He also indicates that with salmon gone—"the pools are just swimming holes for fish and kids now"—and only partial employment through the year, he'll expect relief assistance next winter.

Tobique's relief bill by summer declines to come about 15 to 30 older folk and rises in winter. One month's total this year was $1,600.

Down the street, where Roy Bear methodically pounds an ash log to produce the basket-weaving strips, Mr. McGinley takes an order for some building material, hears a complaint about difficulty in getting medical treatment for a leg injured in Maine, advises two youths on what kind of picture they require for their Indian identity cards—needed to cross the border—and listens to a legal question so old and vague that he suspects it was dreamed up on the spur of the moment.

Finally, summoned by an Indian girl, he promises to put her grandmother on relief and gently declines personally to take a pill bottle to the doctor for refilling.

"I just haven't time," says Mr. McGinley, who lives at Woodstock 40 miles away.

He is disappointed with the degree of self-reliance exhibited by some band members and regrets that he has been unable to get the band council meetings put on a regular basis.

More progressive reservations hold them at least once a month—in some cases without the superintendent having to be there to provide guidance.

Sport Slices...

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

The early October sun shone warmly down on the Hull, Quebec, DeCoste Stadium that fine Saturday afternoon some thirteen years ago.

It's the diamond the Belleville Kiwanis juniors in their blue-striped white uniforms were going through their warm-up practice.

The dismond was more or less a bandbox. A catcher with a good arm could almost toss a ball over the centre field fence. The basebalers hugged the bleachers.

Managed by Jack McVeigh, coach, Belleville juniors were scheduled to play the Ottawa Wrightwiles in the first game of the Eastern Ontario junior finals. At three o'clock, game time, there wasn't a soul in sight outside of the Belleville club and a groundsman who couldn't speak a word of English.

Two hours later the Wrightwiles showed up. They had been across the river watching the Ottawa Rough Riders and the Toronto Argonauts tangle in a Big Four football game.

The crowd started to drift in. Ed Schrieder, who had been pacing nervously up and down one of the base-paths, put his umpire's pad on for the umteenth time. It was Ed's first try at officiating in organized baseball. He made good and went on to become one of the best officials in Toronto senior baseball circles.

Big Al Kelleher was assigned the third-base coaching job. The loquacious Hamilton fans could almost reach out and touch him as he went through his performance

Al who speaks and understands French like a Sioux Indian does Russian, had a whale of a time. He smiled, bowed, and spoke to the fans, telling their strokes were complimentary. What Al didn't know made an enjoyable afternoon for him.

Well, the Wrightwiles beat Belleville that afternoon. The stage is for the second game of the best-of-three series was set for the Alemite Field a week later.

If memory serves correct Bobby Bunton hurled that game and Huck Reeves was the hero. The game went into extra innings and the shadows were deep when Reeves came to bat in the twelfth with a man aboard.

Huck held the potential winner in his big bat. And he made excellent use of it. He blasted a ball high into the twilight over right centre field for a home run to win the game that crowned the series.

As a matter of fact they haven't found the ball yet, nor has Huck touched home plate. The crowd surged on the field and picked Huck up as he rounded second and traveled him shoulder high off the field.

The third tussle for the Alemite Trophy, slated for Kingston and the Belleville kids lost a heartbreaker by a 4-3 score. They couldn't do much with the Wrightwile hurling. As a matter of fact Bobby Strachan struck out twice with the bases loaded.

Next Sunday, some 13 years later, the greater part of that fine Kiwanis club will be back in baseball action. Speedy St. Louis will coach the club and the former COBL veteran hurler and catcher will attempt to lead the veterans to victory over the newly-crowned 1960 Ontario junior "A" champions, the Kenners.

Bobby Strachan who is one of the fellows behind the move, says he has contacted the majority of the old team and they will be on hand.

The game is scheduled for next Sunday afternoon at the CNEA Park, starting four o'clock. This because a world series game could be going on and the fans can see it—and the "Juniors" tussle later.

The entire proceeds will be added to the city's gift of $100 and the whole used to buy "appreciation" gifts for the Kenners.

Raiding Party Seeks Others

PITTSBURGH (AP)—The Milwaukee Braves, who muffed the National League pennant two years ago, are wrapping up a giant-sized package of players and a bundle of cash for home run king Ernie Banks of the Chicago Cubs.

The players to be offered the Cubs include pitchers Joey Jay, Carl Willey and Don Nottebart, centerfielder Billy Bruton, shortstop Johnny Logan and first baseman Frank Torre.

The informant, who requested anonymity, said the two clubs would get together during the world series to discuss the trade.

WILL MAKE GOOD OFFER

"The Braves feel they can make an offer so attractive that the Cubs cannot help but take the matter under advisement," the informant said. "I know the great regard they have for Banks but they realize that even with him they have been unable to finish in the first division. The fellows offered to them could fill four or five regular positions and could help them more than any one man."

With Banks in a Milwaukee uniform, the Braves would have three players who among them hit a total of 120 home runs in 1960. The slugging shortstop, who will be 30 next Jan. 31, is the Cubs' all - time homerun leader with 309 in seven seasons with Chicago. He was the league's most valuable player 1958 and 1959.

The Braves have had several talks with Detroit involving Torre, second baseman Frank Bolling. The Braves, it is understood, have dangled outfielder Wes Covington, young second baseman Chuck Cottle and a pitcher.

Still another player sought by the Braves is Dick Farrell, the hard-throwing relief pitcher of the Philadelphia Phillies.

The announcement of Joe Gordon as the new manager of the Kansas City Athletics succeeding Bob Elliott, will be made before the world series moves on to New York. Gordon quit as manager of Detroit Monday, although Elliott himself still had a year to go. Elliott was fired about the same time.

The Detroit board of directors was slated to meet with general manager and president Bill Devitt today and one of the matters up for discussion was the announcement that Don Heffner, now a coach with the Tigers, will be named manager.

One Eye of Series

Bucs 'Won't Scare,' Casey Confident

By JACK HAND

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Pittsburgh hetches with "we won't scare" confidence and New York Yankees are riding high on a 15-game winning streak going into Wednesday's world series opener as Forbes Field.

The Pirates scheduled a morning workout today and the Yanks were to look over this unfamiliar National League territory in the afternoon.

Thirty-three years ago today they said the Pirates lost their last series to the Yanks the day before it started. They were apparently overwrought by the fence routing of Babe Ruth, Lou Gehrig and company in a pre-series batting drill.

Danny Murtaugh, scrappy pilot of the Bucs, told fans the 1960 Pirates "don't scare. Don't forget we have a pretty good ball team too. We played and won in 7 tougher league. We're going to show them a good infield and a good outfield and some pretty good pitching."

Casey Stengel, boss of the Yanks, said what he arrived here Monday:

"Pirates what I'm told this (Pittsburgh) is a good ball club. But we have some good players, too. I think these fellows (Yanks) will keep right on just like they left off the season Sunday."

Before leaving New York Stengel announced that Art Ditmar, a 31-year-old right-hander, would open for the American League champs. He is expected to follow with Bob Turley and Whitey Ford in that order.

Ditmar, top winner of the Yanks with a 15-4 record, throws a sinking fast ball, good curve and slider, much the same repertoire as owned by Vern Law, the Pirates' 20-game winning starter. As Ditmar has given up 25 home runs and Law 34, both managers wanted to take advantage of the spacious outfield territory in the Pirate home park.

Murtaugh announced he would use Bill Virdon in centre field and Dick Stuart on first, regardless of the opposition pitching. During the season he often benched Virdon, a left-handed hitter, against southpaws and played Gino Cimoli. He switched Stuart, a right-handed hitter, for Rocky Nelson against right-handed pitching.

"I wanted to give the Yankees a look at a real good centre fielder," said Murtaugh. "Stuart also will go both ways unless he proofs things up."

The only switches in the Pirate order will be Smoky Burgess catching, instead of Hal Smith, against righties and Cimoli re-lover the weekend.

Former Buc Picks Yankees

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Bobby Bragan, who helped mould the club that brought Pittsburgh its first National League pennant in 33 years, today reluctantly picked New York Yankees to beat the Pirates in the world series but "bet it's going to be close."

"It would be easier—but to be a National Leaguer, but I've got to be honest," said Bragan, now a coach with Los Angeles Dodgers. "I'd like to pick the Pirates, but I know what kind of a team they have."

The champion Pirates are almost the same club Bragan managed as a seventh-place "comer" in 1958 and 1957, until the brash Bobby was replaced by Danny Murtaugh. Under Murtaugh, the Pirates finished second in 1959. They made it this season after a setback that left them fourth a year ago.

ARGOS PICK UP KLASSEN

TORONTO (CP) — Dale Klassen, a tackle, was picked up on waivers by Hamilton Tiger-Cats during the weekend, was picked up Monday by the league-leading Toronto Argonauts, a spokesman for the Toronto Big Four club announced.

Tonight In Arena

Macs Open Training Camp

The 1960-61 edition of the Belleville McFarland's starts pre-season training sessions tonight in Memorial Arena starting at 6.30.

It will be something of a different nature to the training grinds of those years when the Macs were strictly Senior "A".

Senior hockey in Ontario this winter has been reorganized on a large scale. The old-power-packed days are gone. In their place is a new set-up intended to revive senior hockey all over the province instead of a few scattered areas.

In an effort to ensure some equality in its eastern and western Ontario divisions the OHA has inserted a regulation whereby former senior "A" clubs may use only eight players this year who played senior "A" hockey last winter.

This might make matters interesting for city and district hopefuls. There might be players in the area not quite up to senior "A" calibre who stand a good chance of "making the Macs" this year.

The consensus of managers of both eastern and western groups is "it should be a good league, a lot better than some people think. The calibre won't be quite as high but the competition should be as good as it ever was."

The eight-player action of the OHA and the agreement of club managers to abide by a certain salary maximum in the rare cases it applies could mean the death-knell of the high-priced hockey player in Ontario.

The only pastimes available to them, if the figure they deem they are worth, will be the American Association leagues. The greater majority of Ontario teams are operating on a share-the-wealth basis.

The loss of Paul Payette, Floyd Crawford and Moe Benoit paves the additional player problem to McFarlands as Colin Gordon, Bill "Pud" Joe said "I think we shall be able to fill the club in." He was in Niagara yesterday and today and will be back tonight for the opening training session.

Bell says he has Marv. Grisdale at the goals who won't overcome with the Macs coming in. Another goalie who will try out is a 20-year-old West German youngster Bernard Seiffert, who says he played in West Berlin, Poland and Czechoslavakia junior ranks. He lives in Campbellford and works in Cobourg.

Possibilities are Kenny Grisdale and Moe Savard both of whom were "cut" by the professional Kingston Frontenacs.

The coach is going all out to get the club going better. With the team working out practically every night from here to opening date October 15 the next fe wdays should produce some idea of what the Macs will look like.

Whip Leafs 5-1

Louisville Wins Series

LOUISVILLE (AP)—Louisville baseball fans today were singing the praises of Bobby Hendley, the little southpaw who pitched the Colonels to the junior world series title.

Hendley mastered Toronto Maple Leafs in the finale 5-1 Monday night, scattering six hits, striking out eight and giving no walks.

His masterful performance gave the American Association Colonels the series with the International League champions four games to two and their first series title since 1954.

It didn't take Hendley long to prove his worth in triple A baseball.

Promoted this season from Austin of the Texas League, Hendley was up to become the winningest southpaw in the American Association. His 20th victory came against the Maple Leafs in the championship game.

It was the rookie and old-pro who struck the decisive blows.

Frank Torre, sent down by Milwaukee Braves in mid-season, struck the big blow in the sixth inning when he crashed a two-run homer. It was only his second of the season.

Toronto got its only run in the fifth. Earl Hersh, sold by Louisville to the Maple Leafs this season, singled to right. Then Herb Plews, an ex-major leaguer, walloped a triple that brought a 1-0 tie.

Louisville led 2-1 in the sixth when the Colonels broke loose for three runs, including Torre's homer, to drive out Steve Ridzik. The former National League pitcher had beaten the Colonels usually in the second game of the series at Hendley's expense. Before the inning was over, Stan Lopata had doubled and Amado Samuel tripled, the latter to retire Pat Egan Dougherty.

Hendley allowed Toronto two of its hits in the ninth inning, but bore down to strike out the last man to face him.

The crowd of 4,643 cheered lustily when manager Bill Adair waved Ridzik into stay in the game.

Ridzik gave up seven hits and four earned runs and was charged with an error. In the third inning, Hendley batted and was safe when Ridzik, throwing to second for a double play, hit Amado Samuel with the ball. Both men were safe.

Hal Patterson Back With Als

MONTREAL (CP) — Hal Patterson turned out for practice with the rest of the Montreal Alouettes Monday night and coach Perry Moss reported the Big Four football club's domestic difficulties are all cleared up.

The starry 29-year-old import end had no comment to make regarding his walkout Sunday after a drill. He left in a huff before a film session that all players were to attend.

Although Law (20-9) has been troubled by a tender right ankle, Murtaugh was confident his ace would be all right. He worked out briefly Monday.

A school crowd of 38,000 could expect a good break from the weather-man. The intense three cast called for mostly sunny and warmer with the temperature around 70.

The best medicine for the Pirates was the assurance that Dick Groat, their league batting champ, would be ready to play. Groat, sidelined by a broken left ankle since July 26, got back into action

Elliott Fired, Gordon Hired?

Spot-Changing Irks Tiger Owners

DETROIT (AP) — Baseball's weakest merry-go-round, losing managers and coaches at almost every turn, was due for another spin in Pittsburgh today on the eve of the world series.

The owners of the Detroit Tigers met in regular session, as they do before every world series opener. This time they are in a disgruntled lot and wondering whether it was worth all the trouble—that $5,500,000 they invested in the topsy-turvey Tigers four years ago.

Since that time they have changed managers five times, general managers four times and presidents three times.

Now they are faced with more changes. And some of the owners have made it clear they are fed up with the publicity and confusion that has accompanied the frantic goings-on by the front office and the flounderings of the Tigers on the field.

QUIT MONDAY

Joe Gordon quit the Tigers Monday after only two months as manager. He had replaced Jimmy Dykes who was so unhappy with what he called interference and meddling by president Bill Dewitt that he would have quit had Dewitt not beaten him to the punch by working the unique managerial swap that sent Dykes to Cleveland and brought Gordon to Detroit.

Dewitt's position is that Gordon will become manager of the Kansas City Athletics. The A's fired Bob Elliott Monday, a few hours after Gordon notified Dewitt he was quitting the Tigers. Elliott's coaches were let go, too, just after Detroit finished a lowly twelve year as a big league manager.

The Athletics finished last in the American League. The Tigers wound up sixth, their poorest finish since 1953.

ASKED FREE HAND

Dewitt said he'd give a free hand in hiring the Tigers. He did not feel he had it under Dewitt.

He made it clear he did not agree with Dewitt's firing of coach Bill Hitchcock. Gordon also wanted a clean look at some of the Tigers' top farm hands, but Dewitt said no. When Gordon quit, Dewitt suggested a lunch-cost talk. This time Gordon said no.

Gordon likely would take coach to Joe White with him in a reported move to Kansas City. White switched over from Cleveland and Lake Appling was sent along with Dykes to Cleveland.

In four seasons, the Tigers have gone through four managers—Jack Tight, Bill Norman, Dykes and now Gordon. Dewitt said he does not know who the next one might be.

He will meet with the owners today. Some of them are concerned over the sweeping changes Dewitt has brought to Detroit baseball in his one year as president. There has been a multiple of firings, demotions and reassignments. Dewitt has been getting quite a panning from all three of Detroit's daily newspapers.

STILL LEND LOWER

He was one of baseball's meekest batters during the winter meetings but the Tigers finished two notches lower than in 1959. His trade program for an attendance boom included a dixieland band, fireworks, clown acts, and assorted other schemes new to Detroit baseball. No home attendance proved off by more than $3,000.

"The only thing we lead the league in is headlines," said an unhappy owner. "We have to find a way to get out of the woods with it."

First, the owners must decide whether to stand solidly behind Dewitt, who has two more years and $50,000-a year on his contract. The selection of another field leader for the club will follow.

Riders Ban 'Kids' Tickets

OTTAWA (CP) — No more children's tickets will be sold for big Four football league games for the balance of this season as a result of disturbances during Saturday's game at Lansdowne Park, president Barry O'Brien of the Ottawa football club announced Monday.

The children, who have been paying 75 cents to get into a special 1,500-seat section at the end of the stadium, now will have to buy $2 general admission tickets.

O'Brien said a meeting of representatives of the football club, police, the Central Canada Exhibition Association which leases the park from the city, and Happy Shoolidge, eastern deputy of commissioner Sidney Haller of the Canadian Football League, will be held Thursday in an attempt to reach a lasting solution to the juvenile problem.

Saturday, when Hamilton Tiger - Cats defeated the Rough Riders 27-13, scores of unruly boys twice swarmed out of the special stands and into the end zone to scramble for loose football. The game was held up each time for several minutes. Several policemen were knocked down in the scrambles and one had almost got out of the park with a football.

O'Brien said Ottawa was the only Eastern pro club that had set aside special seats for children at economy prices.

Casper Wins Hesperia Golf

HESPERIA, Calif. (AP)—Bill Casper Jr. of Apple Valley, Calif., who has won 13 tournaments in his brief pro career, finally won one in his backyard by shooting a two-under-par 70 Monday for a five-shot victory in the $20,000 Hesperia Golf Open.

Casper, 1959 national open champion, carded 34-36—70 Monday in ideal weather conditions for a 278 total.

Last week he took the Portland, Ore., Open.

Casper got $2,000 for the victory.

Al Balding of Toronto ended in a four-way tie for 26th spot and picked up $165. The Canadian ace had rounds of 73, 72, 74 and 75 for a total of 292.

Wins Canadian 'Light' Title

HAMILTON (CP)—Eddie Beattie, the Hamilton boxer who survived an operation to close a hole in his heart, paved his way to the vacant Canadian lightweight title Monday night by scoring a fifth - round technical knockout over Edmonton's Bobby Hamilton.

The win means two fights in Wembly Stadium, in London, for Beattie later this month and a match in New York's Madison Square Garden in November.

The two fought on even terms through two rounds, but Beattie's body blows began to tell in the third.

Coming out fast in the third, Beattie slid underneath the Edmonton boy's guard and put him down with a right...to the midsection. Hamilton, the count three times in the round, once from a miss of his own, once from a push and the third time from a solar-plexus punch.

New CBS Situation Comedy Has Competent Little Actor

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—There's a notable shortage of writing talent in television, and the Hollywood casting directors are complaining a lot about the dearth of young male star material. But one thing TV has a-plenty this season: Appealing, attractive children.

The most recent to bow in—Monday night—was Ronny Howard, a competent little actor who plays Andy Griffith's son in their pilot-film comedy on CBS.

If the first Andy Griffith Show is a fair sample of the series, it's a good one, specializing in gentle country-style humor and occasional tugs at the heart.

Andy plays a small-town sheriff, a widower with a small son. He has an incredible way with the English language, southern mountain style, but still is an engaging performer.

And, in addition to the boy, he has skilful help from Don Knotts, who plays Sheriff Allen's aid now playing a comedy deputy, and veteran Frances Bavier.

This one seems to have all the ingredients to make the grade.

Another entry for the evening was ABC's Surfside 6, one of those standard private eye shows the Warner Brothers, turn out like sausages. This one, despite a Miami background and a few new faces, shows a distressing familiarity to 77 Sunset Strip and Hawaiian Eye.

Habs Sign Pennington; Goes to Hull

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Canadiens Monday announced the signing of Cliff Pennington, promising rookie centre from Winnipeg, to his first pro contract.

Managing director Frank Selke said Pennington is being assigned to the Hull-Ottawa club of the Eastern Professional Hockey League subject to immediate recall.

Meanwhile, coach Toe Blake said he will use the same team for Canadiens' National Hockey League opener as he did Saturday against the spectators.

This means no rookies will be in the lineup and Blake will use only three forward - line units when Toronto Maple Leafs play here Thursday.

Goalie Jacques Plante came out of the all-star game with a sore ankle but is expected to work out today.

In signing Pennington, Canadiens had to make a deal with Winnipeg Warriors of the Western Hockey League. The Warriors owned minor league rights to Pennington and Canadiens owned NHL rights.

Canadiens purchased the minor league rights and placed him with their Ottawa so a close watch can be kept on him.

Last year Pennington was with Canada's Olympic hockey representatives, the Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen, and two seasons with Flin Flon Bombers of the Saskatchewan Junior Hockey League. He played minor league amateur hockey in his native Winnipeg.

LAVAGETTO REHIRED

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Harry (Cookie) Lavagetto agreed to contract terms and will manage Washington Senators again in 1961, club president Calvin Griffith announced Monday night.

Riders Face 'Must' Game

CALGARY (CP) — Saskatchewan Roughriders, burdened by injuries but buoyed by the hopes of a comeback, meet Calgary Stampeders in a Wednesday push at supremacy in the Western Interprovincial Football Union "must" game for the last-place Riders.

Spurred by new offensive and defensive vigor in their last two games, Roughriders will be trying to prove only the club they have defeated so far in 1960. But they must do it without quarterback Bob Ptacek and end Jack Gotts.

Boy key players were injured Friday in the 40-7 defeat by the Eskimos in Edmonton.

Roughriders are depending on Don Allard to replace Ptacek. Allard sparked the surprising Saskatchewan attack that gave the Stampeders 45-35 in the club's first and only victory of the year at Regina Sept. 20.

Stampeder coach Steve Owen said the only new injury was to defensive halfback Barry Cyr, who sprained an ankle when he stepped on a football in a practice last Friday.

Roughriders have only three games left. The Westt standings are but a win would place them within one point of Calgary and within two of the third-place Eskimos.

A third-place finish is necessary to make the playoffs.

NFL DRAFT SET

NEW YORK (AP) — The National Football League's players draft will be held on Dec. 27, NFL commissioner Pete Rozelle said Monday.

Dixon Leads Big Four Points Race

TORONTO (CP) — Chester (Cookie) Gilchrist, Hamilton Argonauts, a jack-of-all-trades on a football field, is set to try to add to his Big Four Football League scoring title.

His take-off point is the runner-up spot with the stretch run of the Big Four schedule coming up starting with the Thanksgiving Holiday weekend doubleheaders.

Gilchrist moved second place in points behind halfback George Dixon of Montreal Alouettes by scoring 13 points Saturday in Argos' 25-6 win over the Alouettes.

Statistics released by the Canadian Press show Dixon with 13 touchdowns, four 78 points and Gilchrist with 65 on four touchdowns, 38 converts, three field goals and six singles. The 240-pounder from two Gilchrist scored a touchdown and kicked seven converts Saturday in another outstanding display of his all-round versatility.

He and the Argos' defensive team Saturday stalled Dixon's steamroller drive towards the scoring record. Montreal's backfielder was held scoreless for the first time in the seven games he has played.

MANN THIRD

Gilchrist replaces teammate Dave Mann in the runner-up spot. Mann scored a touchdown and a single and slipped to third spot with 60 points on nine touchdowns and six singles. Bill Bewley of Montreal, with nine points Saturday on a touchdown, two converts and a single, advanced from sixth to fourth place with 51 points, three more than Gerry McDougall of Hamilton and five ahead of Ron Stewart of Ottawa Rough Riders.

Halfback Dick Shatto of Argos is the biggest gainer, jumping up three touchdowns for 18 points and moving from 16th place to a tie for eighth with Tommy Grant of Hamilton with 36 points each.

In the Ontario Rugby Football Union, Martin Coates of Detroit-Port Huron Jumped into the leadership with 62 points to his credit, collecting two touchdowns and convert as the Raiders defeated Toronto Argos 26-12 Saturday night.

Cotton has 47 points on six touchdowns, nine converts and a pair of singles. Lamar Lee of the Lords, who picked up two converts Saturday as the Lords 42-20 defeat by Sarnia Bears, kicked seven converts and two singles Sunday and holds second place with 42 points.

The Tracks

TORONTO (CP)—Jockey club officials are faced with a field of 12 horses in Saturday's $15,000 Jockey Club Cup at the Woodbine. Seven of the runners are listed as possible starters are newcomers to Canadian racing.

Active Crater, winner of the $20,000 Chicago Handicap, is due Tuesday along with Nasty House Farm's trio of Martini II, Merry Top II and Ekaba. The last named horse, winner of more than $200,000, hasn't been nominated for Saturday's race but will run in the $60,000 Canadian championship Oct. 22.

The completely restyled 1961 Rambler American is 8.3 inches shorter and three inches narrower than past models but offers room for a family of six. At the same time, useable luggage space is 50 per cent greater.

Glass area also has been greatly increased for maximum visibility. Power brakes are a new option for 1961, as are individually adjusted front seats.

'Sunrise at Campobello' Finer as Film Than Play

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Notes and comment on the Hollywood scene—

Strong words about film content come from Martin Quigley Jr., editor of Motion Picture Herald.

In an editorial titled Sick Pictures Equal Sick Industry, the long-time industry observer cited concern at the recent theatre owners convention over Hollywood's preoccupation with the sordid and sexy.

"Too many 'sick' pictures will have one inevitable result — a dead industry," said Quigley.

He added that the self-censoring production code is sick "because it has been punched full of holes" and so is the administration of it because "there is no encouragement in high places to do more than keep people out of jail for exhibition of what violates obscenity laws."

Sunrise at Campobello makes an even finer film than it did a play, since the camera allows some of the sweep and scope of the country during the early years of Franklin D. Roosevelt's invalidism. It is a tasteful and only slightly partisan account of FDR's conquest of polio, reverential down, with high points of emotion.

Ralph Bellamy's FDR is one of the superb characterizations of the decade, and Canadian-born Hume Cronyn's Louis Howe is a 24k Oscar bait. A big surprise is Greer Garson as Mrs. Roosevelt. It is a warm, affecting performance though sometimes the high-pitched voice and facial transformations were disconcerting.

AT THE BELLE — Romantics, Janet Leigh and John Gavin (r) are seen here from Alfred Hitchcock's Paramount thriller "Psycho", now continuing its record-breaking engagement at the Belle Theatre. Anthony Perkins and Vera Miles are also starred.

AT THE PARK — Mamie Van Doren and Tuesday Weld (center) and Mijanou Bardot (Bridgette Bardot's lovely younger sister) in "Sex Kittens Go To College" showing at the Park Theatre. Also starred in the same program are Richard Conte and Rosalie" starring Leigh Snowden and Richard Harrison.

Astrological Forecast

By CARROLL RIGHTER

Wednesday, October 5, 1960

General Tendencies: Today's Full Moon brings you a chance to think out the long-range plans and ideas that are yours and the best manner in which you can organize them on a very down-to-earth, well-formulated course of the future. Contact those who are older or more serious than yourself for advanced ideas. Tonight avoid arguments.

Aries (March 21 to April 19) Now that all tedious problems are behind you, you can carry through with your plans for expansion and also enjoy pleasures you prefer. Evening is excellent for social engagements and having fun. Be cheerful, amusing.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) Ideal day to put into motion those plans you have made so carefully for some time past. Be sure that you have studied every detail thoroughly. P.M. confer. With wise personal adviser and ameliorate home life.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) You will now receive the data you have wanted for some time and also written reports. It is then important you get together with the right people in order to carry through with your program for expansion. Be alert and dynamic.

Moon Children (June 22 to July 21) An associate finally come athrough with the information you need so that you can solve your problems. This will lead to added prestige and give you a far greater income than you have had in the past. Be very co-operative.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21) Since you are quite caught up in your important work, you can safely take that trip now or meet new people for the purpose of advancement. Also, take time this evening to enjoy pleasures which you most desire. Be happy.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 23) Since that worry is behind you concerning a loved one, you can go ahead and study the needs of family and be instrumental in assisting them. Be generous to a fault especially to those who are having very rough sledding.

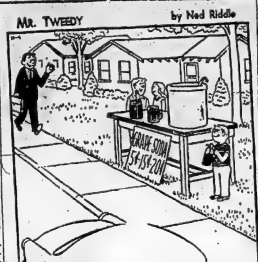
Libra (Sept. 24 to Oct. 23) Now is the time to carry through with any corporate ventures with others. Also home problems are finally resolved intelligently. P. M. go out socially and have a delightful evening.

Scorpio (Oct. 24 to Nov. 22) Carry through quickly now on any monetary affairs connected with highups or the public in general, now that the long-awaited letter or information is in your hands. Be very practical in all that you do.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23 to Dec. 21) Put aside all monetary worries now and study more important things that will bring in greater revenue and permit you to live on a higher level of conscientiousness. Decide on matters of policy after due study.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Put the past and all of its mistakes behind you now and concentrate on garnering data needed in the days ahead as well as make concrete plans for advancement. Evening is then fine for romance and having a good time.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Forget that private worry now, since you have fine and powerful friends who can make new ones who can also be helpful. Evening is ideal for advancing socially, provided you are cheerful and charming with everyone.



Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) Confer with practical and fastacting associates today in order to gain your objectives, as your intuition tells you to do. The person who has been advising you is too serious and overly pedantic. Be alert and all will be well.

If your child is born today there is an early tendency to be overly serious and tasitum, but as the years progress, the disposition suddenly becomes very sunny. So it is important you give your gifted progeny as thorough and fine an education as you can, since there is a fine mentality and lots of talent here. Especially must you concentrate on foreign tongues, since the greatest success is bound to come in work connected with foreign lands.

London Editor, 40 Years In Newsroom, Still Considers Himself Basically a Reporter

By GERALD D'ANGE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Although Ont. 1 marked the end of Arthur R. Ford's 40th year as editor of the London Free Press, he prefers to regard it as the beginning of his 41st year and another day in a newspaper career that began more than half a century ago.

And though he occupies a wood-panelled office as editor-in-chief and vice-president, he still likes to think of himself as a reporter, travelling whenever possible to places where important news is being made.

"I don't know how good an editor I've been but I always made sure I was a good reporter," he said.

Since he started as a reporter on the Stratford Herald in 1903, Mr. Ford has devoted his editorial position in the newspaper field and has covered stories ranging from fires to international conflagrations.

PROMOTED SCHOOL

Internationally most striking changes he has noted in the profession is in the status of journalism.

"When I went into the business almost 50 years ago I found that I was a university graduate. Today practically every have a university education."

His belief in the importance of such training led him to sponsor establishment of the school of journalism at the University of Western Ontario here in 1931. It now includes a period in the Belleville from 1915 to 1933.

Another achievement of The Canadian Press, national newsgathering co-operative, that he watched with interest the development of the newspaper business in this country.

WRITES COLUMN

"There has been a tremendous improvement in the coverage of world and Canadian news, both in character and speed."

And one thing he does not approve of is the increased use of American columnists in Canadian dailies.

That's why I started to write my own column. I wasn't going to let the paper with American columnists. I think with American newspapers is that the editor has become so much they overshadow the editor and publisher.

The growth of radio and television has never worried Mr. Ford. He thought that it just whetted the public's appetite for news, believing that newer media have given newspapers a greater responsibility for interpreting the news.

COVERED TITANIC

Mr. Ford's work often brought him close to the centre of events. He covered the great Rexcraft fire of 1912, the sinking of the Titanic, the bursting of the House of Commons in 1916 when seven died, and the collapse of the Quebec bridge that killed 12 workmen the same year.

He has worked on the Wall Street Journal, on the old Winnipeg Telegram and was editor of an city editor, on the Winnipeg Tribune as news editor and on the Ottawa Journal as reporter and night editor. In Ottawa he was correspondent for the Winnipeg Telegram, the old Toronto News and The Times of London.

His work in the Parliamentary Press Gallery, of which he was made a life member in 1931, brought him into contact with some of the great statesmen of the century. He came to know prime ministers intimately enough to call them by their first names.

He is a Liberal in politics and as a light gray hat and carrying a big cigar, was a familiar figure at political conventions for three years before his political convention of the last 43 years was the last one when L. E. Pearson became Liberal leader. And he would have been there, too, if he had not been ill.

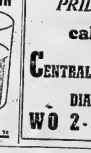
HAS NO REGRETS

Even after he became editor of The Free Press he continued to make fact-finding trips to various parts of Canada, the United States and Europe that brought Western Ontario newspaper readers first-hand reports from many capitals.

In 1913 he headed a three-man newspaper delegation on a goodwill trip to Australia and in 1945 was a member of the Canadian delegation to the world conference on freedom of information at Geneva.

A native of Point Edward, Ont., the son of a Methodist minister, he might have been a preacher or a teacher but in his youth he was short of cash and when a $5-a-week job was offered by the Stratford Herald he took it.

He hasn't regretted the choice and three years ago he would have completed 63 satisfying years in active newspaper work.



Arthur R. Ford, active in the Canadian newspaper business for more than half a century, marked the completion of 40 years as editor of the London Free Press October 1. He started on the Stratford Herald in 1903 and later worked for newspapers in Toronto, Winnipeg, Ottawa and New York. A life member of the Parliamentary Press Gallery in Ottawa and a former councillor of the University of Western Ontario, he still writes a column for The Free Press. (CP Photo).

1961 Chevrolet Shorter and Narrower

Designers have applied smooth, graceful lines to the 1961 Chevrolet Impala, Bel Aid and Biscayne passenger car lines. Rooflines, as noted here in the Impala sport sedan, are freshly contoured and are separately styled for each series model. Overall body design features gently sloping lines. Rear trunk deck lid now opens even with top of the bumper, affording easier loading and unloading. Gas tank has been repositioned for greater safety. The Impala sport sedan is one of 20 body styles in the conventional Chevrolet line.

G. W. Miller Given High Post With CP Railway

TORONTO — G. W. Miller has been appointed assistant general manager of the Canadian Pacific Railway's Eastern Region, succeeding W. F. Kochn, who has retired because of ill health, S. M. Gossage, vice-president and general manager announced here today.

Mr. Miller has held the position of assistant general manager, special duties, since July, 1959.

Mr. Koehn, retired after 44 years of service with the Eastern CPR in Montreal and served in engineering and operating departments there until 1946, when he came to Toronto as general superintendent of the Ontario district.

He moved to North Bay as general superintendent of the Algoma district in 1954, returning to Toronto as assistant general manager in July, 1959.

Mr. Miller, a graduate of the University of British Columbia, started with the company as a transitman in 1937. He was division engineer at Revelstoke in 1939 when he was moved to the chief engineer's office in Montreal. Four years later he came to Toronto, where he served as assistant regional engineer and Ontario district engineer. In 1950 he was named engineer, maintenance of way, for the Eastern Region, and in 1958 became general superintendent of the Ontario district.

Mr. Miller has served on the Board of the American Railways Engineering Association and was president of that organization in 1954 and 1955.

OFFICES FIVE-DAY WEEK

The association members offer a five-day week plus Saturday and Sunday overtime, but only where the weekend days are worked. The offer includes a five-per-cent basic wage increase as a contract re-open at the end of the 1962 season. The old agreement expired Dec. 31, 1959.

The association counsellor is for a five-per-cent increase this year with three months' retro-active pay, a 44-hour week in 1961 with time and a half for Sunday and time and a quarter for Saturday afternoons guaranteed. It asks another five - per - cent increase and a 40-hour week in 1962.

Another obstacle in the dispute is the union request for vacation pay to be administered by the union and an association clause to have maintenance work done at night. Seamen are eligible for 14 days' paid vacation after two days work.

Besides Upper Lakes, Misener and Paterson, the other members of the association are Hall Corporation of Canada and Carryore Limited, both of Montreal.

CSL STILL SAILING

Canada Steamship Lines, which operates 42 per cent of the fleet, is remaining neutral and says it will continue to operate.

Capt. Misner said the lineup has been "precipitated by the irresponsible action of Hal C. Banks and his Seafarers International Union."

He said the tieup in the midst of the grain season "puts Canada's economic situation in a precarious situation."

Mr. Misner said the union demands as given to the press by Mr. Banks were "complete fabrications."

"He is still holding to the 25-to 30-per-cent increases he sought from the start," he said. "We have been negotiating with the union for one year, and they have not come down from that position."

EXPECTED REACTION

In Khrushchev's view the final tally will not be known for many months. He is reported to have come to New York realizing that the immediate results might appear to favor the West.

As Khrushchev looks at it, by dominating the UN meeting in the heart of the capitalist world he has boosted Red prestige everywhere, especially in newly emerging African nations.

Further, he is reported sincerely convinced that his repeated attacks against Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold have already guaranteed he will meet no more Kremlin foes.

being held was in no condition to talk. Further developments could be expected when the man was able to answer questions. His condition was not elaborated upon.

Both Martin and Dupuis had been shot through the heart in the bottle-filled cabin. A double-barrelled rifle lay nearby.

Montreal detectives said the pair were staying in a flat in downtown Montreal probably occupied early Monday while the Intrevados were murdered at about 8:30 a.m.

Mr. Intrevado returned to his modest three-room flat in the north-end at 6:30 p.m., Tuesday for one person was on the table and a pot of milk was on the stove for the baby.

There were few signs of violence outside the bathroom.

tion from most of the members in the 86-nation General Assembly, said it was not the big powers who need the UN, but all the others.

'I SHALL REMAIN'

"I shall remain in my post during the term of my office as a servant of the organization, in the interests of all those other nations, as long as they (he stressed the word "they") wish me to do so", Hammarskjold said.

Khrushchev once again led the Communist bloc delegations in a demonstration of table-pounding to signify protest, but the Soviet leader was smiling at the time.

Then, Khrushchev worked harder than ever at lobbying for support outside the UN. He whirled from luncheons to cocktail parties to receptions and dinners, glad-handing delegates, cracking jokes, smiling, and playing the role of sweet reason.

ITS IT HARD

No other diplomat from any country hit the social circuit so hard.

How much impact Khrushchev has made is not yet to be determined.

The vote on Red China may be a clear-cut gauge. Last year, the proposal to seat Peking was defeated only by a vote of 44 to 29, with nine abstentions. With 13 more members added this year, Khrushchev could make it much closer, assuming he can win them to his side.

There seems little possibility that he can unseat Hammarskjold at this time.

Mr. Khrushchev laid down a clearly implied threat in addressing the assembly Monday. "If the UN is to survive it must make up enough courage to resign," he said, "then we shall draw the necessary conclusions from the prevailing situation."

It appeared to imply that in the event of another problem such as the Congo — where Khrushchev has accused Hammarskjold of having let the Western-Communist bloc would refuse to abide by any UN decisions.

ACCUSERS RISK TAX

In other developments Monday, King Hussein of Jordan accused the Soviet Union of trying to wreck the UN, and the United Arab Republic of seeking to destabilize Hashemite kingdom.

The 26-year-old desert monarch said he saw a parallel in the activities of Khrushchev and Nasser in the Arab world.

BUICK SPECIAL DELUXE 4-Door Estate Wagon

A GENERAL MOTORS VALUE!
Whitewall tires optional at extra cost

AS FINE AS NEW AS YOU CAN GO

Now! Full comfort, full luxury in a trimmer, full size car

With a car that's so new clean through, Buick was able to start right down on the ground and compromise on no component all the way up.

IT STARTED WITH AN ALL-NEW FRAME

Buick's new X-frame made way for lower door sills, a smoother, quieter ride, easier handling and better insulation of the body from road shock.

The new frame allowed a NEW CONTROL-ARM SUSPENSION

From this came flatter cornering and mirror-smooth going over the bumps as well as the highway. Buick has a new semi-floating rear axle, too! This combines what engineers call Torque-Tube Drive and Hotchkiss Drive—giving you the finest features of both.

The new axle allowed a NEW HIDE-AWAY DRIVE SHAFT

Buick put a totally new kind of double-joint into a 2-piece drive shaft. This let it bend down under your feet—and down went the hump in the middle to give you far more flat floor space than before.

Smaller than big

Bigger than small

THE BEST OF BOTH WORLDS

Now! The room, ride, go, pride of the costliest cars plus the savings and ease of the small

It took combined GM and Buick ingenuity to work the near miracle which made this car possible. Here is FULL-SIZE LIVING WITH NEW-SIZE CONVENIENCE.

COMFORT? STRETCH OUT!

The Special gives you more headroom than most new-size cars, more legroom than most new-size cars, more shoulder room than most new-size cars—and more total room for comfort.

CANADA'S ONLY ALUMINUM TRANSMISSION

Not another new-size car has it! New Dual Path Turbine Drive is the liveliest automatic in any car. It's like having two transmissions—one with an oil connection for infinite smoothness, the other with a direct mechanical connection for greater go and greater gas savings.

CANADA'S FIRST ALUMINUM V8

puts the power in the Special. It develops astonishing power per pound. The Special got this power without adding weight. And there you have the start of a great gas savings story.

SAVINGS? TERRIFIC!

The Special gives you the gas savings of a compact without giving up go-power. It sells in a price area you'll like without giving up looks. The miracle explained: the smartest engineering in years plus the new wonder materials.

Sixty-One Killed As Plane Plunges Into Boston Bay

Secret Document Found Floating in Debris

BOSTON (AP) — An Eastern Airlines four-engined Electra transport plunged into Boston harbor on takeoff Tuesday, killing 61 of the 72 aboard. All of the 11 known survivors were injured severely.

There were 51 bodies in the Boston Mortuary, 48, of which were identified.

The broken plane parts were lifted to the surface today and the search resumed for possibly 10 more bodies.

A mysterious "secret document" reported as missing was found floating in debris in a pool at Logan Airport, police said it was carried by a representative of the air force. It was turned over to the air force office of special investigation.

The crash, one of a series of mishaps involving the turbo-prop Electra and the second crash of that type in less than three weeks, brought urgent demands from congressmen for investigation.

The plane took off with 67 passengers and a crew of five from Logan International Airport at 9:45 p.m. bound for Philadelphia, Charlotte, N.C., Greenville, S.C., and Miami. Only 11 persons were known to be aboard. It crashed down about 200 yards offshore.

SPLIT WIDE OPEN

The plane was split wide open," said Lt. Cmdr. Everett Cook of the U.S. Coast Guard cutter Spencer, the plane after it nosed into the water off the Winthrop Coast Guard Base.

"When I got there, part of the plane was still afloat," said Cook. "Some people were floating around. The first to reach the scene. "A good many of the passengers were strapped to their seats and I couldn't get out. The seats were floating. I noticed that their weight was pulling them over so that their heads were in the water."

They were all a mess—blood, broken legs, spilt skulls and everything else," he said.

The pilot, Capt. C. W. Fitts, and co-pilot M. J. Calloway, were fighting, Cook said. Fitts died and Calloway was injured.

Capt. Fitts had logged 17,000 hours and was one of the airline's most experienced pilots.

NO TIME TO THINK

"I was in bed when we hit —it saved my life," Miss Berry said. "It happened so fast there was no time to think.

"I opened the rear door and pushed myself out. I was pulled from my broken leg was so painful," she said.

Hundreds joined in the rescue efforts. Coast Guard, owners of small boats, skin divers, pilots of coast guard helicopters and boats and Boston police. Many helicopters who were not affected by the strike.

Reni Duquette, federal mediator, who announced the settlement, said the contract signed provided a five-per-cent wage increase retroactive to July 15, 1960, and a reduction in the work-week to 4 hours from 44.

SCARBOROUGH England (CP)—The British Labor party today rejected the official defence policy of its leaders and approved a resolution demanding unilateral renunciation of nuclear weapons.

Bomb Threat, Balky Engine Delay Planes

VANCOUVER (CP)—A bomb scare and a balky engine forced two Trans-Canada Air Lines flights back to Vancouver with close to 100 passengers late today.

A DC-6 jetliner with 73 passengers and crew aboard—flight No. 850 bound for Toronto, Montreal and Moncton—was back on the air only 15 minutes when it was brought back by the airport control tower after a man phoned to say a bomb was aboard.

Already about four hours late because of mechanical difficulties, the jet was held up more than two hours more while police searched it.

A TCA North Star en route to Edmonton and Toronto was brought back about 15 miles east of here with its 24 passengers when a starboard engine conked out. It landed without incident.

Fails in Effort To See Gomulka

MONTREAL (CP) — Mrs. Lucille Koyer, 34-year-old Montreal housewife whose husband was seized on multiple murder charges while visiting his native Poland, has returned home from New York after an unsuccessful attempt to submit a petition to Polish Premier Gomulka at the United Nations.

Mrs. Koyer said Tuesday that she is determined to try again another time in the near future and the Canadian staff at the UN has been ordered to give her everything possible to assist her.

The Canadian Embassy in Warsaw has orders to watch the case closely and has obtained legal counsel for Koyer.

Veritable Chatterbox in Sky New U.S. Satellite Can Send Entire Bible in 12 Minutes

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — America's newest satellite, a veritable chatterbox in the sky, whipped around the world today, paving the way for a space-age communications system for U.S. military forces.

The 300-pound Courier 1-B, launched Tuesday, is circling the earth every 115 minutes in an orbit ranging from 375 to 736 miles above the surface.

The new space messenger relayed a teletype message of peace and good will from President Eisenhower to the United Nations. The message was sent from Washington to Fort Dix, N.J., where it was beamed to Courier 1-B. The note then was transmitted to another ground station which relayed it by high-speed radio to New York.

The president's message witnessed 16 new nations to the UN.

SHOWS GREAT ADVANCE

Another message from Secretary of the Army Wilber Brucker was relayed via the Fort Dix sphere. Brucker said courier 1-B "represents a phenomenal advance in the field of communications." The army signal and research laboratories has technical direction of the Courier program.

The satellite carries 300 pounds of solar electronic gear. At the heart of the system are five transistors which are capable of simultaneously receiving and transmitting 68,000 words a minute.

Businessmen Are Exhorted to Take More Active Interest in Politics

CALGARY (CP) — Businessmen are urged to take a more active interest in politics in the program of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce as it drawn up for the coming year.

The objective, as expressed in discussions at the chamber's annual meeting, is not so much one of sending businessmen to Parliament as of having them play a larger political spadework.

Coupled with this program, the chamber apparently aims at stepping up its efforts at telling the public more about business and about the public's stake in the competitive enterprise system.

A new policy declaration says in part: "Canadian businessmen, and indeed all citizens, should participate fully as individuals in the selection, nomination and election of candidates to public office and in the formulation of political policy.

"Discussions Tuesday and today centred largely around this topic.

Charles Guy Pare of Montreal, national vice - president of the Progressive Conservative Association of Canada, said:

"Traditionally business has, in self-defence, abhorred political participation in the bloodstream of politics. Industry must get active at the grass roots level. It must clearly tell its story."

Mel Gen. A. Bruce Matthews of Toronto, president of the National Liberal Federation of Canada, stated:

"Constituency organization cries out for help everywhere along the line. This can't well be."

"The strength of me fists and the strength of me head, I'll keep me title."

World Leaders at UN Assembly Start for Home

N. Y. Police Force Had Busy Time

NEW YORK (CP)—New Yorkers were finding it a little easier today to move through their city's congested streets; some of the world leaders here for the 15th General Assembly of the United Nations had moved out or were preparing to do so.

During the two weeks, the city's already bad traffic congestion became worse as streets were closed off to ease the movement of important guests to and from the UN.

Eight thousand policemen, one-third of the New York force, were pressed into service to guard visitors. Many of them haven't had a day off since the start of the "emergency" Sept. 20. The security problem is not over yet, however, by the departures.

Maurice Couve de Murville, the French foreign minister — the first important diplomat to go, left after the first four days of debate. The French government is said to be unhappy about the trend of events in the assembly.

Other ministers Fidel Castro was the first head of government to go although he returned to say back "soon." He left last Wednesday.

President Tito sailed for home Tuesday in a somewhat pessimistic mood. He said the Yugoslav marshal had come here with high hopes "but unfortunately the situation in the UN to occupy the middle ground and the Soviet Union.

Menzies States USSR Greatest Colonial Power

Khrushchev Hypocrite Asserts Australian PM

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—Australian Prime Minister Robert Menzies today denounced Soviet Premier Khrushchev as a hypocrite and supporter of the newly-admitted nations of Africa "not to breed his voice.

In a speech prepared for delivery to the UN General Assembly, the Australian leader accused Khrushchev of trying to inflame the minds of the new nations of Africa with "catchy slogans of imperialism and colonialism.

"I venture to say it is an act of complete hypocrisy for a Communist leader to denounce colonialism as if it were an evil characteristic of the Western powers, when the facts are that the greatest colonial power in the existing world is the Soviet Union itself."

He said President Eisenhower took a "high line" in opposing efforts of the Communist world to put the African states in their own sphere of influence.

Then Menzies added:

"The field is effete, and I most respectfully agree, that we are not to look at the world situation as if they were voters to be collected or as pawns to be used in international game, but as independent, co-equal and free."

A major Communist-opposing meeting between President Eisenhower and Premier Khrushchev came up for discussion in the UN General Assembly today, although both leaders have expressed strong distaste for the idea.

As Australian amendment urging a Big Four meeting was put out specifying the time, also is under consideration. Prime Minister Menzies discussed it with Khrushchev Tuesday in a private conference lasting 70 minutes.

The New York Herald Tribune says Macmillan and Khrushchev prepared the ground for a Big Four summit meeting in the spring, possibly in Geneva.

A British spokesman confirmed that Khrushchev and Macmillan had touched on the possibility of such a meeting between Khrushchev and the next American president next year, along with "disarmament and how to get on with the Berlin question and matters the Secretary - General's Assembly.

WAS SERIOUS TALK

The British spokesman called the talk "serious and constructive general talk." Khrushchev said it was very productive and very Soviet Premier Khrushchev said it was very productive and very friendly, but conversations must be judged by results and we must wait for them.

Eleven Killed, Sixty Injured In Plant Blast

KINGSPORT, Tenn. (AP) — A savage blast which claimed 11 lives and left at least 60 persons injured destroyed part of a chemical plant here Tuesday and rocked this northeast Tennessee city of 28,000 people.

Today officials of the Tennessee Eastman Corporation began probing smouldering rubble of the southeast section of the modern plant in an effort to determine the cause.

The explosion occurred in the acid division of the plant in the Kingsport operating section where dyes are made. Officials said the building is operated by remote control and normally no workmen are inside.

Downtown Kingsport, 1¼ miles away, was shaken. Shattered glass from the Wednesday Herald-Times in the streets. The blast was heard 40 miles away in Johnson City.

FIRE RAGES

A fire touched off by the explosion raged for about three hours before it was brought under control. It was virtually extinguished by 5 p.m. EDT.

David McBride, a reporter for The Kingsport Times-News, who arrived on the scene while the debris was still falling said persons were standing about "like folk like rain."

Lynn Hall, a subsidiary of Eastman Kodak Corporation, produces plastic, fibres, dyes, chemical and explosives.

South Africans Vote on Republic Question Today

JOHANNESBURG (Reuters) — Nearly a million white South African population voted today to decide whether they want to become a republic — an issue on which 14,000,000 non-whites have no say.

More than 1,800,000 whites were registered to vote in the referendum, climaxing a bitterly contested campaign which produced political feeling for months.

The political fight among the white is divided mainly along language lines. The English-speaking South Africans oppose the republic while Afrikaners fervently support it.

The Afrikaner Nationalist prime minister, Hendrik Verwoerd, has said that the only change that will come in a republic would be the replacement of the Queen by a president elected by a South African president.

Opposition to a republic has been led by the United party. It says South Africa's move to cast loose would be accelerated under a republic.

NEW YORK (AP) — A man who founded the Mother's Day holiday in court suit Tuesday that the television program This is Your Life distorted the facts in being "happily married" to him whereas he actually divorced her for desertion on grounds of abandonment.

The suit was brought against the National Broadcasting Company by Abraham Hahn of New York City.

In his complaint, Hahn said that last May 4, his wife, Betty, appeared on the program, which pretended to depict the life of my wife, that she was happily married, to me and that our two children were living happily with us in our home at the time of the broadcast."

Hahn said this was false because NBC knew that in March her children."

Describes How Kingston Rids Self of Slums

How "old" towns and cities can be given "new life" was the subject of an interesting address given yesterday by Kingston Alderman Dr. Elliott.

Alderman Elliott addressed the Belleville Kiwanis Club at the weekly dinner meeting in the Kiwanis Centre.

His informative address, interspersed with many humorous observations, briefly outlined the major feats done in many cities of today, and described how the city of Kingston dealt with one of these problems — the improvement of housing in the Rideau Heights area.

Although her address dealt largely with what was done in Kingston, many of the ideas put forth by the Lancashire lass who became a Canadian citizen this year, could be applicable to a city the size of Belleville.

On hand for her address were Mayor Sills, many of the city planning board, city manager James Duncan, members of the educational planning board of Belleville General Hospital and Knox Development Corporation, Local Chamber of Commerce. A large number of Belleville guests of Kiwanians, were also present.

CAN PROVIDE HOUSING

Mrs. Elliott, who is chairman of the housing committee, originally appointed by Kingston City Council five years ago, as well as chairman of the local slum streets committee, stressed that inadequate housing in any city can easily be rectified with the full co-operation on the local municipal level.

She said both the provincial and federal governments are willing, than willing to assist a municipality in the task of providing better housing and improving existing residential areas.

Cambridge, Ont., University graduate said a recent survey in Kingston showed 1,500 people that poor housing areas and small apartments. These areas are usually found tucked away in the earlier residential areas or even in the city core.

She said these "little pockets of poverty" are often overlooked as they are cleaned up and re-developed.

The attractive mother of three who has been an alderman for five years, said the Rideau Heights was such an area.

The first step taken by the new housing committee was to survey the area. The survey disclosed that a lack of sense of the community spirit, plenty of fresh air and recreational facilities for the children, but in addition, dreary, dismal, inadequate housing.

LAND ASSEMBLY PLAN

The committee then instituted a land assembly scheme to provide economical land for home-owners and home builders. It then set up a scheme for rental housing scheme to provide alternative housing for people living in this area.

A 71-unit housing area was recently completed. The housing authority was set up to interview prospective tenants to determine the property. Rents are on a sliding scale according to a family's income and responsibilities.

The first step was to declare most of the area a "re-development area". Purpose of this is to "freeze" the area so old "slum property" houses can be bought and torn down and the area re-subdivided.

The council has until next spring to decide if it will go ahead with this scheme, she said.

The speaker was introduced by Canon A. S. McConnell, and thanked on behalf of the club by Don Kennedy.

The meeting was conducted by president Gordon Brain, who presented Mrs. Elliott with a token of the club's appreciation of her return engagement as guest speaker.

NAME VICE-PRESIDENT

Dr. Brain announced that Georgs Hume had been elected vice-president for 1961. Mr. Hume was given a standing ovation.

Several promotive members were introduced.

Newt Mastic, travelogue chairman, gave a brief report on the club's major fund-raising project and Bill Slade gave a report on the plans for an inter-club visit to Oshawa, and the tour of the G.M. plant.

Chairman Brain announced Eric Cooper's annual Christmas toy project will soon begin, and urged Kiwanians to again offer their services.

WILL BARGAIN WITH REDS

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP)—Premier Prince Souvanna Phouma told a cheering crowd of pro-neutralist demonstrators Tuesday he will start negotiations within the next few days with pro-Communist Pathet Lao rebels to end the six-year civil war in Laos. Souvanna said he would not negotiate with the pro-Western rebel, regime of Gen. Phoumi Nosavan. The premier also said he expects diplomatic relations to be established with Russia in two weeks.

Town May Seize Properties In Lieu of Tax Arrears

TRENTON — For the first time in town history, town council is making an all-out effort to force delinquent taxpayers to settle their accounts.

To show that council means business, registered letters will be sent within the next six to 25 persons whose properties have been registered for tax sale. Interesting item that unless their taxes and interest up to and including Dec. 31 are paid in full by Jan. 15, their properties will be taken over by the town and put up for sale, with the town putting in a reserve bid to protect the town interests.

Council decided on this move at a special meeting Tuesday, Finance committee chairman Vagn Lange told council Monday night that several of council's departments are going to the year in the red unless additional funds are secured from one source or another. Supplementary estimates for new properties have proved to be disappointing this year.

As for the people whose taxes are in arrears, council feels that for the most part they have been given every chance. Some of them have been putting off so much per month on their back taxes but have failed to keep their promises.

At the beginning of the meeting, Councillors Lange, C. V. Graham, N. J. McNair, D. H. Sager and H. C. Aird, agreed to discuss each case on his individual merits. After a few cases had been discussed, Councillor Lange suggested that council should lay down a policy for future councils and make one rule for all the registered property owners.

HEARTS

"We're judging with our hearts, not our business minds," he said.

Councillor Fraser agreed. "Council is faced with making a decision in this matter. These people have consistently cheated the town over the years. We are discriminating against all the other taxpayers in town by allowing this to go on. We must agree on a policy and stick to it to all cases and tell our solicitor to go ahead with the arrangements for selling properties where the owners ignore our warning as promptly as possible.

"We should do something about this before winter sets in and we can't get the people out," said Councillor Graham.

These people have been lulled into a false sense of security because we've let them get away with it so far," said Councillor Lange.

Properties are registered after owners have failed to pay taxes for three consecutive years. They have one year to redeem their properties, following registration.

These properties are actually a part of the corporation now," said Councillor Fraser. "We're dealing with the taxpayers' money."

"At least you will establish a policy," said town clerk O. W. Jerry. "People will begin to realize that having a roof over their heads is of prime importance."

Rotary Heart Cancer Society Executive

TRENTON — "I am forced to make the tragic statement that no one in the world at the present time knows the cause of cancer," Maurice J. Grimes, executive director of the Canadian Cancer Society, told the Rotary Club.

Mr. Grimes explained that he was not a doctor and that all comments made by him were based on information given him. He said that he had worked as a volunteer with the cancer society for five years and that for the past ten years he had been attached to the permanent staff.

He said that all normal cells divide and multiply and have the power to carry on replacement and repair work. With abnormal cancer cells, much the same process takes place but they grow and multiply more than the normal cells. They will kill the host body if the growing process is not stopped by one of the known methods of arresting the growth of cancer.

Mr. Grimes stressed the importance of early diagnosis. He said that surgery is sometimes used in the treatment of cancer and that the other two known methods were radio therapy, and chemotherapy, which has not been endorsed by the medical profession, of using chemicals to destroy cancer cells.

The cancer society works to eliminate the element of fear and even shame connected with this disease through publicity. The women's service branch of the society carry on invaluable service by supplying dressings, helping the patient to buy wigs and providing transportation to cancer clinics.

He said that 7,500 persons in Ontario died each year of cancer and that 50 per cent of these died unnecessarily. A common fallacy is that more women die of cancer than men. Mr. Grimes said that the actual figures ran 53 per cent for men and 48 per cent for women.

Women are more prone to the disease in more accessible area, accounting for the higher mortality rate in men patients.

He said that as important phase of the society's work was in research which is being carried on to determine the cause of cancer.

"With God's help, the cause and cure for cancer will someday be found," he said.

Mr. Grimes was introduced by James Duncan and thanked by Jack Goldberg and acting-president "Mac" McDonald.

Engineers Hold First Institute Meeting of Year

The first meeting of the Belleville Branch of the Engineering Institute of Canada was held in the assembly hall of the Ontario Hydro Building on Monday. The chairman, Mr. H. T. Floyd, opened the meeting with a welcome to all members and guests to this the first meeting of the season. An open invitation was given to all A.P.E.O. members to attend these meetings of the branch, which he felt sure they would find interesting and stimulating, particularly as the technical papers given at the R.M.C. meetings covered a wide variety of subjects, and thus helped to broaden the technical knowledge of the engineer.

Mr. Floyd also announced that this year the winner of the R.I.C. prize of $75 awarded to the Grade 13 student graduating from Quinte High School or Moira High School or Nicholson College who obtained the highest aggregate marks in the subjects of English, mathematics and physics would be in your, and who was presently pursuing engineering courses at a recognized university was Mr. Jens Hansen of Quinte Secondary School.

The chairman noted that Mr. Hansen originally came to Canada from Denmark, and on behalf of the R.I.C. offered his congratulations to Mr. Hansen who will be presented with the award at the Quinte High School Commencement Exercises on October 21.

The speakers for the evening were Mr. Murray J. McIlroy, sales engineer of Canadian Automatic Electric Company, Toronto, and Mr. Donald Tees, chief engineer and commissioner of works, Kingston, who were introduced by Mr. Eric Hibbs.

TELL OF 'CAVES'

Mr. McIlroy and Mr. Ross are both active members in the newly formed association known as CAPE (Committee for the Advancement of Professional Engineers), and he was the subject of the talk and following discussion for the benefit of the engineering profession which currently is in the formative stage. CAPE. His dealt in detail with the problems facing consulting engineers and the subsequent presentation of a brief which has been endorsed by the Council of the A.P.E.O., and which was published in the June 1960 issue of "The Professional Engineer". The brief was intended to pave the way for A.P.E.O. for the purpose of the formation of CAPE and to give Council the authority to take the first steps toward a solution of the present difficulties.

CAPE recognizes that the brief received courteous reception by Provincial Council of the A.P.E.O. and prompt attention and action. This disappointed Council did not adopt the recommendations of CAPE who felt that at least some form of investigation should be carried out.

CAPE felt it essential to determine the opinions of the A.P.E.O. membership, and to assist in this a questionnaire was sent out to as many members as possible in August 1960. Results of the questionnaire have not yet been tabulated, but will be made available to members of CAPE and to the A.P.E.O. Council regarding the future.

CAPE plans to nominate a slate of candidates from every branch of the profession for the 1961 A.P.E.O. Council so that they can further the objectives of CAPE and its supporters.

Mr. Donald Ross in his address dealt mainly with the question of employer, employee relations, particularly with salary negotiations of employee engineers. He stated that a very definite policy towards salaries and professional status should be adopted by the organizing body and that CAPE has a definite policy towards such a policy.

Following the talks by Mr. McIlroy and Mr. Ross, a very lively and interesting question period ensued during which both speakers were asked very direct questions relating to the policy and proposed operations of CAPE. The questions were ably answered by both speakers, although as would be expected, there was some divergence of opinions.

The speakers were thanked by Mr. Jamieh.

Hammarskjold left the party a few minutes later.

Next, Khrushchev announced he would never blockade West Berlin.

This developed out of a brisk exchange with Margaret Sinclair Higgins, a correspondent for the New York Herald Tribune, who asked whether the 2,250,000 West Berliners would continue to have the right to choose their own form of government, and would not be subjected to another Communist blockade.

GIVES ASSURANCE

He can give them full assurance as far as I am concerned," Khrushchev replied. "I can assure you the government of the German Democratic Republic and East Germany is interested at the same view."

But he qualified the statement by repeating that he intends to conclude a separate peace treaty with East Germany "in the near future and the state of war." However, he said:

"West Berlin will become a free city and not only will there be no blockade, but all conditions will be created to assure communications that will be kept open with the outside world."

Khrushchev's remarks he accused Miss Higgins of writing "filthy things" about the Soviet Union and about him.

"I'm part Irish," she blazed back, "and the Irish are a stubborn people. Nobody tells me what to write."

NEHRU EXPLAINS

Meanwhile, at a dinner given by the UN Correspondents Association, India's Prime Minister Nehru explained why the neutralist nations are seeking a resolution urging a Khrushchev-Eisenhower meeting. He is one of the five proponents.

Reporters asked what he hopes to achieve. In view of the fact the two leaders gave. Eisenhower told Khrushchev each took the position that policies pursued by the other, "In the months since the adjourn of the summit in May, were responsible for the rise in world tensions.

"I do get the impression of strong feelings," he continued. "But not of the smouldering closed and bolted."

The members of the resolution, he continued, feel "it will have a good effect in trying world opinion" in the right direction.

British Labor Party Heads For Bitter Defence Debate

SCARBOROUGH, England (CP)—The Labor party headed into a showdown defence debate today. One delegate went so far as to predict that British recognize nuclear armaments.

Hugh Gaitskell's future as leader of the opposition party hangs in the balance on the issue. His opposes unilateral disarmament and his resignation is being sought by the party's militant wing.

His hand was strengthened somewhat Tuesday after a resolution had been passed seeking to compel Labor members of Parliament to abide by decisions of the party conference in this Yorkshire town.

But Labor's national executive warned the delegates that the decision must not conflict with the freedom of action for MPs which the party's constitution guarantees.

BEVAN PARTY VIEW

In effect, the constitutional ruling enables the parliamentary Labor party, whose majority opposes unilateral disarmament, to withdraw its views even if the conference calls for the rejection of nuclear arms for the nation.

Although no one attacked Gaitskell by name Tuesday, his political career was under discussion by speakers.

Harold Wilson, Labor's spokesman on economic affairs, challenged Gaitskell's claim that he has been pressing — that total nationalization of industry must be the way to socialism if socialism and free enterprise.

Wilson declared: "I do not accept that socialism and public ownership are out of date."

IRON PARTY STRIFE

A number of younger delegates pleaded for an end to intra-party strife.

The socialist swing to unilateralism reported Monday when many observers following a decision Tuesday that the national Amalgamated Engineering Union (A.E.U.) to oppose Gaitskell and back the unilateralists. The decision that if the A.E.U.'s 897,000 bloc vote was added to other unilateralist votes already committed to the "anti-bomb" line.

Meanwhile, Sir Grimond, leader of the Liberal party, jumped into the controversy by appealing for a satisfied Labor supporters to "come over to us."

URGES USE NATIVE PORTS

MONTREAL (CP) — The Maritimes transportation commission Tuesday endorsed a stand taken by the commission's committee urging greater export of Canadian — built automobiles through Canadian ports. The committee made its recommendations in a brief to the royal commission on the automotive industry. The brief pointed out that 90 per cent of cars made in Canada for export are shipped to the United States where they are shipped through U.S. ports.

Model Arrested On Theft Charge

TORONTO (CP) — Larry Perkins, 20, a professional model, was arrested today and charged with robbery and possessing stolen jewelry after a woman told police she was held prisoner three hours in her car and forced to drive about the city.

Mrs. Vivian Zigelstein, 38, told detectives she left her home Tuesday night and was driving along Highway 401 when a man jumped up from the rear of the car, held her at gunpoint and stole "my money".

She said after she was ordered to drive around the city, the man took her jewelry valued at $5,000 and $2.50 in cash.

Czechoslovakian Deputy Minister Visitor in City

The Czechoslovakian deputy minister of agriculture, forestry and water economy, together with six staff experts, visited the Belleville Science Service Entomology Laboratory yesterday before going on to Oshawa and Toronto where they will visit farms and packing houses.

Heading the delegation was Dr. Frantisek Cord, deputy minister of the Czechoslovakian government department, while Mr. Josef Satrawa, Czech vice consul in Montreal, acted as interpreter.

Dr. R. P. Belrne, director of the Belleville Institute, said the visit of the Czechoslovakian party would be beneficial to the Belleville laboratory as it examinatin its views even if the conference calls for the rejection of nuclear arms for the nation.

Infiltration

Infiltration is a subtle thing and the Communists are past masters of the art. It is somewhat startling, though, to find oneself providing proof of being infiltrated by the very act of taking a poke at the infiltrator.

That, alas, seems to have been the somewhat unhappy lot of the person responsible for writing a Canadian Press "lead" on Prime Minister Macmillan's address to the United Nations Assembly.

He dealt with the rude manner in which Khrushchev interrupted Mr. Macmillan. Heckling, at a public political meeting, is something which we generally condone, or even praise. It prevents speakers from getting away with murder. But heckling at a conference like the United Nations, where everybody has a chance to present his views, is crude and unobstructive.

"Macmillan received the biggest ovation so far in this historic 15th assembly session," The Canadian Press reported. "Khrushchev and the Soviet bloc sat glumly and silently throughout the stormy applause."

Stormy applause." What a striking phrase! Quite unusual in the English language—but not in the translation of Russian into English. How many times have we read that phrase, "stormy applause," in the voluminous verbatim translations of speeches by Communist leaders which the Russian embassy at Ottawa distributes to Canadian newspapers!

There is a set standard of approval, ranging from mere "applause" through, if memory serves us aright, "thunderous applause" to the very acme of enthusiasm and endorsation, "stormy applause."

And here we find The Canadian Press applying this Russian-concocted phrase to Mr. Macmillan's speech.

Come to think of it, though, this may not be an example of the success of the modern Russian technique of infiltration, but a resort to the good old English custom, originated by one William Shakespeare, of hoisting an enemy by his own petard.

A Question Of Viewpoint

Tadeusz Koywer, a Montreal resident visiting his native Poland, has been arrested and charged with slaying at least nine left-wing Polish partisans during the Second Great War.

Koywer was not a Nazi sympathizer—few, if any, Poles were—but he belonged to the supporters of the exiled Polish Government which had its headquarters in Britain.

First reaction of many Canadians is likely to be that this is another case of Communist persecution, cut out of the whole cloth.

Josef Walter Olybrycht, president of the Toronto chapter of former Polish home army veterans, says that army repeatedly clashed with left-wing groups and considered "Communists just as much our enemies as the Nazis."

That attitude is easily understandable, remembering the manner in which Stalin treacherously divided up Poland with Hitler, to start the Second Great War.

Poland, however, was not the only place where the foes of the Nazis fought each other. The same thing happened in Yugoslavia, and in other lands, with far less reason than in Poland.

Some day those who will maintain that men like Olybrycht, who regarded Nazis and Communists with equal enmity, were the only clear-sighted ones.

Others will argue that if all the allies had taken this attitude there would be no Cold War today, because there would be a very hot peace, with the Swastika waving over the whole world, from Vladivostok to Vancouver.

It is all a question of viewpoint.

Nostalgia

The paddlewheeler Keno, last of the great Yukon riverboats, has completed its final voyage and is to be beached and turned into a museum at Dawson City. It is as much as nostalgic a scene as when Ottawa's streetcars paraded a year ago when the CNR and CPR steam locomotives gave their farewell sixties runs recently. Some day citizens may assemble to watch the exit of the pioneer manned satellite, and there won't be a dry eye on the space platform. (Ottawa Citizen.)

STRENGTH FOR THE DAY

DR. EARL I. DOUGLASS

TRULY CERTIFIED RELIGION

The Chinese word for Pres-ayter-ian bells. This is not only true of Presbyterians (the present writer happens to be one), but of every other religious group known to man. We like to confine our religious beliefs to definite areas of association it with a few pious customs, and then attempt to fit a few sacred occasions. As for life in general—well, there we intend to get ahead regardless of others. And all the while the religion we profess on Sunday is wrapped up in moth balls and put away carefully for use on a high day.

Dr. Samuel Johnson once remarked that a life which will bear the inspection of men and God is the only certificate of true religion.

Experiments With Words

New York Times

Everybody agrees that the period of 11 days is in the main a business, but some are more in days than others. Those who are perfect darlings in are the days themselves from time to time find themselves in the language.

Undoubtedly the foremost experimenters are the toddlers, are wearing to talk as they learn to walk. They come to mind a certain tiny boy who would sit entranced by the words "Please take my outdoors" and who would go around with various alternatives put upon "Out me," which he now does with conspicuous success.

Children of that age or a little older are dimly aware that the language has its slippery spots, and they are forever experimenting with ways to obtain a secure footing. Verbs with irregular past tenses are notoriously slippery, and it is because of them that you hear a child say "He hitted me" and "Mommy drived me." In such cases logic is on the child's side but grammar is the judge. Little does the tot know that a day or two later he will still be having the same sort of troubles such as in deciding whether there is a "h" in "when" or "which," or whether there is, he should use that or "which."

For much older persons there is a field of experimentation in which might be called—if there must be a spotlighter name—the vocabulary experiment. If, for example, one refers to something as "delicious," is he not ready for something else as fun? Couldn't something be creepin? Or if an incident is extraordinarily rare as an exit, wouldn't a gress be singular? Questions which could be used for either purpose? Then there is the matter of pronunciation at that, but if one can receive and deceive, he ought to be able to succeed, they say, if usage puts undue restrictions on.

There is variant of this game with which might be regarded as a want of a better name—accordion of the neglected positive. The theory of certain things as being better, but describing most things as so uncommon (except perhaps among lawyers) as to sound quaint. The word uncouth often comes to the tongue, but never—only in poetry do words—couth. And what's the opposite of uncouth? If a man is disheveled, it would seem that, with strength, he might be couthe shaved. The same consideration might apply to loudest, and then one could speak of the clarity of a soiest child.

Still another experiment one might try if he feels his language has become trite is to switch from neglected positive words to neglected negative concepts. On all sides we hear assertions that higher morale is desirable, but it is inconceivable that a man might find it helpful at times to carry forward lower morale on the theory that it would feed the stimulation of challenge or discouragement? Even in a child. Similarly there might be room in the profession of "How to" books for a dissertation on How to Refrain from Saying Absolutely Nothing.

One way to enjoy yourself, then, is to experiment—which, in almost nothing, is to discover the number of words that are strange even to a person with a large positive vocabulary. The equipment for this is a desk, a pad of paper and a dictionary—preferable an unabridged one. Experiment is a lighter and also shows that even the restricted listing of English words goes far beyond the most formidable vocabulary. Then one can turn out the lights and idly flip the pages of the dictionary, and when it hits a page on which you know every word, the pages will be rare, even if you have to be satisfied by restricting it to words of not more than three syllables. Or, more exercise, for example, produces many words down the page. "dzod," "dzogpa-chen" and "dzo" be a variant of "dzod," which means to thump. Well!

Strictly Personal

Common Goal In One Tongue? Syd Doubts It

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

A furious, and terrific, argument was raging at a seminar I was conducting the other day between an advocate of an "international" language and a man who thought everybody in the world ought to be taught English.

Both these partisans were wrong, it seemed to me, in making the assumption that speaking a common language would give people a common goal. We are so blinded with envy by this modern age that we mistake the cause for the effect.

The worst wars, and the most deadly hostilities, have been between people who understood each other only too well. The bitterest civil wars, for example, spart at regular intervals; the Americans and Britishe fought with a bitterness unmatched in history. And the American Civil War was the most needless bloodfeud between brothers.

Communication, of course, is important, but the best and most effective communication is not verbal. When we say that someone "speaks our language" we do not mean that he utters the same symbols we do, but that his mind is shaped the way ours is, and his heart expands in the same direction.

In Italy, for instance, speaking little of the language, I found a greater rapport with people at my table than I did with many who sit across from me in the Parliamentary restaurant. Our minds and hearts vibrated together, and always there is words to communicate this attitude, no matter how crude or clumsy they might be.

No doubt all of us need to acquire a new attention to the use of words; they are tools which, if not kept sharp, are apt to be useless. But it is foolish and quixotic to think for a moment that if all the people spoke English or Esperanto or Swahili the world would be much closer to a solution of our deep problems. Most of our disagreements are not defects of understanding — we both "understanding" I mean that the minds and hearts have not stretched enough to appreciate the needs and hungers and aspirations of people who seem to be different from us.

No human relationship can jump this hurdle, but only the small, persistent, and quiet voice of man's developed conscience.

Brigitte's Formula

Canada, Cuba Share Worry

Cincinnati Enquirer

Two countries could hardly be more unlike than Cuba and Canada. But they have some things in common, and they are worth thinking. U.S. s to it has supported lavishly into both. And in widely varying degrees, both have developed similar attitudes in consequence. The same story in Cuba and Canada is familiar to everyone. But this is the first time I've heard it being told in the current growth of anti-U.S. feeling in Canada.

It is inconceivable that the Canadians would ever act as irresponsibly as Castro has done. Their growing resentment, indeed, could take the form of adverse reaction to the point where because of anti-American attitudes they'd be doing less business with than half of all Canadian industry is owned in the United States. Even in the Canadian Socialist Party, it also leads to the belief that foreign capital is too control of its own economy.

A second underlying factor is the general feeling that we've been very disappointing in respect to foreign policy. Canadians cannot help knowing that the United States and Canada are co-operating on the effective military and economic level. It has no real choice, in defense matters, but to do things to conform to American decisions and programs. It would like to represent the fact that they are consulted rarely and their wishes taken into account little if at all, rarely in connection with the decisions that affect them.

On the economic side, Canadians are especially troubled because many U.S. companies move into Canada for the purpose of extracting natural resources but ship those materials to the United States for processing and fabrication. Canada makes little from this. The processing that Canadians would prefer to do is largely in the United States.

Finally, there is a strong grievance that could be straightened out easily — the complaint that Canadians cannot buy shares in the American-owned enterprises in their own country, with a few exceptions. Of course, they can buy shares in the American corporations. But that is the hard way to acquire ownership of the plant and subsidiaries located in Canada.

Taken one by one, the trend continues, and a steadily larger majority of Canadian industries are owned by Americans, we may all well reconcile ourselves to pushing Canada around. And as Gilbert says, it just isn't normal for a nation of hard-working, skilful and energetic people to be satisfied with foreign ownership of most of their industrial system.

October 5th, 1940

Culminating an all-day hunt through the woodlands of Rawdon Township, a large 200-pound black bear was treed and then shot by R. B. Scott of College Street, early last evening on the farm of John Chisholm, four miles south of Belleville. The bear was first seen on the farm of Henry Farnham, near Carlton, early yesterday, but evaded a large posse of Provincial Police and game wardens until sundown. Investigation revealed that the bear was very old and thin from the lack of nourishment. Farmers believed the animal followed the banks of the Moira River until it was observed on the Farnham Farm early yesterday.

A unique record never before attained by a Belleville lawn bowling club was made by our lawn bowler was established by Clarence Cook of the local lawn bowling club this season. Mr. Clapp had the distinction of bowling for three successive championship teams of the Belleville Bowling Club, one for the year 1940. The club doubles, rinks and rink championship teams were all skipped by Mr. Clapp, a record of a believed that never before has been held by any Belleville lawn bowler, and perhaps not by any club member in the game. Clarence Clapp is far from a novice in lawn bowling, having taken up the game, made famous by Sir Francis Drake, in 1937.

SCOTT'S SCRAP BOOK

By R. J. SCOTT

To Your Good Health

By Joseph G. Molner, M.D.

PHYSICAL ACTIVITY AND FRESH AIR ARE BOTH NECESSARY

Exercise, fresh air, proper diet and adequate rest—these are the four basic ingredients of health.

However, as a man dedicated to public health, I naturally would be the last to minimize the benefits of the many other measures which have contributed to public health, namely, pure water, safe food supplies and control measures which have conquered smallpox, typhoid, rickets, scurvy.

But I'm speaking today of what individuals can do for themselves and for their children. Should we add one more, a good measure, without which means accepting the fact that life is good and that worry doesn't solve anything for us? Breathing fine. Fretting and fear, no.

Anyway, a letter which I have served up above has prompted me on the need for physical activity and fresh air, commenting:

"Dear Doctor: The health of your column read 'Too Much Sitting Is A Health Hazard.' At 40 years of age, my health is 100 percent better than it was 10 or 15 years ago. I have been exercising for the last four years.

"At 11-year-old daughter has always played outdoors daily, even when it was raining. She is the healthiest child within miles, and rarely has a cold.

"My neighbor, a nurse, is forever popping pills into her mouth and drinking coffee saying that they'll break bones if they are active outdoors. And she's always having colds and illnesses.

I hope you can educate the public on the merits of diet, exercise and positive thinking. Especially positive thinking of this physical inertia . . . this inertia!

Most people sit and wish for energy, when they should get up and create their own. —Mrs. O.W."

That says it. I wouldn't let a child get chilled, but keeping one wheeze there's fresh air, and well-dressed and reasonable temperature, is right.

You can't smother children in cotton wool. You can't make them healthy by stuffing pills in them. I can't see how anyone can change the principle I've followed for years. Never give medicine unless you know you are giving it for, what needs correcting.

There is no pill, no food, no wishful thinking that will take the place of exercise for anyone over 40. I don't mean that a soft, sedentary individual of 35 or 45 or 55 can go out and indulge in violent exercise. Exercise should suit both age and condition.

But you can't sit for weeks or months without having the physical tone of your body start to get rusty. The human body was designed for activity. It is no sure that our country doesn't try to substitute the easy chair for feet, because we can't travel very far as a nation just sitting.

As the English put it, England's bottles are won on the playing fields of Eton. Not bad, in a number of ways.

Note to Mrs. W.H.: "Hister tape, which usually cures at night without sweeping or pain, is just the same a most annoying type of twitching. The cause is not known — but sometimes reducing coffee drinking has helped, and much drugs as quinidine, quinidine and benadryl that are worth a try in your case, relief from a fact that knowing that muscle spasm may be a factor.

"Don't Quit Because of Arthritis" is the title of my leaflet designed to help all who suffer from aches and pains of arthritis. For a copy, write to Dr. Molner in care of The Belleville Ontario Times Syndicate, P.O. Box 126, Toronto. Please enclosing a long, self-addressed stamped envelope and five cents in coin to cover cost of handling.

Winnipegers Need 'Passes'

Winnipeg Tribune

In South Africa people are arrested for being on the streets after dark. Their books in Winnipeg people can be arrested for a similar offence if failure to have proof of identity.

Under a new amendment to the City Act, police in Winnipeg are given the power to arrest without warrant a pedestrian if he believes to have committed a traffic offence and who "fails to prove his identity or give security to the peace officer."

The police should not have the power to arrest a person without a warrant unless there is reasonable cause.

The police should not have the power to arrest a person without a warrant unless there is reasonable cause.

It may be argued that Winnipeg policemen are reasonable and will not abuse their new powers. So they may be. But the principle is wrong and we are so proud was not developed by trusting the police powers into the hands of the police.

It was developed by interpreting the law strictly and such things as arbitrary and summary arrest. And it is the very safeguards which the traffic by-law amendment is designed to evade.

It should be wiped off the books.

PADRE STARTS CRUSADE — Rev. Arthur Packman, a United Church minister from Stirling, starts his new career as a link between Christianity and public drinking places. How VON Helps Aged Patients

Care of the aged — especially those ill or helpless — is a growing problem in Canada. Here is an actual case history of how home nursing care by the VON helps solve this problem.

She was in her eighties and had been discharged from hospital following an operation for a broken hip. She was bedridden, confused, completely helpless, and with no family except her husband to look after her.

Knowing all this, her doctor nevertheless felt she would be better off at home. He arranged for the Victorian Order of Nurses to care for her. A hospital bed was obtained from the Red Cross Loan Cupboard.

When the VON nurse arrived at the patient's home she found an almost complete lack of convenience. Water had to be carried from a neighbor's well. The only bright spot was the patient's husband who was ready to help.

The VON Nurse showed him how to change his wife's position in bed, how to carry out many of the simpler sick room duties. He was a willing learner. He did the washing, prepared the food his wife asked for, helped the nurse at every opportunity. She also had his aid, especially because, like many elderly, sick people, her mind was often difficult and unco-operative.

KEEPS GOING

The husband also kept his little corner grocery store open for business.

During this period in bed the VON nurse bathed the patient regularly, exercised her arms and legs, took measures to prevent deformity and to maintain bodily functions.

Finally the day arrived when the patient was able to sit up in a chair. The next day, even when the patient was allowed to bear weight on her foot.

A wheelchair then came in handy as the elderly woman needed to sit in longer periods each day to regain her balance and cut down her periods of sleep.

Several months after she had come home, the patient's mental debilitation had reached the point where she could walk short distances with some support from her husband, and could be wheeled out of doors onto the verandah. She could eat her meals unassisted at the kitchen table and sit up most of the day.

She had come home helpless and discouraged but with the daily calls of the VON nurse and the devoted assistance of her husband, she had come a long way back on the road to health.

The Victorian Order of Nurses is a participating agency in the Belleville United Appeal.

Tenders Called For New OPP Building

Ontario Public Works Minister Ray Connell today called tenders for the construction of two District Headquarters buildings for the Ontario Provincial Police — one to be located at Belleville and the second at Cornwall. Cost is estimated at $500,000.

Strategically located the Belleville headquarters will serve No. 9 district, comprising the counties of Hastings, Prince Edward Lennox and Frontenac, while the Cornwall headquarters will administer to provincial police activities in Stormont, Grenville, Dundas and Glengarry area.

Both buildings will be similar in design to that now under construction at Burlington. The administration section will be two-storeys with full basement, brick walls and concrete floor slab and roof. The garage building is to be located at the rear with space for 14 cars, four repair stalls, washracks and storage facilities.

Niagara Falls, North Bay, Port Arthur and Barrie have headquarters buildings of this type already in operation. Erection of the two administrative centres at Belleville and Cornwall constitute a continuation of the long term plans for expansion of facilities for the Attorney-General's Department.

Striker Fined

OTTAWA (CP)—Striking electrician Steve Fusco was fined $50 Tuesday and ordered to pay $40 damage for slashing an electrician firm's truck tires, Magistrate Joachim Sauve warned that jail sentences will follow "if I have to consider any other cases of wilful damage."

No Reformer or Nuisance, Rev. A. Packman Just Wants To See Nice Beverage Rooms

TORONTO (CP) — A United Church minister has set up himself as the roving pastor of Toronto bar and beverage room patrons because he is convinced the beer parlor is one of the places to spread the Christian gospel.

But Rev. Arthur Packman does not intend "to be a nuisance" in bringing Christ to patrons of the city's taverns.

"I'm not going to preach or tackle anybody," said the 50-year-old minister who gave up his church at Stirling near Belleville to be pastor of the pubs.

"I'm not going to be an inspector of moral manners. Nor am I a reformer. . . I want to see nice beverage rooms. Right now they're a denial of our culture."

Monday night, wearing his clerical collar, Mr. Packman moved about beverage rooms and discussed problems with patrons as he drank with them.

Although he took the odd glass of beer, he limited his drinking to shandy, beer mixed with ginger ale. He moved from table to table and got customers to tell him their problems and why they drank.

One man, a Northern Ontario railway worker, told Mr. Packman he was an "extremely heavy drinker" because of misfortunes caused by troubles with his former wife.

A woman, who has had 11 operations in five years, told him that liquor was her tranquilizer and she dropped into bars for a drink twice a week "to relax and listen to the music."

Mr. Packman, who also has been pastor of some of the largest churches in London, justifies his break from the pulpit by recalling that Christ was often disdainful of the synagogue, at Chicago.

"You always found Christ in the streets where he was of most help," he said. "Right now, the church is not there.

"I want to do a good winter's work of it at least. And if somebody doesn't carry on from where I leave off, I think they're prejudiced morons.

He considers his first night in the beer parlors "gratifying."

"I found only two persons that but most were just having a social drink," he said.

I am convinced these places (beer parlors) are not dens of iniquity. There are as many Christians in the pubs as there are in a church—the only difference is the ones in the church have to sneak off afterwards to have a beer."

No Vaccination Against Disease

OTTAWA (CP) — A smallpox outbreak might become a menace if it occurred here because at least 45 per cent of the city's children aren't vaccinated against the disease, school medical officer Anna E. Sharpe said Tuesday. There are no signs that parents appear to have become careless, Dr. Sharpe suggested.

David Manners New President Of Council

As part of the opening ceremonies at Albert College, the installation of the officers of the Students' Council took place on Tuesday afternoon before an assembly of the students in Memorial chapel.

Rev. Dr. A. E. MacKenzie, Principal of the school, conducted the installation reminding the officers that their position was one of honor and responsibility which he hoped they would find interesting and profitable. The Principal expressed his willingness to be wheeled out of doors onto the verandah. She could eat her meals unassisted at the kitchen table and sit up most of the day.

She had come home helpless and discouraged but with the daily calls of the VON nurse and the devoted assistance of her husband, she had come a long way back on the road to health.

The Victorian Order of Nurses is a participating agency in the Belleville United Appeal.

Cleared by Jury

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Elmer J. Meister of Hamilton was cleared by a coroner's jury Tuesday night of blame in the Labor Day traffic death of Bernice Lecker, 18, of Detroit. Mr. Davies said he believed a car overtaking him forced Miss Imber's oncoming car off the road.

Voluntary Total Abstinence From Alcohol Use Advocated

TWEED — At a meeting of Belleville Presbytery of the United Church of Canada held at Tweed o nMonday much thought was given to the Church's attitude on the problem of beverage alcohol both in the report of General Council, recently held at Edmonton and in the reports of committees. The following resolution was passed without any recorded negative votes: "That this Presbytery put itself on record as strongly supporting thercommendation of the General Council made repeatedly, that in the matter of alcoholic beverages our members practice voluntary total abstinence as an ideal and program for action." In order to implement then, the following resolution originating in the Christian education committee was also passed: "Whereas the personal and social tragedies resulting from the intemperate use of beverage alcohol are increasing and should be a concern toeveryone responsible for the well being of people, we receive that this Presbytery: (a) give support to the Too Alpha program of the Ontario Temperance Federation; (b) make known to the constituents the results of the findings of the Alcohol Research Foundation; (c) embark upon a temperance education program in our youth groups, the Y.P.U., HiC, C.G.I.T. Sigmac and the Sunday School, emphasizing the safest and wisest policy of voluntary total abstinence."

At this same meeting of Presbytery, Miss eillen Stover of Yarker was received as an Impressive service, as a candidate for the ministry.

It was announced that 805 had registered for the annual Bay of Quinte Conference Men's Conference at Elim Lodge on October 14, 15, 16. And it is hoped that 80 Sunday School teachers from the Presbytery will spend thesame weekend at Camp Easter Training Centre, Picton, Ontario.

The request of Rev. Arthur Packman, D Ps., of Stirling, to be left without charge at his own request was granted.

It was proposed that a Senior Citizens' Home be built in the Belleville, Presbytery and in co-operation with other Protestant denominations. It was decided to investigate the need for such a Home.

SCOTT — VICKERS

On Saturday, September 3rd, a lovely wedding was solemnized in Bethel Church, Anglican Church, Belleville, by the rector of the church, the Rev. Canon A. S. Rowe, when Miss Gertrude Vickers of Belleville, daughter of Mr. L. V. Vickers, became the bride of Ronald William Scott, also of Belleville, son of Mrs. (Dr.) Ronald Scott. White and pink gladioli adorned the altar and white ribbon bows the guest pews.

The traditional wedding music was rendered by the church organist.

Given in marriage by her brother, Mr. Jack W. Vickers, of Chatham, the bride was radiant in her bridal gown of white peau de soie. The gown was fashioned with a fitted bodice with short tie-banded neckline and fitted sleeves finished over the hands. The floor-length veil with small gathered halo, fell from a shoulder-length veil with small white bow trimmed with pearls and white braid-wound pillbox crown, and carried a white prayer book studded with pearls, roses in shades of rose and pink with white and streamers.

Miss Thelma Robinson of Bellville, as maid of honour, was gowned in royal blue peau de soie in street-length, with small blue velvet hat in mixed blue shades, with white accessories, and carrying a cascade bouquet of white and pink carnations.

The bridegroom was attended by Mr. Lionel G. Downing, junior, brother of the bridegroom, as groomsman.

Guests were ushered by Messrs. Robert Pierson of Jordan, Ontario and Roger Lagacey of Belleville.

The reception was held in the banquet hall of Tabernacle United Church, Belleville, where the bride's table was daintily appointed with all white wedding cake, pale green flowered centre piece, holding green candles and the bridal bouquets. Baskets of multi-colored gladioli adorned the hall.

The guests were received by the bride's mother, wearing a navy blue gown with white accessories and corsage of pink carnations mingled with white Pinocchio mums. Assisting in the receiving line, was the bridegroom's mother, gowned in powder blue with corsage of pink roses and white Pinocchio mums.

For travelling to Northern Ontario, the Canadian National Exhibition and Niagara Peninsula, the bride chose a black suit with hat of flower petals in shades of rose and pink, and black-colored accessories.

Guests were present from Tweed; Trenton; Stirlerville; Stoney Creek; Jordan; Cobourg; Kingston and Toronto.

Previous to her marriage, the bride was honored by a pre-nuptial miscellaneous shower by members of the Northern Electric staff, at the home of Mrs. Harold Griffiths; and at a kitchen shower held by friends and neighbors at the home of Mrs. Harold Griffiths, in Jordan, Ontario.

Mr. and Mrs. Scott are residing at 49 Grier Street, Belleville.

150 Parents Attend Quinte H-S Assoc.

139 parents, anxious to discover what makes a teen-ager tick, attended classes at Quinte Secondary School Monday, at the School Association on Monday evening, and then went to the gymnasium where swarmed through the academic corridors and settled down for 12 minutes' stints in the different class rooms, to sit in the same seats and listen to the same teachers as their offspring — in the world of vice-principal Scarrow — to submit to such discipline as would be exercised by a third, fifth and fourth grader. "My idea of a kind, firm and judicious parent", argued Mr. Scarrow, "may be different from yours!"

MUSIC LESSON

The music lesson was the most fun. Teacher Miss Thrasher, pounds of effervescent personality, teaches practical and theory on a 9 to 1 basis. Her school choir conducts a girls' glee club and Miss Thrasher combines the classics with rock-'n-roll. This makes the teenagers tick musically and 20 of them, smart looking and gay school band uniforms, under direction of Mr. Ferguson Howe and the "Song of Victory", for the whole assembly and received hurricane applause.

The language department was also well attended although Teacher Craighead, who recently had a good time in Paris, could really have combined the classes with profit. He explained that, under the modern method of teaching pupils were speaking French in the classes he called it Comment allez-vous? if the less content de vous voir.

COMMERCIAL PART

Teacher Hayman explained commercial — one hundred words per minute in shorthand and two years and two weeks active work experience to graduate as part of the training. Options are so carefully worked out that a student may graduate from Grade 13 with a liberal arts course and thus be able to enter any of the professions if he should become a minister.

Guidance comes under teacher Mrs. Wright, who maintains the records of student activities, acts as counsellor and deals in personalities. "It is a good thing to work toward a goal", said Mr. Wright, "but there is more to some curriculum with teen-agers is shedding a veneer."

STUDENT PARLIAMENT

The student parliament (not to be confused with student council) held forth in room 22. Sherril Beaty, a real fast talker in a pretty red dress, elected prime minister by the blues and Lynne Brown, leader of the opposition, satisfied the parents that the coming generation would do a better job of world government.

It was an interesting evening and members became better acquainted over coffee and biscuits in the school cafeteria. It all goes with the fifty cent membership fee and membership chairman Mr. A. Crawley, received a rewarding response to the effective invitations sent out.

Principal Reid, introduced by Mr. M. Kerr, presented 26 cut of the 35 teachers to the assembly. Ten of them were women, including Mrs. Stokes, Mrs. Rowland, who courageously rides a bicycle to school, "School is only one session, not three as in Parliament", declared Mr. Reid, "but with its limitations on concentrated attention and regular homework every night in every subject." Mr. Reid chose a black suit with hat of flower petals in shades of rose and pink, and black-colored accessories.

Guests were present from Tweed; Trenton; Stirlerville; Stoney Creek; Jordan; Cobourg; Kingston and Toronto.

Previous to her marriage, the bride was honored by a pre-nuptial miscellaneous shower by members of the Northern Electric staff, at the home of Mrs. Harold Griffiths; and at a kitchen shower held by friends and neighbors at the home of Mrs. Harold Griffiths, in Jordan, Ontario.

Mr. and Mrs. Scott are residing at 49 Grier Street, Belleville.

The Experts Say
Must 'Sell' Homes to Men, Women Already Know Wants

By EDNA McAENEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP)—A man looks at a new house and wonders about construction and financing. His wife is interested in the conveniences it has to offer.

This is the opinion of Maurice Lamond, general sales manager of a large Toronto firm of realtors.

"Most women know as soon as they walk into a place whether or not they want it. It's the men who have to be sold."

The three main considerations in buying a house, he said, are whether the heating, sleeping and living areas are adequate for your needs.

OLD OR NEW?

The location should be considered for its proximity to employment, schools, shopping and transportation. Age and street with no through traffic is ideal for children.

Whether it's to be an old home or a new one is entirely a personal preference but Mr. Lamond listed some advantages and disadvantages of both.

An older home in an urban area offers indications of a neighborhood where "you know what you're going and what type of neighbors you have." Educational facilities are established and transportation and shopping are in existence.

Financing can be a problem because most lending institutions do not finance older homes to the same degree as new ones. If you're thinking of an older house you probably have to put up more cash payment. Financing of new homes can go as high as 80 per cent of the cost through NHA loans.

LATEST DESIGN

The obvious advantage of a new home is that all the materials, from the roof to the latest design and is equipped with the latest facilities, so you're not likely the roof will leak next year.

New subdivisions are usually populated with people of the same age group, with similar financial circumstances and so they are likely to become a social group.

The size of the house wanted is often dependent on the number of children. A one - storey bungalow is ideal for daily living as well as housekeeping and maintenance. One disadvantage, however, is the cramped proximity of the bedrooms where children sleep to the living area where parents might wish to entertain.

Two-storey homes provide more living space for the size of the ground with the section of recreational period on the theme, "Go And Seek".

Parents' Night Held by Queen Victoria H-S

A new feature has been added to Queen Victoria Home and School Association this year. The teachers were in their respective classrooms for a half-hour before the opening of the formal and School in the auditorium. Many parents took advantage of this opportunity to inspect their children's work and to meet their new teacher for this term.

At eight o'clock the parents were called to the auditorium, where the president, Mrs. J. Frith, welcomed the new parents as well as the old.

It was announced that there would be a skate sale later this month.

The president introduced Mrs. Watson, who spoke on the UNICEF program, which is related to the P.T.A. Home and School Association.

The staff members were introduced by Mr. Frink and the room count taken. The attendance awards were won by Mr. Frink's class for the senior division and Mrs. Newell's class for the junior division.

At this time Mr. Frink capably and humorously introduced his friend, Mr. J. M. Cousins, B.A., inspector of public schools who chose Psychology in Education as his topic. Mr. Cousins explained in detail the three principles of education, namely, motivation, capacity, persistence —giving excellent examples and explanations of each phase. He also recommended some books which he thought the school could buy, making them available to members.

The speaker was thanked for his informative chat by Mr. Frink.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. V. Zegle and her committee.

This - - - and That

By HARRIET STEVENS

While our athletes do their best for our country in the Olympics, another Canadian produces a hit in the backyard at the Squaw Valley Olympics, just for fun. That was the sweater worn by Canada's team — the huge bandaid fame and success of a knitting firm in Montreal. Hundreds of letters and orders for the pants poured into the offices of this company after the games in the United States. Since then the firm has been busy filling orders for large American department stores and for the general public.

The team sweaters for the games were made of one hundred per cent synthetic fibres; they were white and bulky and had trimming of the Olympic blue and red. The style featured a novelty neckline with a pointed collar that unbuttoned to reveal a contrasting lining and to form a separate headband. Before the style was accepted for the team, the sweaters had to be thoroughly wash - tested; the results were good — perfect, with a shrinking time of exactly fifteen minutes.

The man - made fibres go into the fur fabric production in a big way; some are from the furs and others are excellent substitutes for the real thing. The Kul-e-tuk parkas are popular in imitation furs, as are reversible sports coats and waistcoats — ideal for various age groups. For the small fry, pram suits feature the furry look in pink fabric shades. For the sophisticated shopper there are imitation mink, otter, beaver — shortage of time!

St. Julien Chapt. IODE Sponsors International Food Fair, Crafts

Monday afternoon and evening the I.O.D.E. Hall on Front street resembled a scene from the "Arabian Knights," with its wonderful display of the handicraft art, and cooking of Canada's New Canadians, sponsored by the St. Julien Chapter of the I.O.D.E. This is the first showing of what these new citizens have accomplished in skill and culture, bringing many contributions from all who attended this "International Food Fair," and which, incidentally, was also the 50th anniversary of the Chapter.

High-Crowned Hats Latest In Fashions for Women

By EDNA BLAKELY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Canadian women are going high hat.

The higher hat the better women seem to like it, says the buyer for one large department store.

Shops in many cities across the country are heavily stocked with high-crowned models and they're counting on several factors to stimulate hat sales. Among them:

One is that slick hair styles have replaced the bonbon and are conducive to hat-wearing. And some fashion experts say the return of the ladylike look generally should mean women will wear hats more often.

THREE SILHOUETTES

There is, of course, more to fall styles than the high hat. A preview showing in Montreal of a collection by Irene featured three silhouettes: one worn away from the face, another on or partially covering the forehead, and a third worn to the side and swiveling a bit to effect.

Colors were vibrant, with cherry, purple, plum-blues and deep greens. Many of the hats with white, taupe, brown, charcoal and black.

The fur hats shown were tailored, some trimmed in leather. Feather hats were bulky and furry-looking, created to complement tweed ranged from flat-surfaced velours to deep-pile.

Hats in satin with velvet designs in plaid, dots or whorls, were shown with fur coats.

FAR COST

An "ear cozy"—a miniature beret in velvet with fur trim—worn over one ear—was shown as the newest shape in cocktail millinery.

Toronto manufacturers predict there will be more to cocktail hats than the bits of fluff featured in the last few years.

Side draping which appears on many dresses for fall will appear again down the sides of hats.

Trim is generally at a minimum with the style dependent on the contour of the hat.

Exhibition furs are best sellers. Leopard material is popular and some leopard skins are shown with matching handbags.

Purple, a favorite color for autumn, is predicted in hat shape. Some models combine several shades of purple. Brown and gold are in vogue too.

Toronto designer Elsie Lexchin recommends wearing the new fur hats with tweeds and soft dresses rather than fur coats. Little hats made from osprey or ostrich feathers for cocktail parties and weddings as flattering and "men do like them," she says.

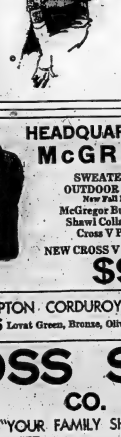
Carolyn Wagner Shaw

DON'T BE TOO EASILY HURT



To be considered a perfect lady, bask in Victorian days, one had to be sensitive to the slightest slur of fiction during that era were read prim pale, blushed and fainted at a thoughtless word or deed. Many a friendship and romance tottered while the delicate wound lady, her tempers mended in the quick by an unintended slight look refuge in her tiny lace hanky, or the ever-present smelling salts.

Thank goodness we moderns are made of sterner stuff! What's the sense of wearing your quivering feelings on the surface? Why be so easily hurt? But what's a mixed Think back carefully and see if you, too, haven't suffered from an occasional attack of wounded pride, even if the case is different, you say. But are you sure?

Let's analyze a few of the reasons that lead a person to resent slight. Absent-mindedness is one of the chief causes of hurt feelings. You may have probably been guilty of being inattentive yourself. You were so wrapped up in planning tonight's dinner that you barely saw Irene as she passed the grocery carry you in the market. You didn't mean to forget Susan's birthday but, in the excitement of getting Junior off to school, it went straight out of your mind. And on. So give your friends a break. The next time someone greets you coolly, remember that, in your heart and fancy, they may be many miles away!

Another reason for seeming to cut our friends is a state of mind that gets us all down at times. Whether you call it the dumps or the blues, or getting out of the wrong side of bed, it sometimes results in taking our ill temper out on others with consequent ruffled feelings on their part.

Now here's a nice comforting thought for you if you're one of those people whose feelings are hurt too often. You are probably more sensitive, more aware of people, and more appreciative than the average. Try making this sensitivity work for you instead of against you. Next time you have the feeling that you have been stepped on, speak up your mind not to hurt it against the person responsible for it. If the slight occurs again, then it may be time to ask for an explanation. Until then, give him the benefit of a great big doubt.

Ikalu Is A Fish

by Mary Moore

Inquisitive Canadians are enjoying a new treat. Its Eskimo name is Ikalu but the names we are going to know it by is Arctic char and it is a dilly.

Char can be cooked in most of the ways that fine fish is served. It is the first table delicacy to come out of the Canadian Arctic. Testing "trials" are hard to find nowadays.

Getting the char to you is the business of Eskimo fishermen at Probisher Bay in the Eastern Arctic and two Eskimo Fishermen's Co-operatives at Coop's River and Port Burwell in northern Quebec. In fact this summer they shipped out some 60,000 pounds to "southern" outlets, a record catch.

Dinner Menus

by Mary Moore

WEDNESDAY

Apple Juice; Broiled Beef Meat Cakes with Tomato Sauce; Baked Acorn Squash Halves; Chopped Spinach; Apple Tapioca with Hard Sauce; Tea.

The Department of Northern Affairs — who first introduced the Eskimo to the possibilities of commercial fishing, is providing technical help until they have enough experience to operate on their own and arranged to have the catch distributed by a Montreal fish-broker. The first shipment reached Montreal in late August and from there was distributed to fish-dealers in most large Canadian cities, and to New York, Boston, Chicago and Detroit. I paid $1.00 per pound but in some centres it may be $1.15 to $1.45 per pound.

In your own city char should be available through any good fish dealer, and at the best hotels, restaurants and clubs. If they cannot supply you and do not know where char can be obtained, I suggest that they write to The Industrial Division, Northern Affairs and National Resources, 150 Kent Street, Ottawa.

STEAMED ARCTIC CHAR WITH SAUCH TARTARE:

My Arctic char weighed 2 pounds dressed but with head and tail on. I had been told that it was a delightful combination of Pacific salmon and speckled trout. It does have lovely coral spots along its side but I thought it looked and tasted something like a fine-textured salmon trout.

I wrapped the whole fish in a piece sheet of cookery parchment, lowered it into a big kettle of boiling water, curving it a little to make it fit the pot, covered it and simmered it 40 minutes. To serve I unwrapped it and transferred it to a hot platter, with skin on. When Pete served it he lifted the flesh from the backbone quite easily and we passed Sauce Tartare: (I gave this to you on September 19th but will repeat it for the benefit of those who do not have the recipe.) To serve add to 3-4 cup stiff mayonnaise, 4 1-2 teaspoons each finely chopped chives, finely chopped stuffed olives and bottled green relish and 1 tablespoon lemon juice. Mix well. Serve with many types of steamed and fried fish.

Next time I serve it I will ask the fisherman to fillet it and I will broil it and tell you about that method, probably next week.

Student Can Trace Ancestry For Many Years

HANOVER, Ont. (CP)—Carol Kennedy, 17-year-old high school student, claims she can trace her ancestry through the Scottish house of Stewart back to the time of Alexander the Great.

An heirloom owned by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Kennedy, is a genealogical tree of the royal family of Scotland. It is believed to have been brought to Canada by Carol's great - great - great grandmother, Mrs. Donald Stewart, when she came from Scotland.

The family tree, printed in 1811, shows the royal family from about 323 BC to the 1790s.

The trunk of the tree consists of four circles depicting the various generations. The first and the largest circle represents a span of 540 years from Alexander the Great until after Julius Caesar.

The second tells of the abolition of the Druid religion and covers 220 years in which 13 kings reigned. The monarchy of Scotland in about 404 AD is described in the third circle.

Kenneth II subdued the Picts in 839 and became the first king of a united Scotland. This is illustrated in the last circle. From this time on branches begin to spread out in the tree.

"Crowns point out the kings and queens," say instructions on how to read the tree. "Two hands grasped with allied lines from them to their respective circles represent marriages."

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a women's editor and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actual case considered by the Council. Names of people have been used with the responsible agencies and counsellors.

Rita R: Bill punished Ted too severely.

Bill R.: He's getting too big to go around telling lies.

Rita R.: My husband and I are having a serious disagreement about handling our 10-year-old son, Teddy.

He has been telling a lot of lies recently. Some are about his big-shot exploits at school, others about something he'd like to have or does. When you question him you realize he has made it all up.

But the other day my husband Teddy telling a chum that his dad is an FBI man and always carries a gun. Bill just walked over and said, "Don't tell them that, Ted." Then he took him in the bedroom and spanked him. I feel that was too much on top of the disgrace of being showsup in front of his friends.

Bill R.: For a long time I've been doing things the way Rita says we should, telling Teddy that certain things just aren't so and letting it go at that. Mostly we have been pleased at how he'll soon grow out of this stage.

But now I'm beginning to think Teddy is getting too big for this kind of thing. We've got to put a stop to it. I've been coddling him too much and now he's getting fresh — giving us such comebacks as "You tell lies too. Remember when you told me to tell Aunt Ellen you weren't home and you were?"

Of course, I've been trying to make him see that is a white lie, but I haven't made much headway.

The Council: On the whole, children tell lies for the same reasons as adults — gratification and avoidance of threatening or uncomfortable situations. Very young children tell "lies" that are really fantasies. They don't know there is an important difference between what is real and what is imagined and parents have to point this out to them without making them feel there is anything wrong with imagining things.

A boy of Teddy's age, however, knows the difference between his dreams and reality and he is undoubtedly often disturbed by his own lies. He doesn't know why he tells them and is always worried about being found out. This is why understanding is of more value than punishment.

Parents may find a clue to what is troubling their children when the kind of lies that are told. The boy who constantly lies about how well he is doing in school for example is undoubtedly somewhat fearful of disappointing his parents in this respect. He should be encouraged to do his best, but not made to feel he is expected to live up to a very high standard.

In Ted's case, his lies seem to indicate that he is uneasy about his father as well as himself. Perhaps he feels his father isn't a very important person in home and since Dad is the man he must pattern himself after, he want to adjust the pattern a little more to his liking.

Psychologists and educators believe it is an excellent experience for youngsters to visit their fathers' offices or places of business. They should be shown just what Dad does to earn his money and why they are made very much aware of the fact that the family is solidly on Dad's pay-check as it does on Mom's cooking.

Urges Advisory Councils Aid Child With Problems

STE. ADELE, Que. (CP)—Establishment of local advisory councils to which school children with special problems could be sent by individual schools was supported Monday night at the Canadian Children's Conference.

Grace Dolmage of the University of British Columbia, one of several delegates making the proposal, said:

"A new approach to teacher training would be required to provide the teacher with the necessary knowledge and sensitivity to recognize problems as they arise."

She was speaking in a study session concerned with children aged between five and 14 years. It was one of a number run off Monday as delegates in this Laurentian resort town north of Montreal split into project groups during the five-day conference.

FEING FASHION COLOURS

Each council would be composed of leaders of the community, and representatives of professions and agencies concerned with the mental and physical welfare of children.

Members would be spiritual leaders, medical men, psychologists, social workers and educators — a comprehensive group qualified to study and alleviate problems and defects that might hinder a child's proper development.

Delegates felt that establishment of the council should be initiated by individual schools to ensure a close relationship with children involved and to provide for individual differences among children.

NOT ALWAYS GOOD

Dr. Mary Winspear, principal of Weston School in Montreal's Westmount district, said only under certain conditions was nursery school a good setting for a child preparing for school.

The child living in overcrowded or poor environments, for instance, would benefit.

The monolingual, and non-French - speaking child, who would learn either language in the spoken form there being no encountering it in written form in school, also would benefit.

When selecting potatoes, avoid those that are green, for they contain solanine. If you have a large family, it's best to buy them by the bushel, if you live in the city, as well as cheaper, it will save time.

Veteran Royal Commissioner J. Frank Glassco Will Head Inquiry of Govt. Operations

By JACK BENT
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP) — Towering J. Frank Glassco, 55, has been associated with royal commissions of one kind or another for many years. Now he is head czar of the most sweeping inquiries ever undertaken in Canada.

The forthright, silvery - haired Toronto business executive has been named chairman of a three-man commission that will examine the whole wide field of federal government operations. The study is expected to take two years.

Mr. Glassco, as executive vice-president of Brazilian Traction, Light and Power Co. Ltd., is a big wheel in the business world. Directing his investigating is the biggest of all in Canada, employing about 200,000 people with a monthly payroll of $60,000,000.

The inquiry has often been referred to as a Hoover-type commission, after the former U.S. president who carried out a broad study of American government administrative machinery.

NO WITCH HUNT

It will, indeed, be a vacuum cleaner job—a top-to-bottom review of government departments, agencies, boards and Crown corporations—culminating in recommendations for their improvement. The chairman emphasizes, however, that he and his associates will have no knives out.

"It will not be a witch hunt," said the six-foot-two, 210-pound chartered accountant in his room in a downtown Ottawa hotel, which will be home to him for a good part of the next two years. "It is not aimed at any particular element of the public service."

A businessman to the bone, he left no doubt, however, that he believes the government service will prove fruitful ground for substantive trio looking for instances of inefficiency and waste.

He has had wide experience with government operations, including wartime controllership of De Havilland Aircraft Co. which was taken over by the department of munitions and supply to manufacture Mosquito bombers.

HIGH INTEREST

And he confesses to holding a higher opinion of public service than some who deal with them so well . . . I often wonder, in fact, how we manage to keep some of them." But, he adds:

"I would be amazed if one could not come up with recommendations which would have the effect of bettering the lot of the civil service and producing a better average performance . . .

"I am quite sure there are things in this system which have grown like Topsy since Confederation, that must be susceptible of improvement."

The California-born chairman will be assisted by an old hand at sniffing out irregularities and inefficiency in government, retired auditor - general Watson Sellar, 66. They are old friends and kindred spirits, with a habit of saying precisely what they think.

SEVEN AIMS

Mr. Sellar's annual reports to Parliament were sprinkled with warnings about departmental budget - padding and spending habits.

Third member of the commission is P. Eugene Therrien, 45, senior partner in the Montreal law firm of Therrien and Coderre and president of Caisse Populaire d'Ecomomie, an insurance company.

The order-in-council setting up the commission called for recommendations to achieve seven specific purposes having to do with sound economy and efficiency. Mr. Glassco has a more succinct way of stating the commission's terms of reference:

"It is a serious, fairly intensive inquiry into the manner in which the public business is being conducted. It is aimed at eliminating extravagance, overlapping and duplication of services."

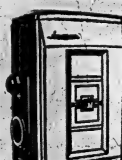
FAMILIAR FIELD

Mr. Glassco has been associated with five royal commissions, either directly or through accounting clients called as witnesses. The only one he headed was a supersecret wartime inquiry into irregularities in the U.S.-Canadian uranium in the U.S. Manhattan Project which developed the first atomic bomb. He tracked down the source of the trouble—which turned out to be one of the Americans end—in what he terms a "cloak-and-dagger" operation.

Some years ago, when he was with the Toronto accounting firm of Clarkson, Gordon and Company, his partner, Walter Gordon, was named chairman of the royal commission on Canada's economic prospects.

When he retired from public accounting 3½ years ago to become executive vice-president of Brazilian Traction after being the company's financial adviser for 16 years, Mr. Glassco had barely stepped into his new job when his boss, Henry Borden, was chosen to head a commission on natural energy resources.

INFORMAL APPROACH



Mr. Glassco was born in Los Angeles of Canadian parents and moved at an early age to Winnipeg, where he grew up—"I suppose in that sense I am a Westerner." He went to McGill and spent a year at the Sorbonne before joining the Montreal accounting firm, McDonald, Currie and Co. in the mid-1930s.

He is married to the former Willa Price of Quebec City, and they have four grown children—two girls and two boys. In his younger days he played hockey and football. His hobbies are sailing, collecting, fishing and farming.

Regarding the kind of inquiry he will conduct, Mr. Glassco says: "I would think the less formality there is, the easier it will be to do the job." He expects that most of the work will be carried out right in Ottawa, with public servants themselves being the chief witnesses.

He does not see the need for extensive public hearings, but emphasizes that the public is "welcome as the flowers in May" to present its views.

For First Time in History 2 Women Are Contesting Seat in Senate For Maine

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON (CP) — The daughter of a one-time Canadian fisherman is challenging the queen of American women politicians for a prized U.S. Senate seat in the country's first Senate battle between women.

She is pert Lucia Marie Cormier, who is running against silver-haired Margaret Chase Smith, veteran Republican senator, in the Nov. 8 U.S. general election.

Mrs. Smith, the only representative of her sex in the 100-seat chamber, is a quarter-century of political wars always faced male opponents. And she has always managed to win.

BATTLE AHEAD

Now is the potato-and-tourist state of Maine, bordering on Quebec and New Brunswick, the Democrats have decided to pit a woman against her. And Mrs. Smith admits she faces an able foe — the best the Democrats could have found.

But that doesn't make the battle any easier for blue Cormier, 48-year-old spinster who breezed into a Democratic meeting in 1945 just to pass the evening and found herself on the road to the Maine legislature where she's now minority leader.

The 62-year-old Mrs. Smith, who challenged such Goliaths as the late senator Joseph McCarthy, has built up an enviable reputation as federal legislator and a powerful political structure among the farmers and merchants of Maine. Some veteran observers suggest it would take an atomic explosion to dislodge her.

The eldest of six children born to a barber in the Maine community of Skowhegan, Mrs. Smith has something in common with Miss Cormier. Both taught school for low pay; both experienced economic hardship.

Mrs. Smith worked as store clerk, telephone operator and weekly newspaper and woollen mill business office manager before she married Republican leader Clyde H. Smith in 1930. He was 23 years her senior.

SELDOM SPEAKS

In 1936, Smith won a seat in Congress and Mrs. Smith went to Washington as his executive secretary. Four years later he died and Mrs. Smith took over his seat, holding it until 1948 when she switched to the Senate and captured a seat there. She rarely makes a senate speech but when she does, it's usually fireworks, such as the time in 1950 when she struck out against McCarthy.

Miss Cormier is one of three children born to a paper mill foreman/fitter in the Maine town of Rumford, some 60 miles north of Portland. In his youth, her father, David, fished for lobster near Cocagne, on the east coast of New Brunswick. Her mother Adele, lived at another New Brunswick village, St. Antoine de Kent. Both were French-speaking Roman Catholics.

In 1900, David moved to Rumford and became chief steamfitter for a paper mill. A year later Adele joined him. New Brunswick and Quebec provided a lot of the northern Maine stock, as well as other parts of the New England states, particularly New Hampshire.

TEACHER TO LEADER

Fluent in English and French Lucia received more formal education than Mrs. Smith, graduating from St. Elizabeth's College in Morristown, N.J., and obtaining a master's degree in French from Columbia University. She returned to teach French and Spanish at a Rumford high school, but that didn't pay well enough and she finally opened a book and stationery store there which she still runs.

Miss Cormier has her father's love for fishing and lobstering and other outdoor sports. While teaching languages at high school she also coached the girls' softball team. She also loves cooking and still does the housekeeping for her aged and widowed father in an eight-roomed Rumford house.

One night in 1945 she dropped in at a Rumford Democratic committee meeting. Within a year she was elected to the Maine House of Representatives and last year became the party's minority leader in the legislature. She tried for a congressional seat a decade ago but was beaten.

Traditionally, Maine was a Republican stronghold but times have changed and in recent years the stronghold has been broken. One of the states two senators is a Democrat and so are two of the three congressmen. This Lucia may have a chance but Margaret doesn't seem to be in a panic.

While Lucia started off like a neophyte, on a folksy, handshaking campaign of the hustings, Margaret was still in her Washington office mapping out her strategy. In mid-September she was asked about her plans.

"I'm not ready to talk about my campaign," she replied—and this just seven weeks before election day.

DISAPPEARING ACT

LONDON (CP)—A woman giving evidence in a suburban Wimbledon court suddenly disappeared from view behind the witness box. Her stiletto-heeled shoes had gone through a crack in the floor boards.

ELECTION OPPONENTS

Republican Senator Margaret Chase Smith, 62 (upper photo) is opposed by Lucia Marie Cormier, 48, daughter of a former New Brunswick fisherman, in the first U.S Senate contest between women. Mrs. Smith, seeking her third term as senator from Maine in the November 8 election, has been the only woman in the 100-seat senate since 1948. (CP from AP).

Lost First Heat In Egg Eating Because of Rest

Brisbane, Australia (AP) Because he sat back and rested after eating 41 hen eggs in 20 minutes, Giuseppe Settetrombe lost the first heat of the Queensland egg eating championship to slower eater Eddie Egan.

Egan, after earlier breakfasting on four eggs, won the heat of demolishing 43 eggs, 10 poached, 33 scrambled in 30 minutes.

The contest was organized by the egg marketing board to boost the sale of eggs.

Settetrombe, who came from Sicily in 1957, ate most of his eggs raw but 10 were scrambled.

He will be allowed to compete in the final because of his language difficulty. He misunderstood the contest rules which do not allow any pause in eating.

Average Chinese on Trains Seldom Appear Overeager To Talk With Europeans

Ezzald Farquhar, who has completed a 21-month assignment as Eastern correspondent in Peking, describes Chinese life as seen on a long-distance train, with glimpses of the Russian & foreigner seldom seen.

By RONALD FARQUHAR

ANSHAN, China (Reuter)—Train travel in Communist China gives an isolated foreigner one of his few opportunities to get a closeup glimpse of the Chinese, their country and their ways.

Average Chinese generally seem to regard Europeans with mingled puzzlement, curiosity and amusement. They seldom appear overeager to meet or talk with them.

At official meetings, or on guided tours, foreigners usually find them courteous, friendly and affable but, as in other countries, consciously behaving correctly and saying the right things.

However, when a lone European sets out on a long railroad journey on a train full of Chinese, some of the "barriers" come down.

GIRLS SELL TEA

If you know a few words of Chinese, fellow-passengers soon become quite talkative. Their first assumption on seeing any European is usually that he is a Russian. But they become no less friendly when they discover that he comes from a "bourgeois-imperialist" state such as Britain.

A train attendant, a smiling, bare-arm girl with pigtails, brings a vacuum flask of water into the compartment and sells small packets of tea to the passengers at two Chinese cents (about eighteenth of a Canadian cent).

A policeman in white jacket and armed with a revolver and a Sam Browne belt occasionally swats a fly, inspects your travel documents—foreigners need permission to travel outside Peking—shrugs again, swats another fly, and leaves.

The girl attendants, sometimes in blue uniforms, sometimes in white, begin a constant war against any surviving flies during the journey — when they are not washing floors or corridors, or topping up vacuum flasks with hot water.

PROPAGANDA CONTINUES

Sleeping cars on the train have four fairly comfortable bunks with sheets and blankets, two each side of the compartment, one above the other.

This is a "soft-seat" coach—the Chinese equivalent of first class. It is more expensive than the "hard-seat" coaches in which most Chinese passengers travel, sitting on straight-backed wooden seats.

Loudspeakers in every compartment, controlled from a central radio room on the train, keep up a constant blare of martial music, propaganda studded with warnings about the evils of American imperialism and the need to liberate Formosa, Chinese folk songs, news bulletins and excerpts from operas.

Dining car chefs do their best to cater to foreigners' tastes when they know that they like some aboard. But meals for Chinese are usually modest — a heaped bowl of coarse, brown-looking rice and a dish of noodles make a typical meal.

FLEETING SCENES

Through the train window you catch fascinating glimpses of the China a foreigner seldom sees:

Ox-gan with a rope around his shoulder straining forward and hauling a small barge through a network of irrigation canals and lakes.

Peasants of the people's militia, cycling home along narrow footpaths between farm fields with rifles and bayonets slung across their shoulders.

Women children splashing and shouting in a muddy stream.

Horses spelled out on hillsides in white stones—"Long live Mao Tse-tung," "Long Live Marxism-Leninism."

Peasant men and women in round, pointed, straw hats and towelled turbans in paddyfields around villages with red-brown mud and brick walls.

Wooden plows drawn by oxen, and processions of men moving in a shuffling trot with carrying-poles across their shoulders.

It all goes past like a travelogue film.

WINTER AHEAD — Except for warm weather on the east and west coasts, most of Canada will have below-normal temperatures during October according to the 30-day outlook of the United States weather bureau.

Maps show predicted temperatures and precipitation across the country for the month. Tables give normal readings for various centres.

These maps are based on predictions of the weather office which says its monthly outlook is not a specific forecast and that a change in weather pattern may produce major errors. (CP Newsmap.)

BUILDING SLUMP

TRETFORD MINES, Que. (CP) — A construction slump in this Eastern Township's mining centre was illustrated by the report that by Aug. 31 the eight-month total of building permits was 31, valued at $276,000. For the same period last year there were 100 permits worth $2,135,380.

4th Sidney

4th SIDNEY — A pot luck dinner was held in the hall on Wednesday under the auspices of the Women's Association. The pupils of S. S. No. 13 with their teacher, Mrs. D. Clare were also present. Miss Jewel Pentecost expressed the thanks of those present for a delicious hot dinner.

In the afternoon, Mrs. G. Evans presided over a Women's Association meeting. Several readings were given by members after the worship service. A welcome was extended Mrs. Robert Hall of Belleville, and Mrs. Earl Detlor.

A few traditional items were discussed, a committee appointed to meet with the trustee board to approve the building of an addition to the church.

Mrs. T. Twiss, Women's Association representative on the Community Centre Association is to have the hall booked, the date for the banner was set for November 17 and a few other discussions held.

Mrs. W. McMullin was in charge of the Women's mission study meeting which followed the worship service. Mrs. McMullin and Mrs. H. Gray took part in a debate which introduced the study book, "Turning World".

A short business period was held. It was decided to enter for "Open House" to be held at the parsonage on November 15th.

The Women's Missionary Society rally will be held at Wallbridge Church on November 5th.

Time for Fresh, Adventurous Thinking on Unemployment Canadian Chamber Told

By FORBES REUDE
Canadian Press Business Editor

CALGARY (CP) — This is a time for fresh and adventurous thinking on unemployment, Mitchell W. Sharp of Toronto told the Canadian Chamber of Commerce Tuesday.

The problem, said the vice-president of Brazilian Traction, Light and Power Company, Limited, is unprecedented in peacetime history. He advised businessmen to avoid reiterating well - worn clichés.

"I do not think," he added, "that it will be good enough to take the view that, given half a chance, private enterprise can provide jobs for everyone who wants to work. Nor do I think it will be good enough to reiterate the view that the less government does, the better.

"In Canada we have a mixed economy—not a free - enterprise economy. The best guarantee that this country will progress as it should is that business and government recognize their respective responsibilities.

"This involves a recognition by government that the private sector of the economy must play its part in providing jobs within it and a recognition by business that the Canadian people will not tolerate unemployed workers, serious recessions and the continuing failure to exploit our resources fully.

"Canada is truly living on borrowed money and borrowed time. Reasonable people in this country regard automobiles, driving licences and paved road to the national poor-house."

Mr. Sharp commented that Canada was experiencing a boom with record employment, and assets.

"Would anyone have imagined that in a year of record exports and investment, unemployment would reach nearly five per cent of the labour force in midsummer and before the industrial year is likely to exceed 10 per cent?"

He described the present approach to unemployment as "a haphazard and too limited and added:

"The approach is to try to offset unemployment in isolation with fiscal and monetary policies of the main weapons. Unemployment will be dealt with as a cyclical problem."

He said it is important to discover who are the unemployed and why they are unemployed, and the Senate committee might help provide some answers.

DIFFER ON TARIFFS

On at least one topic—tariffs—the speakers presented a wide range of views. Mr. Sharp said:

"I am inclined to the view that those who argue against increased protection have the better intellectual case, but my conviction is even stronger that under existing circumstances it would be a mistake to move sharply and drastically either free trade or increased protection."

Mr. Sargent said:

"The growth of manufacturing industry in Canada has been prohibited because there is a strong superficial attachment to the 'buy-of-goods' trade. This is especially prevalent among civil servants and professional groups. This sentiment sometimes appears to be primary-resource oriented. Rail firms and public utilities. It is like being in favor of heaven and against sin."

Mr. Cryne said:

"Protectionist back their demand for tariff walls on the claim that manufacturing industries employ one in every four individuals in the Canadian workforce—more than agriculture, mining, fishing, forestry and construction combined. From this alleged numerical superiority is drawn the fallacious deduction that the interests of manufacturers are that much more important.

"The assumption ignores the fact that secondary and service industries in Canada owe their existence to the primary industries . . .

DERIDES PROTECTION

"When protectionists talk about the manufacturing industries of Canada deserving tariffs because they employ more people than the primary industries, they are including in their classification all manufacturing industries and workers who are actively engaged in manufacturing only for export and whose jobs are not in the least threatened by imports. The pulp and paper industry, for instance, is included as a manufacturing industry, but any increase in Canadian tariffs would be decidedly detrimental to its interests.

"I do not believe that more than one-fifth of the Canadian work force is engaged in that activity in manufacturing which could conceivably derive short-term benefits from protection."

The Annual and presumably automatic round of wage increases, Mr. Cryne continued, is the greatest and least - talked problem of Canadian economy today. One can only speculate, he added, on how many in the ranks of organized labor realize that the annual wage increase is a cause of unemployment.

Commenting on Canada's economic position in world markets, Mr. Cryne declared:

"We must stop worsening our position immediately. The chief responsibility lies with our labor leaders. They have gained great power, and if it remains to be seen whether they will use that power as statesmen or demagogues."

Mr. Rapsey said primary industries are a valuable contributors to the national income "but they do not exercise enough thinking they can ever support our present population, much less our growing population."

SEES DANGER AHEAD

Referring to Canada's big deficit in the balance of international payments, Mr. Rapsey commented:

"Canada is truly living on borrowed money and borrowed time. Reasonable people in this country regard automobiles, driving licences and paved road to the national poor-house."

Mr. Sharp commented that Canada was experiencing a boom with record employment, and assets.

"Would anyone have imagined that in a year of record exports and investment, unemployment would reach nearly five per cent of the labor force in midsummer and before the industrial year is likely to exceed 10 per cent?"

He described the present approach to unemployment as "a haphazard and too limited and added:

"The approach is to try to offset unemployment in isolation with fiscal and monetary policies of the main weapons. Unemployment will be dealt with as a cyclical problem."

He said it is important to discover who are the unemployed and why they are unemployed, and the Senate committee might help provide some answers.

NEEDS MORE SAVING

Perhaps part of the answer, Mr. Sharp continued, may lie in the composition of those who are employed; and perhaps the answer may lie in a direct attack on depressed areas and regional pockets of unemployment.

"Canada's secondary industry required study, and not just as a reflection of tariff walls. Suggestions for helping secondary industries which will simplify investing if disclosed such things as subsidies, tax remissions and concentration of purchases.

Some of the suggestions underscored by audience reaction, he none should be rejected without careful examination.

Welland Council Will Be Asked Certain Questions

WELLAND (CP) — Crowland Township council, at a six emergency meeting Tuesday night, decided that Welland councillors be asked to discuss with them "urgent questions" arising from Tuesday's annexation decision.

The Ontario municipal board ruled that the urban section of Crowland Township — 4,000 persons and 14,000 acres — be joined to the city of Welland next year. Parts of Thorold, Humberstone and Pelham Township were included in the order.

"As individuals we do not agree with the decision," said Reeve Mildred Bernecki. "Unfortunately the only appeal is by notice of objection of ratepayers to the provincial cabinet."

Reeve Perenack's statement, read following Tuesday night's meeting, said that before recommending such an objection, action must receive the tried.

"We propose to ask the Welland councillors to discuss with us the urgent questions which have arisen and before if the uncertainties to proceed," he said. Such questions include representation on the enlarged city, the settling up of wards and how the absorption will take place.

"We feel there will be co-operation. If our confidence is justified there will be little advantage in proceeding with objections to the board."

Previously it had been believed that the Crowland council was also fight the annexation order, which came despite a 70-per-cent negative vote by Crowland citizens.

Sworn Testimony Of Defendant To Be Accepted

TORONTO (CP) — Attorney-General Keiso Roberts Tuesday proposed a change in divorce court practice which will be sent to Ontario rules committee for study.

The attorney-general, at a special session of the house at the legislative buildings, said the change would admit the sworn testimony of the defendant in a divorce case as proof of adultery.

At present the practice, as laid down by the rules committee, requires corroborative evidence. "But it is possible for the committee to make a considerable change in practice without change in legislation."

The rules committee is the body which established Ontario court practice and is composed of judges and high department of justice officials headed by the chief justice of Ontario.

"We are not looking for practices which will simplify getting of divorces," Mr. Roberts said. "But any practices which will prevent the administration of justice from being dragged into the mire."

He did not think the change in practice would lead to collusive divorces, because the defendant would be put in the witness box and would not be in a position to name non-existent correspondents.

WANT WORKSHOP

OTTAWA (CP) — Representatives of 18 service organizations agreed at a meeting here Monday that a national workshop was desirable. The workshop would meet annually to consider problems and needs in the recreation and leisure-time activities of Canadians.

Chinese Pedicabs Equipped With Electricity Helping To Ease Transport Problem

Ronald Farquhar, who has completed a 11-month assignment as Eastern correspondent for Reuters, sends in this article how ancient methods and primitive machines are being used alongside modern equipment to achieve China's "great leap forward."

By RONALD FARQUHAR

SHENYANG (Reuters) — Electricity is pulling new life into the pedicab, China's tricycle taxi and jacked-all-jobs, in a bid to ease the country's pressing transport problems.

Electric motors, powered by ordinary 12-volt batteries, now drive hundreds of these once pedal-propelled vehicles through the streets of Shenyang (formerly Mukden), the busy industrial city in the north-eastern region formerly known as Manchuria.

The new source of power enables the pedicabs to carry loads of up to about 1,100 pounds on their platforms and pulling fitted behind the saddle—a much bigger load than one pedalling driver can haul.

The batteries can keep the motor running for eight hours. Then they have to be changed and recharged.

PART OF "GREAT LEAP"

The pedicab, sometimes called in Britain, and formerly known as a passenger - carrying vehicle—half bicycle and half-rickshaw. But since China started the economic "great leap forward" in 1958 almost all of them have been supplied with the modern motor.

Now it has been decided that pedicabs can be converted to carry goods.

The increasing demands of rapidly - expanding industry for raw materials and industrial goods and the need to keep towns supplied with food and daily necessities is straining China's limited transport system to the breaking point.

New highways and railways are under construction and China has its own automobile manufacturing plant at Changchun, also in the northeast, where five — ton trucks are produced.

All these are helping to ease the burden. But the final solution is still a long way off. For the present, the emphasis is on utilizing fully all forms of transport. No matter how simple and primitive it is.

PROGRESS SLOW

It is common to see in a factory or on a city street gangs of 10 or more perspiring men—and sometimes women — with ropes slung over their shoulders, their bodies straining forward, hauling a cart laden with heavy machinery, timber, earthenware pipes, or iron and steel rods.

In one small town in Honan province, in north-central China, scarcely scores of men dragging handcarts laden with coal and iron ore across a sun-scorched field to a battery of small blast furnaces a mile or more away.

There must have been at least 100 of them trekking all day back and forth in two single columns, all wearing pedicab-shaped sun hats, some stripped to the waist.

Nearby, sheltering from the midday, when the blazing sun-rays are at its fiercest.

In the countryside, too, where the Chinese are aiming at substantially mechanizing agriculture by 1969, the primitive carrying pole is still widely used. This is a long, slim pole, carried on the shoulder, with loads suspended from either end.

Roads in the countryside are primitive and sometimes almost non-existent.

Discriminatory Taxes Said Preventing U.S. Pension Funds Use in Canada

TORONTO (CP) — Discriminatory taxes are preventing millions of dollars in development capital available from U.S. pension funds from entering Canada, Financier Frederick Yarmon told a conference Tuesday.

Mr. Yarmon, speaking at a press conference, called on the Canadian Association of Real Estate Boards which is meeting here to urge the federal government to give equality to the Canadian dollar loans of U.S. pension funds.

He said Canadians "are forced to pay penalties which prohibit policies to borrow U.S. dollars when seeking risk financing for realty purchases and projects."

He told the conference the government imposes a 15-per-cent withholding tax on interest paid abroad in Canadian dollars while interest on loans in U.S. dollars are tax free. "Canadian dollar U.S. funds bear a lower interest rate than those in Canadian currency."

MILLIONS FROZEN OUT

"Hundreds of millions of dollars in mortgage financing for Canada's development are frozen out because many Canadians who would have to pay a premium for borrowing in Canadian currency are unwilling to borrow U.S. dollars and assume the risk of exchange fluctuations on the Canadian dollar," he said.

Joseph Tashoor, chairman of Tashoor Yarmon, said the plan, U.S. pension funds whose assets total more than $47,000,000,000, are generally willing to buy Canadian dollars and lend them in Canada.

"But," he said, "the provisions of the Canada-U.S. tax convention impose this 15-per-cent discrimination on Canadian dollar loans."

Mr. Tashoor said a minimum of $200,000,000 annually in mortgage and industrial issues is financing would be added to the Canadian economy by eliminating the withholding tax.

HAILS INSPECTION

"The most important characteristic of the U.S. pension funds is that they are prudent investivities exercise absolutely no control of the Canadian economy."

In other business Tuesday B. B. Willoughby of Toronto was elected president of the Canadian Institute of Realtors.

At another meeting delegates voted to form a province Canadian chapter of the International Real Estate Federation. The chapter, of which Bert Kirk, of Ottawa, was elected president, must still be approved by the executive committee of CAREB.

Claims Cattle Drowned Used For Eating

QUEBEC (CP) — There is "sound reason" to believe many Ontario beef cattle have died before reaching slaughter houses, the food committee of the Canada-Ontario economic conference reported Tuesday.

The committee told the annual meeting that the situation may exist in other parts of the country, too.

An association spokesman said he personally knew of cases where cattle drowned in floods had been cut up for eating. He said cases such as these are a "matter of real concern" to health authorities and the association.

The committee said that many unscrupulous practices are used to deceive consumers, "even as possible as layer of meat from an inspected company on the carcass of each load of suspected meat."

It recommended more inspection at the provincial level.

The committee had sought a different style of butter coloring that would allow the buyer to get a better look at the meat inside. But the question was at a standstill "due partly to the reluctance on the part of the packers to concede that the consumer should have the right to see representative slice in each package.

The committee says that some 35,000,000 pounds of butter substitutes will be sold this year in Ontario. Because of this sale of margarine is illegal in the province. The report said: "There are no standards for its sale and little control of sanitary conditions for its manufacture.

Closing Dates For Christmas Mail Given

OTTAWA (CP)—Army head quarters Tuesday announced the closing dates for Christmas mail addressed to members of the Canadian armed forces serving overseas.

Letters by service aircraft to the United Kingdom, Europe, the Middle East and the Congo must be posted at least three days before noon Dec. 12. Parcel post to these areas must be posted to be in Montreal by Nov. 18.

Ordinary air mail letters with the Army Overseas Christmas mail must reach Montreal by Dec. 15 with an advance of nine days needed on air parcel post deliveries.

Special airlifts by the RCAF have been arranged for parcel shipment to Indochina. Parcel letters and parcel post dispatched by surface mail must be posted before Oct. 15. Ordinary air mail letters and parcels for the Canal Zone and Far East via Box 220 in Saigon must be posted not later than Nov. 30.

Mail for ships at sea should be taken to see that all mail for troops overseas is forwarded as dressed and fully prepaid at the authorized postage rates. A customs declaration must be completed and affixed to all parcel post.

TITO DISAPPOINTED

NEW YORK (AP)—President Tito of Yugoslavia sailed for home Tuesday, declaring he felt concern because "the atmosphere of the cold war has been intensified." As he departed the United Nations General Assembly, Tito said he left in a less optimistic mood than he arrived.

Cheaper Drugs Often Better Than Expensive Ones Says U of T Professor at Inquiry

TORONTO (CP)—Two University of Toronto specialists disagreed about drug costs in testimony Tuesday before the provincial legislature's select committee on drug prices.

Dr. Ian Macdonald, director of U of T's post-graduate medical studies, said some drugs super for to others in the same pharmaceutical category are as much as 30 times cheaper in price.

Horace J. Fuller, professor of pharmacy administration at U of T., defended the rising costs of drugs and claimed a recent United States hearing on drug prices as "manufacturers being pilloried for political purposes."

Dr. Macdonald also claimed drug firms spend millions on "tremendous influence" with physicians and dentists. This often succumb to patient's demands to be treated with popular brand names. More doctors were tending to order drugs by their generic names. Antibiotic drugs were often prescribed unnecessarily in large quantities.

CHEAP ONES MAY BE BEST

Of new drugs, he said: "Some are better than the old ones and the rest fulfill an urgent need." Of aspirin, one of the tablets, it is human nature to assume that a 50-cent price for the same number and quality of tablets is inferior. Not so . . . Cheaper drugs are often better than expensive ones."

Dr. Macdonald said the university's faculty of pharmacy is examining the question of prescribing drugs by their generic names to reduce costs. The study so far indicates fewer generic name prescriptions than expected would be cheaper.

Mr. Fuller's brief submission crammed with statistical data, he said secretary of clothing, shoe and furniture stores "receive a larger compensation from society for their services than the pharmacist with his scientific and professional four years of university training."

He said the price of drugs is not advanced proportionately beyond the inflated prices of other goods.

SEES INCREASE

An increase in dental fees is probable in the near future, Dr. E. A. White, president of the Ontario Dental Association, told the committee.

He said a fee schedule prepared in 1958 is being revised. Asked if the committee could see the schedule, Dr. White said it was for dentists only and would not help the committee since drug costs are not included in it. The committee did not insist.

Dr. Macdonald pointed out use minute amounts of drugs in normal practice. He said the average dentist buys only $50 to $150 worth of drugs a year and that doctors spend a fraction of drug purchases in many cases because the details are left to their technicians tax.

H. J. Fuller, professor of pharmacology at the University of Toronto, estimated the average family spends $25 a year on drugs. This was one sixth of the cost of tobacco products and one-eighth of the liquor money.

Worst Concentrated Period Of Violence Seen in Montreal

MONTREAL (CP) — Quebec's nine slayings in 72 hours add up to one of the most concentrated periods of violence in police memory.

Provincial and municipal homicide squads are investigating eight of the deaths. One charge of manslaughter has been laid in another.

The slayings occurred in the greater Montreal area. Two men died in a fire that swept a shack in a Quebec's Eastern Townships.

Police said a car found abandoned may have been used by the killer of Mrs. Christina Skrypec. Her body behind an apartment block in suburban St. Leonard.

BLAME GANGLAND

Police said there was every indication that gangland was behind the shooting of Armando Malo, 30, and Raymond Boileau, 28, in the parking lot of their bodies were found five feet apart. Malo was shot twice through Rejean's heart and two times in the back.

Both were known along "The Main"—Montreal's St. Lawrence Boulevard, a haunt of the city's world characters.

Provincial detectives were questioning possible witnesses in the slaying Monday of Lucien Gauthier and her 24½-year-old daughter Monday and the beating to death of a 55-year-old woman in her apartment, also on Monday.

Mrs. Michel Introvado, 28, and her husband were found bound slain in their blood-stained living room by Mr. Introvado when he returned from work.

The mother apparently had been beaten with a club and was drowned in the tub.

Mrs. Napoleon St. Jean's body was found by her husband at 5 a.m. Monday when he returned from work as a night watchman.

Inmates were questioned at St. Vincent de Paul Penitentiary in connection with the slaying of Gerard Murray, 37, of Pabreville, Que. He was stabbed as he worked as a stonecutter in the penitentiary.

Eugene Dupuis, 67, and Avila Martin, 63, both of Valleyfield, Que., were found dead in a room house at La Borgne, Que., 10 miles west of Montreal after a fire.

Therese Simard, 40, told a coroner's jury Monday that her brother, Remi, 52, had died after fallen on a knife she held while cutting bread saturday. She was charged with manslaughter Tuesday and released on $5,000 bail, pending preliminary hearing Oct. 11.

CHURCH STRIKES BACK

HAVANA (AP)—The Roman Catholic Bishop of Santiago, Msgr. Enrique Perez Serantes, has attacked what he calls the advance of communism in Cuba in a new pastoral letter. The letter represents the first time clergyman by church officials against Communist influence in Cuba. Since Premier Fidel Castro established power in January, "Protests" in a TV address Aug. 11.

Mixed Success Seen in Drive Against Stamps

QUEBEC (CP)—The Canadian Association of Consumers Tuesday reviewed its activities of the past year at its annual election. Toronto, clothing, trading stamps and credit buying.

The association's nation-wide campaign against trading stamps "met with mixed success," the national executive committee told the annual meeting.

In British Columbia and Alberta, the stamps had been declared illegal. Saskatchewan had banned stamps while awaiting a ruling by the Supreme Court of Canada. Prince Edward Island's government had promised action similar to Saskatchewan's if elected.

In Manitoba and Ontario stamps were still in use, although there were cases before the courts. Quebec's former attorney-general had promised to look into the situation but nothing had been done. In New Brunswick only one store carried the stamps.

The association has also taken a stand against what it calls misleading advertising of credit buying and encouraged discrimination against cash customers.

WILL THRESH OUT RIFT

LONDON (Reuters)—The ideological rift between Russia and China will be dealt with next month when the world's top Communist leaders meet in Moscow for celebrations of the 1917 revolution, Communist sources said Tuesday. Despite recent attempts to minimize the difference in public, the split still persists over the interpretation of the inevitability of war with "capitalist states.

FIRE RAGES AT TENNESSEE EASTMAN — Tennessee Eastman Co., Kingsport, was hit by a huge explosion yesterday afternoon, leaving fires that were still out of control 1½ hours later. Estimates of casualties said 7scores were injured." One body had been found. The column of smoke at right came from a building in which dyes were manufactured. The explosion was heard in a gas plant. Real Surprise For Greenwoods

TORONTO (CP)—Michael Anthony, who has given away many a fortune on television in The Happy Gang, presented to the front door of a suburban home beaten with a $1,000.00 cheque in his hand.

"You're not real!" exclaimed Joanne Greenwood, the 24-year-old housewife who answered the door.

Anthony, of course, wasn't real in real life he is actor Maurice Millicer—nor was the cheque. But there was a real surprise in store for the Greenwoods.

She and her husband Don, a photographer for a Toronto lithographing firm, will spend Thanksgiving weekend in New York, compliments of a weight-reducing formula manufacturer. Mrs. Greenwood guessed correctly had bought the millionth can of the product sold in Canada.

The Greenwoods also won $4,000 in cash, luggage and clothing to make their weekend in New York run more smoothly.

Fire Killed 5,356 Persons And Caused Billion Dollars Damage in Past 10 Years

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

"Don't give fire a place to start" is again the slogan in Canada's national Fire Prevention Week Oct. 9-15.

The proclamation, which sets the week apart for a concentrated safety effort, points out that in the last 10 years fires in Canada have taken 5,356 lives, with property damages of $1,000,000,000.

The toll is increasing yearly. Last year, there were 536 fatalities in fires in Canada, compared with 389 in 1950. Property damage was $120,000,000 compared with $116,000,000 the previous year. And this does not include timber losses.

Joint sponsors of the appeal are the Association of Canadian Fire Marshals and the Canadian Association of Fire Chiefs.

WIDE SUPPORT

The appeal is backed by federal, provincial and municipal administrations, by industrial groups and public-spirited organizations, and by civic leaders in all across Canada.

It is carried on by public meetings, television and radio programs and, every other possible method in an effort to reduce the number of fires in homes and factories, offices and shops and other establishments.

Quebec and Ontario, the two largest provinces, have far greater losses in lives and property than any others. Last year, Quebec had 87 fatalities, compared with 196 in 1958, and damages reached $40,988,000 against $44,774,000 the previous year. Ontario's 1959 toll was 171 lives and $40,819,000, against 177 lives lost and damages of $35,853,000 in 1958.

Another assessment of property damages shows the per-capita loss is highest in Newfoundland, lowest in Saskatchewan.

The per-capita property loss reached $136,000,000.

Fire Prevention Week

FIRE COSTS — Property damage by fire in Canada in 1959 totalled $130,424,455 or $6.82 for each Canadian. Map compares per capita dollar loss and total deaths by provinces. Newfoundland had the highest loss, $9.94 for each resident. Saskatchewan was lowest, at $3.82. Worst fire damage is not included in the figures supplied by the Dominion fire commissioner. The new 1961 Monarch is definitely a car in a class by itself. The styling is unique as you can tell by a glance at the graceful Monarch crown. There's no excess bulk outside, yet interior dimensions in every direction are nothing short of spacious. The luxury of the standard upholstery and trim are quietly impressive. Other standard Monarch equipment includes a big V-8 engine and automatic transmission. Certain features like cushion-link suspension and extra-heavy insulation against sound and weather can only be judged on the road. There, a single ride brings out all the qualities of solid Monarch comfort. It's amazing that the price is so low.

Mohawk Indians Well Known For Their Ability as Steel Construction Workmen

By ARCHIE McKENZIE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

CAUGHNAWAGA, Que. (CP) — The Caughnawaga Mohawks flourish where the tall steel grows.

Nimble feet and a head for heights have brought these descendants of the Iroquois confederacy some share of 20th-century affluence. The industrial aristocrats of their race, they are a striking Canadian instance of adaptation to non-Indian life.

The Mohawks are peerless steel-construction men in the same way their forefathers held a pre-eminent place in Eastern Canada in the arts of war, politics and agriculture. They roam the United States at $4.35 an hour and up for top men, or tread narrow steel beams above rivers and concrete city canyons in Canada at lesser rates of pay.

Caughnawaga — it means "above the rapids"—lies across the St. Lawrence River from western Montreal, flanked by Seawky lock superstructures lit men helped rivet together. Its preoccupation with steel was accidental.

COMES NATURALLY

Workmen on the old C.P.R. bridge shuttling the reservation at one end—one span was finished in the 1880s and a second in 1912—found young Mohawks peering curiously over their shoulders high above the waters. Hiring them was a natural consequence.

"It got so the girls wouldn't go out with you unless you were a steel man," recalls one old-timer. Today, between 1,000 and 1,200 men of Caughnawaga's 8,000 residents are affiliated to be in the business.

Some work steadily in Montreal plants but most follow the bridges, skyscrapers and towers where a wind-gust of thirty-five may mean death.

Joe Jacks helped build Francisco's Golden Gate Bridge as a foreman. Alex Beauvais survived the Quebec bridge collapse 40 years ago. Oneeina Lalkorque, 49, whose Mohawk was on the massive Sun Life building in Montreal, recently headed a new working on the CPR bridge where it all started.

SOME DRAWBACKS

Despite the big cars and free-wheeling travel habits, there are drawbacks. Work halts in cold, wet or windy weather and expenses mount when families tag along as they often do. Says Lalkorque, a stay-at-home:

"The boys who travel may get between $8,000 and $7,000 a year but it isn't steady. Many prefer to take small wages at a steadier basis at home."

Caughnawaga is a prime example of the fact that the 505 bands forming Canada's 119,000 Indian population refuse to fit tidily into pat political, economic or social classifications. In many respects it is much more like a non-Indian municipality.

One reason is its good income and another a long-standing exposure to the European. The Mohawks, most warlike of the Iroquois confederacy, joined in assisting the British against the French but the Caughnawaga band is descended from a segment persuaded by the French to join them.

POLITICS LIVELY

Like most reservations where segregation has produced a confined community, Caughnawaga has its share of local political warfare that would rival the most heated altercations in Toronto or Montreal city councils.

Meetings of the elected 12-member band council, headed by Chief Phillip Lazare, usually aren't attended by local affairs branch officials except by request. "I got fed up with the insults," one official said.

But there is little visible sign of the rivalry between elected and hereditary Indian leaders that blew up on the slater reservation at Brantford, Ont., not long ago. Followers of the long-house religion and hereditary chieftains took over the council hall there until ejected by the RCMP.

Leading Caughnawaga longhouse exponent is Peter Dionne who conducts a virtual one-man war council with barbed pen and tongue in contending that the white man has followed a long trail of deceit and treachery in breaking of honor conditions laid down in the old British treaties.

MONEY FROM LEASES

The village itself, aside from the privies and wells, resembles a medium-income suburb. Chief Lazare works for a distillery while his wife, of non-Indian ancestry, tends a filling station and confectionery store.

High school students go to neighboring municipal schools and most homes are built without federal assistance.

Teen-age boys turn out with baseball bats and gloves while others languish. Trim matrons in sunsuits relax at a beach a stone's throw from the Seaway.

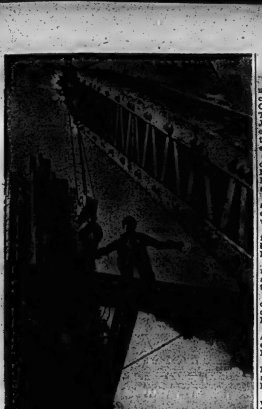
Leasing of land brings a lot of money to individual Indians —one was worth $750,000 on his death a few years ago. The leases cover the 18-hole Kanawahl golf course, a driving range, farms, houses, billboards, radio station transmitter — and a cat and dog cemetery dotted with tiny headstones.

CATER TO TOURISTS

At one end of the village Chief Poking Fire, or John McComber, runs his historic Indian village complete with "totem Jan", boots selling tomahawks, bead purses, knife cases, leather beanies and herbal remedies. Nearby Chief Soaring Fire and his wife help conduct the ceremonial-adult admission 50 cents—beside his souvenir longhouse. It's a replacement for the genuine bark structure burned several years ago—by whom, nobody knows. Nearby is a notice wishing well caging one Merla, emblematic of the Mohawk tribe.

The chief, a barrel-chested 68, at no cost for politics but confides, in a sentiment often heard on other reservations and vouched for by observers: "The other Indians don't like me because I'm independent. They pay my own way."

CHIEF'S DENTAL



His wife Louise is a small, determined woman who shares his abiding interest in the Mohawk past. She is superintendent of the 50-foot longhouse, operated by the band itself, and played a leading part in taking over its control from the federal government.

"It broke my heart to see our old folk being sent off the reservation to strange surroundings," she said. Initial operations for the band resulted in a $20,000 deficit before things got rolling. Now she is set on getting it down and she says it's opposed by Chief Lazare with whom she wages war.

Newly bingo - built finance the hospital but "do you know that even though it's their hospital, the Indians won't play? Sometimes I wonder . . ."

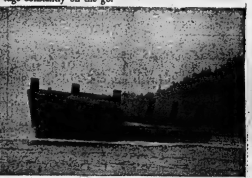
Barge Traffic Booms on B.C. Coast

More Work for Tireless Tugs

The doughty tug-boat fills a colourful chapter in the marine history of Canada's west coast. From early times, when the stout little vessels braved the tide-ripped waters off Vancouver Island towing sailing ships to safe harbour, the indefatigable tug-boat has filled an important niche in the romance of navigation. Today, the bulk of British Columbia's coastal shipping moves by tug-drawn barge and the trend is towards larger and more specialized barges hauled by faster and more powerful tugs. Above, tug tows log barge to booming grounds at Howe Sound, B.C.

Down the years, the number of tugs on Canada's west coast has grown sharply. Today, the busy port of Vancouver—one of the world's largest and finest natural harbours—boasts more tug-boat registration than any other port in North America. To handle the growing volume of coastal traffic, to berth the big ships that drop anchor the year round, in the magnificent land-locked harbour, and to be constantly at the alert to answer distress calls at any hour, in any weather, keeps British Columbia's 400-odd tugs constantly on the go.



Self-dumping log barge carrying one million board feet of spruce and cedar arrives at booming grounds near Vancouver. Two tanks on port side are flooded by opening valves. As water fills the tanks, barge slowly lists to port.

About 800 logs, which took some 12 hours to load, hit the water in 3 to 4 seconds. Big advantage of self-dumpers over old method of transporting logs across open Pacific by deep-sea rafts is less likelihood of losing logs in a storm.

Logs sway, the barge sits high in the water and tanks drain by gravity. No pumps or other mechanical devices are employed. Since logs spend less time in salt water, damage from insects is reduced.

Carrying capacity of the 285-foot steel barges is 4,510 tons. In addition to amount of time saved in unloading, barges can also be towed faster than rafts previously in use.

VANCOUVER (CP) — Cully Kilburn, one of the veterans of minor league hockey, has a phobia about retirement.

He put it briefly to Normie Kwong one day last summer when the 30 - year-old fullback was weighing his decision to return to Edmonton Eskimos football team after announcing earlier that he had retired.

"As long as they keep offering me a contract, I'll keep playing," Kilburn told Kwong.

He elaborated later as he laced up his skates to open training for his 18th season as a hockey player, his 10th as a professional.

IT'S STILL FUN

"As long as you've had no major injuries, and if you enjoy the game and it's still a pleasure to go out and play the game, and as long as the powers that be come through with a contract with figures that are enticing, why not play the game?

"I enjoy the game of hockey and I'm sure that Kwong enjoys playing football. But once it begins to be a chore to put on the equipment and go out on the ice, then it's time to pack it up."

Kilburn, who turns 33 this December, began his hockey career as a junior goaltender in Edmonton, switching in his second season to the forward line. He's been a left winger through three seasons of senior amateur and nine of professional hockey with Edmonton Flyers, Victoria Cougars and Vancouver Canucks of the Western Hockey League and Springfield Indians of the American League.

He now is assistant coach and player with Canucks, helping Art Chapman with the coaching chores while taking a regular turn on the ice.

He turned down three contract offers from National Hockey League teams, twice with Montreal Canadiens because he could care for his business better while playing so-called amateur with Edmonton's senior Flyers, and once with Boston Bruins because he then was starting a coaching career as playing-coach of Victoria Cougars.

He has always been a fierce competitor. In amateur days, he was rookie of the year in the Western Canada Senior League and later scoring champion. As a pro he scored 574 points in nine years, including 70 last season when he was ninth among scorers in the WHL.

Always a hard-hitting player and frequently penalized—he has spent 646 minutes in the penalty box in his pro career—Kilburn has taken his share of cuts and bruises, but he's never had a serious injury. Perhaps this has influenced his philosophy, but he said it's something he doesn't think about when it comes time to step on the ice.

A LOT HAPPIER

"When you start worrying about getting hurt out there," he said, "that's when you should call it quits. And that goes for the young kids as well as the rest of us."

The more likely underlying explanation for his outlook is revealed in his statement:

"My wife said to me once, 'Let's face it. You're a lot happier in it than out of it.' And she's right.

"It'd probably be grouching and grumping around the house if I couldn't get out to training camp."

Making Trip Around World With Money Won on Horses

VANCOUVER (CP)—The news that British Columbia election bets were made and paid addressed James (Lucky Jim) Tighe of Melbourne when he arrived here in September.

The 39-year - old Australian makes a weekend business of placing bets on the horses. And as a rule he picks a winner.

Mr. and Mrs. Tighe arrived here aboard the P. & O. liner Iberia on their second round-the-world trip. True, other journeys make such journeys they don't usually finance them at $1,000 a day by winning bets.

And he says he still has a bankroll back home of $48,000.

WORKS AS BULKHEAD

All his luck comes from betting only on weekends. During the week Lucky Jim is employed as a bulkhead.

He says he took up his "hobby" 10 years ago when he won a $25 bet. Although he admits he has had bad days, he insists he has been ahead of the game ever since.

"I got really lucky early this year and won $45,000 on seven winning Saturdays at the race track.

"We took a world trip four years ago when I won $32,000. This time we've been to see all the places we missed during our last trip."

ONCE LOST $7,700

Mr. Tighe claims the biggest bet he ever laid was $5,000 and he won. He says he usually bets only $1,500 but has lost as much as $7,700 in a single day.

He looks the part of a gambler, sporting a bright bow tie, mismatched jacket and slacks and carrying his money pinned to his underwear.

Why does he bet only on weekends?

"The trouble is whether you win or lose, big betting is hard work and it gives me ulcers. I guess I stick to my job mainly because I drink more of the milk than any of my customers."

He says he has no secret formula for winning. He simply discusses the field with fellow horse players and then makes up his mind.

CALL HIM LUCKY

James (Lucky Jim) Tighe of Melbourne, Australia, has reason to smile as he rubs his fingers through Australian currency. He is on his second round-the-world trip with his wife on money he says he won placing bets during weekends. In Vancouver on a visit, the 39-year-old Australian says he usually bets about $1,500 but his biggest bet was $5,000. He has lost as much as $7,700 in a single day. (CP Photo).

No Complacency

Toe Blake Is Cautious

By W. R. WHEATLEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONTREAL (CP)—Coach Toe Blake of Montreal Canadiens voiced cautious optimism as his Stanley Cup champions got in a few more practice licks today in preparation for the new National Hockey League season.

Blake said his immediate aim is to get off to a good start.

Blake's Canadiens open in Montreal Thursday night against Toronto Maple Leafs, the team they knocked off in four straight in the cup final last spring—the same fate that befell Chicago Black Hawks in the semi-final.

NO PREDICTIONS

Blake made no outright prediction. The closest he has ever come to forecasting was last spring. When his team made it five straight cup championships, he said in great station: "I like odd numbers."

So now he is going for No. 6 and No. 7 without a pause.

"I am encouraged by the way the boys have been skating and I'm hoping that indicates a good start," said Blake.

"Since our exhibition tour they have been skating a lot better. They showed it in the all-star game last Saturday, although we lost 3-2, and looked much better in an exhibition game in Quebec the next afternoon.

SKATING BETTER NOW

"We were winning earlier exhibition games without even skating well, but have noticed a distinct difference in the last couple of games.

"No, I don't think the boys are complacent. They all like the money that goes to winners."

Blake was a bit concerned over the foot miseries of Jacques Plante but thinks his netminder will be ready for the Leafs Thursday.

Blake will start the season with a stand-pat team, except for Maurice (Rocket) Richard, now retired, and Forward Ab McDonald, dealt off to Chicago Black Hawks since last season.

Joe Brown KO's Mexican

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—World lightweight champion Joe Brown knocked out Mexico's Raymundo Torres in the fourth round of a 10-round non-title fight Tuesday night.

Brown weighed 137 pounds. Torres 139.

Torres was knocked out with a short right cross at 2:36 in the fourth round.

Torres was knocked down for an eight count midway in the first round. Brown, 34, who had defended his title eight times, was slightly stunned in the third round by a flurry from Torres.

Torres had won 34 of 38 fights before Tuesday night's bout. 26 of them by knockout. He was ranked sixth among lightweight contenders.

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP)—Adios Butler, a four-year-old colt by Adios-Debby Hanover, Tuesday paced the fastest mile ever recorded by a harness horse, turning the distance in 1:54 2-5 in a time trial.

Royals Get Cold Shoulder Second Time

ST. THOMAS (CP)—A bid by St. Thomas Royals to ice a Senior Ontario Hockey Association team from Aylmer has been rejected for the second time by the other teams in the western division, Royals president Harold McCormick was told Monday night.

The decision ended weeks of negotiations between the Royals executive, the OHA and representatives of the five teams. Royals, after a disagreement with the arena management here, attempted to ice a team from Aylmer, nine miles east of St. Thomas.

"I'm disappointed in the group," McCormick said Tuesday. "My feeling is the league will not survive its first year of operation. Woodstock and the Stratford Indians are having player problems now. There aren't enough good hockey players for the proposed new senior league."

Barons Win

QUEBEC (CP) — Cleveland Barons spoiled Quebec's 1960-61 American Hockey League debut by defeating the Aces 4-3 at the Coliseum here Tuesday night before 4,022 fans.

The Barons scored three unanswered goals in the third period.

Cal Gardner, Aldo Guidolin, Ric Atwell and Fred Glover scored for the Barons. Quebec scorers were Michel Harvey and Bob Barlow.

Fifteen minor penalties were called, but none figure in the scoring.

The first period was scoreless: Aces took a 2-1 lead in the second, only to weaken in the third. Quebec goalie Gerry McNeil made 34 saves compared to 26 by Gil Mayer of Cleveland.

KINGSTON (CP)—Wren Blair, manager - coach of Kingston Frontenacs, dropped four players from last year's squad Tuesday and said that if Frontenacs finish last again this season "at least we'll do it with kids with some potential."

The former Whitby Dunlops manager, making his debut with Kingston in the Eastern Professional Hockey League, also announced that a fourth Whitby player may be joining him here.

Blair shipped winger Barney Krake and defenceman Bob Blackburn to Portland of the Western Hockey League and told forwards Skip Teal and Don Anderson to go home.

Alfie Treen, a defence standout with the now-defunct Whitby club, is expected here shortly although he signed earlier in the year with the Rouyn - Noranda, Que., seniors.

Brown's Brown Again Tops On Ground

NEW YORK (AP) — National League football is getting monotonous in one respect — Jimmy Brown is leading the circuit's ground-gainers again.

The big Cleveland Browns fullbuster has led the league in ball carrying for the last three seasons and holds the league record of 1,527 yards in one season.

After two games, league statistics show Baron has run up 240 yards on 43 carries for an average of 5.6. Only six yards behind and with virtually the same average gain is Green Bay's Jim Taylor with 234 yards on 42 carries.

Veteran Bobby Layne of Pittsburgh Steelers is No. 1 on the passing list. Layne has completed 30 of 46 for 384 yards and six touchdowns, has a 65.3-per-cent completion average and a 4.3-per-cent interception mark.

Baltimore's Johnny Unitas has a second-place record of completing 31 of 52 passes for 336 yards, a .600 average and only 1.5 per cent of interceptions.

Kyle Rote of the New York Giants and Willard Dewall of Chicago Bears have caught 13 passes each and defending champion Ray Berry of Baltimore and Monty Stickles of San Francisco 11 each.

CLOSE SHAVE — Bobby Hull, Chicago Black Hawks talented young leftwinger, just misses scoring in Saturday's All Stars-Montreal Canadiens game. Waving him off are Albert (Junior) Langlois (19), goalie Jacques Plante (half-hidden) and Dickey Moore (12). The Stars edged the defending Stanley Cup holders 2-1. (CP Wirephoto).

Groat, Law Were Bucs Secret Worries

Sport Slices...

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

As was expected Willie the Pony, private eye of Predictors Unlimited, came out of hiding this morning. Willie always calls the morning of any outstanding sports event and size his predictions, for free, as long as they are published.

For the past twenty years we have been wagering the odd iron man on Willie's prophecies. That's one of the main reasons we know a large number of finance corporation executives by their first names.

Willie claims he's closer to the boys-in-the-know than Dan Barrett is a bow tie. But those who know Willie best take his predictions like Don MacKinnon reckons baked cod. He bats the carp on a piece of plank for eight hours, then toss the fish to the family cat and eat the board.

Next to the big track events Willies likes the world series. His best series prediction was offered in 1954 when he prophesied neither the Dodgers nor the White Sox would take the honors. That was the year the Yankees took it four straight from Cleveland.

Actually Willie has been slightly off the mental beam since that day many years ago when his mother tried proving to detergent salesmen that "Nix", "Slix" and "Wix" could knock out "Mr. Clean" in one swipe, asked his father to take him out to a ball game, the zoo or even the pokey.

On his return his mother asked him where he had gone. Willie said "The zoo... It was great. One of the animals paid $32.50."

The great little man has his own world series system. Reckons himself a pool expert ever since the day he dived into one before they filled it with water.

However, he does claim that the team that wins the second series game will take it all. Statistics prove that since 1923 when they put the big event on a best-of-seven basis, 21 out of 36 times that won the second game took the gravy.

Willie's been married three times, and each time, he says, he drew a blank. From this fact he claims, and the figures prove it, that if you want to bet a shutout, make it 2-0. Nineteen of the 64 shutouts in the series ended this way. Next most likely "err" is 1-0 (twelve times). Most unlikely, 6-0, for as Willie says, "It ain't happened yet."

Since Willie's old man were a peg-leg and his mother-in-law was fooled once by a Captain Kidd, he naturally is a Pirate fan. But, he insists that if any club is going to take the world series machine in four straight it should be the Yankees. Of the ten series that ended that way the Bronx Bombers won six, the others by Athletics (1910, 1913, 1967); Braves, 1914, and the Giants in 1923 and 1954.

He will wager you 100-1 that neither a Yankee or a Pirate will emulate Mel Ott's batting feat in 1933. Ott in his first time at bat in the first-game first inning clouted a homer. In his last time at bat in the last inning of the last game he blasted a four-bagger. He hit none between. Both homers were game-winners.

And Willie will collect ten per cent of your winnings if you wager this way. If the game goes ten or eleven innings the visiting team usually wins. If it goes beyond eleven, the home team generally is triumphant. The proof: Of the 31 games that have gone into nine or two extra frames, the visitors won. Of the six tilts that have gone twelve or more, five were won by the home-sters.

He advises not to bet that a player will steal home with the winning run in the ninth. It's never happened yet. But ten players have stole home in series games.

And Willie observes that more world series games are won before the fifth inning than after it, not counting overtime games. In all games that have finished in nine innings, the winning run (the team's fourth run in a 5-3 score) was scored 142 times before the fifth; 52 times in the fifth and 117 times in the last four innings. Winningest inning the 4th, 49 times.

Pirates Mr. Friend

Says Yanks Like Braves

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Bobby Friend, ball of Pittsburgh's right-handed pitching pride, doesn't think the New York Yankees should be any tougher than the Milwaukee Braves, the club the Pirates left squatting in second in the National League race.

Friend, an 18-game winner who was 3-0 against Milwaukee, which lost 13 of 22 to the Bucs, is the starting choice in Thursday's second game of the world series. Vern Law, the other right-handed ace, who won 20, faced the American League champs in today's opener.

"I haven't seen too much of the Yankees," Friend admitted, "but they're a lot like the Braves with their power. And I don't see how they could be tougher. They don't have a hitter like Hank Aaron. And Ed Mathews can almost match them.

"You can compare Mathews with Mickey Mantle, and Aaron with Bill Skowron."

Friend said the reports of the Pirate scouting staff on the Yankees didn't change his thinking.

Yankees 13-10 To Take Series

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Despite outward optimism, Pittsburgh Pirates went into the world series against the New York Yankees today secretly worried about the condition of two key performers —starting pitcher Vernon Law and shortstop Dick Groat.

Law, the Pirates' 20-game winner and steadiest man on the mound this year, has not fully recovered from an ankle injury suffered 10 days ago.

The 30-year-old right-hander ace, said "It feels better, but it's not 100 per cent yet." He still has a sort of difficulty sliding his foot off the rubber when throwing a curve ball, his best pitch.

Even Danny Murtaugh, Pirate manager, admits Groat's left wrist, fractured a month ago, is "not 100 per cent". The Buc captain is also limping, but has showed great courage last week in returning to the lineup before anyone expected him to, still flinches when missing a swing or catching a ball thrown in the pocket of his glove.

SHOWDOWN HAS HEAD COLD

The Yankees, in sharp contrast, faced the opener before a select audience of some 38,000 in full strength except for a minor nuisance, a head cold is plaguing first baseman Bill (Moose) Skowron.

Right - hander Art Ditmar, Casey Stengel's choice to oppose Law, was fit and ready.

The Yankees were 13 to 10 to gain their 19th victory 25 world series and their eighth in 10 under Stengel. Today's game was rated even money.

Stengel's champions streaked into Forbes Field by sweeping their last 13 games. The Pirates came back nicely after coasting into the pennant, defeating Milwaukee in the final two games of the regular season.

Today marks the 52nd anniversary of the opener of the only other world series in which there were two teams in the city—1927—the Yankees swept the best-of-seven series in four straight.

FRIEND, MIZELL

No matter what happens in the opener, Murtaugh plans to pitch Bob Friend (18-12) in Thursday's second game here and follow with Vinegar Bend Mizell, his 14-game winning left-hander, in the third game Saturday at Yankee Stadium. Harvey Haddix, another southpaw, is his latative fourth-game choice.

Stengel, who waited until Monday to announce his starter in his opening - game pitcher, declined to name his choice, but believed right - hander Bob Turley (9-3) will pitch the second game. That would leave the third game to lefty Whitey Ford.

Both teams worked out Tuesday. Many Yankees saw Forbes Field for the first time. Some expressed surprise at the distant left field fence. Most feel from home plate at the foul line. Centre fields is 457 feet away. Right field is 300 feet down the line.

They all agreed, however, that the back-ground for the hitters was the best they had seen.

"Wait until those pirates see our park," said Outfielder Gene Woodling. "They won't believe it. Which is bound to affect them. I can understand how Yankee Stadium makes like the heart out of you, especially after you lose a couple of balls in that background."

Could Be Tough

Sluggers Eye Forbes Field

By Ed Wilks

PITTSBURGH (AP) — New York Yankees moved into Forbes Field Tuesday and decided there were a couple of things they should find out about Pittsburgh Pirates' ballyard before they open the world series.

"We haven't had a screen like that in any of our (American League) parks since 1953," he said Houk. "And that wall is right looks as if it's going to something like left in our park where the ball can jump away from you."

The right field wall at Forbes Field, a 406-foot poke, is of solid concrete, chops off the foul line 300 feet from the plate. But it fades fast on its run toward centre, and there's a screen that tops the wall where the ball lines to a spot 375 feet from the plate in right centre.

'WE'VE A FEW'

"It's not like our park for hitting with that screen," said Houk, referring to the home-run target that squats in right field at Yankee Stadium. "But we've got screen seats, I think we've got a few guys who can put it in there."

Houk had barely got off his prediction when Maris, who with Mantle and Berra give the Yanks their left-handed hitting power-banged one into the blue-painted seats behind the 375-foot mark.

There was something approaching a cheer up and down the Yankee workout, but most of it was a clump of reporters lining-ing on manager Casey Stengel (Semple: "I don't know about the second game pitcher because I don't know yet how we've done in the first game. . . ."

Found Cops Useful in A Pinch!

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Talk about a busman's holiday: Dewitt Bottom, a mailman, walked and hitch-hiked 1,375 miles from Waco, Tex., to get here for the world series.

It's a matter of economics for Bottom, 64, who also asked police for lodgings in a jail cell.

"I'm just conserving my money," he said, "because the series may go seven games and I'll need a little extra to hitch-hike back and forth from New York".

The cops obliged. They even agreed to wake him up at 4 a.m. today so he'll have plenty of time to make it out to Forbes Field for the opening game.

Studes Wont Get High Over Series

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Officials at the University of Pittsburgh received an interoffice memo today concerning the world series:

"In order to maintain proper safety for personnel during the world series, it is requested that no university personnel be permitted on the roofs of the Cathedral of Learning, or any other university building, to watch the world series games."

The Cathedral, which is across the street from Forbes Field is 42 stories high.

He Could Stop Payment

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Pittsburgh is filled with signs such as "Beat 'em Bucs," and "Speak the Yanks," but now the funsters are in.

The most conspicuous sign read:

"All of Casey's banks can't hold our Bucs."

What Else Is New?

Ho Hum, Habs Favored In NHL

By The Canadian Press

Chicago Stadium and Madison Square Garden in New York share the scene for opening games of the 1958-59 National Hockey League season tonight. It's Boston Bruins against the Rangers and the Black Hawks at home to Detroit Red Wings.

The other two clubs—Toronto Maple Leafs and Montreal Canadiens — get their season under way in Montreal Thursday night.

Canadiens, even without Maurice Richard, are solid favorites to outclass the opposition again. Montreal has won the Stanley Cup the last five years and has taken the NHL title in four of those years.

Young Billy Hicke is being tried out in Rochet's right wing spot on a line with Henri Richard and Dickie Moore. Richard was American Hockey League most valuable player two seasons ago with Rochester.

LEAFS SHOULD BE SECOND

After Canadiens it looks like Toronto Maple Leafs for runner-up honors — on paper at least. Leafs finished a strong second to last season but lacked Montreal's playoff polish and bowed four straight in the cup finals.

Veteran goalie Johnny Bower could again be the key to success or failure for Leafs. The 36-year-old goaltender held the club together in many a pinch last season with some superlative puck-clopping. Rookie forwards Bobby Nevin and Dave Keon were impressive in pre-season exhibition games and manager-coach Punch Imlach is confident Ilery's stick with the club.

It should be a scramble for the remaining two playoff positions. The Red Wings and Black Hawks appear to be slightly better balanced than either Boston or New York.

Detroit still has the great Gordie Howe up front and former Vezina trophy - winner Terry Sawchuk in goal. The Red Wings picked up three new players in the off-season, Parker MacDonald, Tim McCarthy and Howie Glover.

Chicago will be minus veteran Ted Lindsay. The scrappy 33-year-old left-winger retired after 616 seasons in the NHL — three with Chicago and 13 with Detroit. To go with Bobby Hull and Jimmy Bartlett, both forwards, the Hawks acquired three new players from Montreal —Cec Hoekstra, Bob Courcy and Bob McDonald.

Rangers, who finished in the cellar last season, have added five players in an effort to hit a winning combination. Newcomers include defenceman Jim Morrison, drafted from Chicago; centre Ted Hampson, from Toronto; and three farmhands—Ian Robichefort, Len Ronson and Dave Balon.

Coach Alf Pike has indicated he will carry two goalies—Jacques McCartan of the United States team that won the Olympic hockey title, and holdover Gump Worsley. Worsley figures to start. Dean Prentice, Rangers' leading scorer last season, permits the first two weeks of the season. He is recovering from a knee operation.

Another Ranger casualty is Camille Henry who will be sidelined for at least three weeks with a hairline fracture of a lower rib. He was hurt in an exhibition game Sunday.

Boston, which also finished out of the playoffs—fifth place last year—has added Orval Tessier from Toronto, Canada's lightweight boxing champion, hopes to fight for the British Empire and European titles, his European manager Johnny Sharpe said Tuesday.

He is eligible for all three because he was born in Scotland.

Seattle, who underwent surgery to plug a two-inch hole in his heart at Miami, Fla., three years ago, is matched against Britain's Phil McGrath at London's Wembley indoor stadium Oct. 23.

Sharpe said: "If Seattle wins that fight we shall apply to have him named as logical contender for Dave Charnley's British, Empire and European titles."

Seattle became Canadian champion Monday night after the fifth round win over Bobby Hamilton of Edmonton at Hamilton.

Bob Cleroux Ranks Seventh In Heavies

NEW YORK (AP)—Bob Cleroux of Montreal, Canada's heavyweight champion, is ranked seventh among the world heavyweight contenders this month by Ring Magazine.

Ring took a higher view of Cleroux than the National Boxing Association which had him No. 10 in its rankings released Monday.

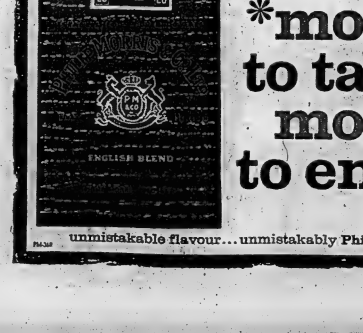
The magazine listed Ingemar Johansson of Sweden second among Floyd Patterson's challengers. The NBA puts him third. Both authorities give Tonny Liston of Philadelphia the No. 1 spot.

Pete Kingpetch of Thailand drew Ring's "Fighter of the Month" award for his second victory Argentina's Pascual Perez.

The debut dropped Perez to second contender spot in the 118-pound set. Spain's Mimum Ben Ali was boosted to No. 1.

Don Fullmer, 21 - year - old brother of NBA middleweight champ Gene Fullmer, was ranked among the 160-pounders for the first time as he strayed of his draw with European champion Gustav Scholz at Frankfurt, Germany, Sept. 14. Gene Fullmer is rated the No. 1 contender by both recognized champ Carmen Fender of Brookline, Mass., as world champion. Don Fullmer was ranked ninth. Scholtz is ranked third.

WILL TRY FOR RECORD



MILAN (AP) — Italian auto manufacturer Carlo Abarth announced Tuesday he is planning an attempt on the world land speed record of 394.2 miles an hour set by Sir John Cobb in 1947. The attempt probably will be made in 1959 at the Utah salt falts. Abarth said at a press conference he will build a car costing about $800,000 to be ready by 1962.

Dave Thelen On Way to Rushing Mark

TORONTO (CP) — Halback Dave Thelen of Ottawa Rough Riders appears to be a sure bet to set a new Big Four Football Union rushing record this season, even though he has missed one game.

With five games left in the 14-game schedule, Thelen has piled up 1,008 yards. Last year he set the league record with 1,330 yards.

League statistics issued Tuesday show that Thelen has carried the ball 138 times for an average gain of 7.7 yards. His closest rival is George Dixon of Montreal Alouettes who has a total yardage of 997.

Hal Patterson, the star end for Alouettes tops the pass receivers with 36 catches, three up on Paul Dekker of Hamilton Tiger-Cats and Dave Mann of Toronto Argonauts. Hamilton is tops in the punting department with an average of 46.8 yards.

Ron Lancaster of Ottawa has the best average gain for passing, 10.3 yards, but Sam Etcheverry of Montreal still leads in percentage of completions, 135 out of 256 thrown. Tobin Rote of Argos has tried the most passes, 296, and leads in total yardage with 2,939.

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Casey Stengel probably will remain as manager of the New York Yankees, and Ralph Houk, widely considered Stengel's successor, probably will become the manager of the Detroit Tigers.

This managerial turn - about shaped up today in the wake of the firing of manager Bob Elliott by Kansas City, Lou Boudreau's resignation at Chicago and Joe Gordon's walkout at Detroit.

Other reports circulating at world series headquarters were: 1. Gordon will manage the Athletics. (This is close to being a fact).

2. Bob Scheffing, just re-signed as a Milwaukee Braves' coach, has the inside track to succeed Tom Sheehan as manager of the San Francisco Giants. (The only thing positive is that Sheehan will not return in 1961).

3. Bill Rigney, who Sheehan replaced as Giant manager last July, is the leading candidate for the managing job with the Chicago Cubs. (Fact: Rigney has applied for the Detroit job).

FACTS, NOT RUMORS

Actual happenings, although not yet announced, are the signing of Don Heffner as Detroit coach and the hiring of Mel McGaha as Cleveland coach. Heffner's contract was given his release as coach by the Athletics.

McGaha managed Toronto the International League champions ship, but lost by Louisville in the little world series.

Gordon, who quit the Tigers suddenly Monday, was to confer with Kansas City general manager Parke Carroll today. A Kansas City spokesman said, "Unless Joe asks for the moon, he's got the job. It will be a two-year contract."

Houk, regarded in New York as their apparent to Stengel's throne when the 70-year-old wizard of the dugouts quits, apparently has given up hope of ever succeeding the odd man.

"I'm receptive to a good offer," he said: "I'm getting older and I can't afford to let too many more years slip by."

REJECTED BID

At year ago, Houk, 41, rejected a bid to manage the Athletics, preferring to remain with the Yankees as a coach.

He will give serious consideration to an expected offer by the Tigers.

Houk's decision to consider employment elsewhere was taken as a sign that Stengel would remain with the Yankees.

"I think Casey will stay," said a top New York official. "At least I hope he does. Two months ago, I would have bet anything he would quit. I have changed my mind."

Umps Offered $70 Bribe

WELLAND (CP) — Police escorted umpire Ray Lenzo to and from the concluding game in an inter-city baseball series Tuesday after Leavers was offered $70 to throw the game to the Welland team.

"I don't throw games," Lenzo said after the offer was made by telephone. "They said I had better see Port Colborne lose or I wouldn't leave the park alive."

Port Colborne won the game 3-2 to take the Welland-Crowland softball league championship.

SIGNED BY GIANTS

MONTREAL (CP) — Charles (Zoukki) Esle, 20, a long-ball-hitting outfielder with the Montreal district Longueuil junior baseball team, has signed a minor league contract with San Francisco Giants of the National League, it was announced Tuesday. Esle is to report to the class A team at Fresno, Calif., Giants next season. He hit 18 home runs and stole 38 bases with Longueuil this year.

Need Several Players

Macs Get First Workout

By GEO. H. CARVER
Sports Editor

The McFarlands senior hockey club opened training camp here last night with a heterogeneous collection of hockey ability, fast and present.

There was a lot of land, wheezes and short breaths as Coach Gordie Arnold put the squad through a light opening session of skating and shooting.

The team will practice every night. Tonight's session starts at 6.30 "on the ice." The club will get a regular workout Saturday afternoon.

Seven of last year's seven for "A" squad turned up. Those were Ike Hildebrand, Eddie Marchesan, Davy Jones, Lionel Bolley, Lou Sneke, "Wimpy" Brown and Keith MacDonald.

Also on hand were Jerry Toppazzini and Roy Parkhill of Kingston and Mike Pelkowski, a former Kingston player. Barry Tilterson and Leon Bryan, fixtures for "B" players, worked out.

Adding some nostalgic interest to the picture were Vern Goyer and Sammy Mulholland who, added, every pounds of excess "equator" baggage.

A young Polish-German, Bernard Seiffert, worked out in the nets and showed real promise. Another West German, Henry Patryck, showed ability on skates and with the stick.

Coach Bell said he expects Billy Colvin and Goalie Bob Senior in from Kingston tonight. Mac Edwards is also expected to report. It was stated that a top has already been secured for the goalie.

Bell may seek the services of Skip Teal - a - centre, who was out yesterday by the Kingston Frontenacs. Moe Savard is reported to have returned to an American amateur club.

The coach said he was unsuccessful in his quest for players on a two-day skirl in the Niagara district. "Exhibitor 'A' players," he said, "want the world with a fi-nacial fence around it. Even the American League and other pro outfits are finding these kids too expensive for their budgets."

The player scarcity is apparently general While OHA senior clubs in both eastern and western divisions can sign only eight senior "A" players, some of the clubs in west - are having difficulty filling their rosters with other players.

However Coach Bell feels he will be able to come up with a club that can hold its own.

The best-conditioned skater on the ice last night was the perennial Ike Hildebrand, like played lacrosse all summer and will experience little difficulty in rounding into to hockey shape. He was also with all the dash and speed of former seasons, and said he was definitely going to play for the Macs.

He turned down a player-coaching job with the Sudbury Wolves professional squad. "I could end up being all over the country," he said. "None of that for me. Besides I like Belleville and the people here—and here I will play."

Rink gossip last night had it that Lammy Lamlrande will coach the Clinton Comets. Tony Parisi, former Belleville goalie, is a sub-goalie and trainer, a la Turk Barclay, for the Hershey Bears.

Coach Bell said the club definitely needs two good defencemen and a fast-skating, hard-shooting forward line.

Study Guide Being Prepared On Union Issue

OSHAWA (CP) — A divided church cannot adequately fulfill its task, Most Rev. W. L. Wright, Archbishop of Algoma and Metropolitan of Ontario, told delegates to the provincial synod of the Anglican Church Tuesday.

Delegates from the seven Anglican dioceses gathered for the synod which ends today. Most Rev. H. H. Clark, Primate of all Canada, was scheduled to speak but was ill.

The archbishop said a study guide is being prepared on the union of the Anglican and United Church communities. He said it is distressing to find lovout church people who are more zealous in their criticism of union schemes than they are in promoting the union ideal.

"We only have the right to criticize if it is the first place we have a real passion for Christian unity. It ought to be established that the attitude of mind of those who are more ready to pick holes in the reunion scheme than grapple constructively with the problem is an attitude fundamentally un-Christian."

Referring to religious education he said character is essentially defective without the inspiration, the obligations and the sanctions of religion.

"Although we have acknowledged the value of education as an essential factor to the development of the state . . . many have not always been so emphatic in asserting religious instruction to be an essential element."

Peterborough Boy Will Show Moths in India

PETERBOROUGH (CP)—Gary Bolting, 17, Peterborough's young biological scientist, has received an invitation to attend an all-India science congress with his silk moth study project.

The invitation was received through the American Institute of Biological Scientists. The institute will pay Gary's expenses for the trip, expected at the end of this year.

The youth estimates his moth project and collection has earned him the equivalent of $2,000 in prizes and trips in the last six months.

WILL CURB LOTTERIES

MONTREAL (CP)—A clampdown on lotteries, raffles and bingo games in Quebec Province has been ordered by Josaphat Brunet, provincial police director. "The public should know that too often it seldom gets a fair shake in draws, raffles, lotteries and the like," Brunet said.

Leaves Ernie To See Series, No Ticket!

PITTSBURGH (AP)—One Pittsburgh Pirate fan came all the way from Ireland to watch the world series, but he'll have to see it on television.

He's George Wilson, 74, who retired from a job here and returned to his native Belfast several years ago. He kept in touch with the Pirates by way of the U.S. armed forces paper.

But after converting many of his neighbors — about 50 were in the Wilson home listening in on the day the Pirates clinched the pennant — and missing the long trip for the final games of the regular season, he couldn't get a ticket to the series.

Venom of Bees Said Sure Cure For Arthritis

By ROSS MUNRO
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—An intelligence officer at London airport asked: "Anything to declare, madam?"

"Nothing but a few bees and a bell of a lot of bees in my bonnet," replied the waiting Englishwoman. The officer shrugged wearily and let her through.

That was in 1948 when Mrs. Gaila Owen, refused an import permit, smuggled into Britain her first batch of "medicated bees," anaesthetized with whisky and bred specially for treating arthritis.

Since then she has treated some 1,000 patients, mostly from Britain and France.

Tuesday, Mrs. Owen, 51, flew to Montreal. She will spend the rest of October in Canada spreading the word that bees are a sure cure for arthritis.

Her patients and a number of French and English doctors are convinced that she has the only known cure for the crippling disease. But official medicine has refused to have anything to do with her methods.

CLAIMS SUCCESS

"I have never had a failure in the treatment of arthritic cases," she said in an interview at her $55,000 home.

At her disposal are between 10,000,000 and 12,000,000 bees bred and fed in secret.

"A venom used in the treatment of osteo arthritis cannot be used in the treatment of rheumatoid arthritis," she said.

The spatterdocks she bees are held in fresh boxes and used in contact with the skin — range from a week to six months.

"Far from being a quack Mrs. Owen is strictly scientific in her methods," said one London doctor. "She breeds the bees herself and feeds them so that she can vary the quality of their venom to suit her purpose."

Only Mystery of Show Why It Appeared at All

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—The most interesting mystery on the television season to date was Tuesday night's Rivak the Barbarian, on NBC. The mystery is why it appeared at all.

It was an elaborate one-hour program which looked like a satire on Ben Hur. It wasn't, everybody concerned was earnest, if misguided.

Obviously, it was a wildly expensive show. It was filmed in Italy. The sets were enormous. It had boats, fortresses and one elephant.

There were mob scenes, magnificent costumes and the color was gorgeous. Unfortunately, it was a ridiculous plot, it was embarrassingly written, badly executed and contained more violence for violence's sake than anything I've ever seen on TV.

ABC dropped into its channel Tuesday night for one new contribution this season to the western field, Stagecoach West is in the classic mould, but seems like a pleasant change, and it has some special appeal: The standard tall skinny, handsome young hero; the standard older man with appealing motherless son, who in turn has a cute, pug-nosed mongrel dog. This one can't fail.

According to audience ratings for last week, the only new show which has jumped into the top 10 is NBC's Thriller, and that shares eighth place with CBS' long-playing G.E. Theatre.

Gunsmoke and Wagon Train were the top two, as usual. And the last Alfred Hitchcock Presents' show for CBS (and a dandy, by the way) landed in the No. 6 spot. But the latter didn't

The Tracks

TORONTO (CP)—Oil Can, a candidate for next Monday's $25,000 Breeders' Stakes, scored an easy victory in Tuesday's featured Newton Plate at New Woodbine.

Oil Can, ridden by Avelino Gomez, defeated Dart Art by eight lengths, running the six furlongs in 1.13 over a slow track. Crostan, which had been shipped from New York to run in the colors of Raymond Guest, former U.S. polo International, finished third.

Oil Can, owned by Frank Wesley of Toronto and trained by Morris Fishman, gained his fourth win in 14 starts this season. It was on the strength of his fifth place that his owner decided to nominate him for the Breeders' Stakes which is the final "triple crown" event of the Canadian season.

Goomer didn't waste any time in taking Oil Can into the lead. He was nearly coasting through the final furlong. He paid $4.10, $3.80 and $2.60.

Tuesday's daily double paid $33.60 when Tom Gal and Di-Tan won the first two races. The quinella on Tom Gal and Chop O'Lark in the fifth race paid $47.70.

Riders May Shuffle Team For Larks

OTTAWA (CP)—Ottawa Rough Riders, rocked by their first loss this Big Four football season to Hamilton Tiger-Cats, will work on pass defence and may shuffle the lineup for the Saturday tilt against Montreal Alouettes in the Delta Stadium Thanksgiving game here.

Coach Frank Clair dispensed with a holiday Monday and worked the squad hard while indications that he might have some changes. Pass defence will get attention.

One possibility is the use of linebacker Hon Kone, acquired from Saskatchewan Roughriders, to replace Larry Hayes. End Bill Swiacki is expected to be ready again—for limited use—after recovering from a shoulder separation and lineman Freddie Hamilton may be back.

Lineman Merv Collins is in through for the season and will be operated on Thursday to mend a right-knee cartilage. Adolphus Frazier, given a trial in Saturday's 27-18 loss to Hamilton, probably will give way to tested back Joe Kelly. Halfback Gerry may also be given a rest after two games.

General Tendencies: You are under unusually good aspects for making any changes that you have not yet gotten around to for some time past, but that you have not yet gotten around to putting into effect. The use of much tact, diplomacy and subtlety and whatever organizing ability you especially have is a must for best present results.

Aries (March 21 to April 19) — Be sure you listen to the fine suggestions a member of your clan has to offer and then follow through with them for early and satisfying results. You can command a far better income than you thought possible. Labor diligently.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) — By conversing at length with associates and friends you get the data and backing you need at this time. Don't be afraid to express your desires and ambitions. P.M. fine for going out socially and having a very good time.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) — You are enthused now to collect what monies are owed you and also to increase regular pay or income. Do just that and know peace of mind abounds. Tonight is fine for going out and about on the town, nightclubbing, etc.

Moon Children (June 22 to July 21) — You have desired to do, possibly, or gain some goal, for quite some time, and this is the day when you can have success in such an endeavor, provided you are accompanied by one who can pull strings. P.M. fine for sociability.

effective in the 1961 shipping season.

Under the old agreement, the basic monthly wage rate for deckhands was $215. The agreement expired Dec. 31, 1959.

The union originally asked for a one-year contract, a 15-per-cent wage increase and a 35-hour week.

After the strike against the Paterson line, the four other lines in the Lake Carriers Association — Bethlehem Steel Corporation, Port Colborne, Upper Great Lakes Shipping Limited, Hamilton, Hall Corporation of Canada and Carryors Limited, both of Montreal—began tying up their fleets to counter the union's action.

Mr. Duquette said Tuesday night "terms of the offer will start moving tonight, others by tomorrow night and the remainder by Thursday night at the latest."

The agreement was signed by Canadian SIU director Hal Banks and Ira McEwan, secretary of the association.

It also provides for a five-per-cent wage increase for all those at work on a retroactive basis and at the beginning of the 1961 season, time-and-a-half pay for Saturday afternoon work and a time-and-a-half provision for statutory holidays.

The SIU said it had authorized membership to strike against all five members of the association, but had called the strike against only one because "we do not wish to be accused of cooperating the Canadian economy."

Mr. Duquette served as mediator when a negotiations was launched at the start of this year's shipping season but the talks broke down. He was reappointed last week.

Lumber workers breathed easier after the settlement.

A prolonged strike could have cut off the supply of western feed grain to the central and Atlantic provinces. The farm demand for feed in the East is at its highest peak in three years.

H. R. Hamaan, president of the Canadian Federation of Agriculture, said that the settlement was "good news for producers both in the East and the West."

He added that even before the strike began last week it had become apparent that there was a shortage of oats available at the Lakehead for export east, and eastern grain terminals were filled largely with export wheat.

Trustees Want To Abolish School Holiday

BRANTFORD (CP)—Abolition of the school holiday for Remembrance Day, Nov. 11, was urged Tuesday by the Public School Trustees' Association of Ontario.

A resolution passed at the annual convention here said a special remembrance service in each school would sufficiently emphasize the significance of the day.

One delegate suggested the influence of the Canadian Legion would block any change.

In support of the resolution, it was suggested that children probably do not attend proper services when schools are closed.

A resolution from the Ontario Federation of Home and School Associations calling for civil defence and first aid instruction in the schools was defeated.

The association instead asked the education department to arrange for CD and first aid training for student teachers and that local education boards provide disaster training for school children.

ASK INSURANCE

Also approved was a resolution that the association petition the provincial health department to provide hospital insurance coverage for students at recognized educational institutions.

Delegates passed a motion that the government reinstate the elementary reading tests, which were recently replaced by a single new series, until a wider choice of new tests is available.

It was decided to ask the Ontario Trustees Association to petition the education department to continue pupil attendance grants when pupils are kept from school by what might be termed an act of God.

South African Republicans Likely Victors

Anti-Republicans' Lead Cut, Await Rural Vote

JOHANNESBURG (AP) — A diminishing lead for anti-republicans indicated today that South Africans have voted to keep their country within the British Crown.

The forces opposing nationalist Prime Minister Hendrik Verwoerd's plan to turn the British Commonwealth nation into a republic still clung to a lead of 16,000 votes with 86 of the 156 districts reported. But many heavily nationalist rural districts have yet to be heard from.

United party leader Sir de Villiers Graaff, who led the anti-republicans, had not yet conceded defeat and Verwoerd had not yet claimed a victory.

Dutch-born Verwoerd has declared that he will consider a majority of only one vote a mandate to submit to the nationalist-controlled Parliament legislation to turn South Africa into a republic, thus forfeiting as elected president for Queen Elizabeth II as chief of state and repudiating the British sovereign only as head of the Commonwealth.

Police Tried To Intercept Suicide Victim

VANCOUVER (CP) — Deputy Police Chief Gordon Ambrose said Wednesday that the police force attempted to intercept a man who had threatened to jump off Lions Gate Bridge.

He was commenting on reports that police had failed to try to stop Kenneth Kotchor, 29, who is presumed drowned after he leaped from the bridge Tuesday.

Mrs. Kotchor was reported as saying she called police to warn of the suicide attempt and a constable said: "Let him go ahead and jump."

Deputy Chief Ambrose said he had received a full report on the incident and was satisfied that there were no irregularities in the handling of the incident.

Mrs. Kotchor, expecting her ninth child, said her husband was despondent after losing his job as a mechanic and having their furniture seized because payments hadn't been kept on time.

Mrs. Kotchor said police would have had plenty of time to stop her husband because he stopped at the entrance to the park and telephoned his mother.

Mrs. Kotchor said four of her eight children, ranging in age from two to nine, are being cared for by the Children's Aid in Sudbury.

Motion Made To Have Search Quashed

OTTAWA (CP) — Validity of a search warrant allowing the RCMP to seize documents in the offices of a Regina law firm was challenged Wednesday in a hearing in chambers before Chief Justice Emmett Hall.

The search was produced by police Tuesday when they visited the firm of Shumiatcher, Moss and Lieberman to obtain documents for the Saskatchewan attorneys-general's department.

Police searched the offices for about three hours before the legal firm made application before the chief justice to have the search warrant quashed.

RCMP said they were looking for documents relating to criminal charges against Dr. M. C. Shumiatcher, senior partner in the firm.

The lawyer is to appear in court Oct. 24 on charges under which allege he counselled or procured certain people to give false evidence before the Saskatchewan securities commission.

NON-OPS RILED AT RAILWAY UNION MEETING

Many Began Booing, Shouting at Speaker

WINNIPEG (CP) — A meeting of non-operating railwaymen to hear their chief negotiator, Frank Hall, closed abruptly Wednesday night after many of the 1,300 men and their wives began booing and shouting.

Somebody in the audience had asked permission to read a three minute paper he had prepared to speech meeting chairman George Patterson began to speak an-other member of the audience told him to sit down.

"You've got nothing to say Patterson, sit down," the unidentified member said. There was shouting and catcalls. Mr. Patterson ordered the meeting closed about 30 minutes sooner than expected.

Mr. Hall was speaking at the first of a series of mass meetings in Canada in which issues of the non-operators' strike will be outlined to union members.

The union launched a strike ballot after Canada's two major railways rejected a conciliation recommendation for a 14-cent-an-hour wage increase for non-operating employees. The union, which had asked for 25 cents an hour, had accepted the board's recommendation.

After Mr. Hall's hour-long speech, delegates from the

Reorganization Of Cabinet Will Come Tuesday

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker said today the reorganization of the cabinet will take place on Tuesday.

Mr. Diefenbaker said he has entered a morning cabinet meeting on that day and reorganization will be coupled with the appointment of a new lieutenant-governor for British Columbia.

Three cabinet portfolios are vacant — secretary of state, forestry and veterans affairs.

The prime minister said there will be no announcement today.

He set a date for the next session of Parliament. He remarked that Opposition leader Pearson earlier this year had predicted the session would end around Christmas but in a TV broadcast Wednesday night he decided next there should be one.

Pace Begins to Tell on Khrushchev As Jokes Are Fewer, Bounce Slower

NEW YORK (AP) — Soviet Premier Khrushchev is finally beginning to show the strain of waging a day-and-night propaganda offensive against the West in the United States.

The 66-year-oil Soviet premier seems to have lost some of the bounce that has been the hallmark of communism's No. 1 salesman.

He is grimly pressing ahead with his one-man crusade. But he has begun to fail to tell one even his robust physique.

Wednesday night for the first time since arriving here he showed definite signs of being tired. He cracked fewer jokes, shook fewer hands and bragged less about the virtues of communism as he moved—just a bit slower than usual—through three diplomatic receptions.

His normally pink complexion seemed less ruddy. Security and other aides hovered around him solicitously as he himself himself 1867, should be brought up to date and in line with the realities of the 1960s.

However, the provisions of the original constitutional pact of 1867 should be protected.

Mr. Roberts declined direct comment on reports that the federal government may propose a two-stage approach, first an Ottawa conference after which parliament should be given the amending power held by the United Kingdom Parliament and, later, agreement as to the amendments should be carried out.

Mr. Roberts said he feels the climate is more favorable for the federal-provincial conference. The last constitutional conference in 1950 failed to reach agreement on the central issue.

Premier Robichaud, New Brunswick attorney-general, said he "thinks the whole thing (the constitution) should be reviewed and streamlined for the 1960's," he said.

He expressed confidence the conference can be successful. "men of goodwill get together, and all the attorneys-general are men of goodwill."

Paul Gerin-Lajoie, Quebec minister of youth heading his province's delegation, expressed hope the conference will result in agreement, but declined to state Quebec's views in detail before presenting them to the conference.

After Losing Defence Vote, Gaitskell Wins Old Battle

SCARBOROUGH, England (CP) — The Labor party today cast aside its backing for nationalization of industry in favor of broader socialist concepts.

The decision represented a surprising victory for Hugh Gaitskell, the party leader who suffered a setback Wednesday when the party defeated his defence policy.

The 1,261 delegates at the party's annual conference, voting the strength of the organizations they represented, took their decision this way:

1. By a vote of 4,153,000 to 2,310,000 they supported a statement of aims by the executive committee. This defined party goals as something broader than the old demand for full public

Cuba Is Invaded by 27 Men, Land in Old Castro Hideout

HAVANA (AP) — An invasion force from the United States has landed in east Cuba and headed into the mountains after suffering three casualties in the initial skirmishes, the armed forces ministry announced today.

A ministry communique said the landing was made by 27 men, including three Americans, "at dawn yesterday" on a bay mid-way between the towns of Baracoa and Moa, the site of a nationalized American mining company.

The area is in Oriente province, the revolutionary stamping ground of Prime Minister Fidel Castro.

The communique was undated and it was not specified whether the reported landing was Tuesday or Wednesday. The battle apparently occurred a few hours after the landing.

The commander of the invasion force was killed and two of the invaders captured, the ministry said. The commander was identified as Armentino Feria, a Spaniard and former senator Rolando Masferrer. Masferrer, a wealthy Cuban, is the deposed Cuban dictator Fulgencio Batista, is a refugee in the United States.

The remainder of the invading group, with 50 Cuban farmers as hostages, were reported to have reached an area called Nuevo Mundo. Rebel forces, the ministry millitiamen and local supporters in pursuit.

The invaders landed at dawn, the communique said. It reported they carried with them a large American flag, three pack mules, three U.S. Army uniforms and various documents, all of which were seized by the militiamen.

Summary that supporters of the former Fulgencio Batista regime had planned a landing have existed here for weeks. One version told of a well-armed men who ceeded in landing in central Cuba and joined the other insurgents-who had up to 1,000 men—in the mountains.

Good Positions For Technicians In Congoland

MONTREAL (CP)— High-paying jobs in a nice, warm climate were offered by the International Civil Aviation Organization Wednesday to radio operators and technicians who can speak French and put up with a little primitive living.

ICAO, an organization associated with the United Nations, said radio operators, mechanics, and airport electricians are needed in the Congo.

It offered basic salaries of $6,-625 a year or more, plus a living allowance of $20 a day. The terms of Congo independence call for a minimum annual air-port to $18,000 a year.

The salaries are paid by ICAO, not the Congolese government.

2 TORONTO MEN RECEIVED $7,000 'SIGNING BONUS'

Bank Manager Tells Of Sale of Plant

BRANDON, Man. (CP) — A Brandon bank manager said Wednesday last year Toronto men received a $7,000 "signing bonus" when they purchased Brandon Packers Limited with the company's own money.

John English, manager of the Imperial Bank branch here, told a judicial inquiry that Hugh P. Jones and D. Hubert Cox received the proceeds of a $200,000 Brandon Packers cheque signed by J. C. Donaldson, former major shareholder. Mr. Donaldson testified Mr. Aldson $183,500 from it and had the balance transferred to Toronto.

The inquiry was ordered by the Manitoba government after Brandon Packers was hit by a six-month wages strike earlier this year. It is being conducted by Mr. Justice G. S. Tritschler of the Manitoba Court of Queen's Bench.

WON'T APPEAR

Campbell Company Co-manager Gilbert Adams told Mr. Justice Tritschler that Mr. Donaldson and Mr. Cox will not appear before the hearing. Mr. Adams also said the two men will not allow the inquiry to examine National Trust Company books concerning a Brandon Packers bond issue which raised $1,000,000.

Mr. English said Brandon Packers had 2,000 shares of Propak investments, owned by Mr. Cox and Mr. Peters, for $300,000. Mr. Peters and Mr. Cox

Neutrals Lose Drive To Have Ike Meet Mr. K

Withdraw Their Motion After UN Modifies It

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP) The drive in the United Nations assembly to bring President Eisenhower and Premier Khrushchev to the conference table failed early today, and five neutralist nations withdrew their resolution urging a U.S.-Soviet summit meeting.

Both Eisenhower and Khrushchev had made clear they did not want to meet. The neutralists gave up after the assembly voted to delete specific reference to the two government heads from the resolution and call merely for the United States and Russia to resume diplomatic negotiations.

Indian Prime Minister Nehru, one of the resolution's prime movers, said that Eisenhower contacts between the United States and Russia had not been severed off and the resolution as amended was thus meaningless.

DRAFTED UNDER STRESS

In sombre tones, as he announced withdrawal of the proposal, Nehru said:

"That resolution was drafted under great stress and feeling. All over the world, people will be looking to the United Nations to give them a lead indicating some steps to get out of the present grave world tensions. Grave responsibility rests on the United Nations and on its every member to make efforts."

But the resolution as amended, he said, "now lacks the dynamism we thought this situation required."

The five sponsors were India, Indonesia, Ghana, United Arab Republic and Yugoslavia.

Assembly delegates were relieved by the action. Eisenhower had indicated strongly that he did not want to see Khrushchev. However, diplomats felt that it would have been difficult for the president to refuse a UN request—considering the 9-power conferences had voted for it.

VOTE ALMOST DOWN

Earlier, the assembly also voted down an Australian amendment calling for a summit conference of the leaders of the United States, Russia, Britain and France. The vote was 44 for, 44 against, five for, with 44 abstentions.

The voting deleting the specific reference in the neutralist resolution to the U.S. and Russia and the Soviet premier was 41 in favor, 41 against, with 17 abstentions. The U.S.-Soviet reference got the two-thirds necessary for adoption.

The Soviet bloc abstained on both votes. Canada voted in favor of the Australian amendment and against retention of the reference to Eisenhower and Khrushchev.

Khrushchev had also shown his opposition to talking with Eisenhower by his walkout Monday when he knew the president would not be present. Apparently unconcerned about the outcome of either the neutralist resolution or the Australian amendment, the Soviet leader did not attend the long, wrangling debate in the assembly.

Nehru will be busied himself playing ball-fellow-well-met at reception given by Queen Elizabeth and Romania. He invited Prince Norodom Sihanouk, head of the Cambodian government, to visit him in Moscow. The prince did not immediately accept.

COUNTEROFFENSIVE

The West meanwhile mounted a counteroffensive against Soviet manoeuvres in and out of the UN.

Eisenhower invited ace of the

Would Be Only 15-Minute Warning If Atomic Missile Fired at Canada

ARNPRIOR (CP)—If a missile with an atomic warhead were fired at Canada the country would have only a 15 - minute warning of the attack, Brig.-Gen. J. Mal.-Gen. A. E. Wrinch, head of the army's emergency survival section, told a group of Atlantic provinces mayors and reeves in Fredericton, Wednesday.

Gen. Wrinch told the 60 municipal officials on the second day of a five-day civil-defence course that work will start within the next year or so" on a sprinkling Canada with more than 2,000 "nuclear detonation and fallout reporting centres."

Gen. Wrinch, whose primary concern is the saving of civilian lives in a nuclear attack, said preparedness is the answer. Millions of lives could be saved, he said, by the use of fallout shelters. Hundreds of thousands of more lives could be saved by an all-level government civil defence plan and the existence in emergency of a well-trained volunteer force.

Gen. Wrinch said that three of the reporting posts will be located in each of Canada's five major land areas." A chain of some 2,200 fallout reporting posts will be installed throughout the United areas to measure radioactivity and to detect nuclear explosions.

Gen. Wrinch said the army's role in a national emergency would be to:

Warn the public of attack; determine locations of bombing and plotting of radioactive fallout; assess damage and casualties; re-establish bombed areas for rescue operations; direct police and firemen; provide communications, and direct restoration of water services, and sewage facilities.

Supreme Court Must Decide

OTTAWA (CP)—The Supreme Court of Canada was asked Wednesday by rule whether private citizens should be empowered as peeping toms.

Prosecutor investigators, Tony Petrie and Donald Andsten, Toronto, charged that they were prosecuted they'll no longer be able to gather evidence for divorce cases.

Petrie and Andsten were charged in Vancouver last year with loitering at night without lawful excuse on the lawn of Martha Beskeritis. The charge was laid under Section 167 of the Criminal Code as approved by Parliament in 1955.

Supreme Police Magistrate W. J. Eartman of Vancouver acquitted the accused, stating that they had a lawful excuse for being on the property of Mrs. Beskeritis. They were on the property by request of their duties as investigators for Mrs. Beskeritis, who was seeking grounds for divorce against his wife.

They were later convicted on appeal by the Crown.

Tackles Bandit Who Had Shotgun

MARDEN (CP) — An armed bandit who made an unsuccessful attempt to rob a service station operator at midnight was the object of a police hunt today. The bandit is three miles north of Guelph.

The thug, who drove into the station, pulled a shotgun on owner Alvin McIntosh with the warning "I'll shoot her if you don't."

Mr. McIntosh grabbed the barrel of the gun as it was pressed to his ribs and held it in the air as he wrestled the bandit.

"He had his finger on the trigger and I thought the weapon would discharge", said Mr. McIntosh.

During the struggle a motorist drove into the station and the gunman jumped into his car and fled in the direction of Fergus.

Winter Building More Costly Say Builders

Members of the Quinte House Builders' Association disagree that winter building can be done as cheaply as during the warmer weather, but at the same time feel that the government could subsidize certain aspects of winter building to make it more economical.

At the monthly dinner meeting of the Association held at the Club Canara last evening, members had a lengthy discussion on winter construction, the consensus being that it was a costly effort.

It was suggested that a letter go to Ottawa urging the government to subsidize certain winter time construction costs so as to make it more appealing to the builder. It was felt a subsidy toward the manufacture of large plastic canopies under which winter house construction is done, and rebate of tax on oil used in heaters in the temperatures allowing winter construction, would encourage more builders to carry on house construction during winter.

"We are greatly concerned over the unemployment situation and feel that government subsidy as suggested by our association could mean extension of the building season," an official of the local Association said.

Maurice Rollins was named the new president of the Quinte House Builders' Association, succeeding Earl Deadlie, last year's prexy. Vice presidents are Len Farrell and Howard Thomson with Kenneth Dunnberry as secretary treasurer.

New directors are Jack Sills, Doug Bone, Doug Black, Pat Halloran, Camille Lougoutee and Henry Hatfield.

would not merely limit itself to nationalizing industry but buy shares in private enterprises to finance welfare measures; extend the sovereignty of the co-operative movement and seek by various means to ensure that the "commanding heights of the economy" were under public control.

The approved executive committee statement rejects racial discrimination, colonialism, economic exploitation of one country by another and inequality of opportunity for the individuals of Society.

WINNING UNCERTAIN

From early reactions to Wednesday's leftist victory over Gaitskell's defence policy, it was difficult to tell which side of the badly-split party had finished on top.

Supporters of unilateral disarmament, which Gaitskell unsuccessfully fought in Wednesday's defence debate at the party's annual conference here, appeared subdued. They constantly reminded one another that they still have many more battles to fight.

The party's right-wingers, on the other hand, turned out of the conference hall feeling they had won a victory and spoke confidently of reversing the decision at the earliest opportunity.

PAVOR LOSES OUT

The party voted in favor of having Britain go-it-alone in renouncing nuclear weapons. The big block votes of some of the British trade unions were decisive against the official policy which pledges loyalty to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization based on the nuclear deterrent of the United States.

When the votes were counted, the largest single policy for the anti-Gaitskell forces on any issue was 3,000,000 votes out of a total of 6,000,000. This fell far short of the two-thirds majority needed to force a change in official policy.

After listening to Gaitskell's speech, in which he promised to continue the fight to reverse the decision, some trade union delegates commented that they would have supported him if they had been given the chance.

It is the parliamentary party that holds in its hands the fate of Gaitskell as the party's leader.

There were reports that Gaitskell might ask for a vote of confidence from his fellow-MPs next month and then call for the contest to be reconvened to reconsider his defence verdict.

In a statement Wednesday night, he said: "I could not possibly accept a policy of unilateral disarmament or neutralism for Britain which I believe would be profoundly dangerous for the peace of the world and the safety of our country."

By 2,282,000 delegates' votes to 2,229,000, the convention backed a resolution sponsored by Gaitskell's arch rival, Frank Cousins, head of the Transport Workers Union, which has 1,000,000 votes.

The Gaitskell motion provided for rejection of any defence policy based on the threat to use strategic or tactical nuclear weapons.

Education, the Individual and Society

Arnold Edinborough, editor of Saturday Night and a former professor at Queen's University, recently expressed the opinion that it is a "dishonest use" of public funds for students to go to university for vocational training. His argument is that the funds obtained from taxpayers and allotted to universities should be used to produce leaders in the community, the country and the professions.

In one sense we are inclined to agree with him. Public funds for assistance to students are to universities should not be used to support an individual whose only concern regarding education is to qualify himself for a good salary or position following his graduation. Such funds should be used to assist those who will repay their community with interest, not in so many dollars and cents but in that more important revenue, service and leadership.

On the other hand, how is one to determine which student will, in his post-graduate years, be an asset to his community and country? There are, of course, students who may be recognized as potential leaders in community life but there are others who can be recognized as "loners" who will make out well for themselves in business or industry. There are also others, and we suspect the majority of students will fall into this class, whose potential worth to the county as leaders will not be assessed until after they have experienced the maturing influence of university life.

Then, too, there is the argument that even if a person is primarily self-centred in his ambitions his actions can influence the lives of those in his community and his personal success can mean benefits for others which they might not otherwise have obtained.

To us this means but one conclusion. The awarding of financial aid to students from public funds will have to depend almost entirely upon the merits of the individual at the time that he requires such assistance, with but a fond hope that his experiences at university will bring to a point of social maturity that he or she will realize and accept his responsibilities as an active citizen in the affairs of his community and country following his graduation.

This is at best a gamble but it is also an expression of our faith in the forthcoming generation and in the ability of ourselves to bring up our youth to accept their civic responsibilities, inadequate though our examples may be at times.

Our society is still founded on the worth and integrity of the individual and his ability to advance himself by complementing, not conflicting with, the efforts of other individuals in the community. This is the peculiar strength of a free people in that the social structure conforms to the actions of the individuals within it, not that the individuals should have to conform to the social structure ordained by some arbitrary governing force.

We should not attempt to hinder this pattern by trying to forecast which individual will do the most for our society and then give him all the assistance. This is too much like creating a ruling class. Let the individual find his own place in our society and let us give him all the assistance to do so when he is in need of it.

Society exists for the individual, not the individual for society, in a free and democratic nation.

A Dirty Trick

J. W. Temple, regional director of the Unemployment Insurance Commission at Toronto, has explained one of the causes of the rapid depletion of the jobless fund. Fashionably attired women turn themselves into frumps. "They show up here dressed up like pages out of Vogue to register for jobs, and then show up for the interview with their hair in curlers, sweaters and rumpled clothes. Naturally they don't get hired and they march right back to claim their monthly cheques."

The Unemployment Insurance Commission ought to take photographs of these women, in their "frump" clothes, and arrange for publication.

Or, in the alternative, the courts could sentence these "ladies" to wear their interview attire for a year.

STRENGTH FOR THE DAY

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

WARMTH OF THE HAND

An opal is what is called a sympathetic jewel. Lying in the palm of the hand it appears to be without matter of substance. It has no beauty at all, but if placed in the hollow of one's hand and held there for a few minutes it gleams with a new splendor. It needs to be gripped and warmed by hand to bring out its wonderful beauty.

When Peter and John healed the lame man at the gate of the temple which was called Beautiful, they declared that while they had neither silver nor gold to give, they would give him such as they had. Their gift was healing, but with the healing they gave the man the right hand of fellowship and lifted him to his feet.

There is a great deal of religion in the hand—in the clasp of a handshake, in the touch of someone in sorrow, the hand that lifts a burden from another's shoulders, or leading us day by day into higher things. There is nothing like fellowship for making the heart of man shine with glory.

And when that fellowship is the fellowship of God, when we yield to Him and feel his hand lifting the burden from our shoulders, or leading us day by day along life's hard pathway, then indeed do we know ourselves to be sustained.

Not Our Cup of Rosy

By H. S. Harwood in the Christian Science Monitor

Visitors to London sooner or later began to wonder if they actually speak or understand the English language. They gradually does a foreign ear become attuned to the sense of the strange sounds emitted by persons here who are supposedly talking as they are speaking if not the King's English, at least English. It is especially hard for the newcomer to grasp Cockney rhyming slang. The Cockney says "Use your loaf" — from loaf of bread — when he rhymes with head. If you do not know the private code you really are lost, you see. Here are some other examples:

Stairs are "apples and pears" Money is "bees and honey"; a hat is a "tile"—rhyming with "tile and tat". A cup of tea (aside from "char") is a cup of "you and me" or even a "cup of Rosie", and "Rosie" is short for "Rosy Lee" — sky" for skyrocket. Naturally father's name is "Dicky Bird". A walk is a " ball of chalk". A pot is a "Walter Scott". A stool is a "Aristotle", and a table is "Cain and Abel".

It takes a quick wit to manufacture on the spot the special patois—and a keen ear indeed to decipher it rapidly enough to follow it. Even the late Professor Julian Franklyn has been interviewed on the BBC to explain how Cockney talk to draw up a fascinating "Dictionary of Rhyming Slang" which includes the rhymes already cited and adds many more.

For instance, "mince pie" is "eye", "Bramley tart" is heart", "Chevy Chase" (not a place just outside Washington, DC, cut probably derived from a little of an old English ballad or drama about a hero, "Bernie Fair" is hair, and "I suppose" is nose.

The Cockneys themselves are those Londoners born within earshot of the bells of St. Mary-le-Bow Church — not to be confused with the belfs of St. Clement's which say oranges-and-lemons. The term "Cockney" itself apparently is derived from "cock-egg" a forthright old term for male fowls. Country folk long ago regarded town or city-bred people people ignorant of country ways, as "cock-eggy" fools, and therefore called them Cockneys. It was only later that a reversal occurred and the country man became a bumpkin to the city slicker.

The Cockneys not only employ their rhyming slang as a bid of one-upmanship, but their astonishing pronunciation of letters. They avoid the "th" altogether, changing it to "f" and "v" and sprinkling in extra "r's" for good measure. Thus "thing" becomes "ting", father and mother become "farver" and "murver", butter and cottage become "bu-er" and "co-age". Other variations are "dirty" for "dirty" and "yeah" for shout. "Bullock's horn" is Cockney slang for "morning", but they avoid it pronounce the "mawning".

If you have any such careful attention you should have no trouble in deciphering the 19th sonnet quoted by Mr. Franklyn:

Now a tear-drop fell from the eye of Sorrow
"And her raspberry tart was hollow,
"With anguish; for she had an empty sky,
"And she'd nothing to bullock's horn.
"She could she cooled each mince with a little scent
"And her Barnet arranged with a dainty comb
"And then down the apples and pears she went
"With a sorrowful Chevy Chase.

But I defy you to pronounce it like a Cockney would. Jingle, of course, you're a Cockney.

Strictly Personal

A Sly Liar Escapes His Teacher's Eye

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Purely Personal Prejudices:

The tragedy of a great moral leader is always the same—that people prefer to hear a much time praising him they feel this relieves them from the responsibility of practising what he preaches; in advocacy, he offers a gruelling substitute for imitation.

It is significant that the best composers are those who write their greatest music either for a solo instrument or for a small chamber group, because the burden of meaning that it is possible to say is more than the few voices than with a great many.

Curtness and candor are more a bland and hypocritical behavior. Alexander Pope objected to when he complained to a friend, "I am guilty of a hundred good symptoms".

The vulgarity of the newly cultured is as repellant as the ostentation of the newly rich; and I see little difference between the conspicuous display of one's artistic knowledge and the conspicuous display of one's material wealth.

It seems a pity that teachers are so easily able to detect and punish only those students who are clumsy and obvious liars, whereas they are the most redecessful. The cleverest and most smoothly proficient liar who passes all the trouble in later life.

Why is it that a woman who is perfectly willing to sell domestic virtue will remove the ashtrays for washing and "forget" to replace them? Is this some unconscious revolt against the dirty habit of smoking?

The danger in such fields of endeavor as social work is that the individual soon gets into the habit of regarding people in terms of "cases" or "problems", and is rendered fatal to a sympathetic understanding and effective handling of personal difficulties.

It is always the sign of an intellectual bore that he slops over his way in his rambling to say, "To make a long story short . . ." after he has already taken too long. A good anecdote cannot be made better, and should not be shortened.

The word who lecture their children ought to remember Bernard Shaw's advice: "If you must hold yourself up to your children as an object-lesson (which is not at all necessary), hold yourself up as a warning, and not as an example."

Restaurants, drugstores and the like seem curiously ignorant of fact that much of the goodwill they try to build up in various ways is dissipated by the rudeness women they often hire as cashiers.

Our sentimentalizing of sacred holidays is typified by a devout man I know who so far forgot himself that, as he left a group, he turned and called out: "Happy Good Friday!"

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

October 8th, 1940

Culminating a most successful season on their golf links, officers and members of the Bay of Quinte Country Club honored the club champions and runners-up of the year at a closing dance and distribution of prizes in the clubhouse last night. The club champion for 1940 is Ron Bowerman, newspaper of recent years with the club. He defeated Joseph Kirkwood in the club finals. "Buster" Algeo, genial Trenton golfer, won the club handicap, defeating O. H. Scott in the finals. S. H. Burrows won the Hall Memorial trophy, while the Jewellers' cup for mixed two-ball foursomes was won by Miss Joyce Perritt and David Johnston. In the junior competition Ralph Graham was declared champion. In the second flight, Jackson, Jim Jenkins defeated his brother Ray to win the title in the finals. The ladies club champion, for the Coates Cup, Miss Mary Hagerman, defeating Mrs. Parker.

At the regular meeting of the Corby Public Library Board on Friday evening at which there was a full attendance of members, Miss Kathleen Gallagher of the library staff was appointed chief librarian. Miss Gallagher, who is a graduate of Library School, University of Toronto, has been assistant librarian. Miss Olive Delaney, also a graduate of Library School, University of Toronto, was promoted to the position of assistant librarian. At the report of September's activities submitting was the item that one hundred and sixty-two new subscribers had joined the library, the highest number on record for a similar period.

Goose Story From Britain

The Times of London

Every now and then an item of news, insignificant in itself, touches us on a train of fascinating but fruitless speculation. One of these occurred in the east Sussex Courier at the beginning of September.

One of the thirteen Canadian geese which took off from a Sandhurst pond in June and fail ed to return is believed to be on its way home.

At first sight there is nothing very noteworthy about this succinct report. A second reading, however, reveals a story strange and indeed almost disquieting features.

Nothing could sound more authoritative than "is believed" It conjures up visions of the foreign office spokesman, of unsatisfy wail-inference.

But why should so weighty a formula be used here to sanctify the flight of a thirteenth goose? probable the more closely one examines it?

The thirteenth goose has been missing for over two months now, suddenly, it is "believed to be on its way home to Canada. But although Canadian geese originally came from France, they have long established the habit of other parts of the world; the chances that one out of a gaggle of 13 head in Kent would suddenly detach itself and return to the land of its ancestors are astronomically remote.

It is difficult not to feel that the whole fishy (or goosey) story must have been inspired, though with what motive it is much more difficult to conjecture.

Elsenhower Makes Quip

St. Catharines Standard

Reminded that in another month he would be the oldest man in American history ever to serve as president of the United States, President Eisenhower replied that he was glad he was old.

Pressed for his reason, the President replied: "Well, considering the day I was born, if I wasn't old I'd be dead."

Thus simply did Eisenhower point out that old age is a state of mind. Apparently he does not concern a man engaged in doing his duty as he sees it for his nation.

To Your Good Health

By Joseph G. Molner, M.D.

STUTTERER SHOULD RELAX BEFORE SOUNDING TROUBLESOME LETTERS

"Dear Dr. Molner: I either inherited or developed a stutter. Because of it I have been considered somewhat ill. Some people know I have stuttered and overcome it.

"For many years I could talk without stuttering on occasional blunder. Now I am having trouble again, mostly with the letter "I".

"I am married and could work to support myself and my 80-year-old mother. My work doesn't require much talking, but I hate to be considered a lunatic because of this slight condition. And I have noticed that other people flub a letter now and then, and they don't seem disturbed.

"I had my father when I was 10, and in grade school, so my speech did not cause me difficulties. In learning, I can read and understand as well as the next one. My father, mother and uncle took a very dim view of giving me any kind of attention. In fact my aunt tried to have me put in an asylum when I was 16.

"The doctors remarked that my people were just trying to get rid of me. My mother was the first one to see through it. She always knows what is going on in my head, and they don't seem disturbed.

"I have written and read and written to me because of a reference I made id stuttering. There seems to be no response. Not for my advice, but only an eloquent plea for understanding.

Stuttering is by no means a sign of being mentally ill. Indeed many stutterers are highly sensitive people. There are signs that the tendency to exhibit this sensitivity may indeed be the cause of stuttering. The individual thinks so fast and so far in advance of what he wants to say that the mechanics of speech when the physical act of speaking don't keep up. On such is the plausible hypothesis based.

Stuttering is a physical manifestation of nervousness. An unwanted child, frustrated in what he wanted, may try so hard to please that he becomes the child of whom too much is expected may also, by trying too hard, stutter. Or a child brought up in an atmosphere of tension of some sort may develop nervous habits. There are any number of possibilities.

Sheer will power isn't too likely to cure stuttering, because it increases the tension. More likely to help, if the patient can do it, is relaxing a bit. Taking things easier. If you realize that a little pause before saying a letter isn't really important, you relax and things come easier!

I wonder if that might not be only a little distance away at any time. Perhaps we have our favorite Star? Perhaps it is only when it does seem as though we flood upon a cloud.

All sorts of the Earth are revealed to that one who has the capacity for imagination, the mind, the rain, the clouds—each has its place in the Universe.

Israel Helps Moslem Lands

Milwaukee Journal

Israel is a small country which is cut off from the United States. But Israel has its own foreign aid program, too, to the extent of dispatching technical experts in various fields of development to 23 different countries whose leaders might be expected to follow the lead of the Arabs who hate Israel.

Israel has no large sums of money to give away and inflicts finance huge developments. But it has developed expertise which so many new nations need—ability to irrigate cheaply, to end erosion of the soil, to build cheap but adequate housing, to fight disease, to organize co-operatives and expand agriculture. In many cases Israel has established joint companies with African and Asian countries to further construction or mining and other projects.

This doesn't make the Arabs happy. Now comes the unkindest cut of all. Many Israeli institutions, having to deal with the Arab world, need people trained in Arabic. But the Arab nations refuse the teachers of Israel—they import. So Israel is offering to provide them and is negotiating with several African countries on the matter.

The Arabs haven't been able to infuse all their Moslem brothers with their hatred of Israel.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

To my eye, modern construction techniques as demonstrated in building of new Belleville Post Office buildings and apartments rise up as if by magic! And while you watch these modern prefabricated in the sense that a summer cottage is, yet it is apparent a lot of skilled specification goes into even the massive buildings downtown where one should be expected to look at least a generation.

It may be so, and those of us with twenty years still to live will find out. But when cities like New York and Chicago in the nineties and early nineteen hundreds were going through the same flush of expansion and we Canadian cities are by joying now, there were architects and construction men, inspired by the excitement of rapid growth, who thought up many principles of construction to meet the emergency. And while you have in those cities those endless blocks, dozens, scores of dreary, dull, grim, and terribly decayed tenements which, in their time were doubtless hailed as the very acme of safe manifestations of the civic spirit.

In most areas of human enterprise, fast up means fast down.

Force of Hunger

PALMER — GOOD

St. Paul's United Church, Stirling, was the setting on Saturday, October 1st, at 3 p.m. noon for a lovely, double-ring autumn wedding when Janet Anne Good, of Stirling, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Lewis Good became the bride of Robert James Palmer, of Barrie, Ont., son of Mr. and Mrs. James Palmer. The Rev. Reverend Dr. A. Fuckman, pastor of the church assisted by the Reverend Morris Rowland, of Brockville, officiated before a background of tall standards of white Shasta mums mingled with large white chrysanthemums. White satin bows marked the guest pews.

Miss Lawanda Davis of Marysville, accompanied by the church organist, Harry Brown, sang before the service, "The Lord's Prayer" and during the signing of the register "O Perfect Love."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was radiantly lovely in her full-length bridal gown of pure silk featuring an overblouse of pearl chiffon lace with all-over seed pearl trimmings, the tiny waist accented by a pleated cummerbund, while the gracefully gathered skirt was enhanced by delate appliques and seed pearls. She wore a crown style headdress with both the fingertip veil and headpiece matching the gown highlighted by seed pearls and carried a white Bibbs crested with a white orchid and white stephanotis in cascade effect.

She was attended by Mrs. David Vice of Ottawa, a sister, as matron of honor, and by Miss Mary Graham, of London, a cousin, and Mrs. Albert Thornton, of Toronto, a cousin of the bridegroom. All were gowned in sapphire velvet fashioned with smoothly fitted bodices having rounded necklines with deep back "V". The gathered skirts were topped at the waistlines by matching cummerbunds in peau de soie. Matching velvet bows were worn as headdresses with tiny veils, and they carried semi-cascades of blue and white carnations.

Mr. Frederick Palmer, of Stirling, attended the bridegroom, while Mr. David Vice, of Ottawa, and Mr. Albert Thornton of Toronto, were ushers.

The reception was held in the church parlors, where the bridal table was centred by a three-tier wedding cake, flanked by tall candelabra, with white candles, and surrounded by the bridal bouquets and small clusters of white baby 'mums and blue carnations.

The bride's mother received, wearing a pure silk sheath in turquoise blue embellished with iridescent sequins, cherry colored accessories, a Kolinsky stole, and corsage of Sweetheart roses.

The bridegroom's mother, attired in Italian brocade ensemble in the new Mocha shade, having a tucked neckline and tiny sleeves, waist-length fitted jacket with half back belt, three-quarter sleeves and tiny Peter Pan collar, with beige accessories, mink stole, and corsage of Talisman roses, assisted in the receiving line.

For the wedding trip to the Laurentide Mountains and Ste. Agathe-des-Monts, Quebec, the bride chose a chocolate-brown pure wool sheath with tiny jacket, green accessories and corsage of Talisman roses. Upon their return, Mr. and Mrs. Palmer will reside at 298 Dufferin Street, Barrie, Ontario.

Prior to marriage, the bride was entertained at a kitchen shower held at the home of Mrs. Karlheinz Mueller are shown singing the register in the Church of St. Michael the Archangel, Belleville, following their recent marriage. MUELLER — MARON

A very pretty autumn wedding was recently solemnized in the Church of St. Michael the Archangel, Belleville, when the Reverend Monsignor James C. Sullivan united in marriage Elli Giesela Maron, of Belleville, daughter of Mrs. Frieda Maron, of Toronto, to Karlheinz Mueller, of Belleville, son of Mr. William Mueller.

The traditional wedding music was rendered during the ceremony and the signing of the register.

The bride, given in marriage by Mr. Edmund Riech, her brother-in-law, was charming in her white Chantilly lace and net bridal gown, fashioned with fitted bodice having an oval lace accented neckline and long, "V"-pointed lace sleeves. The fully bouffant hooped skirt was of floor-length. She wore a coronet headdress of seed pearls and rhinestones, with waist-length lace-edged silk tulle illusion veil and carried a cascade bouquet centred by pink roses and surrounded by white stephanotis and net with white satin streamers. A single strand of pearls completed her costume.

Miss Anneliese Maron, of Toronto, was maid of honor, and Mrs. Susan Pearson, of Lockport, New York, was bridesmaid.

Mr. Helmuth Mueller, of Scarboro, Toronto, attended the bride groom, while Mr. Herbert Mueller, of Belleville, ushered the guests.

The reception was held at Hotel Quinte in Ste. Thekla Hall where the bride's table was appointed with the traditional white damask and centred by a three-tier all white wedding cake, topped by a tiny bride and bridegroom beneath an arch of white flowers, and flanked by tall white candles. White clusters of baby 'mums surrounded the base, and the bridal bouquets kept an extra delightful nuptial accent.

The bride's mother received attired in a black ensemble with white collar and corsage of white carnations.

Guests attended from Toronto, Bath and Lockport, New York.

The bride was honored by a miscellaneous shower held at the home of her sister, Mrs. Eddy Riech of Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. Mueller are residing at 349½ Front Street, Belleville.

New Method Fruit Spreads Low in Calories

SUMMERLAND, B.C. (CP)—If you're avoiding jam because you are on a diet, here's good news from the federal agriculture department.

At the department's laboratory here low - calorie spreads made from apricots, prunes, plums, peaches and cherries have been developed and now are available commercially.

And, says a report by Dr. D. R. MacGregor and A. W. Moyls, spreads from raspberries and strawberries will be available soon.

The researchers say this results from development of substitute canning agents. Among them are a jelling agent (low methoxyl pectin) and non-nutritive sweeteners (saccharin and calcium and sodium cyclamate).

The pectin fresh fruits to be made into jam-like preserves without adding sugar. The result is spreads containing less than one-sixth the calories of ordinary jam.

SMALL CONTAINERS

However, like all products low in sugar, these preserves are susceptible to mould and spoilage and should be put up in small containers. After opening, they should be kept refrigerated.

Fruits may be used as an important element of reducing diets and in diets of people who are not normally active. The high water content of fruit makes it palatable and refreshing.

For reducing diets there is no need to can fruits in water, Cyclamate sweeteners enhance good fruit flavor without adding calories. Adding a small amount of a thickening agent, such as carboxymethyl - cellulose or pectin makes the syrup almost indistinguishable from sugar syrup.

Mrs. R. A. Patterson, Stirling, and at a trousseau tea given by her mother. The wedding party was also entertained at a rehearsal luncheon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Palmer, of Stirling.

Guests were present from many points in the neighboring district and out-of-town.

CONBOY — GEEN

White and multi-colored gladioli adorned the altar and chancel in St. Thomas' Anglican Church, Harold, for a recent lovely late summer wedding, when Miss Anne Geen, of Harold, Ontario, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Geen, was united in marriage to Raymond Frederick Conboy, of Belleville, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Conboy, by the Rev. R. G. Fleming of Deseronto, Ontario.

Mrs. R. G. Fleming of Marmora presided at the organ and accompanied the soloist, Miss Marie Roseborough of Lakefield, as she sang "O Perfect Love," during the signing of the register.

Mr. Harry Geen gave his daughter, radiant in her ankle-length gown of white Chantilly lace and tulle over satin, featuring a fitted bodice with long sleeves lily-pointed over the wrists, for marriage. Iridescent sequins and seed pearls adorned the gown and her waist-length veil of tulle illusion was held by lace headdress encrusted with seed pearls and sequins. She carried a semi-cascade of red roses mingled with white 'mums. A pearl necklace and matching earrings, the gift of her bridegroom, completed her bridal costume.

Miss Nancy Vickers, of Harold, Ontario, as maid of honor wore a blue silk organza over taffeta with blue headdress and white accessories. She carried a nosegay of blue carnations and 'mums.

Miss Donna Geen and Miss Marilyn Geen, sisters of the bride, were in yellow and green organza over taffeta respectively with matching headdresses, white accessories, and carrying nosegays of yellow roses and yellow and bronze 'mums, with yellow streamers.

Miss Donna Pipler of Oshawa, niece of the bridegroom and Rhonda Geen, sister of the bride were flower girls wearing white nylon frocks with white accessories and carrying tiny baskets of white and yellow 'mums with blue streamers.

Master Randy Geen, cousin of the bride was ring bearer.

The bridegroom was attended by Mr. Ray Beaudrie of Oshawa, Ontario, while Mr. Edgar Green of Thomasburg cousin of the bride and Mr. Norris Conboy of Oshawa, brother of the bridegroom, were ushers.

The reception was held in the Orange Hall which was prettily adorned with pink and white streamers and bells, where the guests were received by the bride's mother, wearing a beige brocaded taffeta gown in sheath style with beige accessories, and corsage of deep pink carnations. The bridegroom's mother assisted, gowned in navy blue with white accessories and corsage of pink carnations.

The bridal table was tastefully appointed with white gladioli and the three-tier wedding cake, flanked with silver candelabra with candles, and the bridal bouquets.

For the honeymoon to Niagara Falls, the bride wore a royal blue wool sheath with white accessories and corsage of red roses.

Guests attended from Oshawa; Toronto; Mountain Grove; Farmleigh; Plainfield; Belleville; Roslin; Thomasburg; Lakefield; Marmora; Glen Miller and Bannockburn.

Prior to her marriage, the bride was honored at a miscellaneous shower held at the home of Miss Nancy and Miss Judy Wickens, of Harold, Ontario.

"Primary Reading" Topic At Melrose W.I.

The September meeting of Melrose W.I. was held in the Township Hall with 35 ladies in attendance. The president, Mrs. K McEachan opened the meeting and thanked the hostesses Mrs. A. Denill and Mrs. R. MacFarlane, for their generous hospitality.

During the business session, Mrs. R. Fox and Mrs. G. Stratton were appointed delegates to the Area Convention to be held at Cliff Chars, October 11 and 12th. Mrs. Gnaedinger announced that November 8 was the evening chosen for the Institute to provide an entertainment and lunch for the inmates of the County Home.

At this stage, Mrs. G. Stratton, convener of citizenship, took charge and called on Mrs. J. McLaren to introduce the guest speaker, Mr. Campbell of Napanee, who is Public School Inspector for this district. He expressed pleasure in attending the meeting and commended the Institute, for the worthy project in which it is engaged.

PRIMARY READING

Mr. Rose as his subject, "Primary Reading" and explained clearly the advantages of the new system now taught over the old "a, b, c" method. Progress depends on the ability to read and he compared the old system which was memorized with the "Phonic" system, where the pupil acquires a knowledge of about 70 words which are key words. From these the ear is trained to recognize the same sound and then they reproduce by thinking of new words. No vowels are taught in grade 1. He also demonstrated with illustrations on blackboard how consonants are blended together and then the vocabulary grows and different sounds are learned with an accordion effect followed by different letters in grade 2.

Mr. Rose also began the teaching of the vowels for example — the short "a" and the long "a" words having al, ay, se as and ane, making giving the pupil more tools to work with. In grade 3 plurals are taught and the new system of seeing the parts of a word which tend to make better spellers.

The "Readers" used in the schools have been scientifically developed to the needs of this fast growing population. There is a high standard for teachers and a great scarcity of same which is regrettable as the first years of a child's school education are most important.

QUESTION PERIOD

Many took advantage of the "Question Period" which was conducted at the close of his talk.

Mrs. Geneja thanked the speaker for his informative address after which Mrs. Craig favored with an accordion selection which was enjoyed by all.

Mrs. Stratton followed with a paper on "Citizenship" which was read from the standpoint of a son, grandfather, publicist, teacher, church leader and a business man. The ideas were different but illustrated that each must be a good worker.

Mrs. G. Hagerman gave a humorous reading "Housewife" after which Mrs. R. McArthur read an article on "The Legacy."

Mrs. G. McLaren and Mrs. S. Deidill were winners in a contest for things to be in "Isaiah's Fur." The "roll-call" as interesting "Fact About Hastings County," was unanimous.

Refreshments were served.

UENS — MACDONALD

Baskets of white and fuchsia tinted gladiolis adorned the altar of Eastminster United Church for a lovely early autumn wedding on Saturday, September 10th at high noon when Loi Sharon MacDonald, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Vincent E. MacDonald of Belleville became the bride, of Mr. James Loren Uens, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lorne E. Uens of Belleville.

The double ring ceremony was performed by Rev. Arthur Andrew McDowell, pastor of the church.

Mrs. C. Rennie, church organist, rendered traditional wedding music and accompanied the soloist, Mr. Thomas Hinchey, who sang "The Wedding Prayer" before the ceremony, and "O Perfect Love," during the signing of the register.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was radiantly lovely in her bouffant gown of frost white nylon organza over taffeta. The tight basque bodice was styled with tiny shirred sleeves and a Sabrina neckline outlined with delicate lace and iridescent sequins. The flowing hooped skirt was accentuated by a deep tuck at the hipline forming a small bustle bow at the back.

Her headdress was a small cap of lace and organza sprinkled with iridescent sequins which held her shoulder-length veil of scalloped tulle illusion.

She wore long white to match her gown and carried a cascade spray of white chrysanthemums and fuchsia-toned sweetheart roses.

Mrs. Ian McColl was matron of honor and the bridesmaids were Mrs. Sterling Shandrew, sister of the bride and Miss Audrey Elgie.

The attendants were gowned alike in fuchsia organza over taffeta. Their gowns were designed with square necklines, short sleeves and a front shirred panel detail enhancing the tight basque bodices and short bouffant skirts.

They wore matching headbands and mitts and wore white opera pumps and carried crescent arrangements of white and daisies.

Mr. Alfred Uens attended his brother as best man and Mr. Sterling Shandrew and Mr. Harold Uens ushered the guests.

Following the ceremony a wedding dinner was served in the church parlors which were attractively decorated for the occasion.

The bride's mother received the guests wearing a redingote ensemble of beige lace with beige accessories, a feather hat in coral shade and a corsage of matching Snowdrift chrysanthemums.

The bridegroom's mother assisted, wearing a sky-blue lace suit with beige accessories and a corsage of pink Snowdrift chrysanthemums.

The bride's table was appointed with white damask centred by a three-tier wedding cake topped by a miniature bride and bridegroom in an arch of lily of the valley and misted about the base with white tulle. Tall pink candles in crystal candelabra and the bridal bouquets added a lovely nuptial accent.

For travelling to Niagara Falls and points in Northern Ontario the bride wore a pleated sheath dress in beige and yellow green, beige accessories and a corsage of yellow sheaf dalies.

The happy couple are residing in their new home on the Kingston Road.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a women's editor and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actual case history. The Council reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counsellors.

Harriet R.—Mother doesn't trust us to be on our own.

Mrs. L. R.—Harriet doesn't like to take orders from anyone.

Harries R. — I am 13 and I have a younger sister, 11. My father has been ill recently and as a result my mother has had to go to work. My father is working now as well, but Mom is working to make up for some of the expenses accumulated while he was ill.

Mother wants my sister and me to go to the home of her friend after we come from school. This lady has a daughter of 12 and two little boys. My sister and I don't like these kids. We want to stay on our street and play with our own friends.

I feel that I am well able to take care of the two of us. But Mother doesn't trust us to be on our own.

* * *

Mrs. L.R. — It's not that I don't trust the girls, but I know I would worry about them while I'm at work. My friend is a very reliable person and I would have no worry at all if I knew the girls were under her care.

There have been several unpleasant happenings involving teenagers in our neighborhood recently. These children came from respectable homes, yet they managed to get into trouble.

I also worry about the girls getting into squabbles. Harriet is very bossy and her sister resents this. Harriet doesn't like to take orders from anyone and I suspect that it's why she wants to be on her own.

The Council: We think Mrs. L. R. is right in her belief that teenagers or sub-teens need supervision these days.

At one time a 12-year-old girl was expected to undertake considerable responsibility for younger children, but today the teen years seem to be a danger period and a teenager may well require even closer adult supervision than a younger child.

It should be remembered, however, that these adolescent youngsters naturally have a longing for mature responsibility and should be encouraged in their yearning to grow up. Therefore, the supervision must be of a different sort from that given to younger children.

We suspect that Harriet is somewhat put out because she is being sent to a home where there are younger children. Possibly her mother's friend treats her like one of her own youngsters — just one of the kids.

Perhaps it would help the situation if Mrs. L. R. would tell her friend that Harriet would like to be considered a young lady. Since she has a girl who will soon be Harriet's age, she may be quick to understand that when a girl enters her teens, she requires slightly different treatment than that accorded youngsters just below that important dividing line.

It might help Harriet to be given some special responsibility when she comes from school. Possibly she can do some of the marketing or take over the mending or other chore her mother usually handles. Perhaps she can give her mother's friend a hand with some job around the house. This will enable her to build up her status among the younger children.

Harriet's uselessness" or her younger sister may be just a substitute for doing something more adult. When she is given useful, important tasks, her sister will respect her more and there will be less resentment and squabbling.

CHANNEL COVE, Nfld. (CP)—St. Cuthbert's Anglican school in this remote northwest coast Newfoundland village may be the only school in Canada open in summer, closed in winter. Severe weather and few roads make it impossible for children to attend classes except in the fine months.

QUESTION BOX

Question: The most embarrassing thing happened to me the other night! My husband and I had dinner given for us to celebrate our twenty-fifth wedding anniversary. There were twelve guests, including the hosts. A few of the guests were unknown to us. When we were seated at the table, our hostess rose and, looking at me, said "Mary, will you please say the Grace." I almost went under the table! We don't say Grace at our house, and I didn't know what was expected of me. I stumbled to my feet, red-faced and miserable, and mumbled something like "God bless our food". Wasn't my hostess wrong in placing me in such a position.—Mrs. R.S.F., Baltimore, Md.

Answer: She most certainly was! Usually those who do say Grace at meals dispense with it when they are entertaining. If they don't, either the host or his wife should give it, not a guest. It was extremely thoughtless thing to do and I would certainly ask her not to embarrass you in such a way again. The saying of Grace is a wonderful custom, to those who understand. But, even if the host ay it, it can be awkward when entertaining, because the guests may not necessarily all keep on chattering until Grace is brought to an embarrassed stop when they are asked to keep quiet.

Question: I go out quite often with a young man who has a very nice convertible. The other night we went to a very dressy dancing party. I was all prettied up, special new hairdo, etc. He invited upon leaving the top of the car down. By the time I arrived at the party I was a mess. This has happened before. How can I make him realize, without hurting him, that he must put that top up!—Miss G.V.F.—New York, N.Y.

Answer: Be perfectly frank with this thoughtless and selfish man. If his precious feelings get hurt, let them! He is showing a utter lack of consideration for you. I suppose he has said "Oh, wear a scarf!" - but even a scarf can undo a hairdo. As your escort, he should grant your requests, within reason. If he is this inconsiderate of your comfort, watch out for his actions when more important things happen in his life. If he refuses to put that top up next time, after you are frank with him, mark him off your list. It is by little things like this that a man can be judged.

Following a short business meeting the president introduced the new directors and members of various committees, namely:

Directors — The Rev. Sister Mary Avita Martin Doyle, J. Whibbs. Program — Mrs. A. McFadden; the Rev. Sister Mary Joan of Arc; Frank Noble; J. Darlington. Membership — Mrs. G. Fitzgibbon, Mrs. J Lumsdon, Mrs. J. McNamee and Mrs. J. Barrett—Audio visual aids—The Rev. Sister Mary Carthagh. Publicity — Mrs. E. Nephan. Historian — The Rev. Sister Mary Fleurette. Bulletin editor—Oriel Griffiths. Social convener—Mrs. C. H. Langabeer.

The Rev. Sister Mary Andrew introduced the new Immaculate Conception teaching staff:— the Rev. Sister Mary Fleurette; the Rev. Sister Mary Eugene; Miss Breen; Mrs. Rice; Ross Allan; Mrs. Cantin; Miss Hudon; Miss Urch; Mrs. Rooney.

ATTENDANCE PLAQUES AWARDED

Attendance plaques were awarded to the Rev. Sister Mary Carmelita for the Junior School; the Rev. Sister Mary Leo for Grades 7 and 8, and the Rev. Sister Mary Fleurette for Grade 9.

Mr. Frank Noble spoke briefly with regard to the appeal being made an Hallowe'en on behalf of UNICEF. He hoped that members of the P.T.A. would be willing to help in this matter.

Mrs. A. McFadden introduced the guest speaker of the evening, Sgt. R. W. Blatchford, School Safety Officer, who spoke on the safety program being conducted in the city schools, a subject of great interest to all parents.

Melrose 4-H Club Elects Officers

The first meeting of the Melrose 4-H Homemaking Club was held recently at the home of the leader, Mrs. Howard. After welcoming all, Mrs. Howard conducted the election of officers and they are as follows: president — Violet Elmy; vice-president — Leah Wood; treasurer — Carolyn Fox; press reporter — Barbara Wener.

Mrs. Howard distributed the paper for the books, the rings and the member's pamphlets. Mrs. McLaren gave the rules for the record books. The club's name is to be "Melrose Wool Warp and Woofers". The next meeting is to be at Mrs. McLaren's on October 13, at 1:30. Mrs. Howard read a letter from Miss Lane asking the club to give its demonstration, "First Aid in the Home," at the Women's Institute Area Convention on October 12.

The check sheets in the members' pamphlets were filled in. Mrs. Howard also gave the girls a list of articles that they are to have in their sewing boxes. The leaders discussed the correct way to give reasons for judging.

The discussion was about the sources of wool, how to tell if it is wool and about the different weaves. The two main tests for wool are to squeeze it hard in your hand, if it springs back it is wool. Another test is to try burning it. Wool will not burn easily. The wool fibre is weak and loosely woven. There are two weaves, the plain and the twill. The twill is a closer weave. Wool must be handled carefully as it shrinks easily, and harsh soaps will damage it. The girls divided into pairs and took each other's measurements.

CWL Urged To Enthrone The Family

EDMONTON (CP)—Canadian Roman Catholic Tuesday were called upon to lead the way to "enthrone the family and give it proper respect as the basic unit of society."

Dr. Grace L. Caughlin of Milltown, N.B., national president of the Catholic Women's League of Canada ,told delegates to the annual CWL convention:

"There is strength in union and if Catholics across Canada understand and practise, and help others to, put into practice the principles of the Christian Family Apostolate, if will matter little where credit for the thought is given."

The Christian Family Apostolate is the theme of the five-day convention which involves some 250 delegates from all provinces except Newfoundland and representing more than 147,000 members.

More money is contributed to welfare by the provincial councils of the CWL than toward any other field, it was revealed.

Besides welfare, provincial activities are aimed at furthering education and aiding immigrants by getting homes, furniture and clothing for them, getting foster homes and arranging adoptions and forming study clubs.

TOMORROW! THE GREATEST SIXTY-ONE DERFUL CHEVROLET

IMPALA 4-DOOR SPORT SEDAN—one of five Impalas that bring you a new measure of elegance. Notice what beautiful sense the new roof line makes — the front door entrance height between sill and roof is nearly 2 inches greater.

NOMAD 9-PASSENGER STATION WAGON. You have a choice of six Chevrolet wagons, each with a cave-sized cargo opening nearly 5 feet across and a new concealed compartment for stowing valuables.

BEL AIR 2-DOOR SEDAN, like all '61 Chevrolets, brings you Body by Fisher newness you can use—more front seat legroom and, thanks to a shaped-down driveshaft tunnel, more footroom in the rear.

Here's the car that reads you loud and clear—the new-size, you-size '61 Chevrolet. A car so right for you in so many ways that once you compare it with the rest of the crop you'll agree nothing else near the money measures up to it.

We started out by trimming the outside size a bit, to give you extra inches of clearance for parking and maneuvering; but inside we left you a full measure of Chevy comfort. Door openings are as much as 6 inches wider to give feet, knees and elbows the undispatted right of way. And the new easy-chair seats are as much as 14% higher—just right for seeing, just right for sitting.

Once you've settled inside, you'll have high and wide praises for Chevrolet's spacious new dimensions (in the Sport Coupes, for example, headroom has been upped as much as 2 inches, and there's more legroom, too—front and rear). Chevy's new trunk is something else that will please you hugely—what with its deep-well shape and bumper-level loading it holds things you've never been able to get in a trunk before.

Yet, generously endowed as this car is with spaciousness and clean-etched elegance, it holds steadfastly to all the thrifty, dependable virtues Chevrolet buyers have come to take for granted. Your dealer's the man to see for all the details that make this sensationally sensible '61 Chevy a new measure of your money's worth.

Now you don't have to go without style, space and one of the world's best rides to get a car that's low-priced and economical to drive. 2 TORONTO MEN

Maurice Arpin said Tropak is worth, for investment purposes, about $5.8?.

When Mr. English was shown a reconstructed balance sheet of the Tropak Company, he said: "I wouldn't be prepared to look anything at that."

Sale of the plant was completed in Mr. English's office, Nov. 21, 1956. He said Mr. Cox and Mr. Arpin had about $17,000 to spare after they paid Mr. Donaldson. When they deducted $10,000 for a down payment on the sale option, the two men still had almost $7,000 extra.

Mr. English said he was following instructions received from the bank's head office in Toronto.

"I changed the procedure a little because I chose a way that would make it perfectly clear what had happened," he said.

He said that although the deal was unusual for my branch, it was not unlike what has been going on all over Canada for a long time."

Donald Thomson, credit manager of Brandon Packers, testified, contrary to Mr. Donaldson's previous evidence, that the former owner had known of the deal and had explained to him some of the details of the investment of Tropak.

Mr. Donaldson told the commission earlier he "wouldn't remember" whether he had signed the $200,000 cheque turned over to Mr. Paton and Mr. Cox.

SHOWED CHEQUE

The cheque was produced at the hearing Wednesday and allegedly bore Mr. Donaldson's endorsement after the sale of Minty Perry, the company's secretary-treasurer.

Mr. Adams also produced cancelled cheques showing that after the plant was sold the two Toronto owners began sharing $200 a month as Brandon Packers' contribution to their own Toronto office board, a practice they continued until February, 1960, 36 months after the sale.

Mr. Adams said Brandon Packers lost about $78,000 a year as a result of company money being used to allow Mr. Paton and Mr. Cox to gain control. He said the company received no interest or dividends on its initial $300,000 investment with Tropak.

Mr. Adams said the company would have gone bankrupt had it not received new management.

About 140 members of Local 255 of the United Packinghouse Workers of America (CLC) were involved in the walkout. They were dismissed when the strike began Feb. 16 and non-union employees hired. Union members were rehired following settlement.

PROBE SIDETRACKED

TORONTO (CP) — A protest against allegations made in royalli commission hearings at Brandon, Man., was voiced Wednesday by Toronto lawyer D. Ridout for Cox and Hugh Paton.

The provincial commission, they said in a prepared statement, had been called to study the "recent, six-month strike of Brandon Packers Limited, which they own." "But has been sidetracked into non-labor relations matters such as the company's financial history."

"The suggestion that there was anything improper or illegal in our business dealings in Brandon is completely unfounded," the two declared.

"All information concerned with our purchase of Brandon Packers in 1956 has been voluntarily given to the Ontario securities commission and we asked that it be forwarded to appropriate authorities in the Manitoba government.

"These transactions and all subsequent ones have been perfectly legal and proper.

"Apart from the aspersions on our personal reputations, we are most concerned that a government inquiry such as this, named to investigate a strike, can be sidetracked to the degree this one has been."

LOCUST SWARMS

CALCUTTA (Reuters) — Locust swarms up to 20 miles long are threatening crops over a wide area in seven Indian states, it was reported here today.

NON-OPSUNHAPPY

Environment of Carmen stood and said: "We came here to put our views and we want to have a say. I have prepared a speech of about three minutes. Why can't we have our say?"

Mr. Pitcher consulted Mr. Hall and told the delegate the committee had already had days of wage matters and was not "for debate."

Mr. Hall told the meeting: "We have to fight for what we get. We don't get it given to us. "We must convince everyone we will fight because, if we don't get the raise, then our wages will be below that of other employees in comparable industries. Our occupation will be pushed into a second- or third-rate category."

'NOT OUR AFFAIR'

"It is not our affair where the railways get the money for this raise. But if they don't, then we will strike. If the government won't let us strike, then it's up to them to make sure we get a square deal. If you want the 14 cents you can get it, but you have to strike."

There were loud cheers as Mr. Hall finished his speech.

Union members must return the strike ballots by Nov. 1. About 118,000 men are involved in the dispute.

The Tracks

TORONTO (CP)—Snow Flyer, owned by Charles Mack of Windsor, established herself as one of the favorites for Monday's running of the $10,000 Princess Elizabeth Stakes when she scored an easy victory in the featured Bobden purse at Nw Woodbine Wednesday. Snow Flyer, ridden by Alfonso Coy, paid $4.50, $2.60 and $2.60 as the defeated Choopy Wind by three lengths. Match Girl finished a distant third.

In scoring with Snow Flyer, Coy made some amends for falling from another favorite, Pink Nightie, in the fourth race. Coy was employing both hands to set his goggles when starter Sam Hall opened the gate. Pink Nightie rocketed out of the gate and left him lying in the dust. Those in the crowd who had wagered more than $14,000 on Pink Nightie gave Coy a raucous reception as he trudged across the infield.

In the Dressing Rooms

By GIB STALEY

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Bill Virdon, the flashy centre fielder of Pittsburgh Pirates, says he has made better catches than the one which robbed Yogi Berra of an extra base hit in the fourth inning of Wednesday's world series game.

"Yes, I have made better catches but none which gave me a greater thrill," Virdon added in the clubhouse where the Pirates stood to take in stride their 6-4 victory over New York Yankees.

The ball that Berra hit was a deep shot to right centre.

The Pirates were leading 3-1 and Roger Maris was on second base and Mickey Mantle on first with none out. Virdon and right fielder Roberto Clemente raced toward the wall, about 430 feet from home plate.

Both reached up and Virdon came down with the ball.

Danny Murtaugh, the happy manager of the Pirates, said:

"There's no question about it—it was the key play of the game. It was a real catch-except for Virdon."

Vernon Law, the Pirates' starting pitcher who gave up 10 hits and was relieved by Little Roy Face in the eighth with two on and none out, paid tribute to Virdon.

WAS A 'LIFE SAVER'

"That sure was a life saver," he said, "As a matter of fact, he had some fine defensive help today."

The 10 hits off Law included a home run by Maris.

"I wasn't as sharp as I usually am," Law said, "I wasn't tired but not getting the ball over the plate."

Face, the mighty mite of the Pirates, also gave up a homer—to pinch-hitter Elston Howard in the ninth with one aboard. But Face saved the day for the Pirates as he retired the Yanks without a run in the eighth. He had two on and none out and promptly struck out Mickey Mantle, got Berra on an outfield fly to right field and struck out Bill Skowron.

"I got Mantle on a fork ball for the third strike and Skowron on a fast ball," said Face, "The ball that Howard hit for a homer was a low slider. I tried to waste the pitch and Howard sure powered it. But I wasn't worried.

"We still were two runs ahead and I figured someone might come up with a doubleplay if I got Hector Lopez to hit the ball on the ground. That happened."

The talk of the dressing room was a steal of second base by Virdon in the first inning when the Pirates scored three runs to take a lead never surrendered.

"I put on the play myself," Virdon said.

Murtaugh, who sat in on a joint press conference with Yankee manager Casey Stengel, said:

"We didn't work many delayed steals during the season—not now and then and today the situation was right."

With a wink at the disappointed Stengel, Murtaugh added:

"Hey, I wonder if Casey is listening—when I talk of our pitching?"

Casey smiled and made it clear he felt Yankees had been beaten by a club which played better ball.

"They outran us and outplayed us," said Casey.

FLEMING SEES DAM SITE

ACCRA, Ghana (CP)—Canada's Finance Minister Fleming drove 80 miles over good paved road into the Ghanaian interior Tuesday to see the proposed site of the giant Volta River Dem, to which the Canadian government is considering contributing. The rock dam, estimated to cost $164,000,000, would create the largest man-made lake in the world except for the one behind the Kariba Dem on the Zambesi River in Rhodesia.

Gets Fired Then Handed $100,000

By TED SMITH

PITTSBURGH (AP)—The play that started New York Yankees on their first-game world series loss to Pittsburgh Pirates came from a mixup in signals.

"We just didn't get together," said Bobby Richardson, Yankee second - baseman, concerning Yogi Berra's hard throw almost to centre field that led to the second in the first inning.

Bill Virdon, Pirates' pitcher who left the game in the first inning with one out and three runs in, said with a grin: "There was nothing wrong with me—I just wasn't getting 'em out."

KUBEK TAKES RAP

Yankee shortstop Tony Kubek too! reporters he would take the responsibility for failing to cover second on Berra's throw.

"I was supposed to cover the bag, but I held up momentarily in case the hit-and-run was on," he said.

Roger Maris, who socked a solo home run in the first inning, said he hit a slider or a curve ball pitch by Vernon Law. He said he was "just trying to get wood on the ball" and wasn't trying to bat it hard.

Asked what he thought of Law's pitching, Maris said: "He's got good stuff. He beat us."

Roger Maris, who hit into two double plays, also thought Law's pitching was top grade.

"He moves the ball around real good," said Lopez. "And he's particularly tough with men on base."

'ONE BAD PITCH'

Jim Coates, second Yankee pitcher, said he "just made one bad pitch." That was a two - run homer that Bill Mazeroski drove over the left field wall.

"I threw a fast ball and got it a little too high," Coates said.

Manager Casey Stengel offered alibis and praised the Pirates. "We managed to outhit them, but not when we had men on base," he said.

DUFF IS HOLDOUT

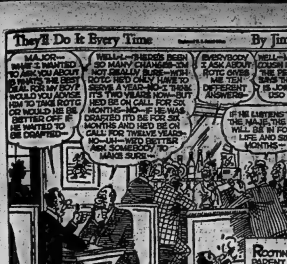
TORONTO (CP) — Leftwinger Dick Duff of Toronto Maple Leafs will not be in the lineup against Montreal Canadiens when the two National Hockey League teams meet in Montreal in their opening game. A club spokesman said Wednesday Duff has not signed his 1960-61 contract. The spokesman also said George (Punch) Imlach, Leafs' manager-coach, has suspended veteran left winger Johnny Wilson for refusing to report to Leafs' American Hockey League farm club at Rochester.

Stamps Jump Into Third, Lick Riders

CALGARY (CP) — Calgary Stampeders jumped into third place in the Western Interprovincial Football Union Wednesday night with a 39-32 victory over Saskatchewan Roughriders.

They finally nudged British Columbia Lions out of the third and last playoff spot. The Stampeders lead Lions by one point. However, the Lions have five games left in the 16-regular schedule, two more than Calgary.

The tables could be reversed tonight when Lions meet the second-place Edmonton Eskimos in Vancouver.



Edmonton coach Eagle Keys says "this is a big game for Lions. If we bat them, they're gone. We have a tough line of it making the playoffs."

Earl Lunsford paced the Stampeders with three touchdowns. Doug Brown kicked three converts, two singles and a field goal for eight points. Clare Exelby and Don Stone got the other two Calgary touchdowns and Ron Morrow wrapped up the scoring with a single.

Bobby Hunt scored two Saskatchewan touchdowns and Vernon Vaughn picked up the third. Reg Whitehouse converted all of them and Ferdy Burket kicked a field goal.

Tony Kubek Charged With 'Berra Erra'

PITTSBURGH (AP)—The official scorers of the world series changed their minds after the game Wednesday and ruled the first-inning New York Yankee error on Tony Kubek instead of Yogi Berra.

Berra threw to second in an effort to catch Bill Virdon stealing but neither Kubek, the Yankee shortstop, nor second-baseman Bobby Richardson, was anywhere near the bag. The ball scooted into centre-field allowing Virdon to reach third.

Berra was originally charged with the error but as the throw was good and the responsibility for covering the bag was up to Richardson and Kubek, it was decided to absolve Berra and the blame was fixed on Kubek.

The official scorers are Joe Trimble of the New York Daily News, Ed Munzel of the Chicago Sun-Times and Jack Hernon of the Pittsburgh Post-Gazette.

The scorer made the decision after talking to Kubek in the Yankee dressing room.

The young shortstop said he was supposed to cover second, even though a right-handed batter (Dick Groat) was at the plate, but to delay slightly in case the hit-and-run might have been on.

Pirates Scuttle Yank Ship In Opener

Friend Met Turley Today

By JOE REICHLER

PITTSBURGH (AP)—It must be true what rival National League managers have been saying about Pittsburgh.

"They drive you crazy with their constant hitting and running," said Solly Hemus of St. Louis Cardinals.

"They play smart, heads-up baseball," said Fred Hutchinson of Cincinnati. "They know what they're doing all the time. As a team, it's a manager's delight.

"They take advantage of every break," said Chuck Dressen of Milwaukee. "And they make very few mistakes themselves."

"They don't scare," said Lou Boudreau, recently released by Chicago. "All those big sluggers the Yankees don't mean a thing to them."

BACK UP PROPHESIES

The Pirates made prophets out of their fellow National Leaguers and believers out of the cynics Wednesday, beating New York with more ease than the 6-4 score might indicate. Whether they can do it again in game No. 2 also remained to be seen. In any event, the Pirates demonstrated before 36,676 cash customers at Forbes Field that they were no fluke champions. They also fittingly have gained new respect, especially from New Yorkers.

A 13-to-10 underdog before Wednesday's game, the Pirates have now split 2-to-2 and appear to win the series. Today's battle before another sellout crowd, featuring another right-handed duel, between Bob Friend (18-12) for the Pirates and Bob Turley (9-8) of the Yankees is rated even money.

Except for the pitchers, neither manager Casey Stengel nor Danny Murtaugh changed any lineup or batting order changes. The weatherman predicted another perfect playing day, with mild 70-ish temperatures in the 60s. Game time is 1 p.m. EDT.

PIRATES TOO GOOD

It was all Pittsburgh Wednesday. The Pirates outpitched, outfielded, outran, outmaneuvered and outsmarted the Yankees. They were a complete all but easily slugged even though the American League champions had four solo homers to one for the home team.

Pittsburgh walloped three extra base hits to New York's two. The Pirates stole two bases to none for the Yankees. They committed no errors while their rivals had two. And Pittsburgh manager Danny Murtaugh even borrowed a page from Casey Stengel's book by going to his bench in the late innings for defensive purposes and to the mound in tense moments for counsel to his pitchers.

"We're a probing club", Murtaugh had warned earlier. "We seek out the opposition's weaknesses and try to exploit them."

The Pittsburgh players wasted little time demonstrating what Murtaugh meant. In the first inning, Roger Maris walloped a home run off 20-game winning right-hander Vern Law to give the Yankees a 1-0 lead. But the Pirates went right to work on starter Art Ditmar, driving him from the mound before he could get the second out.

CAUGHT OFF GUARD

Billy Virdon drew a walk. On the first pitch to Dick Groat, Virdon waited until catcher Yogi Berra was about to toss the ball back to the mound and started a delayed steal of second. Berra, after a second's hesitation, threw to second but nobody was there to cover. The unexpected maneuvre caught the Yankees off guard. Berra's throw went into centre field and Virdon raced to third. He scored a few moments later with the first Pittsburgh's three runs when Groat typically lofted an opposite field double to right.

"Virdon ran on his own," said Groat later. "I had no idea he was going. Usually I send him but I didn't this time. I think the Yankees didn't cover because they expected me to bat and run. They didn't think I would take."

Bob Skinner singled Groat home to give the Pirates a 2-0 lead. The National League champs had still another trick up their sleeve. With Dick Stuart at bat, Skinner began walking toward second as Ditmar stepped on the rubber and just kept going, easily beating Berra's frantic heave which was high and wide.

"It was a surprise play," explained Murtaugh. "I don't think they knew we had it. We have three different kinds of steals—the straight steal, the walking steal and the delayed steal."

Skinner scored with the third run a moment later on Bob Clemente's single to centre.

Pittsburgh's other two runs came on Bill Mazeroski's two - run homer off Jim Coates in the fourth and Virdon's run-scoring double of Duke Maas in the sixth. Elroy Face then stopped the Pirates.

BRILLIANT CATCH

The best defensive play came in the fourth and it was made by the Pirates' ailing 2b, the Yankees seemed ready to mount a rally when Maris singled and Mickey Mantle walked. Berra drove a 430-footer to deep right centre but Virdon made a brilliant glowed hand catch almost at the wall. That was the key play of the game since Bill Skowron followed with a single to score Maris.

Law, tagged for 10 hits, lost out in the sixth when Murtaugh summoned relief ace Elroy Face from the bullpen after Hector Lopez and Maris singled with nobody out. The little right-hander struck out Mantle with a sinker pitch, induced Berra to fly out and fanned Skowron with a fast ball.

"I wasn't surprised at what Face did," said Murtaugh later. "He's been doing that all year for us. We've a good combination, Elroy and I . . . my guts and his arm."

Elston Howard hit a pinch hit two-run homer in the ninth to cut the Pirates' margin to 6-4. Murtaugh sent a hasty signal to the bullpen for Clem Labine to be on call when Tony Kubek cracked third. But Mel Lanier stopped throwing when Lopez obligingly grounded into Pittsburgh's third double play to end the game.

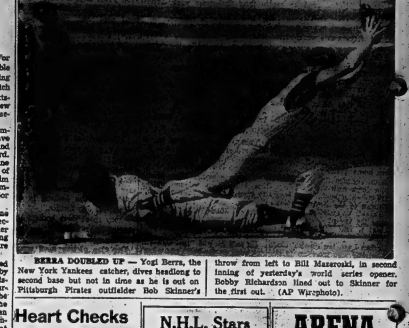
Virdon Catch Was Bucs Key Play

PITTSBURGH (AP) — For Bill Virdon, there was double satisfaction in the dazzling fourth - inning catch which proved the key play of Pittsburgh's 6-4 victory over New York Yankees in the world series opener Wednesday.

Shafted as useful former Yankee players, the Yankees, who gave him his first pro contract and then threw him into discard. He struck back at Frank Lane who, as general manager of St. Louis Cardinals, traded him in 1956 with the caustic comment: "He'll never be a major league player."

"I don't know what Mr. Lane is thinking now," the bespectacled 29-year-old centre-fielder said in the Pirates' dressing room. "and I couldn't care less."



Virdon's running, one-handed catch of a booming shot by Yogi Berra was called by Pittsburgh manager Danny Murtaugh "the key play of the game—that and did it." The Yankee had men on base when Berra hit a drive right centre that appeared gone for at least two runs.

Bob Virdon and right fielder Bob Clemente, after the ball, finally colliding against the wall. To the amazement of the 36,676 fans, and Yankees, Virdon came out of the tumble with the ball clutched in his glove.

"I suppose I have made just as good catches before but none quite gave me such a thrill," Virdon beamed afterward.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Baseball fandom's fiercest fanatics, like the northern Quebec woodsman who insisted on voting for "dat Lesr-ter" in the last federal election, cling to their idols like a chicken feather to Castro's beard.

Casey's fat-flung fan empire headquartered in the Bronx will burn candles at the old maestro's shrine long after he has closed his last bank and plugged the final oil gusher.

Over in Brooklyn when Father O'Malley shaved and white-collared the "Bums," smartly 'em in speak English and transplanted 'em in the lush Los Angeles smog-blanketed countryside, he took the die-hard Flatbush sentiment with him.

In Yankee Stadium Saturday there will be thousands of Pirate rooters who have never seen "Pittsburgh" but will be shouting for Yankee blood in a dialect that is all too-familiar with Caney and his Biregrams.

Their beloved "Bums" will not be there, but their ghosts parading in Pirate uniforms will be out to wreak havoc and destruction in the ranks of the long-hated frozen "crust d'river." The Bucs won't lack for support when they play another and Cub Nailorian League Jolly Roger in the home port of the Caseymen.

Sentiment for the underdog has swung many a vote to the Pirate ship. Those with the National League dis-lands would, I would say, make it a fifty-fifty popularity contest.

Personally I am a Pirate fan. Call it sentiment or what you will. I liked and called, before the season started, the Giants and the Yanks to play in the world series. When both were eliminated I swung to the Bucs. Not because I do not like and admire the Yankees.

I do not believe in the monopoly of championships by one club.

I believe Casey Stengel will go down in history as one of the greatest managers of all time. But I do not believe that because Ole Case is at the helm, the club under him is shotlisted in the armor of invincibility. Besides he has gone to the well enough times. It is time another club brought home the world series victory over.

And I hope, with a nod and a smile to the "Pats, the Micks, the Teddy Bears, the McCarns, the Alexanders" and the rest of the rooters that ride with the Yankee cavalry, that it will be the doughty Buccaneers from the Smoky City.

But if a neutral observer takes everything, especially the manner in which the Yankees and the Pirates won their league pennants, into consideration, he might have trouble in pin-pointing the winner of the world series.

The Pirates never willed to any extent under the pressure of operating in a stronger, better-balanced league. They scrambled back with a large number of late-inning victories to beat and hurl back every challenge to a six-game lead in the final two months.

Over in the American League backyards, the Yankees had to fight for their lives in a shoving, pushing match with the White Sox and the Orioles. It was only two weeks ago when in that dramatic four-game sweep over the Baltimore flashbirds, Mickey Mantle's four-ringer came and burst into a 15-game winning streak that definitely routed the Orioles and sent the White Sox back to wash the Bears play football.

For the pressure, then, this month for a poser. Should he pick the battle-hardened Pirates for general excellence over the season or should he swing to the Yankees because of their dazzling finish in those last spine-tingling weeks.

Regardless of the outcome of today's game, yesterday's result may have swung Mr. Neutral to the Pirates. The Bucs unawed by the sudden might of the Yankees were so nervous at Kleinhenber at a vodka fiesta. They showed little regard for the Yankee pitching and their stick-clouting offset the sudden spasms of fence-busting by Mssrs. Maris, Skowron and Howard.

I have too much regard for the Yankee prowess to call it four straight for the Buccaneers, but I honestly believe Cap'n Mazeraugh will pay off his Pirate crew after the sixth game.

Maroons Ready For Russia

CHATHAM (CP)—Coach Ted Power of Chatham Maroons announced Wednesday night 10 members of his team have agreed to play on a hockey team to represent Canada on a tour of Russia next month.

Power said the team is expected to leave here Nov. 23 to fly to Russia.

Hawks, Red Wings Tie

Blues Take Opener From Bruins

By ROGER STONEHAM
Canadian Press Staff Writer

New York Rangers, who spent most of last season in the National Hockey League cellar, are in first place today after whipping a winning goal from rookie Len Ronson.

Ronson's goal—his first in the NHL—gave Rangers a 3-1 win against Boston Bruins Wednesday night in the first of two games heralding the 1960-61 season.

It was the first time the Rangers, who finished last in the NHL in the 1959-60 season, had opened the schedule at home in 34 years and the game drew 15,674 spectators to Madison Square Garden.

In the other opener, Chicago Black Hawks and Detroit Red Wings played to a 1-1 tie before 8,154 fans in Chicago Stadium to share second spot. Boston is fourth.

Toronto Maple Leafs and the defending champion Montreal Canadiens meet in Montreal tonight while Chicago plays in Detroit.

Eastern Pros Open Tonight

OTTAWA (CP) — The Eastern Professional Hockey League begins its 70-game schedule tonight when Montreal Royals play Hull-Ottawa Canadiens in Hull and Sault Ste. Marie Thunderbirds are at home to Kitchener-Waterloo Beavers.

The Beavers, an addition to the league, replace the now defunct Trois-Rivieres Lions.

Only two of last year's six coaches remain.

Floyd Curry again leads his champion Royals while Murph Chamberlain is back at the helm of Sudbury Wolves, runners-up last year for the Tom Foley Memorial Trophy, emblematic of the league's championship.

ONLY PLAYING COACH

Glen Sloan, former National Hockey League player with Detroit and Chicago, is coach of the young Hull-Ottawa crew. He will be the only playing coach in the league.

Frank Currie, who coached both Calgary and Edmonton in the Western Hockey League, leads the Kitchener squad. He also is the club's general manager.

Billy Reay, former Montreal Canadiens star, will coach the Thunderbirds. He has coached in the WHL and served for a time as coach of Toronto Maple Leafs.

Wren Blair will coach and manage the Kingston team. He won two senior B titles with the Whitby Dunlops and when the team moved up to A company, guided it to two Allan Cups and one world's championship.

In Montreal, Coach Curry appears to have Charlie Hodge to be in goal when the Royals open the season against Hull-Ottawa.

The diminutive netminder is back with the Royals after having spent the latter part of last season with Hull-Ottawa.

The Royals play in Kingston Saturday. Their first game at home is Sunday against Sudbury.

Hunting Law Not Changed For Americans

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Interior department announced today that United States hunters who go to Canada for their waterfowl shooting this fall will be governed by the same import regulations that were established last year.

Under these regulations 20 ducks and 10 geese may be imported from the provinces of Alberta, British Columbia, Manitoba and Saskatchewan during the calendar year. From all other provinces of Canada 12 ducks and 10 geese may be imported during any calendar week with the week beginning on Sunday.

Oliver Ready For Argos

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Argonauts, gearing to stay on top of the Big Four Football Union race, got good news Wednesday with word that defensive tackle Bobby Oliver will be fit for Friday night's game here against Hamilton Tiger-Cats.

Oliver, rated one of the best defensive men in Canadian football, tore ligaments in his right knee during last Saturday's 50-16 win over Montreal Alouettes.

It was first thought he would be out for three weeks.

Leaf Manager May Go To Cleveland

TORONTO (CP) — Mel McGaha, skipper of Toronto Maple Leafs and "manager of the years" in the International Baseball League, said Wednesday night there is "a good possibility" he will sign as a coach with the major league's Cleveland Indians under manager Jimmy Dykes.

"I haven't accepted as of now," he said, "but the last time I talked with Frank Lane (Cleveland general manager) we were pretty close."

McGaha, 34, was commenting on reports from Pittsburgh that he had signed with the Indians.

He led Leafs to the league pennant by a huge margin in his first year as an AAA manager.

McGaha returned to Toronto Tuesday from Louisville, after the Leafs lost the little world series to Louisville Colonels four games to two.

BILLS SIGN GREEN

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP)—Buffalo Bills of the American Football League Wednesday announced the signing of quarterback Johnny Green, formerly of Toronto Argonauts of the Big Four. Green, with Argonauts last season, was on the roster of Pittsburgh Steelers of the National League during the Steelers' pre-season exhibition games.

STEAL — Bob Skinner, Pittsburgh Pirates left fielder, steals second in first inning of yesterday's opening game of the world series as Yankees' catcher Yogi Berra's throw was high and wide. Grabbing the throw, with mouth open wide, is Yanks' shortstop Tony Kubek. (AP Wirephoto).

Larks Will Use Geary

MONTREAL (CP)—Bob Geary, 235-pound veteran, will see his first action of this year's Big Four football season when Montreal Alouettes take on Ottawa Rough Riders in the capital.

Coach Jerry Moss said Wednesday he plans to use Geary at middle-guard on defence. Geary was injured last season and underwent an operation. It was thought his playing days were ended, but he has returned to the club and was given the medical okay this week.

Moss also announced that Hal Patterson, who has been used only as offensive end, will also get some work as defensive half in the Ottawa game.

Moss and Patterson smoked the peace pipe after the disgruntled end walked away from the practice and film-covering session Sunday.

Patterson had told Moss he is in good condition and would like to play both ways for the rest of the season.

Nat King Cole Accepts Broadway Show Challenge

By BOB THOMAS

BOLLYWOOD (AP) — The other night, Nat King Cole and his wife were in slight disagreement over the directions to Ciro's.

"I ought to know," he insisted. "Back in 1938, I used to take the Sunset bus near there to rehearse a radio singer at $5 a session."

Cole has come a long way since those days, so long that he is currently able to pass up $300,000 in bookings to fulfil a long ambition of appearing on Broadway.

"A lot of people think I'm crazy," he admits. "Especially the people in my own organization, because they can see that money going out the window. But this is something that means more to me than money.

NEEDS INCENTIVE

"I reached a point in my career when I needed some added incentive. Sure, I was making lots of money in night clubs and concerts. But sometimes I'd find myself doing the work while my mind was somewhere else.

"I've been thinking for five years about accepting the challenge of a Broadway show. Finally, I decided to do it. I had to do some rearranging, because I regularly play five spots each year: The Copa in New York, Fairmont in San Francisco, Fontainebleu in Miami, Cocoanut Grove on L.A. and Sands in Las Vegas. The Sands alone pays me $200,000 a year.

"They all thought I was crazy,

AT THE BELLE — Vera Miles reacts to some typical Alfred Hitchcock action in "Psycho," his new Paramount suspense chiller now at the Belle Theatre. She is co-starred with Anthony Perkins, John Gavin, Martin Balsam and John McIntire.

tco, when I asked out of my commitments. Maybe they're right."

The whole idea started when Cole recorded an album called Wild Is Love, written by newcomers Dotty Wayne and Ray Hirsch. It was a story idea that seemed convertible into a stage musical, and such a project was undertaken. Later, it was decided to create a whole new musical, based on the varying themes of love. The result was called I'm With You.

Perry and Bing Brighten Up Tubes Wednesday Night

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — Television gave us a tuneful, relaxed evening of viewing Wednesday night with both Perry Como and Fig Crosby brightening up the tube.

Crosby's first ABC special of the season was much like his pleasant, easy shows of last year. He and his guest stars, Rosemary Clooney, Johnny Mercer and his three youngest sons —did a lot of singing.

Earlier, My Sister Eileen—a situation comedy series in this incarnation—made its bow on CBS.

Bright and brash Elaine Stritch makes an ideal co-heroine Ruth; pretty Shirley Bonne, a newcomer to show business, does nicely as sweet, innocent Eileen. If the writers don't stray too far from Ruth McKenney's original, this ought to be nicely.

Because of the conflict with My Sister Eileen, I saw only the second half of the Perry Como show, it seemed a little brighter and sharper than last year and even the presence of both Fabian and Frankie Avalon didn't do much damage. Ethel Merman as usual, was great. Welcome back, Mr. C.

Bears Blank Reds 7-0; Disons Win

Hershey Bears, who last year failed to make the post-season playoffs for one of the few times since joining the American Hockey League, are off to a fast start this season in a flurry of goals.

The Bears, with rookie Warren Hynes tallying three goals and two other new players breaking into the scoring column, shutout the Providence Reds 7-0 Wednesday night. The rebuilt Buffalo Bisons also got off on a winning note, downing the Rochester Americans 6-4.

East-West Grid Game May Be Off

VANCOUVER (CP) — University of British Columbia officials say there is only a remote possibility of the second annual East-West intercollegiate football championship game being played this season.

Schedule difficulties and lack of support from the Ontario-Quebec Football Conference are the main reasons given by officials.

The University of Western Ontario defeated UBC 34-17 in Toronto last year in the first East-West final. UBC represented the Western Conference.

R. J. (Buz) Phillips, UBC athletic director, said Tuesday the game depends upon who wins the Eastern crown.

McGill University and the University of Toronto would probably not make the trip west. Queens University is said to be opposed to post-season games.

Astrological Forecast

By CARROLL RICHTER

Friday, October 7

General tendencies: Until sundown the most extraordinary aspects are in effect. Most everyone is seeking and searching for some very down — to — earth manner in which to gain his, or her, goals and objectives. It is a time when you can make real headway to get your property improved and to add charm, articulture to your existence. Then avoid confusion, deception tonight.

Aries (March 21 to April 19) — Look over all property and fixtures well today and see where you can make improvements. Then figure out a better way to increase present earnings and have a real abundance. Be sure you set up a more workable budget.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) — By studying your appearance well today, you can find just the right things to do that will make you more charming and glamorous. Then go after your more cherished goals, whether of a personal or business nature. P.M. avoid garrulous individual.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) — Be sure you follow those intuitive flashes today since they will lead you into more interesting and profitable channels. P.M. assist that individual who has been finding it pretty hard to make the grade of late.

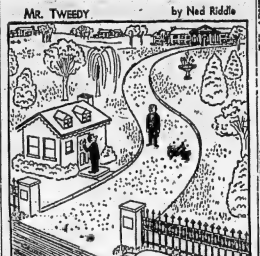
Moon Children (June 22 to July 23) — You are fortunate in having a most practical comrade always to show you how to deal with others in a better and more successful way. Take care during the evening that you avoid any altercations with those whom you meet socially. Be objective.

Leo (July 24 to Aug. 21) — Now you can understand ideas of an individual who is truly interested in your welfare. Be sure you follow them for best results quickly. P. M. think over that which displeases and eradicate conditions firmly. Relate early.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 23) — Enthusiastically make the changes that are necessary now and this will help you to expand quickly. Get valuable data from the right sources. P. M. stick in with friends. Do not follow one who is too glittering and synthetic.

Libra (Sept. 24 to Oct. 23) — Incorporate those methods now that will get the approval of associates and bring greater efficiency all around. P. M. show no jealousy whatsoever and meet those just chilly-ier.

Scorpio (Oct. 24 to Nov. 22) — By being very co-operative you are able today to cement far better relations with all who are closely allied to you and with whom you have contracts of any kind. P. M. avoid altercations. Be tactful and friendly.



Sagittarius (Nov. 23 to Dec. 21) — An excellent day for getting much work done and putting abode in very attractive order. Also, invest in some new mechanical devices to increase efficiency and decrease labor. P. M. take it easy — restore energies.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) — You have it in your power to improve relations with one who is important to your life. P. M. be economical. Be satisfied with your accomplishments of the day. Retire early.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) — Whatever is necessary for those with whom you abide so that you increase harmony in that vital sphere of your life. P. M. buy little gifts for loved ones. Then take it easy at your television or easy chair. Restore energy.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) — It is possible to find just the right item, gadget, mechanical device you need to become more productive, whether at home or business. Important you are very careful while out driving in the evening. Avoid accidents. If your child is born today — the personality will be so charming, and magnetic that almost anything that is desired can be had just for the asking. However, it is important you early teach the Golden Rule and the value of a dollar, so that the life can be happy and very productive. This is a fine chart for the entertainer who will reach the top and amass a real fortune, or any other channel that needs dealing with the public in general.

KEEPS SCROLLS

AMMAN (Reuters) — Jordan's cabinet has prohibited the sending abroad of Dead Sea Scrolls, found on the west side of the Dead Sea about 12 years ago, because of their importance. Some of the scrolls are fragments of biblical texts covering books of the Old Testament and some American universities have been reported to have offered large sums to buy them.

Petition Finally Laid Over By Council

DESERONTO — At the regular meeting of the town council on Monday night a petition from a number of residents on St. Thomas St. South about a statement of council. First the petition was read aloud, then an amendment was moved and a recorded vote was called. This by-law was tied. Then the vote was taken on the motion to file the petition and again the vote was tied. A motion to lay the matter over until next meeting passed. The petition requested some action from the streets committee regarding the dust on Thomas St. between Prince and Fourth Streets. Apparently this one block was not oiled when the rest of the streets were done some time ago.

A letter from the Hay Rescue Crew Committee giving a report of the last of water from the one well on the island showed the alkali and iron content to be high, apparently the last on the other well showed Class A water. The committee also noted that the town that their request for the water project has been approved by the Commission and the necessary approval of the Municipal Board is to be obtained for the expenditures before continuing.

A request from the Athletic Association billing of the work done by the Club and requesting a donation of fifty dollars in regard to the rink was read. While the Council is in sympathy with the Association it felt that the finances of the town would not allow any further donations.

WANTED EXTENSION

C. Brooks and D. O'Keefe requested the extension of the water main on Dundas St. West. Council passed the request over to the Utilities for an estimate of the amount which will include a fire hydrant at the extreme west end of town.

Mr. Charron wrote council regarding a drainage ditch crossing his property and requested permission to have it filled. Council turned the matter over to the property committee for a report.

Acting on a report of the streets committee granting a Lake Shore Centre St., N. Council decided to take no action to have an additional light installed. The property committee reported to council on the request to purchase two pieces of property along Water St.

Splendid Exhibits, Varied Program Help to Make Madoc Fair Best in History

Ideal autumn weather with the sun-shining and temperatures in the mid-50s helped make the 1960 Madoc Fair an unqualified success yesterday.

Fair secretary Francis Tobin, taking time off from behind mounds of papers, walked to the door of his office and looked at the crowd that packed the fair grounds and midway, and remarked: "We've probably got 5,000 people here today."

Today, after gate receipts had been counted, Mr. Tobin said paid admissions totalled about $2,800 for an estimated crowd of between 5,000 and 6,000.

The fair was officially opened yesterday afternoon by Ken Lamb, Director of Extension of the Department of Agriculture.

Mr. Lamb, who was introduced by Clark Rollins, M.P.P. for Hastings East, highly commended the Fair executive and directors for the unqualified success of this year's fair.

Others who spoke included Earl Sager, Warden of Hastings County, Walter Armstrong, village councillor, who gave the address of welcome, fair president Allan Ketcheson, and Rod Webb, M.P.P. for Hastings - Frontenac.

HIGH QUALITY

While the weather perhaps had plenty to do with the fine turnout, the splendid exhibits were the real attractions. Judges and spectators said that although the number of exhibits was about on a par with past years, the quality of them showed marked improvement.

Roy Huffman of Corbyville was several prizes in the apple-tasting cheese exhibit, taking first in the July and August cheese contest and a third first prize for having the best finished cheese. He won third prize in the best white cheese and high score. Don Pollock of Thurlow-bellford won the September cheese contest and placed second in display and best finished cheese. Harold Elliott of Foxboro claimed the baby, special and ag- high scoring classes, placing second in the July, August and September contests and third on display.

Eight entries entered the swine show which saw Don Heath of Stirling and Everett Mark of Little Britain take home the majority of prizes.

SMALL SHEEP ENTRY

The sheep exhibit was quite small and John McGuire of Crookston, Cecil Acres of Codoods and Everett Mark of Little Britain walking off with the prizes. Mr. McGuire won first prizes in all three specials.

About a dozen exhibitors entered the cattle contest which saw Cliff Burnside of Madoc and Elmer Wood of Crookston predominate among the winners in the dairy class and Ed Heavyle of Flinton, Allan Franks and son of Madoc, R. J. Wood of St. Ola, G. J. Elmhurst of Indian River, Dr. Henry Bateman of Belleville and W. A. Dunford and Sons of Spring-brook take home most of the prizes in the beef class.

The horse exhibit was described as very good with more than a dozen and a half exhibitors taking part in it. Clark Trest of Lindsay claimed 13 first prizes in the heavy horse class, but he was trailed closely by Robert Dafoe and of Holloway with 10, and Victor Cobkron of Bowmanville with nine. In the lightborse class, Burt Mann of Peterborough claimed 10 firsts, his nearest rival being Elmer Cowan of Pilton with seven.

The poultry exhibit, although not very large, was very interesting. John McGuire of Crookston and a Mrs. Perythe of West Huntingdon claimed the most first prizes.

The drawing contest with heavy horses was won by M. Rutherford of Perth who took home $20 first prize. Clint Marion of Plevna was second, Cecil Taylor of Indian River was third, and Stirling Lawson of Smiths Falls was fourth.

The exhibits were so arranged that people could not easily drift away into one particular corner of the fair grounds. It was just as simple to look at the cattle displays and livestock competitions as it was to catch the splendid stage show or have fun on the midway.

The main exhibit building featured lovely floral displays, large domestic science and needlecraft exhibits, and an exceptionally large school children's art and crafts exhibit.

A large number of entries vied for ribbons in the domestic science class, and the top prize winners were Harold Shepherd of Codrington, Mrs. John Howard of Madoc, and Mrs. Violet Elliott of Plainfield.

This department featured not only usual delectable assortment of cakes and pies, but also roast chicken, meat pies and fancy jellied salads.

Mrs. Lyons McCoy of Cooper won first prize in the Canada Packers pie contest, while Homer Leavitt and Mrs. L. E. Leavitt, both of Wooler, took second and third prizes respectively. In the Canada Packers cake-making contest, Mrs. Violet Elliott of Plainfield, captured first prize. The second prize winner was Mrs. Ed LePelley of Madoc and the third prize winner was Mrs. L. E. Leavitt of Wooler.

There was also a large number of entries in the ladies' work department and the quality of the needlecraft exhibits, was equally fine.

Top prize winners in this section were Mrs. G. R. Puttenham of Mrs. L. E. Bryant, both of Wooler. Another entrant who walked off with several prizes was Mrs. Violet Elliott of Plainfield.

In the section the item which caused the most comments was a large crocheted bread cover. The Last Supper. This piece of crochet work won first prize for Mrs. T. Bird of Madoc.

The beautiful display of cut flowers and plants also received many favorable comments from judges. Top prize winners in this section were Mrs. Alex Allen of Madoc, Mrs. L. Leavitt of Wooler, Norman A. Thompson of Tweed, and Margaret J. Wright of Ivanhoe.

Entries in the crafts section were small although the quality was good. The top prize winners were Mrs. G. R. Puttenham of Wooler, and Mrs. Allen Sager of Queenshoro.

CONTESTS STAGED

The exhibits, however, were not the only crowd drawers in the fair, which offers each year "something for everyone." While children enjoyed the many rides and tried their luck on the many games of chance on the midway, or stuffed themselves with hot dogs and pie at the Women's Institutes' food booths, the parents got equal entertainment out of being either participants in or spectators of the contests staged during the afternoon.

Perennial master of ceremonies, Tommy Mason, put the participants through the courses of skill which included step dancing, ladies' nail driving, old time fiddlers' contest, bag of potato and sawing contests. In addition, prizes were awarded for the largest family on the grounds and the person who travelled the farthest to attend the fair, going and coming the same day.

The entertaining stage show featured Toronto comedian and television star Doug Romane, Mary May, a nimble acrobat and Alex Read, who offered gags, impersonations and musical selections.

Earl Chapman's majorettes, from Belleville also presented an excellent and entertaining show.

GOOD RACING

The three classes for the harness horse racing at the fair were well filled, and the racing was the best seen around these parts this season. Two of the races were decided in straight heats but the 2.20 class was a split affair. The Madoc track is a tricky one of the mile distance and therefore the times given are not a true indication although the boys were skipping along in all three classes.

Lucy Song, the good trotter owned by Harry Ingles of Brighton was much the best in the Free-For-All as he made every post a winning one in this class. Lookout Hanover owned in Oshawa had an easy race in the slow class. The seven starters in the 2.30 class divided the honts with a woman driver, Miss Reta Herrington from Sunderland getting home on top in the second heat with Lu Atlorney, Miss Herrington is an accomplished horsewoman and is not out of place among the men.

Provinces Want To Speed Work On Constitution

Fulton Given Surprise By Provinces' Attitude

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government has found the idea of writing a new, wholly-Canadian constitution more appealing to the provinces than it expected.

For this reason, the dominion-provincial constitutional conference of attorneys-general beside here will start more than Thursday and was scheduled to resume earlier than originally intended today to make a day-long assault on the problem.

The conference was called by Justice Minister Fulton in an effort to get would be found out of the impasse of 10 years ago when the government and the Conservative federal government could not agree on a formula for amending the British North America Act in Canada.

Mr. Fulton originally proposed a modest two-stage attack, first to bring the BNA Act up to date by extra "boone" from the British parliament to the Canadian Parliament and then to search for an amending formula. He was prepared to go no further than where the 1950 conference ended its statement.

SEEK FASTER STEPS

But the provinces indicated they wanted faster steps. Before their pressure, Mr. Fulton has agreed to include in the terms of writing of a whole new constitution for Canada, if they wished.

The conference opened at 4:10 p.m. to give the provincial representatives time to consult their premiers on proposals which had been made. Nature of the proposals was kept secret, but the majority of the provinces were reported to be in favor of favoring a wholly-Canadian constitution.

The BNA Act was passed by the British Parliament in 1867 and Canada still must ask the British Parliament to pass amendments to it in matters relating to joint federal-provincial responsibility.

It is one of the last remaining ties with Britain between Canada and the U.K. The Fulton-Fauteux plan, be told the conference Thursday, is the first step towards writing a Canadian constitution in Canada. But it has the advantage of retaining the BNA Act as the basic framework of the constitution.

None of the provinces, so matter what their political complexion, made an issue at Thursday's meeting of a retention of the BNA Act as it now stands.

Ontario and New Brunswick said they were ready to study the constitution. Saskatchewan said the original three provinces would freeze the constitution if no formula were found immediately to amend it.

Cabinet Shuffle To Be Announced On Tuesday

OTTAWA (CP)—The Progressive Conservative cabinet will be shuffled Tuesday, Prime Minister Diefenbaker said Thursday. His announcement of the forthcoming reorganization of the Canadian ministry, brought a new flood of speculation.

Two posts—secretary of state and forestry — are vacant and Veterans Affairs Minister Brooks, 69, appointed recently to the Senate, is expected to step out of that portfolio. But there have been reports that the changes will amount to more than filling these holes.

Mr. Diefenbaker appeared to give credence to such reports when, on leaving Saskatoon Wednesday night, he was quoted as saying he would be "completely reorganizing" his cabinet.

On entering a cabinet meeting Thursday he said only that "the reorganization of the cabinet will take place on Tuesday."

The prime minister said the cabinet shuffle will not be coupled with the appointment of a new lieutenant-governor for British Columbia.

This heightened speculation that Defence Minister Pearkes, at 72 the oldest member of the present cabinet, will be the successor to Frank Ross, who resigned from the lieutenant - governorship this week.

If Mr. Pearkes goes, the speculation is that defence will go to either Agriculture Minister Harkness or Justice Minister Fulton.

It is generally taken for granted that Hugh John Fleming, former New Brunswick premier who is contesting the Oct. 31 by-election in the New Brunswick constituency of Royal, will join the federal cabinet. Mr. Brooks told the Conservative convention that he nominated Mr. Fleming and the latter promised he would be the minister of forestry.

Parcel Post Rates to Rise Next March 1

OTTAWA (CP)—An increase in Canada's parcel rates will take effect next March 1, was announced today by the post office department. It will be the first boost since 1951.

Increased transportation costs, salary adjustments and other cost increases were given as the reason for the change in rates.

At the same time, the department said in a statement that at present there is "definitely no thought" of changes in ordinary letter rates. These rates, four cents for local letters and five cents for down - coast letters were introduced in 1954.

Some examples of the parcel post changes:

The new rate for a one-pound parcel mailed from Toronto to the same province will be 22 cents compared with the present 16 cents.

The cost of mailing the same parcel to an adjacent province—provinces are considered zones in rate-setting—will increase to 19 cents from the present 17 cents.

Rates are graduated by single pounds from one to 10. After which bulk rates apply. The latter rates will go up.

The full schedule of the new rates will be available at post printing for distribution to the public.

ALTA. OIL SANDS STILL UNTAPPED AFTER 60 YEARS

Said Cost So Far Nearly $160,000,000

OTTAWA (CP)—The vast oil sands of Alberta remain untapped after 60 years of effort costing between $50,053,000 and $100,000,000, director Abby Conroy of the federal mines branch said Thursday night.

He told the Canadian nuclear blast to shatter loose the sticky oil sands. Nature of the proposals was kept secret, but the majority of the provinces were reported to be in favor of favoring a wholly-Canadian constitution.

Whoever does solve the problem on a commercial scale—and efforts continue—will reap the benefits of perhaps the greatest single mineral resources in Canada, Dr. Conroy said.

The sands lie about 200 miles north of Edmonton and only about two per cent of an area reckoned at 17,000 square miles—and an average 100 feet deep—is exposed, a common fallacy, said Dr. Conroy, is that the physical job of separating oil from bitumen is the main problem.

BURIED DEEP

Hot water and kerosene did the trick. But there was the problem of getting the sands powered by as much as 1,000 feet of overburden. Ordinary mining processes were out.

The bitumen had to be extracted at something under 21/2 barrel and then there was the refining process and transportation to handle. He said that Cities Service Athabasca Incorporated, comprising Imperial Oil, Richfield Oil and Royalite Oil, planned to use a German machine designed for open - pit mining of coal. Its cone - shaped wheel would dredge up the sticky sand for belt conveyance to the plant for extraction treatment.

Another project involving Shell Oil was based on injection of hot water and steam into the sands, Dr. Conroy said.

The Cities Service group told the Alberta oil and gas conservation board in August that since 1935 had cost about $10,000,000 and that perhaps another $5,000,000 would be spent.

Dr. Conroy said the nuclear blast would be detonated on the basis of U.S. underground-tests

NBC Declares It Was Hoax Victim In 'This Is Your Life' Show May 4

NEW YORK (AP) — The National Broadcasting Co on a p.m. claimed Thursday both the network and Ralph Edwards were victims of a carefully-planned hoax" in connection with This Is Your Life program May 4. ...

NBC said in a statement that Mrs. Betty Hahn, 44, the subject of the program, "confessed her part in the deception" to James A. Stabile, NBC's vice-president of standards and practices.

Mrs. Hahn's husband — Abraham Hahn, a retired Army colonel —has filed a $500,000 suit against NBC in New York state Supreme Court.

Hahn, who said he has sued for divorce on grounds of abandonment, claimed the program intended to "depict the life of my wife, that she was happily married to me and that our two children were living happily with us in our home at the time of the broadcast."

He contended that NBC already knew he had started the divorce action. He said the program would cause great distress and humiliation.

The NBC statement said Mrs. Hahn "went to Stabile yesterday that she posed as a social worker and assumed name of "Elizabeth Short" and suggested that Hahn, a former actress—but actually her own daughter—would be a good subject.

The NBC statement continued: "In making the proposal, she outlined Pauline Hahn's history and its effects which Mrs. Hahn's mother — Betty Hahn— had made to further Pauline's personal and theatrical career. On the basis of this proposal, the Edwards organization suggested to 'Elizabeth Short' that Pauline's mother, Betty Hahn, would be a more appropriate subject for the program." She went through with it.

South African Whites Vote To Make Country a Republic

JOHANNESBURG (Reuters)—South Africa today assessed the possible far - reaching consequences of its referendum changing the country from a constitutional monarchy with the Queen as chief of state to a republic with a president.

Unofficial results in Wednesday's referendum in which only white persons voted gave prorepublic forces a majority of 74,111. The total pro - republican vote stood at 850,724 to the opposition's 774,697.

The result of the referendum was seen here as a personal victory for Nationalist Premier Hendrik Verwoerd and his policy of apartheid (racial segregation).

Opposition forces considered the vote a bad omen for the country carrying with it the threat of expulsion from the Commonwealth.

Afrikaners, who are mainly of Dutch descent, outnumber English-speaking South Africans 55 to 45 per cent.

The big majority in South Africa — the 10,000,000 Negroes and those of mixed blood—were not allowed to vote.

This fact was seized upon by Dr. Jan Steytler, leader of the opposition Progressive party, in assessing the results of the referendum.

He declared the referendum was not an endorsement of Prime Minister Verwoerd's Nationalist policies or, while, population, "it said the vast majority of the white voters would not make their views known.

Steytler called on Verwoerd to

Packaged Hospitals Ready In Event of Nuclear Attack

ARNPRIOR, Ont. (CP)—The big question if and when these nuclear bombs shatter Canadian cities are to save the leaders and then the hundreds of thousands of wounded.

The leaders — federal, provincial and municipal—must live to direct the efforts of the community in war, mayors of the Atlantic provinces were told Thursday.

Veterinarians, dentists and laboratory technicians will be called in to help the doctors and nurses.

Polish Underground Fighters Come to Defence of Koyer

SARNIA (CP)—Two former Polish underground fighters have come to the defence of Tadeusz Koyer, naturalized Canadian charged with murder in Poland.

F. W. Murphy, Progressive Conservative member of Parliament for Hamilton West, said their statement is to be presented today to a special meeting in Toronto of the Polish-Canadian Congress called to protest Koyer's arrest.

Koyer, who worked here six years until transferred in 1958 to Montreal by the bank which employs him, was arrested in his home Wednesday night on a bomb-throwing charge in his elderly mother.

He is charged with murder in the deaths of at least nine Polish partisans during the Second World War.

Mr. Murphy said Thursday night the statement says in part:

"We, as former soldiers of the Polish Home Army during this night the statement says in part: ... cens of Canada some background information which prevailed in Poland during the German occupation.

"In 1944 the Polish Home Army was under command of General Bor - Komorowski, commander-

MUTILATED BODY OF WOMAN FOUND IN QUEBEC CITY

Identified by Files In Police Department

QUEBEC (CP)—Old files in the Montreal police department headquarters Thursday helped identified the eyeless, mutilated body of a 38-year-old woman found in Quebec City.

Jeanne Blanchard, alias Jeanne Marcelle, was found strangled to death in a rooming house in the uptown Quebec business district. She had registered there with a man Tuesday.

Her eyes had been gouged out and the body horribly cut with a knife after death.

BLAMES BADIST

"This is the work of a sadist," said assistant chief of detectives Aime Guillemette.

Quebec police, baffled about the woman's identity, got in touch with Montreal and found that their files on the dead woman were fingerprints that matched those of the body. The woman was a native of St. Joachim, Que.

Guillemette said she and the man had registered at the rooming house under the names "Mr. and Mrs. St. Laurent."

The man left Wednesday night or early Thursday.

EYES GOUGED OUT

Guillemette gave this description of the body:

The upper lip and part of the nose were cut off. The words "do not" were carved on her right thigh. Her eyes had been gouged out.

Other policemen said there were teeth-marks on the body and it bore knife-marks, apparently made with a knife that had been sloped at the end, which were less visible but looked like "the nose of a pig-sticking knife." (You will no longer make a surfeit). They said there were a number of Xs carved on her right thigh.

Mrs. Robert Mooney, the landlady, was not able to identify any photographs as Quebec police records as resembling the man.

De Gaulle Says France Will Shun 'Warlike Dangers' of UN Assembly

LA TOUR DU PIN, France (AP) — President Charles de Gaulle said Thursday night that France will shun the "dangers" and the "absurd bargaining and warlike dangers" of the UN General Assembly.

He is the only Big Four leader to shun the present assembly in New York.

The French president was elected while anticipating an address vote by the assembly on the Algerian independence issue. He made his remarks in a brief speech on arrival here from Paris via Lyon.

Today he makes a major policy speech at a neighboring Grenoble.

Recalling his own role as proclaimed "free" — of France in 1945 at the UN charter conference in San Francisco, de Gaulle remarked:

"I was once one of the founders, along with four other small powers, of the United Nations organization. I brought out support to that institution.

"Today I see that it has left the organization to degenerate into a sort of permanent scandal, a monthly spectacle of absurd bargaining and warlike dangers.

"France does not lend herself to that, and will not lend herself. De Gaulle said that it is the role to play in Algeria, and called it strictly a French, problem. He said that France had pledged self-determination to Algeria, and did so repeatedly that the future Algeria, will willingly retain close links with France.

"In this domain as in others," said de Gaulle, "we will not permit a particular group, more or less excited, more or less ambitious, more or less totalitarian, to give us lessons and to tell us what we should do in Algeria or anywhere else."

Neutrals' Anger May Affect Vote On China Issue

Accuse U. S. of Trickery On Summit Talks Motion

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP) — The United Nations General Assembly headed into a weather-vane vote on Communist China today, a hint foreshadowing the position of neutralist nations and hinting the strength of the United States.

Soviet Premier Khrushchev and his supporters have failed to win, accusing the U.S. of racial discrimination in an effort to influence the new African nations.

Today's vote is not actually on the question of admitting Communist China to the world organization.

It is on whether to put this long and bitterly contested controversy on the assembly's agenda for the session. And for the 11 years the U.S. has succeeded in persuading the assembly to bypass the issue.

The vote last year against putting the China question on the agenda was 44 to 29, with nine abstentions.

CONSTANT PRESSURE

But this year, 16 new nations —predominantly neutralist in attitude—have joined the assembly. Khrushchev has been working hard, day and night, day, to win side and outside the UN.

Some African and Asian delegations, under strong feelings over the defeat of the neutralist resolution on the Congo crisis, talks between President Eisenhower and Khrushchev.

There were accusations that the U.S. used "parliamentary trickery" to get the defeated Italian resolution all references to Eisenhower and Khrushchev. The Argentine proposal to this effect was approved. The neutralists then withdrew their motion, claiming it had lost all its meaning.

A total of 351,000 — 300,000 without jobs and seeking work" and 50,000 "persons without jobs and seeking work" compared with 257,000 for the same month, 1958. There were 329,000 without jobs and seeking work and another 18,000 on temporary layoff.

The new definition of unemployed includes the 12 following mid-month figures for recent months — the starred figures are those without jobs and seeking work:

New Yardstick For Measuring Jobless Planned

OTTAWA (CP) — The government has approved a new yardstick of unemployment which would include persons on temporary layoff in the total of Canada's unemployment.

The announcement was made today with the publication of a report by a nine-man committee set up last March to recommend a more appropriate basis for "an official national measure of unemployment in Canada."

The committee's basic recommendations have been adopted, it was announced in a joint statement by Trade Minister Churchill and Labor Minister Starr. They will be put into effect in the next official report on the jobless picture, later this month.

The main change will be to add the total of those on temporary layoffs of up to 30 days to the total of those now listed as "without jobs and seeking work."

The latter figure has generally been accepted as the measure of unemployment — though official publications have never described it as such.

WILL BE HIGHER

The new figure, officially termed the total of "unemployed," will be higher than the present one.

The statistics will continue to be based on the surveys of the monthly labor force survey of 35,000 households.

Effect of the change, applied to the latest figures, be said August, totalling 351,000 unemployed, instead of 351,000 — "without jobs and seeking work" and 50,000 "without jobs and seeking work" — would compare with 257,000 for August, 1958. There were 329,000 without jobs and seeking work and another 18,000 on temporary layoff.

The new definition of unemployed includes the 12 following mid-month figures for recent months — the starred figures are those without jobs and seeking work:

Today's Weather

Increased transportation costs, salary adjustments and other cost increases were given as the reason for the change in rates.

At the same time, the department said in a statement that at present there is "definitely no thought" of changes in ordinary letter rates. These rates, four cents for local letters and five cents for down - coast letters were introduced in 1954.

Some examples of the parcel post changes:

The new rate for a one-pound parcel mailed from Toronto to the same province will be 22 cents compared with the present 16 cents.

The cost of mailing the same parcel to an adjacent province—provinces are considered zones in rate-setting—will increase to 19 cents from the present 17 cents.

Rates are graduated by single pounds from one to 10. After which bulk rates apply. The latter rates will go up.

The full schedule of the new rates will be available at post printing for distribution to the public.

Plan to Amend Hillcrest Area Zoning Rules

Home owners in the Hillcrest area will shortly get some relief from the present temporary zoning by-law which rules out additions or changes in their style.

At a recent meeting of the city planning committee, council recommended amendments to the by-law which would allow for extensions or rebuilding of homes. The committee recommendations will be from garages and dwelling.

Residents in the Hillcrest area have recently made strong objection to the zoning by-law which has made their area an industrial and ruled out residential building. Home owners petitioned and at the last council meeting flocked to city hall to back up the petition.

At that time City Planning Consultant Gerald Chatelain, Toronto, Dr. John Barlow said the by-law was already under revision.

First Luncheon Meet Held By United Appeal Workers

A. S. Robb, campaign chairman of the Belleville United Appeal, held the first of a series of weekly luncheon meetings for divisional chairmen and campaign workers at noon on Thursday at the Quenta Hotel.

Purpose of the meeting was to discuss the campaign and plans for launching this year's United Appeal campaign on Monday, Oct. 17.

The meetings are to be held each Thursday from now until the end of the campaign.

Ernest G. Gurnett, chairman of publicity, stressed that the cost of these weekly luncheons does not come out of United Appeal funds. Each person pays for his own meal.

Divisional chairmen were briefed on the contents of the canvassers' kits, which they will supply to their team captains and canvassers. These kits are ready for distribution and contain a statement of the budget, pledge cards, a brochure describing the activities of the 11 participating agencies, and a question — and-answer sheet to explain questions frequently asked of canvassers.

Council Gives 3rd Readings To Special Levy By-Laws

The special tax levy to pay off Belleville's floating indebtedness of approximately $373,000 officially became law Thursday afternoon as city council met in a special session to give third readings to six by-laws.

The by-laws assessing property owners in the "old" part of the city at 18.76 mills, and the newly annexed areas 8.76 mills were given two readings by council several weeks ago and then forwarded to the Ontario Municipal Board for approval.

Approval was received this week and Mayor A. M. Hall called council together for a special session yesterday to give third and final reading.

The special levy may be paid at one time or spread over a five-year period. The first payment will be due December 15.

Final approval of the special tax levy has thus come just a year after the judicial enquiry held last year before Judge A. R. Willmott to determine the extent of the city's indebtedness caused by deficit financing and municipal sponsorship of a senior hockey team.

The special levy by-law was made law without inclusion of a fifty per cent reserve originally sought by Mayor Hall to guard against possible non-collection of tax payments.

The five per cent reserve was to be included by-law but was voted out by a narrow margin on an amendment moved by Finance Chairman William H. Jarvis and Ald. George Wishart.

Yesterday afternoon Mayor Hall challenged press reports of the by-law amendment which said he had been angry at the exclusion of the reserve.

"I was not angry," stated the mayor, noting he would not like that impression to go out as relations between council had been most harmonious.

The mayor said, however, that he still felt council would have been on sounder ground if the five per cent reserve had been included in the by-law. He said future councils would be well advised to keep the special levy tax collections separate and not allow them to get behind.

Children's Aid Brings New Hope To Neglected

The world can be a mighty cold place even in the summer, but certainly would be a cold place if your only parent, your mother, didn't come home for days.

Joe, age 8, and Mary, age 11, were in that situation this summer for their mother didn't come home. The fact that being in jail prevented the mother's return held no consolation for Joe and Mary.

Friends of the family learned about conditions and removed the children and cared for them temporarily.

During this period the mother made no efforts to seek help for her children. Following her discharge from jail she approached the Children's Aid Society and assistance was given to locate the children.

This society's investigation showed the family was living in a poor dwelling, the income was meagre, there was insufficient space for three people and there was a serious degree of housekeeping problem.

Today Joe and Mary are wards of the Children's Aid Society living their happy, ordinary and normal lives in front of us, but which to them are constant miracles. They know there is more to life than what they had before, and they will have the opportunity, with skilful assistance, to become assets to the community instead of liabilities.

Without the continued support of the public through the United Appeal such constructive work would not take place. Won't you continue to help?

Future of Artillery Camp Causing Concern in Chamber

PICTON — Concerned over the future of Camp Picton, Prince Edward Chamber of Commerce is asking Clarence A. Milligan, M. P. Prince Edward-Lennox, to arrange a delegation with the Minister of National Defence. When this is done, a group representative of the county will be named to go to Ottawa in an effort to have the future of the camp clarified.

Action on the part of the Chamber was urged by Phil Dodds., who pointed out that though a letter had appeared in local papers from the Minister of National Defence, stating there would be no change in strength of camp personnel, a few days later several hundred members of the Royal Canadian School of Artillery (AA) and their families had been moved to Hillier, Man. A large number of civilians have become unemployed as a result.

Barney Hepburn stated that it is essential town and county know what is in store so that plans for an industrial facilities and other matters can be made. He pointed out that the natural expansion of the local economy had been made following the assurance that the Camp would remain at strength.

Town Picton, with all its modern facilities, as soon as possible.

It is essential that this town and county make themselves heard at Ottawa, Chamber President Basil Foreman stated.

Letters from the Ontario Department of Highways indicated that the requested bridge linking Prince Edward and Peninsula has not been forgotten. The Chamber has received a proposed alternative No. 23 highway, feeling that such expenditure would not leave sufficient funds to permit the proposed bridge, Dodds stated.

A committee of Phil Dodds, Les Foley and Barney Hepburn were named to arrange either a Santa Claus Parade or as an alternative, a children's Christmas party in the armouries.

Hasty Pees Will Hold Reunion Over Weekend

PICTON — This town, where in 1939 the regiment was recruited and from which it went overseas, will be the scene of the annual reunion of Hastings and Prince Edward regiment over Thanksgiving weekend.

Major Howard Reid, president of the Regimental Association, stated today that registration will take place Saturday morning with a get-together in the Armouries and a dance at night. At noon on Sunday there will be a parade to the War Memorial for a short service and a march past. Methods being followed in the organization of which the speaker will be Lt.-Col. J. F. Gubbels, Senior Padre of the Canadian Army, at Ottawa, who was regimental padre while overseas. The get-together will continue on Monday. Former members of the regiment are expected from many parts of Ontario.

A number of Wing members have volunteered to donate blood at the Nov. 8 Red Cross Blood Clinic.

Wing president Vic Bellavance said he has been transferred to Montreal and will leave shortly. Vice-president Lorne Foley will take over for the balance of the term.

summon a national convention representing all sections of the community to plan the movement of our multi-racial country."

In Britain, newspaper opinion almost unanimously condemned the referendum. Some newspapers called for Britain to take a lead in excluding South Africa from the Commonwealth. Others insisted that the union could stay in the Commonwealth as a republic.

The Guardian and Manchester and Bristol should not leave it to Ghana and Malaya to determine the Commonwealth membership issue.

Britain should make it clear that any nation that "repudiates the traditions which we and our fellow - members claim to observe" is no longer welcome in the Commonwealth, the Guardian said.

The Daily Express said:

"They (the South Africans) are entitled to expect British support for their application to remain part of the Commonwealth. But British should assure the South Africans that she will never abandon them."

Eisenhower Oldest President

President Dwight Eisenhower has just become the oldest president to hold office in United States history — and that before he had reached the age of 70.

"This is amazing," exclaims the Montreal Gazette, "when it is compared with the tradition of other countries. Outside the United States, it has been common for statesmen, including Prime Ministers and other leaders, to hold office well past the age of 70."

The explanation is not so difficult to find.

In the United States only one president, Franklin D. Roosevelt, has been elected for more than two terms and the law has since been changed to make a third term unlawful. Roosevelt died early in the first year of his third term. No president besides him has served for more than eight years.

In the normal course of affairs, an able man will master the intricacies of politics—or of statesmanship —while he is still middle-aged. As between two men of equal ability and experience, the choice of a convention nominating a candidate for the U.S. presidency may be the younger man, for the very reason that he is younger and will have a greater appeal to younger voters, whose party loyalties may not be so rigid as those in the higher age brackets.

In a parliamentary system, on the other hand, party leadership is not limited to eight years. Leaders tend to stay in office longer, if they can keep their party in power. If the time to retire does come while they still hold office, they have a great influence on the choice of a successor and their preference, naturally enough, often is a long-time colleague. On the other hand, if a leader retires after his party is defeated at the polls, the choice of the party may be a young man, but he is likely to have to serve many years in opposition before attaining the position of prime minister.

Whether this tendency of parliamentary democracies to entrust leadership to older men is a handicap or an advantage is problematic. On the one hand there is the advantage of experience, on the other the disadvantage, which none of us can escape, of growing as we grow older, of not being completely attuned to the present or, more likely, of being unable to anticipate the future as well as could a younger man.

Two Views on the Future

On television Monday evening Henry Cabot Lodge, Republican candidate for vice-president and former U.S. spokesman in the United Nations, declared that Khrushchev "has lost this round in New York and has lost it badly." He added, however, that he did not want to paint a rosy picture, "this conflict is going on for a generation."

In the same hour before, at the United Nations itself, Pandit Nehru, Indian prime minister, had said that if the world does not disarm within three or four years "it may be too late and all the good will in the world will not be able to stop the drift to certain disaster."

Here, outlined by two able men, are two diametrically opposed views of today's world—and its future, if much.

Lodge believes the Cold War can continue, without erupting into a hot one.

Nehru doubts this; if things do not get better, they will inevitably get worse, in his opinion.

Lodge is the optimist, Nehru the pessimist.

Judging between these two viewpoints is difficult. Perhaps many will feel that the future Lodge envisions is possible, but that unless the trend is reversed Nehru's prediction is the more probable outcome.

STRENGTH FOR THE DAY
DR EARL L. DOUGLASS
RELIGION IS REAL
Is religion an "extra?" It is for some persons, and wherever this is true it is a pity. Religion is not extra. In fact there is real doubt as to whether or not it is "religious" at all. Religion is only as an adjunct or responsible citizenship or as a convenience. Many people belong to church because they like it the thing to do. They go when the weather is too bad for golf, rush but the opening of the doors or when they don't have a week- of our hearts that the most high end engagement, or when fancy God may fellowship with us and moves them. Of course they go less with Him.
Christmas and Easter. Further, they want to be sure of membership in the church, likely will have someone baptize, marry, and bury when the need arises.
Now, whatever one says for religion has to offer. What religion offers us is the forgiveness of our sins, the release within our hearts and from high heaven of divine powers which make living possible. It gives us the peace which passeth all understanding. It gives us a sense of security, and puts us in the presence of God. It gives us a sense of destiny, and puts us in the presence of God. It gives us a sense of purpose, and puts us in the presence of God. It gives us a sense of joy, and puts us in the presence of God. It gives us a sense of peace, and puts us in the presence of God. It gives us a sense of love, and puts us in the presence of God. It gives us a sense of hope, and puts us in the presence of God. It gives us a sense of faith, and puts us in the presence of God. It gives us a sense of eternity, and puts us in the presence of God.

Historic Hastings—
The Saga of Peter Martin
Part Two

(Article 124 in the series sponsored by the Hastings County Historical Society).

As we noted in the last column Crowbymakin, the Peter Martin story could also known was certainly one of the most outstanding figures of Hastings history.

In her biography "Famous Islander" Mrs. Mary Byrd Trent Mountain details his career from the beginning of his medical practice in Frankford in 1867 to his death in 1897.

Subsequent to his residence in Frankford, Peter Martin moved to Stratford where he was wide recognized as a doctor and also had a "brief fling" in politics. This "fling" resulted in his being brought to the attention of Sir John A. Macdonald and shortly thereafter he was appointed "Consulting Physician" to the Mohawk Indians "wandering" on reserve.

This meant a move to the Mohawk area, and while living there he became a partner in a general store at Deseronto. But because of his trust in human nature and his "Good Samaritan" attitude to anyone, the business went into bankruptcy in a short time.

In 1873, Dr. Martin finally left Napanee and moved to London, Ontario, his "most agreeable" town. There, Crowbymakin first entered his "wanderings" moved in a special dispensation for this having been granted since the constitution limited membership to "white males" only.

Crowbymakin soon rose to prominence in the movement (then quiltily strike between rival factions) and became Chief Ranger of the Ontario courts.

Dr. Martin, a member of the Foresters in the latter part of the 19th century, he was particularly impressed by the Foresters' insurance plan and believed it would provide a good financial protection for all families. The latter years were devoted to this scheme with a great deal of success, with its related ideas and included the visitation of the sick.

Thereof is the insurance plan was followed by attention to the care of orphans and tuberculous patients, and institutions for these people were established by the Independent Order of Foresters on Forresters Island, off Desolation in the Bay of Quinte.

As the Independent Order of Foresters became more complicated it was obligated to leave London and move to Toronto, where he suspended his practice of medicine.

Then, in 1907, a sudden heart seizure ended his life.

He perished one of the outstanding Indians of Canadian history, a man renowned as a rifle shot, a canoeist, a paddle specialist, an organizer, a friend, and a humanitarian.

His life has been well recognized in Ethel Brant Monture's biographical sketch of "Famous Indians", Crowbymakin lightly deserves inclusion in this category.

Strictly Personal
Fear Seen Great Silencer Of Speech

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Sitting around after dinner the other evening, we began to talk about conversation, and about the lack of it in our time, desultory. Interesting talkers are rare, and considered why so many persons who display a normal share of wit and intelligence in private fail to capitalize on these assets in public.

It seems to me that there are four main reasons for most conversational failures. All of them are rooted in the same emotion: Fear. Here is the number four to fear, in my list:

1. Fear of being wrong, or being thought wrong. Some personalities are so fragile that they cannot stand the possibility of being contradicted or disproverted, so they say as little as possible, and confine themselves to insipid generalities.

2. Fear of being original or different. The herd impulse is terribly strong in this land of alleged individualism, and the need to conform to standard patterns and belief makes many persons from voicing any opinion or significant heresies they might privately feel.

3. Fear of being dull. Paradoxically enough, the most important factor in creating dullness is the fear of saying daring or witty things that might fall flat — so dullness becomes a defense against dullness.

4. Fear of exploration or profundity. Many people live in so precarious an emotional balance that they feel they cannot afford to explore anything that might question their basic attitudes. By conversation that goes deeper than superficiality is shunted off by them as possibly leading to a discussion and examination, or self-accusation.

Of course, there are a few persons who are exceptionally dull; who simply are not interesting because they are not interesting, and who make no demands upon themselves or upon those they make none on the world. But these, I think, constitute but a small minority.

The only answer is to say that many persons seem dull merely because they are shy or self-repressed, are often the most striking and entertaining conversationalists when their shyly quiet way.

It is caring too much for the good opinion of others that inhibits the freedom and charm of speech, and it is precisely this inhibition that loses what it seeks to gain, the good opinion of others.

Chinese Hero Of Cold War

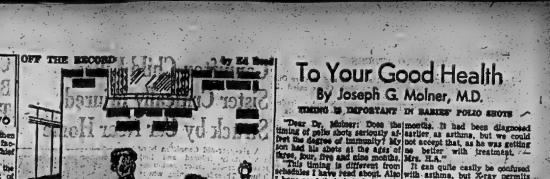
Baltimore Sun

Instances of heroism are not so numerous in the cold war that any one can afford to let such instance is on view in of all places. Communist China. There, according to a Hong Kong newspaper, Ma Yin-chu, former prest dent of Peking University, has just been assigned to a labour camp for the rest of his life. His offense? He questioned the economic and demographic aspects of the Communist theories laid down by the Red Chinese state.

Ma was chosen as an economist in the United States by Columbia, Chou En-lai, Chinese Premier, invited him to return to China in 1949. He was made the president of the Chinese industrial leaders and help with the economic planning. Soon he was named to the permanent committee of the People's Congress of China, though he was not a Communist party member and he published a book in 1957 for which he was criticized before the Congress and branded as heretic. His patron Chou did not go off without severe penalties.

In November of last year Dr. Ma courageously returned to the charge with a public statement that there were objective laws of economics which not even Communism could overthrow. Specifically, he argued that Communist China had not achieved through the mere application of Marxist principles of view. Ma was removed from his university post; he had already been severely criticized in the offending article itself by heroic restatement of the credo of Marxist-Leninism.

"Critics should lay the facts before all concerned that they examine them on a rational basis," Ma wrote, "and not under the consideration of both of which they should not seek to intimidate by the application of the power of superior power, because by this means persuasion can never be reached." In Communist China these are heroic words. Ma's fate is not known, but they themselves. Dr. Ma is paying for them.



Food Cooked On Delivery

Ottawa Journal

A Massachusetts advertising food concern will strike 10 or 12 years food will be packaged in containers that are really tiny ovens. The food will be ordered by telephone, he says, and the grocer will start the cooking up before sending it out. It will arrive cooked.

There was a happy time when these predictions of marvels to come were regarded as wholly fantastic. Stories of five-course meals concentrated into a few pills, or cars controlled by automatic pilots were considered silly. But they did not seem to threaten the pleasures of eating a rare steak or late-model car with a steering wheel.

Now anything is possible. The market already offers devices for protecting appetizers with one blow, giving television set without going out of bed, and electrocuting waiters at the phonies of stores—perhaps does come true will the faculty that likes it best rare have to have Vincent to the butcher shop so the roast will not be overdone in delivery!

Israel's trade figures for the end of the year will show a strange import item — 11 ladybugs from Japan. They are to be used experimentally as a control on other harmful insects.

Apparently the Israeli authorities have considered fully the known dangers of interfering with the balance of nature. History shows many tragic instances where predatory insects introduced to control pests have turned out to be greater pests themselves.

Rabbits, foreign to Australia, became a pest only after they were introduced from Europe. Now they are a major pest there.

A disease in rat rabbits, introduced in England and Australia, has harmed Scots sheepbreeders because rabbits have been their normal prey, the rabbit, and are attacking lambs. Such are the effects of interfering with nature's balance.

Freedom Too Soon

It is as dangerous for Africans to demand, as it is for their governors to grant, political freedom before they have the means to use it sanely. It is indeed more to their long-term interest than to those of the imperial power, which will eventually wash its hands of them, to wait until political, formal and practical, has provided a sufficient class capable of carrying no government.

TIMING IS IMPORTANT IN SAFEST POLIO SHOTS

Dear Dr. Molner: Does the timing of polio shots seriously affect the degree of immunity? My son had his shots at 2, 4 and 6 months, but they made him sick. Is it all right to delay the third shot six months?

Mrs. H.A.

Polio can quite easily be confused with sickness, but Sabin recommends it to be identified readily, and in any case is better to err on the safe side.

Ample of why X-ray is necessary in diagnosing the sickness.

Pulmonary Thrush is a scarcity of the land, perhaps from some prior infection, perhaps, in some cases, from some cause as yet cannot be determined. In any event, the ability of the lung to expand and contract is impaired by this scarring, and shortness of breath results.

Courtesy a Devastating

Hamilton Spectator

"No man", an old philosopher once said to us, "ever takes a liberty with a lady unless he is first sure of her." A sensible approach the word "lady".

Courtesy is a fine sentiment may seem a trifle out of focus, but it does serve to point out the characteristics of a gentleman or lady good manners naturally follow.

Courtesy is a devasting weapon. It is awfully hard to be boorish to a person who is unfailingly courteous. The story is told of an old Irish sergeant who was disarmed bandit with the remark: "I must ask you to hand over that gun, sir, and, if you have any more on the police station". The man did so, for the request was remarkable as it may seem: a bandit is not a bandit when he chooses to shoot an unarmed man who treats him with courtesy. There is a lesson in that.

The New Jersey Highway Authority has abandoned the toll-taker force in the words "thank you". Instead collectors on state highways have installed machines that newsiegement when receiving tolls from motorists. Drivers are beginning the exits with their appropriate receptacles.

The ultimate result may be a sad one though. Its effectiveness in speeding traffic, reducing of public relations and salesmen's qualifications to educate its Chapter One as part of the system that makes success. The result will be a loss of electrical smile, the tape-recorded "thankyou" and the curt "Glad you were here, call again soon" which we are printed on the back of some restaurant receipts. But in the meantime. . .

This goes to prove how wise the great God is. Everybody would try to take the same course at the same time, and we would find ourselves in the same thing at once, were it not that we are different in our different time and modeled from just a little different mold.

It was for this reason that patiences was invented!

New Suffragan Bishop Won MC in Holland

LONDON Ont. (CP) — Ven. T. F. Appleyard Archdeacon of Brant, was chosen Thursday as the second suffragan bishop of the Anglican diocese of Huron in an election that went to six ballots.

Archdeacon Appleyard led throughout the balloting by 216 clergymen and 339 lay delegates, but did not receive the necessary 51 per cent majority of both sides until the sixth vote.

The 55-year-old bishop - elect, son of an Anglican canon and winner of the Military Cross in the Second World War, will be consecrated next Jan. 6.

The archdeacon polled a substantial majority of lay delegates' votes on all but the first two ballots in St. Paul's Cathedral. He lacked 21 votes by the clergy on the third ballot and the fourth and two on the fifth. On the sixth he received 125 clerical and 244 lay votes. The minimum majorities required were 102 and 152 respectively.

MADE UNANIMOUS

By a show of hands delegates then gave the bishop-elect their unanimous support, following a motion for this by his two nearest rivals in the balloting, Very Rev. R. C. Brown, Dean of Huron and rector of the cathedral, and Archdeacon Clarence A. Seaman, diocesan commissioner.

The names of 18 other candidates had been put forward.

The new suffragan Bishop will be located in Owen Sound to administer Waterloo, Huron, Perth, Grey and Bruce Counties, under the direction of Rt. Rev. George H. Gauntlett, Bishop of Huron. Rt. Rev. William Townsend will continue as suffragan bishop for the whole diocese.

APPROVED LAST MAY

Election of a fourth suffragan bishop was approved by Huron synod last May as the first step towards eventual partition of the diocese. Huron is the second diocese, after Toronto, to elect a second suffragan.

Born in Clarksburg, near Owen Sound, Archdeacon Appleyard was educated at Owen Sound and Woodstock. He graduated from the University of Western Ontario in 1927 and from Huron College in 1929. The university conferred an honorary degree of Doctor of Divinity on him in 1950.

Following his ordination in 1930 he served at Bervie, Kerwood, Rodney and Dunnville. During the Second World War he served as a chaplain with the Canadian Army, winning the Military Cross at Twenthe Canal, Holland.

The archdeacon shrugged off questions about how he won the medal.

FORGOTTEN DETAILS

"I've forgotten the details," he said Thursday. "I've never quite understood it myself. I have a ghost of an idea where the citation is.

He admitted, however, that he served under fire at the Twenthe Canal but said that, like medals in other battles,

"It was mostly around the regimental aid post with the medical officers", he said.

He served with the Royal Regiment of Canada nearly three years, and was with the regiment in every action except Dieppe.

A relative discussed that the citation says his "tactical skill, coolness and devotion to duty" during the fighting of the canal "was typical of his conduct throughout the whole of his European campaign."

He became canon of St. Paul's Cathedral in 1951 and in 1954 was made Archdeacon of Brant.

He is married and has two sons and a daughter.

His predecessor was R. T. P. Appleyard of Preston.

BOMBS SCARE HALTS JET

VANCOUVER (CP)—A Trans-Canada Air Lines jet with 87 passengers aboard returned to international airport here Thursday because of a telephoned bomb scare, the third such hoax call to the control tower in as many days. The plane took off again two hours after its scheduled takeoff, after police had searched the aircraft and found nothing.

OTTAWA (CP)—A public hearing is planned next month by the Board of Broadcast Governors to find out what private radio stations think about getting more variety in their programming and to deal with new applications for broadcasting licences.

Dr. Andrew Stewart, chairman of the board, said one aim of the hearing in Ottawa Nov. 28 is to elicit comments and ideas from private radio programmers on how to diversify programs.

Before the hearing the board plans a statement outlining the ideas.

"We plan a general statement as to how we think private radio can conform more closely to the Broadcasting Act which specifically calls for varied and comprehensive programming," he said.

Views given at the public hearing would likely form the basis for recommendations from the board for amendments to Canada's radio regulations. Then a second public hearing will be held to consider the specific recommendations.

SAMPLED 4 LOGS

Dr. Stewart said that the board sampled the programs of about 44 Canadian radio stations and found most of them met the standard meeting a proper standard for varied programs.

The Canadian Press, in a report of a speech by Dr. Stewart in Montreal on Sept. 20, erroneously quoted him as saying that advertising was down because private Canadian radio stations with some exceptions—were performing to the standard.

Due to a transmission error, the word "not" was omitted from the CP story.)

In an interview Thursday, Dr. Stewart said that many private radio stations distributed "good advertising announcements throughout their time spectrum—but they are scattered over five for a continuous, unbroken program.

"What the board feels is that greater variety in programs could be achieved by a better spread of the announcements messages during the broadcasting period, thereby leaving sections of radio time open for more comprehensive programming.

The barn was overrun with pests, and Tom had called young Fred in to get rid of the pests.

"It's a deal for you, son," he said, when the boy arrived with his dog. "Seventy-five cents for every rat you kill. And for the first rat you bring, one for the second, six for the third, and so on."

"Okay," Fred was happy, and set the fun started.

Tom checked when the job was done, and gladly handed over the seven dollars the boy had earned.

More mice than rats had been killed, but what were the exact numbers?

Okay's Answer: POSED was 70836.

Firemen's Annual Ball Well Attended

DESERONTO — An exceptionally large crowd was on hand for the annual "Firemen's Ball" held at the Lions' Hall here on Mill Street on Friday night last. Dancing began about 9:30 after nine o'clock and continued until after one in the morning. The large crowd was enthusiastic in its praise of the music furnished by Steve Chenoa and his Blue Stars from Batawa. The best tribute was the way the floor was packed as soon as dancing started.

The door prize of a cutlery set was won by Miss Carol Cote, Thomas St. East.

The hall had been tastefully decorated by the firemen for the evening with beautifully colored branches of leaves from the neighboring woods and streamers of appropriate colors for the theme. The crowd also heartily requested a repeat dance at a later date. The money derived from the dance is to be used to redecorate the rooms over the firehall where the firemen plan to hold card parties in the near future.

Chinese Actors, Actresses After Finishing Films Go Back to Factories as Workers

Is this article on Red China Ronald Farquhar . . . has consulted a 11-month assignment as Reuters correspondent-cameraman on the Chinese film industry.

By RONALD FARQUHAR

CHANGCHUN, China (Reuters) Every day or so stars in Communist China's filmland.

At a movie studio here, Mr. Ma, the studio's 20-year-old secretary, told this correspondent solemnly:

"Our actors and actresses are regarded as working workers.

"After finishing their films, they go into the countryside or to factories to work alongside peasants and workers and get to know them, their thoughts and feelings so that they can better interpret them on the screen . . . we have no stars in our film industry."

SMALL SALARIES

Nor do film actors and actresses in China receive big salaries. The highest paid actor receives about 300 yuan (about $80) a month and the average wage is about 85 yuan (about $24) a month.

Film directors' salaries are comparable to those of chief engineers in a factory—up to 250 yuan (about $100) a month.

During my visit to the studio, I watched the shooting of a scene from a film about the Chinese-Japanese War of 1894-95.

THE FILM

This is what I saw:

Suspicion glittered in the eyes of the American diplomat as he looked hard at the Chinese dignitary sitting opposite, resplendent in flowing silken robes of green, gold and blue. His harsh voice rasped across the spacious room.

"Viceroy Li," the American was saying, "if you would like to make a truce. . . ."

The viceroy smiled. The red ruby glowed in his peacock feather. He replied:

"Please do not misunderstand. We are close friends. . . ."

It seemed that the diplomat was plotting with a corrupt pro-revolutionary Chinese official to betray Chinese forces to Japan during the war.

I was startled to hear the actor playing the American minister speak his lines in Russian. My guides explained that the actor was a Russian from Harbin, capital of neighboring Heilungkiang province which borders on the Soviet Union. "His lines will be dubbed in Chinese when the film is produced," they explained.

The Chinese do not often employ a European to portray a foreigner in their films. Usually Chinese actors play those parts, skilful makeup and long practice transforming their Oriental features into those of Westerners.

On the surface the atmosphere and appearance of the studio was not unlike one in the West.

PROPAGANDA PURPOSES

But there is a widely different approach to the business of film making and all that goes with it. The movie industry has been told to "serve politics" which means making a miniature antique steam fire engine pumper and indeed, in the Peking-Changchun competition, a children's Royal, an outstanding flower display, a shoe pitching competitions, a fashion show and displays of rare tropical fish.

Two Belleville Men Will Be Judges at Fair

Prominent figures in agriculture including J. H. MacMillan and H. J. Heimpel of Bel-leville, will comprise a large panel of judges from three different nations to select prize - winners from among the thousands of entries of cattle, sheep, swine, grain, vegetables and other agricultural produce which will be on display at the 1960 Royal Agricultural Winter Fair in the Coliseum, Toronto, from November 11 to 19.

Reputed to be the world's largest annual indoor agricultural exhibition, the Royal is described as the show window of agriculture and the show place of champions. It is the only fair on the North American continent which can use the word "Royal" in its title, the approval and consent of the Royal Family.

This year the Royal will offer eleven grain championships which other western countries recognize as international. These are world titles in wheat, oats, barley, rye, table sheaf, mixed, seed potatoes, corn, forage crop seeds, soy beans, hay and legumes.

MANY TICKET REQUESTS

Judging from ticket requests received by the Royal Horse Show which brings together some of the world's finest riders and horses, Texas and Canada, the United States, Mexico, Great Britain and Ireland compete in the International Jumping Competitions.

Participants in the Horse Show will be Duncan Renaldo, better known to millions as the "Cisco Kid". A top television, movie and stage star, Renaldo is a horse lover. Renaldo and his horse "Diablo" will appear on the program each night of the evening of the Royal as well as at five matinee performances and at the special Saturday morning shows.

Other features of the 1960 Royal will include a novel 'display of Scotland Yard at work' including a miniature antique steam fire engine pumper and indeed, in the Peking-Changchun competition, a children's Royal, an outstanding flower display, a horse pitching competitions, a fashion show and displays of rare tropical fish.

Apparently Ties That Bind Commonwealth Wear Thin

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The spat between India and Australia at the United Nations General Assembly appears to be another in a series of developments that may strain Commonwealth relations and raise new questions about the future of the unique family of nations.

Prime Minister Nehru of India normally is a man of gentleness who pursues the trail of peace in a quiet, conciliatory manner but over some 400,000,000 hungry souls he has developed a forward nationalism and regional firm.

But he seldom raises his voice, even to his enemies. It must indeed have been noticeable anger which forced him to declare publicly that his Commonwealth colleague—Prime Minister Menzies of Australia—was voicing an argument that was "completely untenable" and that "verges on absurdity".

SUMMIT APPEAL

Nehru came to the UN aligned with those so-called "uncommitted nations" countries appealing for an immediate Summit conference composed of Premier Khrushchev of Russia and President Eisenhower.

Eisenhower has declared he'll not be "dragged" into a Summit conference unless there is some indication that such a meeting would be fruitful.

Khrushchev has declared he won't attend a Summit conference unless the U.S. and withdrew his Khrushchev lose face at home.

The Soviet leader confirmed with those words that he would come if he could make Eisenhower lose face.

But Nehru and his neutralist partners, it became increasingly clear to the United States it would not be in the interests of where it would have to turn down a UN request to condemn Red Chinese for supporting the U.S. position came opened the exhibition.

through with a series of proposals designed to water down the neutral's appeal.

Among these was Australia's suggestion for a resumption of a four - power Summit meeting sometime in the unspecified future.

SOME EMBARRASSMENT

Australia's proposal apparently was suspect because Menzies made it after a weekend conference with Eisenhower and Prime Minister Macmillan of Britain. It may be a matter of embarrassment for Menzies that he was rebuffed 45 to 5 with only Canada, France; Belgium and the U.S. supporting Australia.

In any case Nehru felt repelled by the parliamentary manoeuvring of those supporting the U.S. and withdrew his proposal but with apparently some feeling he was being bludgeoned into a corner.

There undoubtedly remains much goodwill and brain between the two Commonwealth prime ministers that could spill over into future conferences.

This may well make some Canadians question the "special ties" which Khrushchev would have to meet before another Summit could take place. These were conditions that might make Khrushchev lose face at home.

The Soviet leader confirmed with those words that he would come if he could make Eisenhower lose face.

But Nehru and his neutralist partners, it became increasingly clear to the United States it would not be in the interests of where it would have to turn down a UN request to condemn Red Chinese for supporting the U.S. position came opened the exhibition.

Eggleton M.B. Elects 1960-61 Officers

MADOC JUNCTION — The Eggleton Mission Band meeting for September was held last Friday afternoon at the school.

The worship centre at the front of the school had been arranged with a map of the world forming a background; a Bible at the front of the table, with a vase of colorful petunias on one side and a candlestick with candles, on the other side.

The president, Ivan Reide, presided over a program which Sheila Clarke and Dianne Prest had prepared, and opened the meeting with all singing "You May Have the Joy Belle Engaging in Your Heart", followed by repeating Mission Band Purpose and The Lord's Prayer.

Sheila Clarke read a Psalm.

A reading "Galilee", was given by Glenn Stapley; and the minutes by Beverley Stapley. The roll call was answered by 27 children and four adults.

Carol Danford gathered the offering.

A poem was read by Carol White, followed by a piano solo played by Lois Danford.

The Mission Band leader, Mrs. Marion Stapley, took charge for the election of officers for 1960-61, as follows: president, Dianne Prest; vice - president, Ivan Reid; secretary, Beverley Stapley; treasurer, Sheila Clarke; program conveners, Carol White and Ivan Reide; lunch conveners, Wayne McMullen and Kenneth Danford; pianist, Mrs. Marion Stapley; assistant pianist, Lois Danford.

Mrs. Clancy held up several sheets of white cardboard on which she had printed letters of the Hebrew, Greek, Eskimo and Indian languages.

Then she told the story of James Evans, who had learned to read from the Cree Indians, so the church sent him to what is now "Norway House" to help could teach the Bible to the Indians there.

He had many difficulties. But using fish oil to make ink and birch bark for the first kind of paper, he worked hard during the trapping season, so that he could have a few verses of hymns and portions of Scripture translated and ready to teach the Indians on their return home.

With the theme "Into All the World Together", Lois Danford read two selected portions of Scripture from St. Matthew and Proverbs, and the candle on the table was lighted by Carol Johnson. All the pupils joined in singing, "Jesus Loves Me".

The "World Friends" papers were distributed by Carol White, Lois Danford, Lin Stapley and Brian Kovach.

Dianne Prest read the closing prayer.

During a short recreation period the older children made up little notebooks and were asked to find a picture to paste on the cover for the next meeting.

Mrs. Reide dismissed the school with prayer.

Lois Danford served delicious cookies.

Mrs. D. Jarvis New President CARS Auxiliary

The annual meeting of the C.A.R.S. Auxiliary was held at the home of Mrs. Ross Kennedy, with Mrs. Knox David, the president in the chair. 35 Attend 'Treasure Hunt' Bridal Shower

STIRLING — Mrs. Robert Patterson entertained 35 girl friends and neighbors recently in honor of Miss Betty Scott, an October bride-to-be.

The decorations were bridal streamers and bells, and the shower was in the form of a treasure hunt.

The guests enjoyed games and contests on the theme of the party, and each fashioned a pretty hat for the bride-to-be.

When Betty received the hats she found directions where her gold treasure chest, decorated with sequins and jewels, was located.

The chest was filled with a large array of wrapped miscellaneous gifts which she received opened. Afterwards she expressed her thanks.

The hostess served refreshments in individual boxes, and all enjoyed a social half hour.

Guests included the bride-groom's mother, Mrs. William Miller, and sisters, Misses Linda and Noreen Miller of Ameliasburgh.

FEATHERSTONE — DUNHAM

A lovely, double-ring wedding was solemnized on Saturday, October 1st, at 2.00 p.m. in Grace Chapel, Stirling, Ontario, by Reverend W. E. Belch, of Bethel Chapel, Belleville, when Doris Marilyn Dunham, of Hereford, Ontario, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Dunham, was united in marriage to Craig Jackson Featherstone, of Pinnington, Ontario, son of Mr. Max Featherstone, and the late Mrs. Featherstone. Golden and scarlet dahlias and ferns formed a pretty setting for the ceremony, and white satin bows designated the guest pews.

Mrs. Ernest Belch of Arkona, Ontario, rendered the wedding music and Mrs. Claude Long sang, "The Wedding Prayer," during the ceremony. "A Benediction," at the close of the ceremony and "Toccata" during the signing of the register.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was charmingly gowned in floor-length mist chiffon tulle over taffeta, fashioned with Sabrina neckline, long sleeves, and fitted bodice. The slate-wide skirt was accented by a rectangle front of imported lace with tiered frills of lace and tulle cascading in folds at the back. She wore an elbow-length veil of tulle and wore a bridal muff edged with a heart-shaped headdress of Chantilly lace with tulle pleating dotted with tiny seed pearls. Her flowers were a semi-cascade of Bellefonte rose roses.

Mrs. Hubert Warren of Rossmore, attended the bride as matron of honor, wearing a shrimp-colored, street - length dress with a modified bodice with rounded neckline and unadorned. The full skirt was accented by a back bow, and she carried a cascade of white gladioli blooms.

The bridesmaids, Miss Gordon Langford, sister of the groom, sister of the bride and Mrs. Claude Long of Trenton, were attired in ocean-blue gowns similar to that of the matron of honor. They wore matching headdresses and carried semi-cascades of white gladioli.

Flower girl Miss Brenda Warren, of Rossmore, niece of the bride, carried a sweet flower girl, in her floor-length frock in pink shade, with cummerbund and large bow. She wore a matching headdress and carried a nosegay of white 'mums and gladioli Loretta.

The ring-bearer, Master Brent Warren of Rossmore, nephew of the bride, was trim in his navy blazer and grey trousers, carrying a white lace cushion with the wedding rings.

Mr. Douglas Scott of Burlington, Ontario, attended the bridegroom, while Messrs. Frederick Featherstone of Burlington, and Mr. Robert Bathram of Barrie, were ushers.

The reception was held in the I.O.O.F. hall in Stirling, where the bride's table was prettily appointed with white damask, and the traditional three-tier wedding cake, topped by a miniature bride and bridegroom beneath an arch of white roses and misted about by more white tulle.

The guests were received by the bride's mother wearing a royal blue gown on embossed bouclé with black and white accessories, and corsage of pink roses. The bridegroom's aunt assisted, attired in blue lace with blue accessories, and corsage of pink roses.

For the honeymoon to the Muskoka Lake district, the bride travelled in a peacock-blue velvet dress with beige and brown accessories, and corsage of white gardenias mingled with pink Sweetheart roses.

Guests attended from Belleville, Picton, Peterborough, Port Hope, Campbellford, Hamilton, Toronto, Georgian Bay, Cataraqui, Parrie and Chicago.

Mr. and Mrs. Featherstone will reside at Burlington, R.R. 1, upon their return.

The bride, previous to her marriage, was entertained at two miscellaneous showers, one by Mrs. Claude Loney of Peterborough, and one by Mrs. Leon Wilson of Foxboro, Ontario; also at a kitchen shower given by Mrs. Clifford Clancy, of Wellman's; at an "at home" tea given by the bride's mother for the bride and bridegroom; at a presentation by the Canada Street Chapel, Hamilton, when she was the recipient of a walnut coffee table; at a presentation by the community of Burlington, of two end tables and a TV swivel chair, and at a presentation of a mirror and candleholders by the Presbyterian Ministerial Association.

President Doris Stewart conducted a short business meeting and June Woodley distributed cuts for the annual campaign.

Preceding the meeting, a most successful rummage sale was held, capably managed by Betty Yates and her group.

Following the meeting, hostesses Barbara Hillier, Mickey Lake and Dorothy Greene, served refreshments.

plored "the shocking fact that Indian men and women are often refused admittance to city hotels" and decried the CWL should petition the federal government "to take suitable steps to rectify this situation."

The group called on Justice Minister Fulton to take steps toward providing special environment in the treatment of sex deviates.

The CWL also urged strict enforcement of the Lord's Day Act to curb "unnecessary" Sunday work and called on Catholic women to "at all times wear modest apparel".

Mrs. Donald Phillips

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Milton Phillips are shown signing the register, the pastor, the Reverend C. W. Coleman, looking on following their marriage in Holloway Street United Church, Belleville. The bride is the former Miss Marlene Ethel Derry, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Judson Gerald Derry, of Bellville, R.R. 5, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Milton Phillips, also of Belleville. (Photo by Mac McGrimmon, Belleville.)

PHILLIPS — DERRY

Red and white gladioli, interspersed with evergreens, formed a lovely setting in Holloway Street United Church, Belleville, for a recent very pretty autumn wedding, when Marlene Ethel Derry, of Bellville, was united in marriage by the Reverend C. W. Coleman, pastor of the church, to Donald Milton Phillips, of Belleville, in a double-ring ceremony. White satin bows, centred with red gladioli florets, marked the guest pews.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Judson Gerald Derry, of Bellevville, R. R. 5, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Milton Phillips, also of Bellevville.

Mr. Clifford Templer, church organist, presided at the console of the organ for the wedding music, and accompanied Mr. A. Hughes, of Belleville, in his rendition of "The Wedding Prayer," before the ceremony, and "Because," during the signing of the register.

Given in marriage by her father, the radiant bride wore a floor - length bridal gown of white silk organza over taffeta featuring a molded bodice with portrait neckline, and long sleeves tiny - pointed over the wrists. Insets of lace and sequins added lovely accents to both the bodice and skirt. She wore a headdress of lace and sequins framed by white satin, with finger - tip nylon tulle veil dotted with sequins, and carried a cascade of yellow roses, and stephanotis streamers knotted with rosebuds.

Miss Betty Pelgrz, of Belleville, as maid of honor; Miss Janice Hall, of Mary Ritchie Hall, Belleville, and Mrs. E. Buckley, of Belleville, bridesmaids, were gowned alike in floor - length silk organza featuring bouffant skirts, and fitted bodices with portrait necklines finished with tiny sleeves; white picture hats, having turquoise-bow trim, and matching turquoise shoes and white gloves completed their costumes. They carried nosegays of white 'mums and deep-pink roses.

Mr. Edward Phillips attended his brother as groomsman, while Messrs. Douglas and Russell Phillips, the former Belleville, and the latter of Fitzroy, Ontario, brothers of the bride-groom, ushered the guests.

Following the ceremony, the reception was held in Moose Hall, Belleville, where the bride's mother received, attired in brown and white flowered linen in sheath style, with matching brown duster, beige accessories and corsage of bronze 'mums. Assisting in receiving line was the bridegroom's mother, wearing royal blue embossed taffeta with Sweetheart neckline, navy blue accessories, and pink rose corsage.

The bride's table was appointed with the traditional white damask linen, and centred by a three-tier all white wedding cake surrounded by shaded purple and mauve asters, and the bridal bouquets.

For a wedding trip to New York City and through the Adirondack Mountains the bride wore a fitted pinky-beige French crepe wool suit with slim skirt and straight pleated jacket with tucked portrait collar; dark brown accessories, and corsage of roses, and corsage of baby - blue 'mums.

They are residing at 3A Bridge Street, West.

The bride was the honored guest at a linen shower held at the home of Mrs. E. Buckley, Belleville, and at a miscellaneous shower held at the home of Mrs. D. Phillips, Belleville.

Guests were present from Belleville; Picton; Campbellville; Trenton; Gilmore; Montreal; Fitzroy, and Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. John Forsyth Gartner are shown following their recent marriage in St. George's United Church, Toronto. The bride is the former Miss Barbara Joan Wood, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Milton Earl Wood of Amelisburg. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. C. S. Robinson, of Toronto, and the late Mr. K. L. Gartner.

GARTNER — WOOD

Baskets of yellow gladioli and feathery chrysanthemums decked St. George's United Church, Toronto, for the wedding of Miss Barbara Joan Wood, daughter of Mr. John Forsyth Gartner, Rev. W. J. Ryers officiated at the double-ring ceremony which united the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Milton Earl Wood, Amelisburg, and the son of Mrs. C. S. Robinson of Toronto and the late Mr. K. L. Gartner.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride chose a full-length gown of white peau de soie fashioned with a fitted bodice and portrait neckline appliqued in Alencon lace. The unpressed pleats of the full skirt fell into a chapel train, and her finger-tip illusion veil was gathered to a crown of net scattered with seed pearls. She carried a bouquet of gardenias, stephanotis and ivy.

Miss Gloria Wood, of Toronto, was her sister's maid of honor and bridesmaids were Mrs. William McGauchie, Toronto, Miss Joan Frost), and Miss Nancy Gartner, sister of the bridegroom. Miss Wanda Lou Wood, Belleville niece of the bride, was junior bridesmaid. They were gowned alike in dresses of pine green peau de soie, fashioned with portrait necklines and bell skirts. Their bouquets were of yellow and bronze chrysanthemums.

Mr. Robert G. Lee was best man and ushers were: Mr. Ross Mitchell, Mr. David Stone and Mr. Robert Matthews all of Toronto.

A reception followed at Adams House, the bridal couple leaving from there for a motor trip through Northern Ontario, they will reside in Toronto.

Mrs. Gartner teaches at Ripperton Road School in North York. Mr. Gartner is a geological engineer with a firm in Toronto.

Out-of-town guests were present from Belleville, Ottawa, Port Hope, Picton, North Bay and Hillier and Frankford.

Before the wedding, Mrs. Gartner was presented with a teakwood tray from the staff at Ripperton Road School.

Mrs. William McGauchie and Miss Joan Bouldyds, of Toronto, were co-hostesses at a lawn shower. Here the bride received many beautiful linens.

Mrs. E. Debolt, Mrs. B. Grey and Mrs. L. Foster were the hostesses at a house shower. Mrs. R. Redner opened her home for the event, Many gifts were presented to Joan from her softball playing associates and girls club mates.

MODERN MANNERS

POSTPONING THE WEDDING

The inability of the bridegroom to be present at his own wedding can create pandemonium and utter confusion, unless a good member of the bride's family steps a cool head.

Unforseen things have a way of happening. Take, for example, the case of Susan, whose wedding plans were complete. The date that had been set was almost there. Her young husband-to-be, a lieutenant in the Navy, who had been serving on a ship that had been cruising in foreign waters, fully expected to return in plenty of time.

Five days before the wedding, a cable from him announced the horrifying news that his ship had been delayed and that he would not arrive two days before the wedding, as was expected, but four days after the chosen date!

Complete prostration resulted for the about-to-be bride. A tearful "What shall we do?" was accompanied by much hand-wringing. It was Mother who retained her senses and set to work.

She immediately called the stationer who had designed the original wedding invitations and requested the same number of envelopes as she had in the beginning. She asked that the envelopes be delivered immediately and then she called on relatives and friends to come and help her dress them. Of course all those originally invited were to be sent a change of date as quickly as possible. With only five days to go, haste was of the essence!

Next she checked with the minister and the hall in which the reception was to be held to ascertain a new date for which both would be available. Finally, a day twelve removed from the original one was found to be acceptable to everyone. A cable was sent to the worried bridegroom to this effect.

Then she called the stationer again, and placed the order for the announcement which would fit in the envelopes that were already addressed and which were being feverishly addressed by everyone that could be placed into service. The stationer promised the printed announcement by the next afternoon.

Only one envelope is necessary in a case such as this. It is perfectly proper that the announcement itself be printed. Of course, a wedding invitation or announcement should always be engraved, but in an emergency such as this, with the time element so important, common sense demands that printing, as engraving takes too long.

The wording of the announcement would be as follows:

Mr. and Mrs. John Francis Fraser are obliged to postpone the wedding of their daughter,

Susan Mary

because of Navy orders delaying the arrival of Lieutenant John Philip Dow, United States Navy

The ceremony will take place on Thursday, the third of November.

This announcement should be placed in the mail as far as possible ahead of the date originally set.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a women's editor and two writers. Each article is based on a case history. The Council reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counsellors.

James M.: She's jealous — and how!

Eva M.: Looking at other women is a kind of unfaithfulness.

James M.: My wife and I are in our late 30's. We have been married four years and will soon have our second child.

We could be very happy, if not for one fault in her. Eva is jealous—and how! If I so much as flicker an eyelash in the direction of another woman she is up in arms. The woman doesn't even have to be real. She could be a picture in a magazine or on the T.V. screen. Eva just goes nuts if I say "Wow!"

Eva M.: I don't think I'm any more jealous than the next woman. No woman likes to see her husband looking at others.

The worst of it is that since we've been married I haven't looked very well I became pregnant shortly after marriage. Then I was too busy taking care of the baby to bother much with myself. Now I am pregnant again. At times like these it certainly hurts to have your husband making comments about how other women are "stacked."

Jimmy keeps saying nothing matters as long as he is faithful, but I think that looking at other women is almost a kind of unfaithfulness.

* * *

The Council: The masculine and feminine points of view will always differ about one phase of this subject. But we think there is a third point of view that may be considered in this case.

That is ordinary human conversation. We like the strong impression that Jimmy either lacks tact or is deliberately teasing his wife because he likes to hear her holler "Ouch!" to his "Wow!"

Eva has made it clear that she is distressed by his comments. At the time when her husband's sexual appreciation of girls is most important—the pregnancy period—he has chosen to upset and hurt her. This is certainly bad taste and bad husbandship.

Most women have good reason to feel that men's appreciation of beautiful women is rarely purely objective or aesthetic. A devoted wife seldom feels much interest in the attractiveness of other males. She may look at, but she cannot imagine feeling great enthusiasm about it. She judges a man's feeling by her own and takes a display of enthusiasm as sign of mental infidelity.

This, however, may be a mistake. Many men feel more or less obligated to make a great display of their interest in women. In such cases, it really has more to do with ego than with sex. The man feels he is underlining his status as a red-blooded male.

Possibly this is the real motive behind Jimmy's behavior. The other motive may be the need to tease, and this too is based on an ego problem. The teaser feels bigger and stronger than the person he hurts.

Would all married men avoid looking at or appreciating female attractiveness? We don't think most wives would want that. They don't want to kill off the wolf in a man—merely to domesticate the animal a bit.

Horticultural Members Enjoy Int. Rose Show

STIRLING — Stirling Horticultural Society chartered a bus on Monday and 33 people journeyed to the International Rose Show at Casa Loma, Toronto.

Roses from the various countries were used to decorate the 11 rooms. Over 150,000 roses were displayed, and over 5,000 blooms were flown to Toronto by Pan American World Airways from England, France, Denmark, Holland, Italy, Spain and Germany. There were also many roses from the United States and Mexico.

A large globe of the world contained over 10,000 miniature roses and a large turntable sets the globe in motion. The globe was crowned with red roses.

Each room was filled with beauty and included a huge bird filled with yellow roses. Several educational films, including "How to Grow Roses," and "The Gift of a Rose," were shown. Good advice was given on floral arrangements, and the flowers were placed one by one for all to view in the various containers.

It was a memorable day for all who made the trip.

As conducted by Mary Moore

QUESTION:

Would you please publish a recipe for spicy pork hocks . . . Mrs. N. P. W.

ANSWER:

Would you kindly enclose stamped self-addressed envelope in next time you write? We have nothing in your initials.

SPICY PORK HOCKS:

(Note: This recipe was given in this column in October, 1959.)

Wash 3 lbs. pork hocks, cover with 6 to 8 cups of hot water and add 1-3 cup sliced onions and 1 tablespoon each salt and mixed pickling spices. Simmer until they are tender (about 2½ hours, or as long as you prefer — from 1 3-4 to 3 hours.

QUESTION:

Would you please tell me how to make Tomato Puree for use during the winter in spaghetti sauce and casseroles? I mean the really heavy paste-type — and can I freeze it and do I have to bottle and process it?

Pamela A.

ANSWER:

Pamela, you are asking for something which is difficult (but not impossible) to achieve in a home kitchen. The tomato purees you buy in cans is made in stainless enclosed jacketed kettles and every precaution is taken to prevent discoloration while pulp evaporates. You can use a stainless steel or enamel pot, but the kettle cannot be open because it must be stirred, so the pulp is exposed to the air and hence discoloration. Here is a compromise method for making what is actually

THICK CANNED TOMATO JUICE:

Wash tomatoes well, remove core and cut into pieces. Let stand 1 hour and drain off excess liquid which collects and discard it (or use it for soup). Bring 10 to a boil and simmer, covered, for 3 minutes. Press through sieve or purree. Measure. To each 2 1-3 cups (1 pint) add 1-2 teaspoon salt. Bring to boiling point, stirring. Pour into sterilized, pint jars, leaving 1-2" head space. Process in canner (standing jars on pan with rack, spaced 2" apart) at 275 deg. Fahr. for 20 minutes.

FRIDAY

Steamed Arctic Char (see Wednesday) or Salmon or Salmon Trout; Scalloped Potatoes; Buttered Halves or Tomato Casserole; Cauliflower with grated Cheese; Melon Halves filled with Sliced Peaches; Tea.

NOTE:

If pressure saucepan is used add only 1 1-2 cups hot water and cook hocks 20 to 25 minutes at 15 pounds pressure. Allow pressure saucepan to cool slowly. Lovely to serve with the hocks are parsley-buttered whole potatoes, and crisp green cabbage wedges cooked in some of the cooking liquid drained from the hocks. Allow 10 to 12 minutes cooking time for cabbage wedges and only 4 to 5 minutes for finely shredded cabbage, so it will retain some of its crispness.

QUESTION:

It was just about this time last year when I came running for help and I have a problem again. Can you tell me how to make Tomato Puree for use during the winter in spaghetti sauce and casseroles? I mean the really heavy paste-type —

Win Two Games

Quinte Trims Trenton

By BILL BURLEY

Preceding the senior game, Quinte Juniors smashed through Trenton's strong defensive team to win their second game in a row, 13 to 6. After the Trenton kickoff, Quinte Juniors fought their way up the field. The first quarter was a fight between the linemen, and no points were made. Early in the second quarter Quinte's Bill Bailey charged through the Tigs defensive for eight yards to put Quinte's first touchdown. On the kickoff by Dave Fisher after the touchdown the ball went sprialling into Trenton's end zone and the Tigers, assisted by Quinte's strong tacklers, reluctantly gave the Little Saints another point. Still in the same quarter the Tigers tried a pass, but Quinte's speedy halfback, Pete Lewis, intercepted mid-end ran for the TD, giving Quinte a 12-0 lead in the first half.

In the middle of the third quarter Trenton scored a TD, leaving them seven points behind Quinte. The fourth quarter was fought hard with no score.

In the senior game the Saints came charging down the field, obessed by fans singing "When the Saints Go Marching In", and accompanied by the new famous Quinte Marching Band.

Early in the first quarter Quinte pushed Quinte downfield to score the first touchdown of the game.

Through a number of smashing ground plays by Ron Hull and Rick Locke, Quinte marched back up the field for a 43 yard gain, and then Duffy Follwell let loose a pass to Alex McKnight, who ran 30 yards for Quinte's touchdown. Bill Green then kicked a convert to place Quinte on top by 7-0.

In the second quarter Follwell kicked a point which scored into the Tiger's end zone, where it remained as the Saints' lineman crammed the receiver to obtain another point.

Later Follwell let loose another beautiful pass downfield to Green who was stopped almost at once. This led to another TD for Quinte by Mike Stobbert and was followed by a convert by Green to put Quinte up front 15-6.

Green ran a 30-yard pass and run from Follwell to bring the score to 21-6.

In the third quarter the Tigers started to push Quinte back, but an array of six linemen, led by General Ron Hull, checked their attack.

Quinte fans received a thrill when Bill Latchford ran 83 yards, which he was stopped by Tiger tacklers.

Rickey Locke, in contribute to his other successes in the game, put another TD for Quinte.

Ronnie Hull, who blocked for all the other runners in the game, ran long touchdowns, followed by two converts by Golden Toe Green to give Quinte the win.

BCI, Picton Split Wins

By PETER CARVER

Belleville Collegiate Institute and Vocational School split victories with the Prince Edward Collegiate Institute grid teams yesterday in a Bay of Quinte District C.O.S.S.A. football doubleheader played at Picton.

The BCIVS Juniors swamped their opposition by a 41-13 score, while the Picton Seniors grabbed a 32-6 victory. Both games were hard-fought and a good crowd of spectators was on hand.

BCI used a strong passing attack scoring four out of six touchdowns throughout the air.

In the opening quarter the westerners fumbled on their own yard line and BCI took over. Bob Bury plunged over from the two and Adams converted, giving Belleville an early 7-0 lead. Picton bounced right back and on the first play following the kick-off Doug Gray scored a 60-yard major on a reverse. The convert was blocked leaving the visitors with a one point margin.

Quarterback Bob Jeffery hit Lyle Adams for his first of four touchdowns from the ten yard line as a Picton penalty moved Belleville to scoring position. The try for the extra point was blocked. Roy McNaughton kicked a single for PECI leaving the quarter time scores at 13-7 in favor of Picton.

Belleville fumbled in their end zone on a punt and Jim Detler fell on the ball for a Picton touchdown. The convert attempt was blocked. BCI halfback Larry Soule lugged the ball fifty yards to the PECI 10 yard line. Soule then threw a key block allowing Bob Ridley to score. Adams converted making the half-time score 20-13 for Belleville.

Adams then took a Jeffery pass and easily scored from the Picton ten yard line. He promptly converted his own touchdown, upping up BCI's lead to 27-13. Again it was Adams on the same play and the convert attempt was good. This made the three-quarter time score 34-13.

Adams clicked again on the pass and run play and boosted the total after touchdown giving BCI the victory.

Lyle Adams was the game's star, with four touch-downs and five converts. Ridley and Bury had the other BCI majors. Gray scored P.E.C.I.'s T.D.s while McNaughton added a single.

The Belleville seniors fought hard and well but they couldn't seem to hold Picton's strong running and aerial attack.

Prince Edward marched from their own ten yard line up to BCI's ten in seven consecutive ground plays. Quarterback Dick Proctor then lugged the ball over on a keeper for PECI's first score. The convert attempt was no good. The score remained 6-0 in favor of Picton until half-time, although Belleville Bruisers on several times but they couldn't click in the str.

Picton's Bob Kennedy stood all alone in the Belleville end-zone and took a pass from Proctor on the fifteen. This time the extra point was good. Picton just missed another T.D. when John Errington made a beautiful catch in the BCI end zone but dropped the ball as he hit the ground.

BCI's Gord Parker ran from the mid-field stripe to Picton's 20 yard line. Moe Hunter then took a pass from Quarterback Pat Asselstine to hit for BCI's lone major. The convert attempt was wide.

Picton quick-kicked and recovered BCI's fumble on the Belleville fifteen. End Bick Lee took a pass off a Belleville player's fingertips to score. The convert attempt was wide, making the three-quarter time score 18-6 for Picton.

Fullback Don Woodbeck plunged over from the Belleville ten and Proctor passed to Kennedy for the convert. Rick Lee ran from centre field to the Belleville five on a long pass. Don McNaughton scooted around the end for the final score of the game, the convert attempt was good giving Picton a 32-6 victory.

Yankee Bats Thunder Out 16-3 Victory

Annihilate Six Pitchers

By JOE KESCELEK
Associated Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—The New York Yankees were back in their familiar role today—a 17 to 10 favorite to defeat the Pittsburgh Pirates in the world series.

Led by Mickey Mantle, their No. 1 bludgeoner, the Yankees annihilated six Pirate pitchers Thursday as they pounded out 16 hits to bury the National League champions 16-3 at Forbes Field.

The series thus moves into Yankee Stadium even a lone victory apiece. The participants resume warfare Saturday with a doubleheader featuring Whitey Ford of the Yankees against Vinnie Vinegar Bend Mizell of the Pirates. The Yanks are 3 to 2 favorites in the Saturday game.

Mantle, enjoying his greatest series game, hammered two tremendous home runs, one of 390 feet and another of 480 and drove in a record-tying five runs. Elston Howard, catching his first world series game, walloped a triple and Gil McDougald, Bobby Richardson and Clete Boyer cracked doubles.

Pittsburgh manager Danny Murtaugh, asked whether he intended to re-appraise the Yankee hitters for the third game, said wryly: "We already know how to pitch to them."

SHOW RENEWED

Then he added philosophically: "I prefer getting beat by a big score as long as I have to lose. Today's game gave me an opportunity to play all of my young fellows. It gave them a little experience in the world series—some of it pretty hard experience."

The Yankee sluggers hit every one and everything in sight on Thursday. The only thing they missed was the record of 18 runs made by another Yankee team of 56 years ago and by the Giants of 1922 and the Cardinals of 1946. They didn't miss either by much by much as they amassed 30 total bases. Right-hander Bob Turley was due to roast to his easy victory after a seven-run explosion in the sixth inning.

"The boys showed me they still know how to win world series games," said Yankee manager Casey Stengel. "We could have won the first one, too, but my pitchers let me down.

"We outhit them in the first game, 13 to 8, but aggravating those fellows didn't learn nuthin' from it. This might let them see that they better be careful of some of our hitters."

FLAND TO USE TERRY

Casey said he planned to use Ralph Terry, his 24 - year - old right-hander, in the fourth game on Sunday "unless I get to a jam in the 3rd game and have to put him in.

"In that case, I won't be afraid to pitch my young fellow, (21-year-old Bill Stafford) who we brought up from Richmond on August 1. He's a good one, too."

Murtaugh said he announced viously he would follow Mizell with Harvey Haddix, another left - hander, but should New York make it two in a row, it would not surprise if Murtaugh called upon righthander Vernon Law, who beat the Yankees in the opener Wednesday.

Murtaugh planned to start his "right - handed" platoon against the Yankees' 32-year-old lefty. That means Dick Stuart will be back at first base, Gino Cimoli will be in left field and Hal Smith will be behind the plate.

Rocky Nelson was at first base and Smoky Burgess was the catcher Thursday. Cimoli played only because Bob Skinner was out of uniform with a jammed left thumb, injured sliding into third base in the opening game.

"Stengel did not give his third game lineup except to say that Howard will be his catcher again. Asked whether that meant Yogi Berra again will be in left field, Casey winked and cracked:

"He can play anywhere for me. And did you see the way he fielded Mantle off the ball in the first inning? He really takes charge out there."

The first-footed Pirates didn't have a chance to run Thursday.

Bob Friend managed to contain the Bronx Bombers for two innings but the first of three singles by Tony Kubek and Mr. Dougald's double featured a two-run attack in the third and even before the Yankees went on their seven-run romp, they had sentenced the partisan crowd of 37,-308 by forging into a 5-1 lead.

'Dont Have to Hang Heads'

Unbowed Bucs Lick Their Wounds

By GEO. STALEY

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Manager Danny Murtaugh of Pittsburgh Pirates took Thursday's 16-3 defeat by New York Yankees in philosophical fashion.

"I prefer getting beat by a big score as long as I have to lose," Murtaugh said. "Today's game gave me an opportunity to play all of my young fellows. It gave them a little experience in the world series—some of it pretty hard experience."

Don Hoak, the fiery third baseman who is playing the series despite a groin injury, chipped in to say:

"We got beat And I'm like Pacino. If we lose by a big score we don't have to hang our heads and worry about some mistakes —the kind of mistakes that cost you victory in these 3-2 and 2-1 games. We made a good many mistakes today. We learned something. We'll profit by it and don't worry about us not winning the series. We'll win okay."

Dick Groat, the Pirate captain who committed a glaring error on a ball hit by Tony Kubek in the Yankees' big seven-run sixth inning, said:

"I booted that ball and that is all there is to it. I certainly should have fielded it cleanly and I have no excuses. As far as the team is concerned, this team bounced back all the time in the regular season and we'll bounce back against the Yankees in New York."

Bob Friend, the starting and losing pitcher, was the most disconsolate of all the Pirates. He struck out six men, walked two, allowed six hits and two earned runs in his four-inning stint.

"I had just as good stuff on the ball as I have ever had," said Friend. "Naturally, I hated to be taken out but that's life. If I have the same kind of stuff that I had today we'll beat the Yanks when I pitch again. Some of those hits they got off me were not such hot hits to my way of thinking."

Friend went to the showers in the fourth inning when the Pirates scored their first run and seemed headed for one of their typical rallies. Two men were on base and there was one out when Murtaugh sent up Gene Baker to bat for Friend.

Murtaugh said he would have left Friend in the game if Bill Mazeroski had kept the rally going with a hit. But Mazeroski lined to third base and the stirring simply called for a pinch hitter, Murtaugh said.

"THE BIG GAME"

Bobby Strachan says the stage is all set and the cast ready for the "big baseball game" on Sunday where the Juniors of the forties meet the 1960 Ontario Junior "A" champions in a friendly tussle at the CNRA Park.

The sale of tickets has been good and a large crowd is expected to see some former well-known baseball players in action against the starry crew of the Kenmores.

Bobby says he thinks Coach Speedy St. Louis will start Art ("Fish and Chips") Wrizht with Billy Strachan around but in case Arthur fails to stop the booming bats of the Kenmors.

Big Al Kelleher will chase-ha around first base while Vern Green will hold down second. Jackie Wardhaugh will be on the hot corner with the one and only "Mouse" Bush coming all the way from Minden to play shortstop.

Strachan will patrol left field with Bud Green in centre and Don Secord in right. Mort Bradshaw, Dave Lockyer, Claude Carr and possibly others will be around to give the "oldtimers" a helping hand if it is needed.

Ken Soden and Vic Morris will have their champions champing at the bit. The entire squad is expected to dress with various members coming home from school and hockey training camps.

The game gets under way at four o'clock. This time was decided on to give the faithful the opportunity to watch the Yankee-Pirates world series baseball game. However, the committee in charge should bear in mind the fact the Sunday world series tussle being played in New York starts at the wicked DST. It might not be over at four. It might be better to push the Juniors' game ahead to 4.30 for the boys won't want to leave the TV sets in the seventh or eighth innings especially if the score is close.

HITCHENER IS OUT!

The eastern group of the Ontario Hockey Association hockey league will consist of five clubs. These are Belleville, Whitby, Galt, Oakville and Welland. The Kitchener Dutchmen made it final yesterday. They won't return to senior hockey this year.

Ernie Goman, spokesman for the club, said the Dutchies have been unable to arrange for Saturday night playing dates at the city arena and they never would not be able to operate successfully without them.

He said the Kitchener auditorium commission has advised the club that Saturday nights have been promised to the junior "B" Greenshirts. During recent seasons the Dutchmen have had the arena for Saturday nights.

Goman advised the OHA executive of his decision last night.

And so one of the greatest names in Canadian amateur hockey fades into the mists of nothingness, temporarily, it is hoped. The colorful Dutchmen have written hockey history for both their native city and their country. They have brought home Allan Cup honors several times and on more than one occasion have represented Canada at world hockey tournaments.

It seems a shame that petty personalities should be one of the main reasons why such a proud club as the Dutchmen has to fold. The arena commission of Kitchener won't win any popularity contests after what has happened. It seems there has been a definite movement to oust the Dutchmen or at least keep them from playing in the city arena.

The new Eastern League pro club, the Beavers, sponsored by the New York Rangers, is on trial in Kitchener this winter, and it looks as though the arena commission headed by the manager, Bob Crosby, would have no part of the Dutchmen stealing away patronage.

Hull Scores First Goal

Habs Zero Leafs, Hawks Nip Wings

By ROGER TETREAULT

Montreal Canadiens picked up where they left off last year, defeating Toronto Maple Leafs 3-0 in the National Hockey League opener for both teams at Montreal Thursday night.

And Henri (Pocket Rocket) Richard picked up where he left off tradition set by retired brother Maurice by scoring two goals.

Left winger Dickie Moore was credited with three assists.

It was the Canadiens' second consecutive shutout over Maple Leafs. The Stanley Cup champions won 4-0 in the last game of the Stanley Cup final series April 16.

AN EARLY GOAL

Bernard (Boom Boom) Geoffrion opened the scoring at 1:06 of the first period on assists by teammates Marcel Bonin and Jean Beliveau.

While Toronto centre George Armstrong was serving a five-minute major penalty for drawing blood from Canadien centre Phil Goyette, the Habitants' vaunted power play clicked for two goals.

Left winger Bonin scored after only 15 seconds of play and was followed by Richard who brought the crowd to its feet by banging in a nifty pass from Dickie Moore.

Sophomore Billy Hicke scored one goal and contributed an assist in the Canadiens' victory.

In Detroit, Litzenberger and Hull added assists to their goals. Other passes were credited to defenseman Jack Evans and right wingers Stan Mikita and Ken Wharram—a second year man in the league.

DETROIT SCORERS

Centre Len Lunde and right winger Leo Haley scored for Detroit.

Centres Norm Ullman and Murray Oliver and right winger Howie Glover were credited with assists.

Dickie Moore and Eddie Litzenberger took the early lead in the scoring race with three points apiece.

Richard with two goals and Bonin, Beliveau and Hicke are tied for third place with two points apiece.

Lions Wallop Eskimos

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia Lions powered their heavy crew rain - sweet Empire Stadium Thursday night to upset Edmonton Eskimos 21-13 and regain third place in the Western Interprovincial Football Union race.

A crowd of 21,707 watched Lions snap a four - game losing streak and end Edmonton's six-game winning string as they scored two touchdowns in the first 19 minutes, then held off the injury-weakened Eskimos.

Fullback Bo Bailey, quarterback Jim Wilkes and halfback Willie Fleming scored the Lion touchdowns in the first, second and third quarters respectively. Tackle George Grant converted all three.

Eskimos got a touchdown from quarterback Jackie Parker, the most consistent gainer on the field despite the loss, and another from fullback Johnny Bright. Cowboy Woodruff converted one.

Heavy rain made passing difficult despite special ball-drying efforts by the Lions. They had an electric clothes dryer at the sidelines to treat the ball between plays.

Parker's touchdown kept him far in front in the individual scoring race, raising his total to 95 points. Bright and Fleming moved into a second - place tie with 86 points apiece.

Annis Stukus, former manager coc coach of the Lions and the man who brought football to British Columbia in 1954 when Lions joined the WIFU, was honored at halftime.

The Lions gave him a life membership in the B.C. Lion Club and the Football Writers of Canada presented a gift to mark his departure from Vancouver for a job in newspaper and television work in Toronto.

He will write football for the Toronto Telegram.

George H. Carver,
Sports Editor,
The Ontario Intelligencer.
Dear Mr. Carver,

I have been reading your column all through this hectic and spine-tingling baseball season and until yesterday I was firmly convinced that you were another Yankee fan. However I note that you too have fallen victim to popular sentiment and after reading the letter portion of yesterday's column I felt that perhaps you would like to have a chance to retract your statement and sort of make a confession of guilt. How about making a clean breast of the whole thing.

We'll take you back and this whole mess will be forgotten.

Yours truly,
Jack Pitts.

Editor's Note: What is that about one swallow not making a summer?

Pair of European Imports Add Gaiety to Home Screens

By CYNTHIA LOWNEY

NEW YORK (AP)—A pair of European imports added gaiety and sparkle to the home screen Thursday night. They were, in order of appearance, Annie Fargo, a cute, tiny French girl who plunked a new CBS situation comedy, Angel, to a flying start, and Victor Borge, funny and a musical delight, in an hour program on ABC.

Angel explores the marriage of a young American (who speaks no French) and his French bride, who is trying hard to master both English and the curious customs of the United States.

There was a nice scene early in the show when Angel was trying to figure out the pronunciation rule for five common words. Enough, through, dough, bough and cough. She finally gave up in despair. Angel's husband is played by Marshall Thompson.

Borge's show was exactly what we expect from this talented entertainer who clowns and plays the piano with equal and delightful artistry. It started with a bright blackout, showing him mocking off, by machine-gun, Robert Stack, star of The Untouchables, whose fine hits show off his pre-concert.

The Witness will rehash the 1915 murder of gambler Herman Rosenthal Oct. 27, with Lloyd Charles Becker, the New York police officer electrocuted for the crime, as the central figure. Whatever has happened to CBS' Playhouse 90 which was supposed to pop up once in a while this year? Nobody at CBS has ever mentioned its name, so perhaps the fine old show is dead.

Eddie Fisher Will Produce Anna Karenina as Movie

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Eddie Fisher, singer turned producer, has been in for talks with major studio heads prior to setting up a multi-million-dollar deal.

For his first project, Eddie is tackling Anna Karenina, starring his wife, Elizabeth Taylor. He said he has seen the Garbo talkie version (she also did it as a silent picture) and that's not the successful Vivien Leigh portrayal of 1948. He also is wading through the Tolstoi novel.

Darryl Zanuck wanted Jennifer Jones to do it, but she didn't want to follow Garbo," Eddie said. "When Elsa Martinelli saw the Garbo version in London, I was afraid she'd feel the do it. She'll be magnificent in the role.

"I've had some fabulous offers for deals at studios. We might even film it in Russia—if our relations with Russia would permit it.

"Eddie is appreciating as producer through a close relationship with Walter Wanger, who is currently making Cleopatra with Mrs. Fisher in London.

"Eddie gets starring billing in Elizabeth's forthcoming Butterfield 8, her last film after she's seen with MGM. He indicated it may be his last acting role for anybody.

But his producing duties don't mean the end of his singing career.

"I'd never quit singing; I couldn't," he remarked.

The Big Four

Faces Crucial Weekend

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The most crucial weekend of the Big Four Football season begins tonight — and when the dust settles Monday the standings may be thrown into a real shakeup.

In the first of four league contests during the holiday weekend, hustling Hamilton Tiger Cats meet league-leading Toronto Argonauts in Toronto. Saturday after a two-week layoff the Leafs visit the Rough Riders at Ottawa and Monday Argos go to Hamilton and Riders to Montreal.

Argos, with a 7-2 record are running in front with Hamilton followed by Ottawa with 12, Montreal with six and Hamilton with only four.

Hamilton is the biggest question mark. Ticats had a dismal 1-6 record going into last week-end but they ended their league topple Ottawa 27 - 18. Volubic coach Jim Trimble says they only sharpened the Bengals' claws.

Despite Trimble's snarl the bookmakers don't believe Ticats have been able to get their third and last playoff position. They're rated definite favorites.

Last week Montreal crumbled under a humiliating 35-15 defeat by Argos, and the oddsmakers have picked Ottawa as 9½ to 1 favorites in two contests twice before Monday night.

Rough Rider coach Frank Clair is optimistic, claiming his only worry is which of two winning quarterbacks to use. He said he planned to start Ron Lancaster, but also to use Russ Jackson.

If Clair decides to play a passing game against the Larks it could be largely a Lancaster game. Jackson is the choice if the game is along the turf.

MORE MOST FIVE

Ottawa will also use linebacker Ron Knox who may do the Ottawa punting. Disappointing play by Larry Hayes will keep him on the bench.

Alouette mentor Perry Moss said he would bolster defence by sending Hal Patterson both ways as a pass defender as well as offensive right end.

Plagued by injuries all season, Montreal may be without Mike Kovac and Ted Elsby, both of whom limped the game against Argos on the limp.

Argos' coach Lou Agase said he is content to stick with last week's crew.

New on the Hamilton lineup will be Bob Jarus from Cleveland, halfback and Jim Webster, end. Ellison Kelly and backup Gene Scott from New York, Garnie Healey from Green Bay and tackle Ron Ray from Detroit. All are former National Football Leaguers.

Astrological Forecast

Saturday, October 8
By CARROLL RIGHTER

General tendencies: This is certainly a day when you can perform whatever Saturday chores await your attention with more than usual ease and astuteness. Think out some up - to - date and inventive ways for gaining the good will of those about and perform your chores in such manner that you combine nimbleness of wit and dexterity of movement. Sell or buy, also. Be very active.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) — Friendly to get all personal affects in order. Also, concentrate upon better methods that will help you to have an abundance and to spare in the future. P. M. take the necessary health treatments you require.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) — If you do not run hither and yon accomplishing very little today, you can concentrate upon a better system that will bring you added revenue in the future. Being, constant and persistent now means a much brighter future for you.

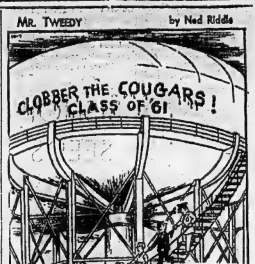
Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21) — The one you love has taken up so much of your time lately that you have almost forgotten those good friends who can cheer you up as well as give you fine ideas for bettering yourself. Ideal day to get together with them now.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 23) — The perfect day for being with business contacts or good friends informally to gain the support they can extend and the fine ideas they can give. P. M. go out to dinner at some nice place, then to a nightclub. Relax, have fun.

Libra (Sept. 24 to Oct. 23) — A fine day to get out to new places and see new things — shine up the car and get rolling early. Also, make fine and worthwhile new contacts who will be helpful in the future.

Scorpio (Oct. 24 to Nov. 21) — If you consult with experts in both intimate and business affairs, you can get rid of any problematical affairs you may have. Be sure you state each situation clearly. Follow through on ideas given you. P. M. have fun.



Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) — Get in touch with as many allies as possible today and you will find that they are in a more co-operative mood than they have been in some time. Be sure you assist them in some way, too — cause to their understanding.

Capricorn (Dec. 23 to Jan. 20) — Look about you and see what is important to be done this Saturday, then plan your work wisely and labor methodically. You can accomplish much. P. M. get together with a co - worker for pleasure you prefer.

If your child is born today he, or she, will have much talent and a particular charm that will warm the hearts of all, but it is up to you to early teach that by being too forceful, one can lose both friends and material wealth. Give good religious training so that the personality becomes a cheerful one. Then the chart is fine for any work connected with the masses, be it in the artistic world, politics, or wherever precision is a prerequisite.

Big Four TV Games Shuffled

The Ottawa at Toronto Big Four football game will be carried on the Eastern CBC-TV football network on Sunday, Oct. 16 at 3 p.m. EDT.

The CBC decided to carry this previously-unscheduled game because World Series may interfere with the Big Four telecasts scheduled on Oct. 8 and 10.

If, for any reason, the World Series is cancelled on Oct. 8 and/or Oct. 10, the Big Four game originally scheduled — Montreal at Ottawa and Ottawa at Montreal — will be seen at 2 p.m. EDT.

If the World Series telecast on Oct. 8 ends before 4 p.m., the football game will be picked up in progress at the conclusion of the baseball game. The same conditions would apply on Oct. 10.

Introducing THE BIGGEST LITTLE TRACTOR ON EARTH!

COCKSHUTT'S
FIAT
3-Plow Diesel Tractor

Biggest Power for its size!
Biggest Fuel Economy for its size!

Here's a tractor capable of handling all 3-plow jobs on your farm! Cockshutt's new FIAT 3-Plow Diesel looks small but acts big — with plenty of diesel brawn and muscle. It's the biggest little tractor on earth!—offering you biggest power and biggest fuel economy ever in a small tractor! With many outstanding features usually found only on big, expensive models!

New differential lock — Provides power to both rear wheels — stops spinning in slippery conditions. Simply press the foot pedal, differential locks, and the tractor pulls through.

New 4-cylinder diesel engine — Offers amazingly low fuel consumption, tremendous lugging power with plenty of reserve that keeps you going under unexpected overloads.

New 8-speed transmission — 6 forward and 2 reverse gears enable you to match tractor speed to crop and field conditions so you can work more hours. Top speed of 14.2 m.p.h. provides fast highway transport. "Creeper" speed of 1.4 m.p.h. is ideal for slow planting operations.

New fuel economy — Saves you money to an extent you never dreamed possible. Cockshutt's FIAT delivers far more horsepower-hours per gallon — through its entire power range.

New live power take-off — Operates independent of the tractor transmission. Result: you can shift gears, stop or start the tractor without affecting PTO operation! Clogging of powerdrive machines is reduced to a minimum because you merely disengage the clutch, allowing the machine to clear itself, then continue on your way.

New automatic hydraulic lift — Maintains both draft and position control for mounted implements. Lets you plow at constant depth, even over uneven ground. Provides more traction — minimizes slipping, avoids overloads — without addition of built-in weight.

And many other features, including greater vision, safety and comfort, finger-tip steering, dual clutch; 24-volt electric starting.

All at a new low cost! Cockshutt's new FIAT 3-Plow Diesel is now available at an unbelievably low price! It costs no more than some 3-plow gas tractors!

See it! Drive it! Cockshutt's new FIAT Diesel is now on display at your nearby Cockshutt dealer. Stop in for a demonstration this week!

INDIAN CHIEF — Like most of the Indians at the Brokenhead reservation in Manitoba, Chief Sid Chief depends on federal relief to support himself. The Sandy Bay Indians families live on the 13,600-acre reservation south of Lake Winnipeg and relief and food rations cost the governments as much as $700 a month during winter. (CP Photo).

Worst Mistake Made Putting Buffalo Hunter Behind Plow And Expecting It to Work

By ARCH MacKENZIE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

SCANTERBURY, Man. (CP) — Brokenhead is an Indian reservation where farming dropped and federal relief has been the only solid alternative so far.

It bears out, as many Prairie reservations do, the wry conclusion of a senior Indian affairs branch official:

"I can't help thinking that the worst mistake made was sticking a buffalo hunter behind a plow and expecting it to work."

Too often, officials say, the experiment degenerated into a pursuit of federal funds by Indians ill-equipped by training or tradition, to handle any steady occupation on or off reservations.

CHIEF ON RELIEF

Brokenhead comprises 13,600 acres of bush and fields just below the south end of Lake Winnipeg near this hamlet. Its 311 residents—about 30 families—are Saulteaux, offshoots of the woods-dwelling Ojibways who rival the Cree in numbers and territory.

Some at Brokenhead work as railway section hands, main Indian wage source in Manitoba. Some work casually on farms but, officials complain, the farmers don't pay enough and the Indians tend to be irregular workers.

Most Brokenhead farms are leased to non-Indians and agriculture is limited to gardens and some hay-making with the five reservation horses, a wagon and two mowers. A fire years ago burned off much of the marketable cordwood.

Relief in food rations runs between $600 and $700 a month during the worst part of the winter. Chief Sid Chief, with 30 years' experience, means of support, draws rations himself.

The economic process seems to turn on efforts of the administrators to keep relief down—in line with the official policy of making the Indian work as much as possible—for what he gets—while the Indian ponders ways to get relief.

Superintendent Ed Daggitt, formerly a conservation officer in northern Manitoba, is a combined welfare officer, economic adviser and the "government man" tainted with the responsibility of saying NO. So are his three assistants.

"We find that other branches of government often get along better with Indians because we are the people who have to say NO," said one official.

Daggitt is the first to agree that the Indian has had a raw deal, robbed of the rich remnants of the land he once roamed and a few dollars paid annually under terms of treaties signed with most bands.

FIGHTS APATHY

At the same time he is saddled with the task of trying to inject some self-reliance into an apathetic band. He urges Chief Chief to form a band council resolution that will sanction a new source of band revenue.

"What for?" says the chief good — naturally. "You people have lots of money." His tone indicates he may be only half-joking.

A chatty visit with the chief raises one of those problems which show why the Indian is suspicious of the non-Indian and why he has a good point.

It concerns the fact that Indians, like non-Indians, are restricted to shooting game birds in season under terms of the migratory birds convention signed by Canada, the United States and Mexico. It was signed after Indian treaties had pledged perpetual hunting rights in many cases.

GOOD GRAZING

The chief is adamant about the wrong and Daggitt can only say: "Look, I'm not disagreeing with you. I'm just telling you that shooting birds out of season on or off the reservation is against the law."

Application has been made in Daggitt's appropriations next year for $15,000 to start three beef - cattle nursery herds. A common practice, they are used to start herds on reservations that offer good grazing, like Brokenhead. He hopes at least one herd will be approved for his Clandeboye agency running up the east side of Lake Winnipeg.

Beef has proved a good source of income elsewhere, notably on the Alberta Blood reservation, Canada's biggest, where a communal herd is run.

Brokenhead housing, of the old school, is decrepit and shabby. Federal welfare housing put up four new houses last year—cost runs around $2,800 each—but applications were shaved to one this year. Money also goes on repairs to old homes, done under supervision of a non-Indian carpenter.

LIVE IN TENT — This Indian family of the Saulteaux band on Manitoba's Brokenhead reservation lives in a tent while waiting for a new house to be built with federal government assistance. Attempts to make farming a source of independent income for the 311 residents of the reservation failed and now they live largely on federal relief. (CP Photo).

Perhaps two Brokenhead pupils will go on to integrated high schools this year, staying at government expense in one of several denominational hostels or boarding with private families. There are Roman Catholic and Anglican day schools.

In Winnipeg, the regional superintendent for Manitoba's Indian schooling is John Slobodian. His problems illustrate those generally across the country as the federal government pays education costs for Indians as far as they want to go, depending on progress.

Mr. Slobodian has 226 classrooms from the United States border to the north country where airplanes are the only means of access to bush settlements. He needs—and lacks—two assistants. They are hard to get primarily because provincial salaries for the equivalent classification of school inspector run some $2,000 a year higher than the federal government pays.

Hirings, textbooks, air charters, pupil allocations and bookwork — one form requires nine copies—come under his authority. Despite a decrease in the forms necessary for Indian administration, they are still plentiful.

But in Manitoba, as elsewhere, integrated schooling is on the rise as a means to encourage equal participation economically and socially between Indians and non-Indians.

$10,000,000 Loss As Port Colborne Flour Mill Burns

Said To Be Largest In Commonwealth

PORT COLBORNE (CP)—The largest flour mill in the Commonwealth, the Maple Leaf Milling Company, was destroyed by an explosion and fire Friday night.

Eight persons were taken to hospital, most of them with severe burns. Although all were not off the danger list, a hospital spokesman said today "it looks like they'll make it."

G. M. MacEachian, executive vice-president of the company, said in Toronto today the damage would run between $8,000,000 and $10,000,000 — exclusive of any damage to the elevator building itself.

TO BUILD NEW MILL

Mr. MacEachian said work on a new mill will begin as soon as possible, using Maple Leaf employees in the construction force to avoid a prolonged layoff.

The blaze was still raising flames this morning but the milling firm and its subsidiary, the Ontario Elevator Company, said in a statement it has "every control shortly after midnight.

The story of the fight against the flames has had a strong international co-operation.

Firefighting chemical stocks of blood plasma exhausted and provincial police ordered a set up a system to bring it whole blood from as far away as Toronto—90 miles to the northeast.

BUFFALO SENDS AID

At the height of the fire flames could be seen at the 2,000,000-bushel national harbors board elevator 70 feet away and a fireboat was dispatched from Buffalo, N.Y.

The boat turned its monitors on the huge structure which "would have exploded had the fire reached it" the station said, warding the flames away.

"We got wonderful co-operation from everywhere," police said. "Every small town sent everything it had—even fire equipment and that Buffalo boat saved that big elevator and prevented a bad explosion."

The General Hospital were today Sarnia, John Palms, Louis Rogers, Neil Barda, Marchande Sabourin, Gerard Gauthier and Michael Rodrogue.

Roy Ferguson was treated and released.

Doctors said most of the others suffered burns over 20 to 50 per cent of their bodies.

The blaze came from Welland, Humberstone Township, Port Colborne, Falls and Hamilton.

SHE BLEW UP

The fire erupted at 8 p.m. EDT as the 11-storey, 1,000-foot concrete worker George Growther, 60.

"The top blew up on her. It exploded about on the third floor and went right through the roof. Then were flames right away, then coming through the windows and roof."

Another employee said the blast occurred on "the bleaching or packing floor, I don't know exactly."

There were about 50 persons on duty at the time, but most left to the early stages it was be-

Kennedy Warns Berlin Crisis Coming in Spring

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON (CP) — John Kennedy warns that the United States early next year will face the greatest crisis in a decade in the unsolved Berlin issue but Richard Nixon maintains the Democratic presidential candidate is a defeatist and that U.S. prestige is at an all-time high.

The two debated for an hour Friday night in the second of four television encounters as a huge viewing audience estimated by the networks at more than 80,000,000 watched.

This time Nixon, the Republican, appeared more "telegenic," wearing a new type of makeup that ? red flush to his "haggard look" which his supporters complained about in the first TV debate in Chicago Sept. 26. He also dropped that "me - too - friendly" approach to Kennedy this time opposing him on almost every issue.

NOW IT'S A DRAW

After the first television debate, many commentators gave the decision to Kennedy. This time there seemed to be a feeling that the second encounter — in the form of replies to questions by four reporters — was more a draw.

While the presidential candidates traded accusations of spreading inaccuracies in the campaign, they found common ground on only a few topics.

Neither would go into the summit conference without prior diplomatic spadework and none but a feasible assurance that Soviet Premier Khrushchev meant to proceed in good faith.

Each sees difficult times ahead, with special problems in the economic assistance and other programs rising.

THEY DISAGREE

But from Cuba to Formosa Kennedy and Nixon disagreed on international affairs. They had sharp remarks at each other about civil rights. They laughed over economic conditions generally.

They split sharply on America's prestige rating and on the defence of Formosa-controlled islands of Quemoy and Matsu. Kennedy suggested that in the event of war, he would defend Formosa but not necessarily those islets. Nixon promptly slammed back that they were part of Formosa and he wouldn't give them up even if this meant a third world war.

Significantly as Nixon accused Kennedy of defeatism and voicing criticism of the administration at a time when Soviet Premier Khrushchev is in the U.S., the Republican vice-president also appeared to move away from full support of the Eisenhower regime.

"I am not satisfied with what we are doing in the cold war," he said, "because I believe we have to step up our activities and become more offensive for the minds and hearts of men."

GOVT. HAS TOUGH DECISION TO MAKE ON BUTTER STOCK

Support Prices Expire in May

By ARCH MacKENZIE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—A tough government decision on butter seems inevitable before next May when the present support prices expire.

Amid a world glut, Canadian stocks Sept. 1 totalled a record 134,985,000 pounds—most of it in government cold storage. Trade outlets usually hold between 30,000,000 and 35,000,000 pounds.

Sources said today the federal government, through the agricultural stabilization board, will have to look hard at a situation which could mean huge expenditures while consumption drops. The support price extended last year remains at 63 cents a pound buying up top grades at 63 and 62 cents a pound. It was indicated that any decision will be expensive financially.

Consumption in the first seven months of 1960 was at the lowest level since 1951 — the year the cutting impact of cheaper butter substitutes and a trend toward low-fat Canadian diets.

SITUATION REVERSED

Meanwhile, a situation existing in Europe last year, which gave Canada a butter shortage, has reversed itself this autumn. Canada last fall sold more than 11,000,000 pounds of butter to the United Kingdom at around 56 cents a pound, Canadian basis. The price today would be about 40 cents a pound, informants said.

Earlier this week the Organization for European Economic Co-operation urged that butter exports be stepped up to help cut the British market to avoid a crisis.

Announcing the extended support price last May, Agriculture Minister Harkness said cows whose dried milk would be produced in the commercially butter, informants say that about 7,500,000 pounds had been diverted into milk powder given away in international relief programs.

But the first seven months 104,782,000 still exceeds by 9,000,000 pounds the total a year earlier and stands more than 25,000,000 pounds above the five-year average last year.

Political Patronage in Quebec To Be Stamped Out--Lesage

MONTREAL (CP) — Premier Jean Lesage of Quebec today spelled out his government's "irrevocable" decision to stamp out political patronage in Quebec. He called on his party to launch a full-scale program to educate the new Quebec public in democracy.

He spoke out bluntly to grumbling Liberal elements anticipating government favors since the party's victory over the Union Nationale party June 22.

Mr. Lesage said its perennial excuse of "previous administrations" for the actions of party members into favor-granting individuals was that Quebec voters did not know the first thing about government operations. They did not know their rights.

The premier, speaking to members of the Quebec Liberal Federation at its sixth annual convention, said government and democracy was threatened by Quebec.

Text of the address was released in advance of delivery.

A series of precedent-shattering policy statements, Lesage said:

1. The provincial government and the political party elected to power are two distinct bodies.

2. The common welfare comes before party interests.

3. Party members under, cutting to ribbons long - standing traditions of granting government favors for political machines, said his political philosophy and a trend toward low-fat Canadian diets.

One Man Killed, Railway Blocked At Brockville

BROCKVILLE (CP) — One man was killed, a boy injured and the main CNR line blocked nearly seven hours after a passenger train crash at Caintown, 14 miles west of here.

Dead is Earl Blanchard, 45, who lived near the crossing.

His nephew, Earl Blanchard, 15, was with him in the car when it collided with a freight train at 7:45 a.m. The boy was seriously injured and is in hospital here.

Eastbound Montreal-to-Toronto trains were held up between Brockville and Smiths Falls. Officials arranged for Brockville restaurants to provide food to the stranded passengers.

Britain Will Assist South Africa In Fight to Stay in Commonwealth

LONDON (CP)—A decision on whether a republican South Africa should be allowed to remain in the Commonwealth is deferred until next year.

Indications in Parliament today are Britain will press the Nationalist government to "play it cool" in getting South Africa's family fold. In a referendum Thursday, the Afrikaner people by a narrow majority in favor of a republican form of constitution.

Prime Minister Macmillan is much depends on whether South Africa picks a time when the psychological climate is favorable. The conference will not be held before next May.

The lost upon Prime Minister Hendrik Verwoerd, once a prominent critic of the Commonwealth.

One official British view is that prudence is the best counsel. A source informed on African affairs pointed to the developments at the last few weeks at the United Nations, where there were signs of Commonwealth leaders, such as Prime Ministers Macmillan of Britain, Nehru of India and Menzies of Australia, acting with a kind of solidarity in rebutting Russian arguments.

The informant said he thinks there is a growing feeling that the Commonwealth can best serve fully as a team on these international questions.

If Britain's advice to take matters slowly is accepted, the question of South Africa's membership may not come up before the next time prime ministers of the Commonwealth meet, perhaps next summer.

There are no more momentous question of South Africa, leaders reasonably would like to meet the prime minister of Nigeria, which gains independence, ahead of the newest Commonwealth state. Sir Abubakar, a Moslem born in Sokoto in 1912, is regarded here as a man of outstanding gifts.

There is no precedent for a nation being expelled from the Commonwealth. Somehow, if it fell, a way will be found to avoid that extremity, despite the strong feelings against South Africa's racial policies freely expressed by Ghana, Malaya, India, Ceylon and even Canada.

Railway Survival at Stake In Non-Op Strike Vote--CNR

OTTAWA (CP)—With a nation-wide strike vote of 111,000 "non-op" railway employees set for Tuesday, the publicly-owned CNR says railway survival—and the jobs of 70,000 CNR staff—are at stake in Canada's biggest labor-management dispute.

The railway came out bluntly in setting the issue of job security before the tumultuous contract wrangle over wages—a major factor as the dispute approaching a strike crisis.

The union reply generally is that the CNR provides given away by international relief programs.

But the first seven months 104,782,000 still exceeds by 9,000,000 pounds the total a year earlier and stands more than 25,000,000 pounds above the five-year average last year.

Montreal Newspapers Attack Feeble Efforts of Police Dept.

MONTREAL (CP) — Some Montreal newspapers are beginning to wonder what they are getting for the $1,000,000 it costs them for police protection.

At least two newspapers have been asking pointed questions in editorials about the police department's failure to cope with the crime this summer — especially violent crimes like "armed robberies" and assaults.

Seldom has the prestige of the police force been at such a low ebb.

Police Director J. Albert Langlois admits that the number of crimes is increasing but insists that the police force for the city's population of Montreal is increasing, too. He says he now has 3,000 policemen and a bigger budget.

The figures are disturbing. Reported crimes of violence in Montreal in the city itself last year, 1959, have been 34 for this year.

There were 19 murder cases within the city police force's jurisdiction in 1956, 20 in 1958, 19 in 1959 and 14 in 1960. Of 60 murder cases since the start of 1957, 12 remain unsolved—an average of 20 per cent unsolved.

Counting killings in the Montreal area that come within the jurisdiction of the provincial police, Montreal has had 35 murders so far this year.

Two of them were slick, gangland-style jobs disposing of men known to police as petty racket-

ALMOST CERTAIN BODY FOUND IS MISSING WOMAN

Dress Designer Not Seen Since Sept. 20

FREDERICTON (CP)—Police today were hoping to establish the identity of a woman whose body was found Wednesday on the bank of the St. John River near here. There was strong suspicion that she might have been a 34-year-old New Glasgow, N.S., dress designer missing since Sept. 20.

RCMP said they were bringing an unidentified New Glasgow friend of Cathy Zezers here in attempt to determine the identity of the body, found by a farmer at the foot of the 10-foot bank.

Miss Zezers, who came to Canada from Belgium two years ago, hasn't been seen since she left her apartment Sept. 20 to go by bus to drive to New Glasgow.

Chief Superintendent J. A. Maxted, head of the RCMP in the Maritimes, said Detective-Sergeant Conrad Walther of Bradford, N.B., told Fredericton police Miss Zezers was returning to New Glasgow to settle some personal affairs before marrying him. When he did not hear from her by the 20th he called police.

There has been contact between police and the dead girl in an attempt to establish identification.

Insp. Elmer Moss, heading the OPP investigation, said he was told Miss Zezers, 34, was last buried. He said the RCMP may have visited the dressmaker's home in Belgium.

OPP, accompanied by Walther, Wednesday afternoon searched the Bradford farm, then the dressmaker's home. They searched the cellar among bottles of preserves and shelves of soap and other toilet articles from the house. Police said the search was fruitless. Police also said he did not know what was behind the search or why he had been brought from Toronto where he lives.

Miss Zezers' red sports car was found in the possession of a man in Kirkland Lake, Ont.

Probably Woman Was Not Alone When She Died

HILLSBOROUGH BEACH, Ont. (CP) — A sheaf of "office-best" poems in two different handwritings, dozen empty pill vials found on the shore of Lake Ontario never the source of a woman, has been taken by police as an investigation into how she died was not alone when she died.

"We expect to find another body," Sgt. Allan Campbell of Hillsborough provincial police said Friday.

As well as the poems, search-ers found a double sleeping bag, a paddle, a plastic bag containing a pillow, a thermos flasks and a can of gas.

The articles were found by Douglas Jones, on whose property the body was found, and Ronald Bowes, a friend of the police, who also live nearby.

Fear Fast Ousts Joy Among Cubans And Castro Makes Full Use of It

HAVANA (AP)—Fear is fast replacing joy in the Cuban capital under Fidel Castro's sweep to power nearly two years ago and the revolutionary regime is exploiting it to help solidify its position.

Fear is nothing new to Cubans. During the years following Fulgencio Batista's dictatorship, it is beginning to show again. The latest is revolutionary language, the latest to come by, it can mean prison and even death.

Cuba's leaders express recently when he announced "revolutionary posses" would be organized to combat counter-attacks by conspirators.

Some months previously he had called on the citizenry to inform on unpatriotic neighbors. These informers were officially christened "civic - minded citizens."

The restoration of military discipline has been a grim element in the rise of fear. In 1959 they sent more than 300 persons to firing squad deaths after swift trials.

Cubans claim the government has a veritable army of undercover agents and unsalaried informers, male and female, in apartments, offices, factories, restaurants, hotel lobbies and bars and in the pews of churches.

Fear long after the first major clash between anti- and pro-Castro elements at Havana Cathedral Square March 4, 1959, is apparent - controlled press published a list of churchgoers, mostly women, and accused them of counter-revolution.

There is a "voluntary tax" for industrialization purposes.

The worker can decline to have this tax deducted from his salary, but he must detail the reasons to the labor ministry.

"Those who refuse to pay the tax or join the militia become suspect," a Cuban businessman said. "The same thing goes for the employee who fails to heed a strike summons and does not go to work."

Red China Claim To UN Seat Reaches Crisis

K Wants Summit Meet, Session on Disarmament

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP) Communist China's claim for Outer Mongolia membership is expected to hit a showdown stage today.

Soviet Premier Khrushchev, meanwhile, sought to rule the 15th General Assembly with a breakneck pace in which he demanded a Soviet - backed summit meeting and a session on disarmament, ostensibly in Europe, perhaps in Russia.

The Soviet chief was in the spotlight as prospective leader at the UN. Prime Minister Macmillan of Britain having left earlier in the week, but he is obviously striving to maintain his new high key. He said Macmillan had assured him in meetings of a Big Four summit membership if new United States president is elected.

The high-key tone was certain to be struck in the speech prepared today to debate the China issue—the 10th time it has been brought to the assembly which increased to 99 members with the admission of Nigeria, former British colony in West Africa, as a UN member Wednesday (Oct. 5).

Nigerian Prime Minister Sir Abubakar Tafawa Balewa is himself a Moslem. A candidate for moral leadership of the emergent Afro-Asian states by rejecting the idea of a pan-African union "at present." This concept has been advocated by Ghana's President Kwame Nkrumah.

Sir Abubakar also proved a sweeping plan to restore order in the Belgian Congo, a former Belgian colony, including:

The appointment of a UN factfinding commission with no preseptatives from the great powers to look into the charges and stances which caused the present crisis.

The holding of new elections to give the country "some prospect of authorized leaders with whom the UN organization can co-operate."

FOR LIMITED TIME

The granting of additional powers to the UN force now in the Congo for a limited period until order is restored and the fears of the people there can decide in a free vote on their leaders and form of government.

UN administration of trusteeship territories, such as the 13,000,000 population was out of the question. Sir Abubakar told the prime minister said, adding that the UN has the responsibility of the Algerian provisional government's request for the recognition of that government."

The qualifying term "de facto" might be used in the future to avert action as threatened to relations with Moscow.

Tunisia May Join Algerian Rebels, Red Help Likely

TUNIS, Tunisia (Reuters)—President Habib Bourguiba said Friday Tunisia may side with the Algerian insurgents to hasten the "liberation" of Algeria and bring it out of the cold war.

He told the National Assembly here that Russian or Chinese armies may be sent to the war to the insurgents who have been fighting for independence from France for the last six years.

"When Russia and China enter the lists—and we can perhaps no longer prevent them—we will be able to carry out our duty and to prevent Africa tending to become a satellite of East or West."

At a meeting of the newly-formed congregation at Farley Avenue it was decided that the new congregation should bear the name of St. Columba Presbyterian Church. Roads Crowded For Last Holiday Before Winter

With provincial highways crowded as motorists take to the road for the long Thanksgiving Day holiday, Inspector A. McDougall of the Ontario Provincial Police today urged fullest cooperation in observance of all traffic regulations.

"All leaves for police have been cancelled for the holiday and every officer and all cars will be on highway patrol in an effort to keep accidents at a minimum," the Inspector stated.

Police will be particularly on the lookout for speeders and drivers who have had an unmarked car will be used to check fast drivers.

With the commencement of the long weekend yesterday, increased traffic volume was noted in the Belleville area, particularly along 401 highway and east of the city.

However, only one accident was reported, a one vehicle mishap north of Halloway.

Market Again Is Paradise For Shoppers

As usual this time of year, the downtown farmers' market today was a shopper's paradise with fresh fruit, vegetables and, fowl offered supply.

Fruit, which last week settled by the cold, frosty nights, was the supply of tomatoes, although farmers said they still have enough to last for another week or two.

Traffic Check by Postcard Will Be Made in This City

A postcard traffic check on the movements of Belleville motorists will be asked in the near future to compile information gathered by the firm of DeLauw, Cather and Company, consulting engineers, now engaged in doing a comprehensive traffic survey for the city of Belleville.

Pre-addressed stamped cards will go out to all Belleville householders, who will be urged to co-operate in filling in the questionnaire, covering their movements by auto during a specific period on a certain date. Date for the survey has been set for Friday, October 21st. City motorists are to be asked to check all pre-lit gas buggies 4 and 7 o'clock on that date. The cards, to be distributed by the postal department, will go out a few days prior to the survey date.

In addition to traffic counts on all arterial roads leading into the city, the traffic survey will include information on the movements of motorists so as to make plans for possible other traffic routes or bridges, which might be required in the foreseeable future.

Former Albert College Student, Raymond Taylor, Gives Recital

By EUGENE LANG

A large crowd was on hand last evening in the Memorial Chapel of Albert College to hear Raymond Taylor, a former student of the College, in his violin recital. Raymond, son of Mr. and Mrs. Barnett Taylor, formerly of this city, and now residents of Oshawa, is a graduate of the Toronto Conservatory of Music and earlier this year, Raymond was fortunate in obtaining a scholarship that entitled him to study for six weeks in Puerto Rico this summer. He has played over the CBC in the past and has more than one future engagement coming up. Toronto this season as violin soloist. Miss Leona Riggs was accompanist to the artist for the recital.

Rev. A. E. McKenzie, B.A., D.D., principal and President of Albert College, prefaced the recital with a few remarks of glowing praise for both soloist and accompanist.

The first scheduled numbers that Raymond performed each proved to be fine musicianship of this young violinist. In the slower numbers a tone of silken sheen was produced that was notable for its sustained outlines

28 Accidents On Town Streets In September

TRENTON — Chief Constable F. J. Taylor has released his September report of department activities concerning motor vehicle accidents.

During the month there were 31 accidents involving estimated costs of more than $100 each and 17 accidents where property loss was estimated at less than $100.

Four persons were injured in accidents, including two school children. Neither of the children was to blame.

Hit-and-run accidents numbered three. No one was killed within the town limits as the result of motor vehicle accidents during the month, although the department was called when Leonard Neil drowned at No. 1 dam on Sept. 7.

Total accidents numbered 28 and property loss was set at $3,585.

Chief Taylor announced that the department was continuing investigations into two recent robberies in town. Two weeks ago Riverside Dairy was robbed of around $2,000 in cheques and cash. Last Sunday night thieves gained entry to the Skill Tools plant and stole between $1,500 and $2,000 worth of merchandise. Forty-three power saws and 150 electric drills were stolen. The power saws were valued at $34 apiece.

As both robberies occurred on Sunday, the traditional day of rest, the police have had little "rest" for the past two weeks. Wending on the theory that this may be part of a pattern they expect to have little rest this weekend.

MONTREAL

lashed the police department last week after three men robbed the Provincial Bank of Canada branch of a $50,000 payroll right under the noses of four detectives who, acting on a tip, had been watching the place for a week.

Meanwhile, Police Commissioner Langlois ordered a complete reshuffle of the holdup squad.

Last Sunday, the police department's annual report was criticized of a "mystery squad" of plainclothesmen in a car unmarked, foreign-made cars to keep an eye on known racketeers especially those tied in with the mafia.

Only four days later, seven people were murdered within 72 hours of another which concentrated burst of killings ever.

Mr. Langlois says that crime waves in cycles—like the sun spot cycle, he says.

Who is to blame?

BLAMES POLICE CUTS

Montreal Star in a survey last year reported that Montreal spends less per capita on police than any of the 12 largest cities in North America.

In a budget-cutting spree in 1955, city council lopped $700,000 off its force, a reduction of a 50-man class of recruits freshly trained.

This year, a similar cut from $12,000,000 to $11,300,000 was suggested to take off just the amount of money the department wanted to pay the salaries of new recruits.

Town Briefs

TRENTON — Mrs. Jenny Wills, president, and Mrs. Doris Webb, second vice-president, of the Trenton Business and Professional Women's Club will attend the provincial conference in Belleville Oct. 14-16. Because of coincidence of the conference with the 30th anniversary of the founding of the national body, the Trenton club will not hold any special observance of the anniversary date at this month's meeting.

Ex-conductor Lloyd Worrell, who served as chairman of the Trenton court of revision and who was appointed a member of the court for 1960, this week resigned his position.

Sunday afternoon the combined forces of the Trenton fire department and the RCAF Station Trenton fire department will stage a parade in Middleton Park and downtown Trenton to mark the beginning of Fire Prevention Week, Oct. 9-15. Trenton's new aerial ladder truck, as well as pumpers and floats from the RCAF department, will be in the parade. Girl Guides, Boy Scouts and Navy Cadets will participate in the parade. It is expected that the parade will have the vicinity of College Street school around 2 p.m. and proceed to downtown Trenton, to Queen Street and so on down to the fire hall, where it will be dispersed. Firemen will visit all schools and churches during the week as well as check all commercial and industrial properties.

A representative group of Trenton citizens, including the mayor and several councillors, plans to

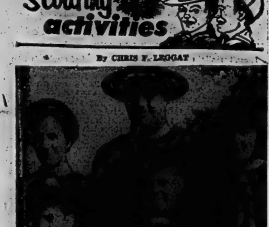
IN MEMORIAM



HOWE — In loving memory of a dear son, Harold Howe, who passed away October 5th, 1956.
He is gone but not forgotten.
And, as years, another year,
In our lonely hours of thinking,
Thoughts of him are ever near.
Days of sorrow will come over us,
Memories will linger around us,
But they little know the sorrow
Which we felt when he passed away.
—Always remembered by wife and family.

HOWE — In loving memory of a dear husband, Harold Howe, who passed away October 5th, 1956.
God knew that he was suffering,
God knew that he was tired,
So he closed his weary eyelids,
And God said, "Come unto me."
We wished to keep him longer,
But the valley of rest, so fair;
Heaven needed another flower,
And God chose him.
We will not hide him there.
—Sadly missed and never will be forgotten by his daughter-in-law Peggy and family.

HOWE — In loving memory of a dear son, Raymond Howe, who passed away October 5th, 1956.
In tears we saw you sinking,
We watched you fade away;
Our hearts were almost broken,
We could do naught to stay.
Days of sorrow will come over us,
So peacefully free from pain;
We could not keep you here,
To suffer that again.
—Sadly missed by his mother and dad.

During the past ten years he has been Assistant Scoutmaster and Scoutmaster of First Belleville and for a time was attached to District Staff, serving as District Scoutmaster. He is a most proficient outdoor Scouter and has been of great assistance in camping activities.

His sister Betty, also shown above, received her Long Service Medal several months earlier and she was for several years Cubmaster of First Belleville Cub Pack, from which she resigned to take a position with International Headquarters in Ottawa. She later returned to Belleville and is presently Assistant Cubmaster at Fifteenth Belleville.

Both Betty and Harry attended the Niagara-on-the-Lake World Jamboree in 1955 and the Jubilee Jamboree in England in 1957.

To the right of Harry is his wife, Jean, who is Assistant Cubmaster at First Belleville, with eight years of service. Continuing the family record in Scouting are Cubs Charles and Harry Smith, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Mac Smith. Since the picture was taken Charles has graduated to Scouts and is a member of the First Belleville Troop.

The newest member of the family is Kenneth, son of Jean and Harry. He is almost 10 months of age and is on the waiting list of First Belleville Cub Pack until he is of age to register.

This is just another example of the keen interest shown in Belleville District Scouting which comprises over twelve hundred Cubs, Scouts and Scouters.

Thanks to District Council President Frank Lancaster for this report.

Where are they now?

To mark the golden jubilee of the Boy Scout movement in Ontario, the Provincial Council of the Boy Scouts Association is searching for the surviving members of its founding year, 1910. They would like to find, too, some of the early Scouts whose exploits far beyond the public service earned them Scouting awards.

The Provincial Council would also like to find the earliest lady Cub master in Ontario.

Those and other leaders in Scouting in the province will be honored at a Golden Jubilee dinner at the Royal York Hotel in Toronto on Thursday, October 27. Special guests will include the Governor-General, Maj.-Gen. Georges Vanier, who is Chief Scout for Canada, and Ontario Lieutenant-Governor J. Keiller Mackay.

Since a day in August, 1910, when General Sir Robert Baden-Powell, then the hero of Mafeking in South Africa and founder of the Boy Scouts, came to Toronto to open the Canadian National Exhibition and address the Empire and Canadian Clubs on Scouting, the movement in Ontario has grown to more than 120,000 active members.

In that first year there were only 2,000 members. The Provincial Council, Boy Scouts Association, 137 Wellington Street West, Toronto, would like to have as many of these originals at the dinner as it is possible to find.

Constitutional Problems Still Unsettled by Parley

OTTAWA (CP) — A score of anonymous legal experts have been given the task of taking a non-political crack at untangling Canada's 93-year-old constitution and making it more truly Canadian.

The civil servants will do the work, even if the politicians get the credit.

This is the effect of the decision taken Friday at the conclusion of a two-day Dominion-provincial conference on constitutional reform, attended by representatives of all 10 provinces. Justice Minister Fulton made the announcement that more paper-work needs to be done.

The provincial attorneys - general met to consider a two-stage proposal by Mr. Fulton that the British North America Act—an 1867 statute of the British Parliament and still amendable only by that body in matters of jurisdiction as to federal and provincial governments—should be brought into Canadian parliamentary jurisdiction.

FIRST FIND FORMULA

His purpose in the meeting was that it should first find a formula to make the transfer from Britain to Canada, and then find a formula to make amendments to the constitution in Canada.

The conference failed to find either formula, but it agreed further work is needed and such formulas can be found.

Legal draftsmen in the federal justice department, among whom is senior assistant Deputy Justice Minister E. A Driedger is the chief hope for finding a valid formula for the transfer.

The stumbling block in evolving an amendment formula is the same now as it was 10 years ago when the provinces and the federal government failed to agree on how many of the BNA Act's individual provisions should be "entrenched"—hedged about by so many restrictions as to be non-amendable.

Quebec's demands in 1950 were far beyond what other provinces considered reasonable at the week's conference. Paul Gerin-Lajoie, Quebec's minister of youth and authority on constitutional law, said there appeared to be a genuine desire to seek common ground.

EACH WILL SUGGEST

According to the communique each province now is to draft in legislative language its own constitutional amendment formula to guarantee provincial and federal rights. The drafts will be submitted to the federal justice department, which will collate and co-ordinate them before referring them back to all the provinces.

This is another big task for Mr. Driedger's federal law officers and the legal draftsmen of the provincial governments.

The art of legal draftsmanship is one of the most specialized in the entire field of law and involves writing into unequivocal language the complicated nuances of the intended law. Mr. Driedger has been senior draftsman of federal statutes under the former Liberal government and the present Conservative administration.

The policy to be embodied in the formula will be indicated by the political heads of the federal and provincial attorneys-general offices, but the writing of the formula will be entrusted to the non-political civil servants, subject to final approval by their political chiefs.

NOT DOWNCAST

Mr. Fulton, indicating that he had hoped at least for agreement on a transfer formula at this conference, said that he is not downcast or disappointed at the progress made.

"A solid basis has been laid for bringing to a successful conclusion the task which the conference has set for itself," he said.

CRITICIZES NOTE

WASHINGTON (AP)—The U.S. state department said Friday night a new Soviet note warning against arming West Germany with rockets is a Russian attempt to confuse discussions at the United Nations and distract attention from Russian actions.

It said the Soviet government had conveniently ignored the fact that the Soviet-sponsored armament of Communist East Germany dated back to 1948.

enthusiastic welcome in which Canada joined. Sir Abubakar's friendly words about Britain underlined the claims of Khrushchev and other Communist speakers that deep and bitter enmity exists between colonial powers and former colonies.

Khrushchev, in the one question directed at him about Red China Friday, did some adept sidestepping. A correspondent said a Chinese "organ" repeated again that Peking considers war inevitable between East and West.

Instead of tackling reports that Moscow and Peking are at loggerheads over this issue, Khrushchev employed the device of ridicule, saying the correspondent had read the report, therefore why didn't he comment on it himself.

But Khrushchev is the leader of the move to seat Red China and—if there actually is a quarrel between Moscow and Peking on ideological matters as reported—he could be expected to be hard on the issue for his devotion to the Communist cause.

THREATENS UNION

At the luncheon Friday, Khrushchev threatened to take unilateral action outside the United Nations, relying on Soviet "independent strength" if he were unable to obtain reorganization of the world body.

The claimant to Jordanian had assured him that a Big Four summit conference would meet "shortly" after the forthcoming presidential elections and he promised that if these arrangements held good he would keep his word and do his utmost to find a solution regarding Germany or West Berlin.

But British foreign office spokesman John Russell said later that "no such positive assurance" had been given Khrushchev. Russell conceded, however, that the "possibility of another summit conference some time in 1961 was indeed implicit" in the talks between Macmillan and Khrushchev.

Khrushchev was in turn merry and serious at the correspondents' luncheon. At one point he admitted that at 67 he was too old and fat to become the first Russian in orbit.

The party was going well when Uncle Ken came into the room and supplied a bag of fruit on to the table.

"Not quite as many girls as last fall" he remarked. "Well, I've brought twenty-one pears and twenty more peaches, so the boys we'll have the pears and the girls the peaches."

Ted checked quickly. "We'll each get the same number of pears" he informed his uncle, "and the girls get one peach each more than that."

Uncle Ken smiled. "I guess you're right," he said with delight for the door. "So don't fight now."

The girls did well. But how many of them were there at the party?

Revelations

Tuesday was a big day for U.S. space scientists.

They put up a satellite which may open up a whole new era in communications.

They fired a solid-fuel rocket 5,800 miles out over the Atlantic, which may be the forerunner of cheaper space explorations.

The satellite's name, Courier 1-B, describes its purpose. A message is broadcast to it as it passes over a ground station. When it passes near the point to which the message is to be sent, it rebroadcasts it. Circling the earth every 115 minutes, Courier 1-B is considerably speedier than Pheidippides, the Greek who ran the 22 miles from Marathon to Athens to bring the glad news of victory over the Persians, but its task is essentially the same. Having devised methods of sending messages without couriers, mankind now reforms purely human courier system a more reliable.

But what a courier! In the satellite's capsule the entire King James version of the Bible can transmit the entire King James version of the Bible in 12 minutes. Not only does it move much faster than Pheidippides, but it talks much faster than any man —or woman.

So quickly does familiarity breed, if not contempt, indifference, that it is probably the speed of the satellite's transmission of messages, rather than the speed of its journeys around the earth, which will amaze most people.

Possibly, though, this amazement will be matched by some figures concerning the cost of the solid-fuel rocket—only $500,000 compared with $6,000,000 for some of the liquid-fuel varieties. So we have a type of rocket-compact, but with a wider price spread between it and the conventional style rockets than exists between the comparable compacts in the automotive field and their big brothers.

Or consider the one rocket! "What's a million" C. D. Howe would have been considered a miser had he stayed in his native land and got a job in the Pentagon.

Are There Giants In The Making?

The attainment of independence by a number of African states has served to focus the spotlight, of late, on many African leaders. Some have given disappointing performances, but they are in the minority. Most of them have yet to face the acid test of performance when enjoying power, but biographies of their lives to date impress the average reader. In the past couple of days, for instance, we have read with admiration a report in the Toronto Globe and Mail of the achievements of Alhaji Sir Abubakar Tafawa Balewa, prime minister of newly-independent Nigeria, and a story from the London Sunday Times on Dr. Nnamdi Azikiwe, who will become Nigeria's Governor-General. Nor are they alone in winning praise from white observers. Chief Albert Luthuli, the Zulu who headed the now-outlawed African National Congress in South Africa, impressed Norman Phillips, the Toronto Star's able correspondent, when he reported on the apartheid riots last spring. Few people who saw Tom Mboya, the Kenya labor leader, in the Canadian Commonwealth could have failed to react favorably to his frank and persuasive arguments. Nehru of India is a slightly different case—he is an aristocrat from a land which was civilized when Europe was overrun by barbarians—but he and other Asian leaders generally create a belief in their integrity and intelligence, even when one believes that some of their policies may be wrong.

What is the secret behind this rather amazing showing? Few of us are overly enthused about most of the statesmen in white countries, who often are either damned by faint praise or applauded with considerable reservation when they are not outspokenly criticized.

Can it be that the colored man's very struggle to acquire an education and power is breeding a group of giants, or is the explanation less flattering, to observed and observer alike, lying in a white man's amazement that any person with a different colored skin should prove to have ability, energy and high purpose?

STRENGTH for the DAY

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

THE VISION OF GOD

According to the classical mythology Zeus, the king of the gods, admired a mortal woman named Semele. He visited her often, but always in some disguise, and she insisted that he appear in his own majestic form. Zeus was most reluctant to do so, but Semele nagged him until he consented. The result, as Zeus had foreseen, was that his dazzling brightness was too great for a mortal to endure, and Semele was burned to a crisp.

The mark made on modern Christians by the vision of God is not so terrible, but it is just as clear. Here and there among us are people who have truly seen God, and their lives are never the same afterwards.

The missionary who lives and labors in a foreign land, bringing physical and spiritual aid to his people, risking persecution and sometimes death.

The physician who heeds the sick call in the community or in the slums, working day and night to bring health and security about his fees, loved by his people for his kindness as much as for his skill—here is another man who has seen God.

That neighbor who works so hard, who loves his wife and brings up his children so well, whom anyone in trouble can count on for help, who is honest, faithful, cheerful, kind, devout—surely he, too, has seen God.

'The Thing' Harsh Tyrant

BBC London Letter

"In England, that's goodness the harsh but proper word of everyday life, said the poet William Plomer in a recent talk, in which he compared the country of the convenience to feverish Italy. He recalled that when he was a boy of ten, fresh from a free and easy life in South Africa, he went to be had been staying with in the English countryside. He soon got terrified at the idea that he should visit [illegible] sleeper. It was definitely the thing for a man to carry gloves in town, a bowler hat if necessary, the thing to wear them. Other essential wear for the top-hatted 'man' were a bowler hat and a stiffly-starched Eton collar two or three inches deep.

Clothes today, said Plomer, were pleasanter and healthier than they used to be, and in many ways simpler, but there is a fault not to be forgiven, it was the fault of the world everso quite free of that persistent, if unexpressed, threat 'the thing!' For example, not long ago, when he had been to see his hair cut and had asked the young barber—a former airman—to take off a little of the top and of the back, the latter had replied: "I'll try, sir." After all, it wouldn't do to have you looking like a poet, it wouldn't be the thing, would it?"

This treat of 'the thing' to the realm of dress and manners stung Plomer to fight back. "It seems to me," he retorted, "that there is something in the English as particularly good at—one is mechanical inventions, with the making and maintenance of machinery. The other is poetry. It is no wonder that, besides producing the world's greatest poet—the man whose name is known in countless thousands from all over the world—England produces every year after year—the English have ever been the most successful at producing such a splendidly rich and various body of poetry that it is read, and has been read, more widely than the world! So far from it not being the thing to look like a poet, I should say that just to be a poet was the best good one would be something. And it doesn't much matter what a poet looks like—whether he has to live down on his shoulders or all shaved off—as long as poetry looks all right."

Then, with a tolerant smile to indicate that he had no intention of cutting the barber's throat with his own razor, Plomer added as an oddit very much taken to considering how to consider his words, and wonder whether if it was the thing to look like a poet, it was necessarily always the thing to talk like a barber.

Chiang May Follow Rhee

The Times of London

Though he is the obstinately maintained symbol of the country which he governs, there is no doubt Chiang Kai-shek has never been the most attractive or democratic of leaders. Since he began to develop threat to his authority, he has never failed to arrest on a charge of sedition the editor of any conspicuous opposition paper in Formosa and the members of his staff.

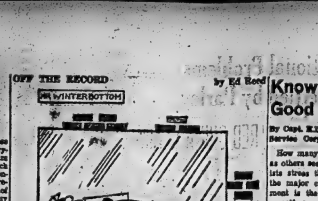
The people will credit the charge of harboring Communist sympathies made against this elderly and respected intellectual. Even his admission that recognizant of the necessity for Kuomintang must be written off will not seem to be a convincing example of patriotism.

The real charge against Lei Cheng is that he is associated with others, most of them native Formosans, in the organization of a genuine opposition party on the island.

For some time the Americans have been privately encouraging moves which might offer a way out of this impasse.

Chiang appears to have come after the fall of Syngman Rhee in South Korea the opposition movement some encouragement which is no beans [illegible] American support for the opposition in Korea had been devastating, though directed behind the scenes.

Evidently this liberal flower in the Communist world has been declared by the authorities to be a weed. In spite of this, the opposition elements are pressing their case.



In asking for payment of the mainland to be written off as the prime obligation of the Nationalist government Mr. Lei may have hoped that the burden of a complete government of China still maintained in Taipei could also be written off. Naturally the holders of sinecures in such bodies as the Mongolian and Tibetan affairs commission would resist such a proposal to the last.

But in one way or another reality is steadily going to replace illusion in Chinese politics and the true status as the government of an island.

Know Thyself Good Advice

By Capt. R.L. Field in the Army Service Corps Journal (India)

How many of us are ourselves as others see us? Many a misanthrope stresses the fact that one of the major causes of maladjustment is the inability of the misanthrope self as one really is. This modern emphasis is nothing a new "Know thyself" has been the message of philosophers throughout the ages.

Self-acceptance implies coming to terms with all aspects of our personality—our physical condition, abilities and personal qualities. Children have been known to be afraid to go to school because they were sick-a-nd "Fatty" and "Skinny".

Overestimation or underestimation of one's abilities is said to be many problems, especially in the vocational sphere. The executive struggling with a low intelligence quotient, the man with a superior intelligence doing routine clerical work are common examples of occupational maladjustment.

One must also take a measure of one's personality traits. Persons who are afraid to be a trifle seious would feel much less disturbed if only they realized that they can cause a little laughter, not much the same feelings.

Never does an individual manage to form an idea of himself A definite picture of the way he has been brought up. The attitudes of his parents, teachers, relatives and friends play a role in years—the way they have praised him, encouraged him, met his childish doubts and fears—have a profound influence.

The most parents underestimate or overestimate themselves! Essentially all North Americans are large students show that there is a definite tendency on their part to rate themselves as being morally desirable qualities. Curiously enough, this is in contrast with Chinese students, even those studying in the West. The difference is presumably due to the differing senses of values in the two cultures.

Give Convict Right to Work

Montreal Star

A prison sentence is meant to impose conditions of existence unpleasantly different from those of life at liberty. But if it is meant to help in the hoped-for reform of life it should not. Therefore it can detract as little as possible from opportunities for rehabilitation.

The decision just announced by the Du Plessis Department to establish a minimum security prison in B.C. when the province is ready to put to work on the Dominion Experimental Farm at Agassiz is an excellent direction. The men, it is explained, will really work, not just be kept busy, and the hope is that the habit of work will not be lost.

There is little resemblance to purposeful work in the occupations found for most prisoners. They help pass the time, which is about the purpose they serve. Even, except, of course, in the cases of cook and barber, prisons are. There is incentive for them. For the work they do prisoners rarely the same sort of trust, there is less scope for provision of the conditions anything like those outside the walls. But there is also the danger, in competition of what they produced with that of paid labor were accepted as part of operation of the prison system. It is possible to argue against paying a few cents a day, something to the cases of cook and barber, prisons are. There is incentive for them. For the work they do prisoners rarely the same sort of trust, there is less scope for provision of the conditions anything like those outside the walls. But there is also the danger, in competition of what they produced with that of paid labor were accepted as part of operation of the prison system. It is possible to argue against paying a few cents a day, something to over the hunt for work after release.

Favored labor of "chain-gang" connotations is one sort of abuse. Better conditions and essential capabilities is another.

Sweeter Corn Is Developed

Financial Post

There's good news on the sweet corn front. Sweeter sweet corn is on the way.

University of Illinois researchers have come up with a type of corn that has a 60 per cent sugar content two and a half times that of ordinary corn.

It seems, according to the researchers, that today's sweet corn has a sugar content of 12 per cent which drops to 10 per cent after 48 hours at room temperature — and that's what's wrong with it.

All of which is reassuring information, indeed.

Corn on the cob, we knew, no longer tasted the way it used to when we were young and could pick it and popped it into the pot. We had put it down to the fact that we must be aging and not to the fact that corn sold in the city was aging even faster.

The new sweeter corn will be available as soon as enough seed can be developed for commercial sale, it is said. The new corn will again be one of the greatest of gustatory delights.

Reds' Taste Improving

St. Louis Post-Dispatch

It may be regrettable that the United Nations bar finds itself overstocked with vodka now that delegates from beyond the Iron Curtain are showing a marked preference for gin martinis. Nevertheless it is impossible to agree with the correspondent who describes this elevation of Communist taste as a reflection of the decadent influence of the West."

There is nothing decadent about a dry martini. It is a sound, strong concoction. Only the effete resort it by pouring vodka over the ice. If Mr. K's colleagues are recognizing its unadulterated merit, there can be hope that they may recognize the merit of much more that is Western.

To Your Good Health

By Joseph G. Molner, M.D.

HEMORRHAGE IS NATURE'S WAY OF ELIMINATING MENSES

I can't really estimate how widespread the interest may be in today's letter, but I am sure that when the problem occurs, it can cause severe worry.

The letter-head is rather long, so I'll condense it: A young woman in her third month of pregnancy began spotting. Soon bleeding began.

She was away from home but was referred to a doctor (whom she liked) and was ordered to stay off her feet as much as possible. She had some medication, too, including hormones.

The bleeding stopped, she went home and she is assured that everything is going along comfortably. Yet she and her family are worried, and her mother passed us as follows: "We are aware that bleeding Nature throws off midflie. Inasmuch as this was actually miscarry, does this fall into the category of abortion? Can be considered a normal pregnancy? Was the bleeding of the fetus while its development was stopped. Or did it stop?

The mother-to-be of this child being born normal are small, why didn't the doctor allow Nature to take its course and let the miscarriage take place?"

Those are interesting questions, each one to mind, but at the same time I have to say that most of the arguments are somewhat founded in fact.

True, Nature does try to eliminate misfits, but a defect in the fetus is not the only thing that can cause a miscarriage, or a threat of it.

The is a case of a threatened miscarriage, it is not a miscarriage.

Proper treatment prevented a miscarriage. Had the fetus been severely deformed, or had it died, the bleeding would have occurred and would have completed the miscarriage.

The important fact is that this did not happen.

Also, remember miscarriage — while obviously we would much prefer that it did not arise — is no indication that the baby is likely to be abnormal. Remember, abnormalities are few in number.

Use of small buses have put the North Bay bus system in a profitable position. The use of 17-passenger Ford gasoline engine buses which run on diesel fuel and average 21 miles per gallon, despite the short stops, have been the solution. The buses carry an average of 2,900 passengers daily, city says a week. There are eight buses.

Although the North Bay voters last year approved a $48,000 subsidy for their bus system, the operator's contract includes a subsidy of $24,000 for the first year only—a matter of letting the system be operated without this subsidy. This is revolutionary in municipal bus service operations.

This type of bus was demonstrated in Brockville earlier this year. These little buses are popular with the public, and it seems as if they are operated profitably on 10 cent fare. The fare is raised to 15 cents for children, a popular price.

When the buses were shown there there was only mild enthusiasm for them, as well for applicants to take up the franchise (didn't bring a single reply. It is possible, now, however, that the north Bay experiment may stimulate interest again in municipal bus services. We need a service.

TODAY'S TALK

DO IT YOURSELF

Too many workers waste their job along. They need to get the thing done. It is discouraging to have boss nod and the job unfinished.

Get the important thing done. Get the job done. All good executives go through this process. It is mass advancement and satisfaction in feeling that the big and important thing is finished.

Ready for the next step.

Ragged edges show and are significant of a slip-shod way of life. Genuine workers,

Bus Service Can Pay Way

Brockville Recorder and Times

Bus services have been the bane of municipalities all over the country. It's a difficult operation to keep up a paying basis. Brockville has been without a bus service for some years for that very reason.

Many municipalities have found it encouraging to provide a subsidy in order to keep their bus service operating. Indeed it appears to be the only way to keep such service. However, we would not like to see here any move in this direction. The step that must be taken by town council before we will have such a service is the one to suggest, though, that any person interested in the setting up of a service may find the operation in North Bay worthy of careful study.

A familiar element of the character of the city. And in spring and fall every grocery, every fruiterer, and fanciers of wild game hanging by his door; and "Packsack" says, "I like the fall windows."

However," said my fellow passenger. "We've been beef eaters for consecutively a long time. Now was too hard to transport. Not enough land was cleared for extensive pasturers. Until our farmers' time, we Canadians were pork eaters. A cow has one calf. A sow presents us with ten pigs. Pork and game were our grandparents' proteins.

And I remembered how little I had tasted of the delicate flesh of venison or wild duck. She liked shrieks "steak.

Wedding

Baskets of assorted gladioli blooms adorned the altar of St. John's United Church, Campbellford, on Saturday, September 24, at 2:30 p.m. for the wedding of Miss Dixie McCrone, daughter of Mrs. Carrie \O. Barton of Campbellford and the late Mr. Ernest McCrone, to Delbert Melville McGee, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence McGee, of Stirling.

The double ring ceremony was performed by Rev. D. M. Smith, pastor of the church.

Mrs. Gwyn Nichols, church organist rendered traditional wedding music and accompanied the soloist, Miss Barbara Smith, who sang, "O Perfect Love", before the ceremony, "The Lord's Prayer" during the ceremony, and "The Wedding Prayer" during the signing of the register.

Given in marriage by her brother, Mr. Norman Barton of Havelock, the bride was radiantly lovely in a bouffant street-length gown of Chantilly lace over white taffeta. The gown fitted bodice, having a Sabrina neckline, and long lily-point sleeves. The tulle illusion veil of matching lace was accented with appliqued rosettes.

She wore her own headdress highlighted by tear-drop seed pearls with waist length silk tulle illusion veil. She carried a white Bible crested with pink Sweetheart roses and long white streamers tipped with lily-of-the-valley.

Mrs. John Miller of Peterborough was matron of honor, and the bridesmaids were Miss Ralph Gay of Stirling and Miss Heather Thompson of Campbellford.

The attendants were gowned alike in sheath silk organza over taffeta. The gowns were fashioned with fitted bodices and short bouffant skirts having portrait necklines, the cap sleeves being attached to the bodice in tar centred with a dainty back bow. They wore matching hooded dresses similar to the bride's with high points and matching seed pearls. Their tiny veils were sprinkled with sped pearls. They were dainty matching bouquets of yellow mums.

The little flower girls, Donna Deller of Havelock, and Linda Menzies, of Havelock, nieces of the bride, were dressed alike in mauve nylon over taffeta with short bouffant skirts and skirts. Wide ties formed butterfly bows at the back. They were headdresses of white flowers, daisy wrist-length gloves and white shoes. They carried similar bouquets of yellow baby pom 'mums.

Mr. Gerald McGee attended his brother as best man, and Messrs. Ralph Gay and Windsor McCrone were ushers.

Following the ceremony a wedding luncheon was served in the church parlors.

The bride's mother received the guests wearing a blue and white flowered gown with matching blue nylon sweater with hand and while accessories and corsage of pink roses.

The bridegroom's mother assisted, wearing a medium-length sheath dress with brown and avocado green accessories and corsage of pink roses.

The bridal table was traditionally decorated with white damask, centred by a three-tier wedding cake topped with miniature bride and bridegroom in an arch of pink and white flowers. Silver candles in silver candelabra and the bridal bouquet added a lovely nuptial accent.

For travelling to points west, the bride chose a brown and white sheath dress with matching duster, brown accessories and a corsage of pink Sweetheart roses from the bridal bouquet.

Prior to the wedding the bride was the honored guest at a tea given at the home of Mrs. Ralph Gay, Stirling; at a miscellaneous shower at the home of Mrs. Bruce Wallace, Campbellford, with co-hostess, Mrs. William Thompson; also at a miscellaneous shower at the home of Mrs. Ross Embleton of Havelock.

Many were present from many out-of-town points.

The Compassionate Genius

By ALMA MASON

So many of us are familiar with the circumstances which inspired Beethoven to write his nostalgic and deeply melodious Moonlight Sonata.

It is doubtful if this lovely composition would have been pulled from the profound emotive clouds of the great musician's mind, had not Beethoven been stirred to pity by the despairing need of another human soul.

As Beethoven passed a small, shabby house, a sorrowful sound street one evening, he suddenly paused to listen to someone playing his Sonata in F. Audible voices floated from the house and the player stopped playing in the midst of the finale and sobbed, "I cannot play anymore. It is so beautiful I cannot do it justice. Oh, what I would not give to go to the concert at Cologne and hear him play it himself, but we are so poor we can scarcely pay our rent."

The composer was deeply moved. He gently knocked at the door and when a girl maid said, "Pardon me, but I heard you and was tempted to enter as I am a musician. Would you like me to play for you?"

She was at first somewhat embarrassed by this intrusion, but her brother was slightly annoyed.

However, as the visitor seemed gentle and kind, they finally gave him the girl drum.

Beethoven remarked at the piano and sat down to the home. To his amazement, he learned that the lovely, golden-haired pianist was blind. He was deeply moved to hear that she played wholly by ear and had absorbed such music through listening to a neighbor practice.

The world was blessed because the brother and sister was old and frail and out of work, but never had Beethoven played to a more appreciative audience.

The brother and sister became friends and silent with wonder and rapture and quickly sensed that Beethoven was listening to the great master.

It is then that Beethoven felt fearful that even the best of his heart music, as the flow of those majestic and magnificent sounds.

HALLOWED RELIEF

The flickering candle wavered and went out. The hostess threw open the shutters and let in a flow of brilliant moonlight. A misty silver mellowness streamed directly on the harpsichord and on the player. It lit up in hallowed relief the rugged head and massive shoulders of the great composer.

As the last chord died away, Beethoven sat for a time enfolded in thought. Then he said, "How peaceful and lovely this simple room. I will improvise a sonata to the moonlight."

With a touch of purple sky and snowy shimmering stars, the Moonlight Sonata was born.

The two unfortunate young people who listened to the creation became an infinity and a flowing movement creep over the instrument. On the brink of the serene moment of ecstasy, the ecstatic passage; then emerged a breathless, hurrying agitato finale pregnant with an uncertain impulsiveness which seemed to soar to the depths of the wonderful ecstasy.

As the composer's hands rested quietly on the keyboard and the instrument became mute, a deep silence more expressive than words, hung in tribute to a great creative soul.

Chi Rho Group Tours Bell Telephone

Members of Christ Church's Chi Rho Fellowship met recently on a conducted tour of the Bell Telephone Company's area office in Belleville. Four members of the Bell organization did the honors, Messrs Graham Berry, George Wright, Dick Burns and Miss Lillian McVay.

The tour was extremely comprehensive, ranging from the business office to the business of now the telephone works, from the people who speak to you when you make a long distance call to the "girls" on the "test board" who help find out what is wrong when you can't.

The group was shown the long distance calls are handled at the local level and how the dire:t dialling long distance system works and at least in the Bell Telephone building. Speaking to an operator in Hawaii—"civilians"—a bell word, borrowed from the armed services, to designate John Public—Mr. Herb Cavaller said, in thanking the group for their visit that it was "most interesting, and I'm sure the group now knows what it does on when someone picks up a phone."

Returning to the parish hall the group had a short business and his group.

Wasted Time Is Wasted Cash So Here Is How To Save Both

By SHIRLEY and BOB SLOANE

So much has been written about how to travel on a budget without actually clearing that it's about time something was said for the consumption of the only travel commodity scarcer than money: Time.

The surest way to waste the money a trip costs you is to waste time. And, unlike cash, there is no bank from which to draw more. So for the pound-wise and hour-foolish, here are some of the thoughts worth perusing in travelling on budgeted time with out actually rushing:

1. Plan your trip.

This doesn't mean turning yourself into a human alarm clock. But it does mean not wasting hours in a Paris hotel room arguing whether to go to Madame Tussaud's Waxworks or the shrine of St. Anne de Beaupre in Quebec the first time you're in France.

Prior to your trip, there will be many casual and less expensive hours for reading up and researching agreement as to what you want to do where you're going.

2. Consider overnight flights during which you will travel.

For example, transcontinental flights are overnight, which is supposed to work out just dandy because you arrive fresh and bright and early in the morning. Well, it's bright and early for Londoners and people who can get by on three hours sleep. But are you, perhaps, the type that will have to fall into a hot bath and sleep for an hour after sleeping off the trip?

The honest, before-daytime flight or, if none is available, plan to sleep on the plane so you won't spend the rest of your trip catching up on sleep.

3. Give some careful thought to what should be bestowed on the hours you'll be transported between stops on your itinerary.

Make your move is part of your sightseeing. Use a car or bus or train trip across the mountains, one of the most wasteful, no entire day by going between Paris and Montreal by overnight train. Use the entire morning packing and getting in a matter of seconds for the afternoon getting in from the airport into your hotel in Paris.

Travelling early in the morning or late in the evening, it's amazing how much seemingly time-consuming chores get done con-

THANKSGIVING 1960

The UN through its agencies is valiantly struggling to take up the slack by providing milk for the Indian kids in the Congo, to send technicians to find doctors and nurses. On the other side of the coin is the unhappy fact that one country is unilaterally arming itself with guns, bullets and submarines. Both facts are real. Is it maudlin to give thanks for the realism of all this? I hope not and it is naïve to make up the mind-set that in the U. S. or in C. or in E. or in Mr. Anybody is to be allowed to destroy that which we have so little about to mouth the thunder? The infamous Hiroshima bomb of fourteen kilos is the bigger the H.E and the more often it is claimed to, the sooner we would accept it as sheep in mass. Maybe the truth is told over and over and again too and possibly men would realize that there are the things being destroyed, these are the hopes of mankind. Thanksgiving 1960 could be the world-wide decision that the agencies of the UN are more important than the intrigues of conscienceless politicians.

If "the truth shall make you free" then the press, the radio and the TV should provide from the housetops and in the market places of the world "these are the things the UN agencies are doing and stand for." In a world hungry and sick and over-fed and fat, a crusade of publicity is a must! Let these things we stand for toss ill they are buried beneath the garbage of recrimination, lies and greed. I and I cannot understand why, the truth is not hurled in our faces to arouse people everywhere as to what is really at stake. It is absurd to believe that the ideal can be accomplished, but it is equally suicide to believe a horrible price to be paid if men east or west can arrive at a distract us from what is both real and more hopeful than any intentions which have ever been conceived by man. This is T and this is the crowd.

Stories of Famous Hymns

By HORACE B. POWELL

Tucked away in Psalms 139:18, Bible lovers comment: "When I awake, I am still with Thee".

Harriet Beecher Stowe, famous American hymnist and writer, loved that Bible verse so well that one day she made it the theme of her popular devotional hymn, "Still, Still With Thee". The hymn was first introduced to the public in 1855 when Henry Ward Beecher included several of his sister's contributions in the "Plymouth Collection" which he then was editing. Two years later when Mrs. Stowe published a collection of her own, entitled "Religious Poems," "Still, Still With Thee" had a prominent place in that volume, too.

America has had few families as outstanding as the Beechers. Harriet was born in Litchfield, Connecticut on June 14, 1811. She was the daughter of the distinguished clergyman, Dr. Lyman Beecher. Her mother, who died when Harriet was only three years old, expressed in Bible terms the hope of a song might become Christian ministers like the father. Three fulfilled her wish and one of the six, Henry Ward Beecher, became known as one of America's great orators.

Even as a little girl, Harriet revealed the deep spiritual nature which, in later life, produced her hymn of consecration. When she was only 14, one of her brothers remembered her one Sunday that she repeatedly said over her little hymn and there, to Christ. We have no record of what so impressed her one Sunday that she retreated to pray

Sport Slices...

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CRAVER, Sports Editor

The boys of the razor-blade spectacular have at each other again this afternoon in that great big Yankee backyard that nestles snugly in the steel and stone of Gotham's Bronx . . . And a fig for Mr. Pitts, Mr. O'Meara, Mister Morosz, and the rest of the camp followers who troll Casey's Cavalry . . . We've tossed our laundry into the camp of the Jelly Rogers wearing the uniforms of the Pittsburgh Pirates—and there it shall remain until the skull and crossbones flutters over awesome Yankee Stadium . . . Vinegar Mizell and Whitey Ford green forkballs Sniglets this afternoon. There's probably at it right now unless the Bucs have sent Whitey to the garage for repairs. Or perhaps the Vinegar has been spiked. Let's be fair about the matter.

Should be a great weekend for sports buffs. There's the world "serious" today, tomorrow and Monday . . . For football addicts Montreal is at Ottawa today and on Monday Argos are guests of the Hamilton Tiger-Cats and the Rough Riders trek to Montreal . . . Hockey fans can tune in for the Toronto Maple Leafs-New York Rangers game tonight which opens the season with a flourish. Conn Smythe perhaps is developing a Bill Veeck touch for the opening "doing" sees the Highlanders Band hip-swinging around the ice while Lieut. Governor Keiller Mackay will face off the first puck.

And don't forget the "Juniors '47" vs. "Juniors '56" exhibition tilt at the CNRA Park tomorrow afternoon, starting four o'clock. Should be a real good one and should prove whether those young oldtimers can come back. Bobby Strachan and his "Juniors of 1942" claim they can give the class Kenmore's run for the money. Don't miss it! They're singing around eastern pro circles now "Where oh Where' Has Lamirande Gone?" The former McFarlands' defenceman could not come to terms with the Windsor Bulldogs when he coached last season, and the word had it he was going to Clinton. Next Lamirande showed up as a player tryout with the Kingston Frontenacs but a day or so ago Wren Blair announced Lammy was out from the club and probably would go with another team. He'll probably show up in Clinton, although Irwin Gross of the Windsor Bulldogs claimed he has been hired as player coach of the Comets . . . It was announced today that "Tags" Raglan has been named playing coach of the Windsor Bulldogs . . . Over 30 attended the OHA Referees' Forum here the other night and found it interesting and beneficial. They saw a film that was educational and colorful. OHA referee-in-chief, Pat Patterson, chaired the meeting . . . With the weather reaching the doubtful stage there will be Go-Karting action at the Thamesville Speedway Parkland on holidays and Sundays only from here in.

WHAT NEXT DEPT. — "Jolly John" Adams, veteran mentor of the Detroit Red Wings, took a young Detroit pianist, Mike Quatro on the Wings western tour just so his wizardry would entertain the boys . . . Rocket Richard, weighing close to 220, will do a lot of radio and television work around Montreal this winter . . . Ted Lindsay now has his own television show in Windsor, a 15-minute deal prior to each Saturday night game . . . Cesare Maniago proved better than was necessary for Sudbury as the Lief management sent him to the Vancouver Canucks of the Western Hockey League . . . The hockey figure fiberts figure 400 boys and 30 years of age could be trying out for the 140 positions open on the seven junior "A" clubs in Ontario.

No 'Kidding' In Ottawa Says Officials

OTTAWA (CP) — The Ottawa football club has set up an elaborate defence—snow fences, city police, and private guards — to prevent a recurrence of the dazzling offence displayed last week by children who ran guards ragged in the Saskatchewan Park end zone during the game.

Officials decided to beef up the line following a warning from the Big Four eastern commissioner Hap Shoolbrice that he would not hesitate to forfeit the game to the visiting team if youngsters were allowed to interfere with play on the field as they did during the Hamilton-Ottawa game.

Commissioner G. Sydney Halter of the Canadian Football League will be on hand.

Restrictions have also been introduced to keep fans in their proper seats. Any person found roaming around the stands without a ticket stub will be removed from the park. Persons leaving the stadium for any reason during the game or at half time will be issued a passout ticket that must be surrendered on re-entry.

The extra police and guard protection will be concentrated in the south end of the field and surrounding the grandstand where most of the disorder has occurre din past games.

RAGLAN NAMED COACH

WINDSOR (CP) — Windsor Bulldogs announced the appointment Friday of Clare (Tags) Raglan as playing-coach of the OHA senior club for the 1960-61 season.

Raglan, a 33-year-old seasoned defence performer, comes to Windsor from Washington of the Eastern U.S. amateur league. Raglan played nine years in professional ranks, seeing brief service with Detroit and Chicago in the NHL along the way, before reverting to amateur ranks with Kingston in the OHA two years ago.

Ford, Mizell Were Starters

By JOE REICHLER

NEW YORK (AP) — Because Bob Friend, Pittsburgh's crafty left-handed pull hitter, probably will miss all three games at Yankee Stadium through a thumb injury.

Because the Pirates are unfamiliar with the treacherous curvicues of the park in which the Yankees won 55 of 77 games during the regular season . . .

Because Pittsburgh captain and shortstop Dick Groat's left wrist, fractured last month, still bothers him . . .

Because the National League champions may not yet have fully recovered from the 16-3 drubbing they took in the second game at Forbes Field Thursday . . .

YANKS 9-TO-5 FAVORITES

The Yankees ruled a strong 9-to-5 favorite today to capture the world series despite the fact the clubs are all square with one victory apiece.

With fair weather predicted, a crowd of approx 70,000 was assured for today's third game which features a southpaw battle between Whitey Ford, 32-year-old Yankee veteran, and Wilmer (Vinegar Bend) Mizell, 26-year-old Pirate pickup from St. Louis Cardinals.

The fans were to get an added treat as the illustrious Ted Williams, perhaps baseball's greatest hitter, has been designated to throw out the first ball.

Ford brought only a fair 12-9 season record, his poorest mark in years, into the game but not to be discounted is his world series experience which comprises 12 starts, including five victories and four defeats. In contrast, Mizell, who won 13 of his 18 games after the Pirates got him in a trade with St. Louis, had never seen the inside of Yankee Stadium until Thursday's workout.

WILL MISS SKINNER

The Pirates figure to miss Skinner's bat dearly although he didn't figure to play today because of the left-handed opposition. But Bob probably would have played Sunday and Monday, in the fourth and fifth games, were he healthy.

"It would be a miracle if I get to play here," he said sadly as he watched his teammates take batting practice. "I can't hold a bat. The pain shoots through my hand when I try to use pressure. I hope to get in there before this is over but I have no idea when I'll be ready."

Skinner jammed his left thumb sliding into third in the opening game last Wednesday and was not in uniform the next day.

Glen Gilmoll, who subbed for him Thursday, is the left fielder again and he may be in there every game hereafter. The right-hand-hitting Cimoll, while a better defensive outfielder, does not rate with Skinner at the plate. Skinner hit 15 homers this past season to none for Glen.

With Ford pitching, Dick Stuart replaced Rocky Nelson at first and Hal Smith went behind the plate in place of Smoky Burgess. The rest of the Pirate lineup was the same, including Groat although the shortstop still complained of some pain, especially when fielding a ball to his left. Third baseman Don Hoak, playing despite a groin injury, reported he was feeling much better.

Casey Stengel, Yankee manager, came up with his third straight starting pitcher. He said he would start Bob Cerv in left field and bat him second, behind leader Mickey Mantle. MacDougall-Tony Kubek, who rapped three hits in each of the first two games, was to bat seventh.

Elston Howard was slated to catch his second straight game and for the second time in the 10 world series that Stengel has managed the club, Yogi Berri was scheduled to be on the bench.

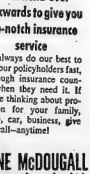
Thursday's ons - sided contest notwithstanding, Stengel lost none of his respect for the Pirates.

"They're pretty good hitters and they've still got that fine pitching and they don't scare nobody," he said, "Just from all the reports we have they bounce back pretty good. It's still anybody's series."

Danny Murtaugh, the quiet-spoken Pittsburgh manager, was far from downhearted.

"This isn't a club that will drop dead from one defeat," he said. "We don't choke up. All season long what we did or didn't do didn't affect us the next day."

World Series Gold-Getter



NEW YORK (AP)—Frank Crosetti, New York Yankees' third base coach, has earned more money of any participant in the world series.

Crosetti Is in his 19th series. He was in eight as a Yankee player and 11 as coach. He has collected a total of $111,114 and will get another full share when the official split for the 1960 series is announced later.

Yankee manager Casey Stengel has piled up $72,209.12 in nine seasons as a pilot and three as a player. Of the current active Yankees the man is catcher Yogi Berra, in his 11th series. He has collected $56,621.17.

'Red' Schoendienst Leaves Braves

Remove Bone From Birds

BALTIMORE (AP) — Baltimore Orioles outfielders Jackie Brandt and Gene Stephens checked out of Union Memorial Hospital here Friday, four days after each underwent surgery.

Brandt had a bone chip removed from between the thumb and forefinger of his right hand. Stephens had a small piece of bone removed from his right wrist.

Junior Practice Is Postponed

The practice for the Belleville Junior B hockey club called for 3-4 p.m. Sunday has been postponed until Tuesday Oct. 11 at 3.30 p.m.

Any youngster of junior age wishing to try out for the club will be welcome.

MILWAUKEE (AP)—One of baseball's most successful businessman Albert (Red) Schoendienst, who led the Milwaukee Braves to championships the two seasons he was available for full duty, was given his unconditional release Friday.

His outright freedom was Red's own choice. He turned down an offered job in the Braves' organization.

The great redhead wants to play.

Red strikes out on his own at 37 in his continuing campaign to defy the effects of a bout with tuberculosis two years ago. Fourteen of the years have been devoted to baseball. And for 15 of these years he's been an established star in the majors, playing nearly all the time with the St. Louis Cardinals.

Red's release was announced by Milwaukee general manager John McHale, who said, "Red has decided that he can still help some major league club and we will enable him to look around for another affiliation."

STILL HOPEFUL

Reached at his home in St. Louis, Schoendienst said, "I feel I can latch on with somebody. I haven't talked with anybody yet." He wouldn't say whether he had a particular club in mind.

"I'm not trying to fool myself about being able to play," Red said. "Players or other clubs say they were surprised I didn't play more this year." He added he thought Milwaukee should have won the National League pennant.

When he did play regularly, in 1957 and 1958 the Braves did win the title. And in 1957 Milwaukee went on to beat the New York Yankees in the world series. The Yankees took the world championship back from the Braves a year later.

It was right after the '58 series that Red was knocked off his feet by tuberculosis. The infection was discovered in a routine, season-end physical. The following winter he underwent surgery for removal of a portion of one lung. He was forced out of action until late in the 1959 season.

Schoendienst's name appears throughout baseball record books. Among others he set the standard for second baseman by accepting 320 chances without an error. This was set in 1956.

Saying last week that he didn't expect to be a Brave in 1961, Schoendienst said, "I'll still be able to help somebody. But it won't be Milwaukee. I guess I can't help the Braves any more."

Blues Win College Golf

KINGSTON CP—The University of Toronto Varsity swept individual and team honors in the Canadian Intercollegiate Athletic Union and Ontario-Quebec Athletic Association golf championship at the Cataraqui Golf and Country Club.

A second-year medical student, Hugh Paterson of Toronto, won the individual title and paced his team to the over-all honors.

He shot 73-76-148 for 36 holes to edge three strokes up on Remi Lefebvre of the University of Montreal.

The Toronto team had an aggregate score of 315-304-619 to win that title. Defending champion Western has second with a 313-306-619.

Members of the winning team were Paterson, Norm Gilchrist, Dick Hamilton and Bill McNaughton.

Schoendienst said, "I'll still be able to help somebody. But it won't be Milwaukee. I guess I can't help the Braves any more."

Blast Tigers In Last Quarter

Rote, Shatto Snatch Win for Argos

By WILF GIBSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP)—The searing 7-3. Falcony passed to Gerry McDougall on a 69-yard pass-and-run play for another touchdown with less than a minute to play in the third quarter. McDougall converted both touchdowns.

The last-place Tiger-Cats, Big Four champions the last three seasons and now fighting desperately for a playoff berth with only two wins in 10 games, appeared to have taken control after their second touchdown. They marched 103 yards for that score after making a great goal-line stand to stop an Argo scoring bid. Their defensive team was great then and a few minutes earlier when they held Argos out on the Hamilton one.

The Argos, however, never gave up and Rote, who is leaving no doubt he's replacing Sam (The Rifle) Etcheverry as the king of the passers in Canadian football, rallied them to their third straight victory and their eighth in 10 games for a four-point lead over the second-place Ottawa Rough Riders.

The 206-pound Rote guided the Argos 72 yards for their first touchdown in nine plays, completing seven of eight passes in the drive and firing the final one from the Tiger-Cat 20 to Shatto who took the ball at the 13 and dicked Harry Lunn and George Scott to race over the goalline.

HAMILTON LEAD CUT

The touchdown came at the 7:31 mark of the fourth quarter and cut Hamilton's lead to 14-10. Rote went to work again from the Argo 33 and connected on four of five passes for another touchdown at 11:47 in a 97-yard, seven-play drive. From the Hamilton 10-yard line he found Shatto in the clear with the payoff fling. Rote, rushed hard in the first half, completed only five of 15 passes but he got better protection in the last two quarters and connected with 19 completions in 31 attempts for 227 of the 262 yards Argos gained in the air. Nobby Wirkowski, who went in for the final play, completed another pass. They picked up 116 yards along the ground, Shatto getting a lot of the work with 19 carries for 73 yards.

Falcony gained 229 yards passing in 12 of 24 attempts and along the ground the Tiger-Cats could add only 86 yards. Argos also had the edge in first downs with 21, five more than Hamilton.

Falcony was the passing and receiving combination of quarterback Tobin Rote and halfback Dick Shatto in fast becoming the most awesome scoring punch in the Big Four Football League.

These two Toronto Argonauts stars got together Friday night for the second game in a row to lead the first-place Argos from what appeared to be defeat to a 24-14 victory over Hamilton Tiger-Cats.

The pair blew the bruising, hard-hitting game wide open in less than five minutes in the fourth quarter with the Argos down 14-3 and the crowd of 37,-494 despairing of their chances.

Rote the 10-year veteran of the National Football League, passed to Shatto for two touchdowns in a dazzling aerial attack that has been the Argos' trade mark all season.

SHATTO IS THE TARGET

The two touchdown passes were the eighth and ninth thrown by Rote in the last two games and they have been to Shatto, the workhorse of the Argos now in his seventh season with the club. Rote now has tossed a total of 19 touchdown passes and the strong - armed, smart - thinking quarterback has switched to Shatto as his favorite target.

Dave Mann had that role when Rote rang up five straight wins from the opening game. But with Mann out cleats now double-teaming Mann to reduce his effectiveness, the 32-year-old Rote has turned to Shatto.

Shatto's two touchdowns against the Ti-Cats put the Argos ahead 17-14 and defensive halfback Bob Dandridge added a clinching touchdown with less than two minutes to play by racing 37 yards for a score on an interception to a pass thrown by Hamilton quarterback Kerry Falconey.

Cookie Gilchrist, the top ground-gainer with 86 yards in 11 carries, converted all three touchdowns and in the first quarter kicked a 23-yard field goal that gave Argos a 3-0 lead.

It stood up until nearly the 10-minute mark of the second quarter when Falconey crashed over from one yard out to top off a drive of 56 yards for a touchdown that sent Hamilton ahead

Prexy Warns Grid Players

LONDON, Ont (CP)—R. Gordon Gilbride, president of the Ontario Rugby Football Union, Friday told players in the senior OHFU loop to stop fighting and taking back to referees.

On several occasions in recent games brawls have been narrowly avoided, and on Sunday at Port Huron during the game between Raiders and London Lords, back Kotoff was ejected for arguing a call.

Mr. Gilbride said instructions will be read to players before the start of Saturday's game, London at Sarnia, and Tuesday's game, Port Huron-Detroit Rakers at London.

only one defensive captain and one offensive captain on each team, to be identified before the game, will be allowed to have anything to say to the referees.

Anyone else talking back not only will be discharged from the game, but will draw a ten-yard penalty against his team. This applies to the coach, unless he is designated as captain.

A player engaged in unsporting action or starting an exchange of blows will be thrown out of the game and fined $25.

Any player who has been singled out previously this season for unsporting conduct before the public may also be subject to dismissal from the league for the rest of the year.

Fireman, 69 First In Line

NEW YORK (AP)—A 69-year-old retired fireman from Auburn, N.Y., was first in line as baseball fans queued up Friday for a 24-hour wait for the third world series game.

Charles W. Kierat was to get first shot at the 14,000 bleacher seats which will be thrown open for sale at 8 a.m. (EDT) today.

"I like to be the first or somewhere near the first in anything I do," Kierat said. He took his position shortly after daybreak Friday.

Leafs, Rangers Play Tonight

Habs, Bruins Meet Twice

By ROGER TETREAULT
Canadian Press Staff Writer

By Sunday night, hockey fans will have a better idea of how their teams stack up against the rest of the league.

After two games tonight and three Sunday, all teams will have played three games.

Hockey people have, as usual, predicted that the defending champion Montreal Canadiens will be the team to beat, but they contend the Habs will face much tougher opposition this year.

However, the Canadiens look as if they're out to make it a runaway again.

In their opener with Toronto Maple Leafs Thursday, the Habs pasted in five unanswered goals to start the season as they ended the last, winning 5-1.

Coach Hector (Toe) Blake wasn't too enthusiastic after that game. "I hate these easy victories," he said. Not many other coaches can say that.

The Canadiens play host to Boston Bruins tonight and travel to Boston for the second encounter Sunday.

The Leafs and New York Rangers, who meet in Toronto tonight, both have left wing trouble.

Left wing Dean Prentice and centre Camille Henry are missing from the Rangers. Prentice, last season's top New York scorer, is out with an injury and so is Henry.

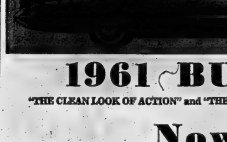
Leafs' left wing Dick Duff also doesn't agree to salary terms offered by his bosses. Bob Pulford, who has been playing centre for two years, will move to his old left wing spot to fill in for Duff. We'll team up with Billy Harris at centre and Gerry Ehman at right.

Rookie Dave Keon will take Pulford's regular spot between wingers Bert Olmstead and Ron Stewart.

Rangers report that Lorne (Gump) Worsley will be in goal, making Jack McCartan a highly paid sub-goalie. McCartan was goalie for the U.S. Olympic gold medal hockey team last year. In four games with the Rangers last year he compiled a healthy 1.75 average.

A scoring find is forward Len Ronson who got his first NHL goal — a game winner against Boston Wednesday. Ronson had been the leading goal scorer with 62 with Fort Wayne, in the International Hockey League.

Boston Bruins have three new faces in the lineup—18-year-old defenseman Dallas Green, and forwards Billy Carter and Orval Tessier.



With Kingston Frontenacs of the Eastern Professional Hockey League last year, Tessier scored a record 59 goals and 67 assists for 187 points.

Other Sunday games will see Toronto at Detroit Red Wings, and the Rangers at Chicago.

How Did They Look? Major Question of Second Debate

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—The major question about the Kennedy-Nixon debate No. 2 appears to be not "What did they say?" but "How did he look?"

"He" being Vice - President Richard Nixon, who appeared pale and peaked in his first TV encounter with Senator John Kennedy.

Friday night his makeup and lighting experts did better by the Republican candidate. The lines and shadows were obliterated, and the Nixon face came through with a more stress looking normal, though slightly whitened on the forehead.

Kennedy looked as before—ruddy and boyish.

SETTING IS BETTER

The setting was slightly improved. Most of the hour consisted of close shots of heads against a plain background. The two candidates stood in what resembled the defendant's dock in movies of French trials.

Only occasionally was the drama of the confrontation pointed up. That came in side views that showed one candidate speaking while the other waited impatiently to rebut.

Kennedy was especially eager to get into action, his body swaying back and forth as he awaited his turn.

While generally aggressive, Nixon also appeared to be perspiring freely under the TV lights. He daubed his mouth with his handkerchief seven times. Kennedy didn't seem to be bothered by the lights at all, although before the performance he complained too many lights were directed at him and asked that one be cut off.

APPEARS CALMER

Nixon appeared calmer, seldom lifting one of his folded hands. Kennedy kept his right hand busy, chopping and punching for emphasis.

Nixon spoke directly into the camera; Kennedy often replied to questioners.

The second of the four-part series was somewhat more spirited than the first, but probably disappointed those who expected slam - bang encounters. The politeness of the candidates prohibits that, as well as the rules of the game, which they themselves decreed. By having brief answers and single "rebuttals to widely scattered questions, the men never get into much give-and-take.

AT THE BELLE — Monday Midnight—The Fabulous Twins has a starring role in the riotous comedy "High Time," a Twentieth Century-Fox, a fast-paced Color and Cinemascope release, to be presented at the Belle Theatre, Sunday Midnight after 12.05, for one showing only.

The Tracks

TORONTO (CP)—Hockey Charlie Roland, Sweet Old Chelsea, Que., and still serving his apprenticeship on the race track, scored with three of eight mounts Friday before a crowd of 6,374 at Woodbine.

Another rider who frequently wins five or six afternoons, Avelino Gomez, only had one winner but it was good enough to tie him with Bill Hartack, currently swalling the start of the 1960 congress at Hialeah Park at Camden, N.J., with 256 victories to bar.

Roland's wins came on Chilly Philip, Windsor Harvest, and on Winkiss, for owner Douglas Banks of Nashville, Ont., in the featured six-furlong race. Second race. Second was Ekabe, sent up from Chicago by owner Alle Reuben of Toledo, Ohio, expressly for the Oct. 22 running of the $50,000 added Canadian championship.

Besides his three winners, Roland had two seconds and a third.

Mustangs Trim Queen's 53-20

TORONTO (CP)—University of Toronto Blues moved into first place in Intermediate Intercollegiate Football League Friday by overpowering Queen's University's Golden Gaels 53-20.

Ben Hatzel paced the Toronto team with three touchdowns before leaving the game in the third quarter with a possible dislocated shoulder.

TRACK STAR BARRED

KASSEL, Germany (AP)—Martin Lauer, Germany's 110-meter hurdle record holder, was temporarily barred Friday from all foreign competition. Dr. Max Danz, president of the West German track and field association said Lauer also would be barred until the association's board meeting Dec. 29, ruled on allegations that Lauer made insulting remarks about the Rome Olympics management. If the allegations prove true, Danz said Lauer would be kicked out of the track and field association.

Shriners Pay Novel Premium

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — A British insurance firm has more confidence than its American competitors that the Navy and Southern Methodist football teams will "show up for their game in the Shriners' Oyster Bowl game Saturday.

"I contacted all lloyds of American firms but nobody wanted to handle it, so I gave it to Lloyds of London", said Melvin Blassingham, Oyster Bowl chairman.

Blassingham said the Shriners paid a $1,000 premium to buy $125,000 insurance that both teams appear in the stadium.

HUNDRED-PROOF WINS

YONKERS, N.Y. (CP) — Hundred Proof, owned by the Van Tat Stable of Ridgewood, N.J., and driven by Stanley Dancer won the featured Rotterdam pace at Yonkers raceway Friday night. Time for the mile was 2:02. Hundred Proof returned $12.70, $6.00 and $4.00.

Indians Trim Quebec 10-1; Bisons Beaten

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Springfield Indians, last of the American Hockey League clubs to swing into action, have served notice early that they'll be mighty tough to dethrone as league and Calder Cup champions.

The Indians, with Jimmy Anderson scoring three goals, walloped Quebec Aces 10-1 in one of three games played Friday night. Rochester beat Buffalo 7-1 and Cleveland Barons downed Providence Reds 5-1 in the other games.

Springfield scored six times in the first period and added two in each of the other two sessions. Goalie Marcel Paille missed his shutout when Maurli Morrissette tallied for the Aces at 13:41 of the final period.

Bill Sweeney connected twice for the Indians. Other scorers were Brian Kilrea, Billy McCreary, Gerry Foley, Bruce Cline and Ian Cushenan.

The Americans also struck quickly, scoring four times in the first period. Stan Smrke, the league's leading goal scorer last season, and Hank Ciesla paced the Americans with two goals each.

Adding to the Rochester total were Pat Hannigan, Wally Boyer and Gus Kyle. Phil Maloney scored the lone Buffalo goal.

Ronnie Ashwell racked up two goals in leading the Barons to their second triumph in three games to top the league. Wayne Larkin fired the other marker. Rookie George Ranieri scored for Providence.

Marlins May Move North

NEW YORK (AP) — Miami Marlins are considering moving their baseball franchise to either Syracuse, N.Y., or Portsmouth, Va., general manager Lee Ryan said at the International League meeting Friday.

Ryan added, however, that if Marlins get "proper" support in Miami, they will remain there.

Leroy Caffens of Ava, Ont., announced he had taken an option on the purchase of Montreal Royals, Los Angeles Dodgers recently announced they would not operate the Montreal franchise next year.

Lords Sign Billy Graham

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Billy Graham, former Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchman star, will be one of two new backs in the London Lords lineup when they meet Sarnia Golden Bears tonight in Sarnia.

The other is import Mike Hagler, brought in from Ottawa Rough Riders.

Graham, holder of the Senior Ontario Rugby Football Union scoring record, has played the past three seasons with Hamilton Tiger Cats of the Big Four.

Hagler formerly played with the University of Iowa and in 1958 lined up with Regina Roughriders of the WIFU. Last year he played semi-pro football in the United States, and this season played three games with Ottawa.

SLIM CROWDS FOR FLOYD

BERLIN (AP)—World heavyweight champion Floyd Patterson attracted only a handful of paying fans when he performed Friday night at the West Berlin Sports Palace on his European exhibition tour. There were no more than 300 spectators in the capacious hall that seats 9,000. In four West German towns where Patterson appeared during the trip calling to Berlin there was the same reluctance to pay for the exhibition.

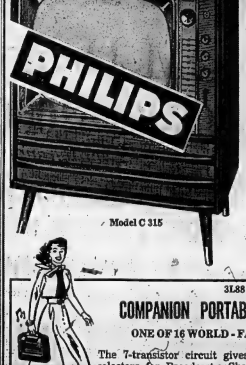
TIPS



by JOHN WETTELAUER

Venetian blinds serve a useful purpose on windows, but when you get them on your TV screen they are extremely annoying.

This venetian blind effect is technically known as "co-channel interference" and is caused by two stations coming in on the same channel. When two stations share the same frequency, only the closer of the two is normally received, but under certain atmospheric conditions the distant one comes in as well and causes "venetion blinds" on the screen.

To minimize this type of interference you must have a good antenna and rotor which will help to bring in the station you want and reject all others. CIRCLE TV SERVICE, 360 Coleman St., know from experience the most effective type of aerial installation for maximum performance in this area. Perhaps they can improve YOUR reception. Phone WO 8-5791 and talk it over.

Brothers See Each Other For First Time

HAMILTON (CP)—Two teenage brothers sat in a house here Wednesday night happily watching television.

Their lives had been spent on opposite sides of the Iron Curtain and Romas and Victor Vinerskis had been seeking each other for the first time.

And 16-year-old Romas was back in the lives of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Vincas Vinerskis, who had last seen him when he was only nine months old.

In 1944 Mr. and Mrs. Vinerskis left the village of Karkleoal shead of the Russian troops. Their ailing nine-months-old baby, Romas, remained with relatives in Lithuania.

In 1949, Mr. and Mrs. Vinerskis emigrated from West Germany to Canada with their second son, Victor, who had been born four years earlier.

After becoming Canadian citizens five years ago, Mr. and Mrs. Vinerskis asked the local immigration office to see if there was any way they could get Romas out of Lithuania, now part of the Soviet Union.

Months turned to years . . . then about two months ago, the telephone rang at the family's Hamilton home.

An immigration officer asked: "Do you still want your son?"

Mr. Vinerskis gasped into the phone: "Sure I want him."

Wednesday night an airliner landed from Montreal with Romas Vinerskis aboard.

British Woman Will Not Sell Her Formula

MONTREAL (CP)—Mrs. Julia Owen, British woman who claims she can cure arthritis with bee venom, said Thursday night that Canadian arthritics will have to get her in charge of an apiary to raise bee special bees in Canada.

She said she turned down the offer.

"I have never heard of such impudence," she said. "All they were interested in was making money."

She said the men, whom she declined to identify, travelled 700 miles to Montreal to make the offer.

"They wanted me to take complete charge of an apiary and train them in the feeding of bees and the treatment of arthritis.

"Have you ever heard of such a thing?

"It takes years of study before one can apply this kind of treatment."

Mrs. Owen, 53, is in Montreal to promote bee venom as a cure for arthritis. She plans to leave for Toronto in a few days.

She said three doctors have spoken to her and are interested in learning more about her special treatment for arthritic sufferers.

"Of course," she said, "they're not interested in my ideas because of its benefit to mankind. They are only interested because members of their family suffer from arthritis."

"Just a Second"

"Men make me tired."

"You shouldn't spend so much time running after them."

Astrological Forecast

BY CARROLL RICHTER

Tuesday, October 11

General Tendencies: You are all stirred up to put your ideas across and can certainly do so now unless you do get emotional, then you can miss out on many very profitable favors which can be yours, if you operate in an objective and impersonal fashion. Think out ways to merchandise products, too. Make purchases of commodities.

Aries (March 21 to April 19) — You can get home affairs in a function far more efficiently and harmoniously now by some quick though radical change. Also, buy the items that will mean ease around the home, not gew gaws. P.M. be happy and full of fun.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) — A fine day for small purchases, since you can find the right items easily and quickly now. Do not become impatient over days or crowds, or there will be danger for you. Courtesy and gentility will see you through nicely.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) — Make your last touches and home affairs are running smoothly today. Also, start to make improvements necessary. Also, by giving colleagues some constructive ideas, you gain their respect and will reciprocal favors.

Moon Children (June 22 to July 21) Take advantage of that enthusiasm to get ahead today without getting involved in any conflict to deter your activities. You can get those items if you play it cool, too. P.M. go out socially with comrade or many friends.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21) — A fine day to prepare for changes those persons who can release the data you require. Also, have any fine suggestions proposed. Evening is then ideal for romance. Investments are favored, too.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 23) — Get the assistance of one who gets quick results in order to achieve on your behalf. Also, think in terms of helping associates, too, so that there is mutual co-operation and support. Don't hesitate.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 23) — Important you are very clever today in your dealings and contacts at affairs. The best results are achieved when you can do more money with higher-ups and show your gratitude.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) — Endeavor to clear up odds and ends today so that you can settle into new outlets and interesting opportunities that are available to you right now. Do not be afraid of what is modern and resenting this condition.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) — The ideal day to go to work, making out reports, etc. that will clarify any existing business as well as to plan highways to help your ability and good sense. Be thorough and accurate in every needed good will.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) — You can make real progress now by going along with associates who like to get things done and acts in a most positive manner. However, do not become impatient if he, or she works at slower speed than you would like. Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) — Pitch right in early and get your duties out of the way as quickly and efficiently, despite the fact that others, or fellow workers may think you are too much the impersonal. Pay attention to nobody or anything.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) — You can handle most any desire to enjoy yourself today, provided you early get most important duties out of the way. However, do not jeopardize security you now have for any foolish or extravagant. Learn to economize.

If your child is born today . . . he, he, or she will possess a sense and highly aesthetic ability for the arts. You should encourage it your child to specialize in both of these fields through proper educational programs. Also, interest your child early in what-ever is to modern and up-to-date, since the tendency is to delve into the antiquities of the one himself or herself in the things of the past.

Bank of Canada Interest Rate Rises Sharply

OTTAWA (CP)—The Bank of Canada interest rate increased sharply Friday to 2.45 per cent from 1.96 per cent last week with the sale of $25,500,000 in 91-day treasury bills.

The increase of one-half percentage point was a sharp reversal in the downward trend of the last three months. The bank rate is generally considered an indication of conditions in the short-term money market.

The rate, minimum charge by the central bank on its infrequent loans to chartered banks, is set at one-quarter of one per cent above the average yield on the weekly sale of 91 - day treasury bills.

Friday's bank rate compares with the record high of 6.61 per cent on Aug. 13 last year and the record low of 1.12 per cent on July 31, 1958.

Sunday School Lesson

Save Your Sense of Wonder

By ROY L. SMITH

The sophisticate suffers an irreparable loss when he loses his sense of wonder.

The ability to stand in awe in the presence of beauty, majesty or power sets a man apart from all the rest of creation. The creatures are endowed with the rudiments of love, they exhibit emotions in one form or another, and they have the ability to overcome some obstacles. But no one ever saw a dumb brute standing in the Grand Canyon in the image of God can do that! It is a priceless endowment that should never be surrendered or despoiled.

The Psalm which furnishes the scripture for this lesson was designed to be sung antiphonally on one of the great festive occasions of the Hebrews.

The Psalm opens with a shrilling doxology which dyspathies the glory of God, sung by a richly robed host as it approaches the closed gates of the Jerusalem Temple. Having arrived at the gate, a soloist sings a liturgical question. "Lord, who second the hill of the Lord?" That is to say, "Who is fit to enter the sacred precincts of the Temple and stand in the presence of a God so majestic as Jehovah?"

The Uniform Sunday School lesson for October 9: "THE ADORATION OF GOD," Psalm 24; Ephesians 3: 14-21.

It is impossible to ask who is able to qualify as an acceptable worshipper of God in a high-minded, reverent mood. The issues are far too serious for that. And it must be said that the modern church worshipper who enters the sanctuary on the Lord's morning, his chief interest being in a whispered exchange of gossip before the sermon begins, is somehow lacking in the first requirement of the worshipper.

Now comes the answer from the closed gates of the Temple, as a choir — probably composed of a body of priests — reply. "He that hath clean hands and a pure heart," God.

Give Underside Of Fan Belt A Good Check

By EUGENE S. MILMOE

Besides cooling system trouble and noise (which most drivers are familiar with), low battery and sluggish car performance can also result when the fan belt requires attention. A slipping belt will hurt generator output, affect acceleration because the spark is weakened and cause a rundown battery.

But looseness and excessive tightness are not the only fan belt conditions to watch for. There are several possible causes why a belt may need replacement and you can easily check for them yourself. To do so, examine the underside of the fan belt. Look for fraying, burning, glazing, cracking, splitting, tearing, grease or oil.

If any one of these conditions is evident, don't hesitate to have the belt replaced. It's a small, yet important investment.

From C. S.: "Does the distributor type of gap adjustment tend to grow wider or narrower with engine use? And how is precise timing affected?"

(A) The gap is gradually reduced and this tends to retard ignition timing.

J.O.H. writes: "I own a '59 model which just had some work—plugs cleaned and set, carburetor adjusted, new points installed. Performance has definitely improved except that the engine usually stalls when I brake suddenly to slow down."

(A) If the carburetor idle mixtures was adjusted too rich, it will cause this action.

R. L. asks: "Lately, I can hear a clanking noise when I step down on the accelerator to get away quickly, and also when I release the gas pedal to slow down. It's a 54 sedan."

(A) This sounds much like universal joint trouble. Your service station can check this out quickly enough.

From P.T.: "I've had the water pump, generator, fan and belt, fuel pump and carburetor examined, but whatever is causing the whistling noise when my engine runs can't seem to be located."

(A) Have your serviceman check the intake manifold connection. Loose mounting bolts may be the reason for this whistle — and for less than peak engine performance.

HARKNESS NAMED DEFENCE MINISTER

Miner Strangles Five of Family, Then Hangs Self

Was to Have Been Taken To Mental Hospital

KIRKLAND LAKE (CP) — An unemployed miner who was to have been committed today to a mental hospital hanged himself Monday after strangling his wife and four children.

Police said the children, Elaine, 16, and Kenny, 17, were visiting friends about a mile from the home.

Ernest Smith of Kirkland Lake, 37, and eldest children Beverly, 5, and Ricky, 3, were in a bedroom of the four-room home. Elmer Hill was found in bed, the other on top. All had ropes around their necks.

The older daughter, Shirley, was in hospital in critical condition with head wounds. She was found by hunters about a mile from the home. They are not expected to die.

Police said they believe the father used a hammer to kill Shirley. The wounds required 60 stitches.

Police said they believe the father used a hammer to kill Shirley. The wounds required 60 stitches.

ADVISED COMMITTAL

Police believe the mother was the first to die. It was on Mrs. Eells' request that her husband was examined by four Kirkland Lake doctors who advised that he be committed to a mental hospital. He was taken Monday morning to Timmins for observation in North Bay.

Friends of the family told police Smith had been "acting strangely" for about three months. He was reported losing his job at Wright-Hargreaves Gold Mine here about three weeks ago.

An inquest was ordered but no date set.

Rumor Baby Is Expected By Princess

LONDON (AP)—Fresh rumors swept high society today that Princess Margaret is having a baby early next year.

One report said the child was expected in the spring.

Another was that it was coming in February.

But some of the princess' closest friends said that if the rumors were true, Margaret and her husband, Antony Armstrong-Jones had not told them the news.

Like many other women, she may prefer to keep the news a secret until the fact became obvious.

One thing is certain, Margaret has been wearing a coat — in all of her recent public appearances.

And when she publicly visited a maternity hospital last week her dress was more matronly-looking than her usual chic models.

Parking Lights Prohibited When Car in Motion

TORONTO (CP) — Police throughout Ontario have been instructed to prosecute drivers operating improperly lighted vehicles after sunset, Attorney-General Roberts announced today.

The instructions were part of a provincial police program for the safe fall and winter driving.

Use of parking lights during the hours of dusk has become prevalent, Mr. Roberts said. He warned that drivers are breaking the law, that parking lights alone are prohibited while a vehicle is in motion and the other that headlights must be visible at least 500 feet.

Lights must be turned on from a half-hour after sunset to a half-hour before sunrise.

St. Lawrence Pilots Decide On 'Meetings'

MONTREAL (CP) — St. Lawrence river pilots today called a series of general meetings of their members which could tie up shipping on the length of the river through the St. Lawrence Seaway.

The pilots — represented by the Federation of St. Lawrence River Pilots — announced the first meetings will be held at Trois-Rivieres, 70 miles downstream, Friday and Saturday.

Such general meetings would skirt federal laws which prevent the federation from striking since the members are civil servants.

The move is the outcome of a long dispute between the pilots and the department of transport over pilotage fees and regulations. The walkout is expected to affect shipping on the seaway where navigation is hazardous more than on the river below Montreal where pilots are not a necessity.

Safety slogan: Look out for school children — especially if they are driving cars.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO (Synopsis) (CP) — The balmy weather of the last few days is being pushed steadily southward by a flow of west-or air from the Prairies. A few isolated sprinkles may occur as the leading edge of the cooler air passes, but no significant rain is expected. The Ontario weather will remain sunny Wednesday.

SUSPECT WILL BE QUESTIONED IN THIRD CASE

Now Facing Murder Charge at Timmins

TIMMINS (CP)—Brewsy Owen (Mickey) Fenner, 23-year-old carminer from Halifax, will be arraigned in court Wednesday on a charge of murder in the slashing death of redhead Kay Chouinor, 26, whose body was found near a remote bush road Saturday night.

Fenner is also charged with offering indignity to a dead body in the New Brunswick death of Toronto dress designer and model Catharine Zenes, 34. Miss Essers' decomposed body was found on a bank in the St. John River near Fredericton last week.

Timmins police said Fenner will be questioned today in connection with last year's disappearance of Dolly Woods, 16, of Kirkland Lake. Police across Ontario are checking unsolved murders and missing young women have been victims.

Detectives found the pictures of eight girls in a wallet on the dashboard of the car Fenner was driving. Two were Miss Chouinor and Miss Essers. Investigators are trying to learn the names of the others and where they are.

Fenner was arrested Oct. 5 in Kirkland Lake on a year-old truck violation and was found to be driving Miss Chouinor's red sports car. The woman had been visiting in Toronto and left September 30 for her home in New Glasgow, N.S., where she owned a dress shop.

SAYS GIVEN HIM

Fenner told police he had agreed to accompany Miss Essers home but while driving through the United States she decided to go to California instead and turned the car over to him.

Timmins police were looking for a red sports car in connection with the disappearance Oct. 4, Chief Gordon Beacock said. The disappearance of Fenner's arrest and recognized him as a man who once worked in Timmins.

Police discovered Miss Chouinor's body in a bush area a few miles northwest of here after questioning Fenner. The girl was disarrayed and a man's shirt was found near the body.

Three Youths Killed When Car Piles Into Two Heavy Trucks

THORNLOE, Ont. (CP)—Three youths were killed and two others injured which they were driving slammed into two heavy trucks near this town 40 miles south of Kirkland Lake.

Dead are Francois Boucher, 20, and his brother Maurice, 17, of Belle Vallee, 12 miles north of Timmins, and Mel Lavigueur, 19, of Englehart.

Their car was completely demolished when it bounced off two trucks driven by men from Bradford, near Toronto, as it came out of a curve at 12:40 a.m. One driver was slightly injured and one truck wrecked.

Ontario Provincial Police said it was believed the three victims, all occupants of the passenger car, were returning home from a dance in Englehart at Earlton. Their bodies were scattered over the highway with sections of the demolished automobile, and police said it was impossible to identify them until they had been examined by Francois Bourdon, coroner.

Police said the car was travelling south when it apparently crossed the path driven by John Richard, 34, of Bradford and owned by Mid's Express Limited. The car bounced into the path of a second truck driven by McKnight, 21, of Bradford.

McKnight's truck was toppled into the ditch and the driver pinned in the cab. After 1½ hours, rescuers freed him by using a hacksaw to cut away the steering column and slicing off his boots with razor blades.

He was taken to New Liskeard and district hospital, where he was described as suffering from minor injuries and shock.

UN Rejects Mobutu Demand That It Surrender Lumumba

LEOPOLDVILLE (AP) — The United Nations today refused to surrender Patrice Lumumba to the forces of Col. Joseph Mobutu.

The Congolese provisional government had demanded that the UN permit arrest of the deposed premier for unauthorized political activities.

Congolese officials had threatened a military assault on Lumumba's home if the United Nations refused to permit Lumumba's arrest by 3 p.m. today, Congo time.

That deadline passed with Lumumba still safely in UN residence, with UN and Congolese troops standing by.

The United Nations announced Lumumba was under UN protection and that he could be arrested only if his Parliamentary immunity was lifted by a vote of the Congolese Parliament.

A UN statement said political dignitaries of the central government have enjoyed protection of the UN without conditions as to where each stood in the political scene or in relation to each other."

As the deadline passed Col. Mobutu had withdrawn all but a dozen of the troops he had thrown around Lumumba's residence Monday.

Shortly after 3 p.m. Mobutu himself was conferring with UN officials in the Congo capital.

Since he was ousted as premier last month, Lumumba has been regarded as a hero by many Africans and Moroccan troops of the UN command. In the past, Congolese forces have shown no readiness to battle the UN soldiers, and the Ghanaians at least —whose government backs Lumumba's claims to the premiership—could be expected to put up stiff resistance to any attempt to arrest Lumumba.

The situation was tensed Monday night after the fiery former premier reasserted his claim to head the government in a surprise tour Sunday of local bars, escorted by Ghanaian and Moroccan soldiers.

Cries of "smart" (saviour) greeted Lumumba at many of his stopping places.

"I am taking the power," he said. "I am ready to die for it. I will not seek any foreign soldiers in the Congo."

Lumumba had 200 soldiers to throw a cordon around Lumumba's home Monday to prevent him from capitalizing on his Sunday demonstration. The UN troops were under orders not to fire on Lumumba, should defiance with UN and Congolese troops standing by.

The United Nations announced Lumumba was under UN protection and that he could be arrested only if his Parliamentary immunity was lifted by a vote of the Congolese Parliament.

A UN statement said political dignitaries of the central government have enjoyed protection of the UN without conditions as to where each stood in the political scene or in relation to each other."

As the deadline passed Col. Mobutu had withdrawn all but a dozen of the troops he had thrown around Lumumba's residence Monday.

Shortly after 3 p.m. Mobutu himself was conferring with UN officials in the Congo capital.

Since he was ousted as premier last month, Lumumba has been regarded as a hero by many Africans and Moroccan troops of the UN command. In the past, Congolese forces have shown no readiness to battle the UN soldiers, and the Ghanaians at least —whose government backs Lumumba's claims to the premiership—could be expected to put up stiff resistance to any attempt to arrest Lumumba.

The situation was tensed Monday night after the fiery former premier reasserted his claim to head the government in a

Khrushchev Will Try Again For Assembly Arms Debate

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP) — Premier Khrushchev is expected to plump once more for his total disarmament plan to-morrow when Canadian Minister Howard Green of Canada speaking afterwards as a proponent of the Western side.

The 82th UN assembly scheduled discussion on disarmament at its afternoon session. The assembly's 32-nation steering committee has recommended that the Soviet premier's plan to be referred to the assembly's political committee but Khrushchev has insisted that should it be debated by full plenary meetings of the 99-member world body.

Khrushchev, leaving for home Thursday, suffered two defeats Monday night when the assembly's steering committee charged aggression against the United States over the U-2 spy plane and the B26-47 survey plane incidents. Other items embarrassing to the West included the Algerian rebellion against France and South African racial policies.

The assembly also accepted Khrushchev's disarmament resolution but the allocation of the item—whether to the assembly

MENON AND LOUW DEBATE RACIAL ISSUE IN UN

Sizzling Meeting Of Fire and Ice

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP) — It was a brief, sizzling meeting of fire and ice when an Indian and a South African clashed on racial matters in the United Nations General Assembly Monday night.

India's V. K. Krishna Menon, his voice rising to passion, challenged the calm, cool argument of South African Foreign Minister Eric Louw in defence of apartheid (racial separation) laws.

It was ironic, said Louw, that attacks were being made against South Africa by countries where racial or colour discrimination was "openly and extensively" practised.

These countries solved their consciences by asserting that the apartheid policy was not sanctioned by law, the South African said.

It was an accepted principle or law that a person coming to court with a complaint against another must come "with clean hands."

SHARP QUESTION

Could the 82 countries bringing charges against South Africa in the UN testify that they were observing human rights and freedoms fully, without distinction as to race, sex, language or religion?

Louw said he was speaking out because of the many new member states in the UN—most of them Negro countries.

"Attacks may in the future be made by this organization to interfere in their domestic affairs as has happened to South Africa," he said.

South Africa has faults, but "national hypocrisy is not one of them," he said. "I am a man of aristocratic bearing."

CLAIMS EQUAL

Menon, one of the most colorful UN figures with his flaring mane of hair, said Louw had said India was the leader in "these annual attacks" against South Africa.

"What country is without racial discrimination?" Menon asked rhetorically, continuing:

"I plead guilty.

"But the difference is that we understand this to be against the law. We are not proud.

"Not only does South Africa say it is a domestic matter but prescribe it for the rest of the world."

Assembly President Frederick Boland of Ireland announced that political committee would begin debate Wednesday on a resolution relating to treatment of people of Indo-Pakistani origin in South Africa — would be placed on the agenda of the 5th General Assembly since Louw had been the only objector.

Estonian Flees Mr. K's Vessel

NEW YORK (AP)—An Estonian refugee said Monday that Premier Khrushchev's own ship, the Baltika, has defected to seek political asylum here.

He was identified as Victor Jaakson, 45, an ex-Estonian Red Army officer and former Communist leaders to the United Nations General Assembly. Jaakson arrived here Sept. 19. The vessel has a crew of about 200.

But the extent of the cabinet shuffle — biggest since the Coldwell-Pearkes look office June 21, 1957—and some of the shifts of existing ministers caught many observers by surprise.

Mr. Pearkes' successor in the defence portfolio, Mr. Harkness, 57-year-old member for Calgary South, comes to the portfolio with a distinguished war record.

Mr. Pearkes, who rose to the rank of lieutenant-colonel, served overseas from 1940 to 1945 in the city, Italy and northwestern Europe.

FORMER SCHOOL TEACHER

Mr. Hamilton, 48, MP for Saskatchewan's Qu'Appelle constituency, is a former collegiate teacher. He now assumes the agriculture portfolio.

Mr. Dorion takes over the secretary of state's post which has been unified on a permanent basis since Senator Henri Courtemanche's appointment to the bench late Jan. 19.

Mr. Dorion was elected to Parliament, Mr. Dorion was one of Ottawa's best - known Crown prosecutors. His most famous case was the prosecution of Albert Guay, Quebec jewelry salesman who, in September, 1949, whipped a time bomb aboard an airplane on a flight from Quebec City to Baie Comeau. The plane exploded in mid - air and killed Mrs. Guay, two dozen other passengers and the crew.

M. Halpenny, who sold his Toronto Globe and Mail a year ago last month, becomes, a minister without portfolio after serving during the two previous sessions of Parliament as chairman of committees.

Mr. Dinsdale, who becomes Northern affairs minister, is a sociologist.

10 Changes Made In Cabinet Posts, 4 New Ministers

Pearkes BC Lt.-Governor Hees Is Trade Minister

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker made 10 cabinet changes today, shifting Agriculture Minister Harkness to defence with the appointment of Defence Minister Pearkes as British Columbia's new lieutenant-governor and making Resources Minister Alvin Hamilton the new agriculture minister.

He brought into the cabinet as minister of forestry, to head a new department set up by the last Parliamentary session, 61-year-old Hugh John Flemming, former premier of New Brunswick.

Other new members of the cabinet are Walter Dinsdale, 44-year-old MP for Brandon-Souris, minister of northern affairs; Noel Dorion, 56, MP for Bellechasse, secretary of state; G. Roland Halpenny, 57, MP for London, minister without portfolio.

Other changes:

Trade Minister Churchill, 61, to minister of veterans affairs and chairman of the privy council committee.

Transport Minister Hees, 30, to trade minister.

Solicitor-General Balcer, 42, to transport minister.

Minister without portfolio, William J. Browne, 63, to solicitor-general.

Walter Jorgenson, 42, from Provencher constituency in Manitoba was named as a second Parliamentary secretary to Agriculture Minister Hamilton.

This will give Mr. Hamilton secretaries from both Eastern and Western Canada. Present Parliamentary secretary is Leon Elston Cardiff, MP for the Ontario seat of Huron.

Transfers in the agricultural ministry was the Canadian wheat board, previously under the trade and commerces department.

LAURIE PEARKES

Mr. Diefenbaker paid tribute to Mr. Pearkes as one of the greatest soldiers Canada has ever produced.

"His devotion to his sovereign and his country have become a legend in his lifetime.

His administration of the defence department has been praised by all who had any contact with it.

Mr. Diefenbaker said Mr. Churchill will continue as government leader in the senate. The prime minister and government house leader has been too great a load for one minister, the speaker said.

Mr. Churchill had been "remarkably successful" as a trade minister, the prime minister said. What had been started in the department must be attributed in considerable measure to Mr. Churchill. Exports from Canada to the United States this year would be $180,000,000 more than in any other year in history, Mr. Diefenbaker said.

Mr. Churchill, in the veterans affairs portfolio, succeeds Mr. Brooks, 69, appointed to the upper house Sept. 12, Mr. Hees, 39, succeeds Gordon Churchill, Oct. 31 byelection in New Brunswick, Mr. Churchill's successor, left vacant by the appointment.

Appointment of the 72-year-old Mr. Pearkes to the vice - regal post in British B.C. follows the retirement last month of Frank Ross, lieutenant-governor for five years.

The newcomers to the cabinet were not surprises. All were considered in speculation several times in the last several months. But the extent of the cabinet

Hamilton Girl, 2, Savagely Mauled By Her Dad's Doberman Pinscher

HAMILTON (CP) — Two-year-old Maureen McPartlin, savagely mauled Sunday, by her father's Doberman pinscher was reported out of danger Monday night by hospital officials.

The girl was in critical condition when brought to hospital with both ears almost bitten off. She also suffered a skull fracture and wounds to her head, face, arms and chest which required 125 stitches to close.

The five-year-old dog, Hellion, attacked Maureen while she was talking with her aunt, Ethel McPartlin.

Police have placed Hellion under 14-day quarantine at his home in the Mountain section, property at nearby Dundas. A police spokesman said the dog has had rabies shots but they may not have taken effect.

"We think that probably what happened was that the dog became jealous of the attention Miss McPartlin was showing the little girl," the spokesman said.

Maureen's parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. J. McPartlin, were being treated in the Bay-st Quinte region at the time.

Rev P. Murphy Goes to Bedford As Parish Priest

Rev. Peter Murphy, popular curate at St. Michael's Church here for the past seven years, has recently received word of his appointment as pastor of Bedford, Ont., parish.

The official announcement was made at last Sunday's Masses by the Rt Rev. J. F. Sullivan, pastor of St. Michael's Church, who highly commended Father Murphy for his work in the parish during his appointment here.

Father Murphy will leave Belleville October 25th, to take up his new duties as pastor of Sacred Heart Church at Bedford, and will be the mission church at Sharbot Lake.

Born at Kingston, Ont., he received his early education at Elgin, Ont. He received his high school education at Regiopolis College, Kingston.

He studied for the priesthood at St. Augustine's Seminary in Toronto, and received his B.A. from St. Michael's College, University of Toronto.

Father Murphy was ordained to the priesthood on May 18th, 1952, at St. Mary's Cathedral, Kingston, by the late Rev. J. A. O'Sullivan, D.D., Archbishop of Kingston.

Following his ordination he was appointed to Mt. Michael's for a period of two months. He then was transferred to St. Mary's Cathedral, Kingston, where after two-month-period, and then to St. Mark's in Prescott, for one year.

He returned to Belleville as curate of St. Michael's October 20th 1953, and has remained in that post ever since.

Besides fulfilling his church duties in the Belleville parish, the hard-working priest has also been Catholic chaplain of the nearby Penitentiary, and the Belleville Fire Department, and been the visiting priest to Catholic patients at Belleville General Hospital.

Registrations For Swim Classes At All-Time High

This season's YMCA program of gym and swim classes for boys and girls has proven quite popular with 1,000 kids and tikes with registrations reaching an all-time high. Some 170 memberships have been received at the local "Y" during the first few weeks of operation of the 1959-60 season. This brings the total membership of the members of the Belleville Unified Appeal to 1144 for 1960 at this time, which is an increase of 166 over the level achieved one year ago.

Impressive last-minute changes have had to be made by the "Y" staff to accommodate the increased interest in their schedule of activities. For junior members of the family, there are some 30 organized gym and swim classes conducted each week. This increased interest puts an additional load on the already overburdened facilities of the local YMCA quarters but it is hoped that these problems will be resolved in the near future by a new "Y" building with the complete, capacious and up-to-date facilities to accommodate the needs of local citizens.

Mother Thinks Daughter Slain, Away 18 Months

KIRKLAND LAKE, Ont. (CP) Mrs. Adolphus Woods, mother of a missing teen-aged waitress, believes her daughter Dolly was dead. The girl vanished 18 months ago.

"I have a feeling she's dead," she said today. "I've felt all along she's been kidnapped and taken away from us."

Det.-Insp. Wright said his men are questioning Owen (Mickey) Fisher, held in Timmins, 72 miles northwest of here.

Fesner is charged with murder in the slaying of a Timmins domestic, Kay Chouiner, 26.

In the Woods case, Det. Wright said only:

"The man Fesner was in our area when the girl disappeared and that's all."

Montreal Man Winner of Rally Of Gananoque

Les Chelminski, former Canadian rallying champion, from Montreal was the overall winner of the local St. Lawrence Automobile Club's annual Thousand Islands Rally held this past weekend. Accompanied by L. Blaney of his navigator, Mr. Chelminski piloted his Renault Dauphine to victory over the 100 rugged 600-mile course, which ranged over provincial and county roads in eastern and eastern Ontario to win the coveted Ring-Standard Trophy.

Close-to 125 motoring enthusiasts participated in the three-day event which saw competitors start off on Friday evening from the lawn of the Toronto suburb checkpoints and find their way towards Kingston for the commencement of a common leg which ran through this city and eventually wound up in Gananoque on Saturday evening.

Apart from the road section of the rally was the Caring's Concours d'Elegance and Driving Skill Day held on Sunday. These events allowed both rallyists and other enthusiasts to exhibit their vehicles and demonstrate their driving ability in a special district exercise arranged for them.

Second place in the rally went to a former Belleville resident, Helmut Teubler, now of Toronto, who was driving an Auto-Union car with Clair Spencer assisting as navigator.

Bob MacGregor of CBC-Montreal, whose weekly motoring show "RPM" is broadcast across Canada, was the winner of the Driving Skill Trophy for the best-placed press entry. The French Peugeot,

The top ladies' entry award, the Watson Trophy, was won by Mrs. Shirley Bowles, secretary of the British Automobile Racing Club (Ontario Centre) of Toronto.

Winner of the Caring's Concourse d'Elegance Trophy for the best-appointed car in association was Francis Walsh of Massena, N.Y., whose immaculately prepared 1953 M.G. won the nod from the judges as overall winner as well as a class award for best non-rallyist's car. John Bowles of the British Automobile Racing Club from Toronto was the award for the best prepared rallyist's car with his Swedish SAAB.

A very nicely prepared 1957 Durant Star Six won the ninth-place award for Bill Neal of Gananoque, whilst John Pearce of Ottawa carried off a modified class award with his Italian Fiat 600 Abrath car.

times. A small hunting knife was found near the scene. There was no evidence of sexual assault.

Police Chief Bennett had worked for 27 years, as a maid for a Hamilton surgeon and his wife, DC and Mrs. Joseph Gardine. Mrs. Gardine said the girl was a quiet, religious person who seldom went out with men.

Monday Chief Beacock and RCMP officers went with Feener to the spot where the body was found. Police found Miss Chouinard's purse and identification papers.

Chief Beacock said RCMP officers have stripped the car and tent clothing, hair, skin and blood stained sections to the RCMP crime laboratory in Ottawa.

HAS DAUGHTER

Feener is married and has a one-year-old daughter but police have not been able to locate his wife. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Max Feener, live in Halifax.

Frederickton RCMP officials said the mother of Miss Ezzer's death has not been established. The woman had been dead at least two weeks and was identified by examination of her teeth.

Miss Ezzers was engaged to marry Conrad Walther, who operates a farm near Bradford, north of Toronto. She had started home to clear up personal affairs before the wedding.

Miss Gardine had eight brothers and sisters. After her father's death 15 years ago, her mother and family took the girl, then 11, brought up the family almost by herself.

WILL ATTEND

She will be buried today after services attended by the eight brothers and sisters.

Two of Kay's brothers, Arnold, 32, and Roderick, 20, work in mines at nearby Schumacher. Also expected at the funeral are Phillip, 25, and Fred, 24, both in Cornwall; twin sisters Rosella and Isoble, 15, and Armand, 16, now in Moose Bay, and Joseph, 18, at Sturgeon Falls.

Mrs. Giardine, who took a hobby interest in Kay said the girl cred little, cherished the outdoors and were tasteful, practical clothing.

She was an intensely moral girl who kept a stack of religious music and religious records in her room. She was dated, although there were party dresses hanging in her closet.

DISTRUSTED MEN

"Kay grew up with an aversion to men," Mrs. Giardine said. "Apparently she distrusted them and their motives. She was sensitive about her reputation and never considered doing anything that would damage her even slightly."

Mrs. Gardine said she had previously arranged Kay going out with the man who called for her on the night she disappeared. He was wearing brown boots, jeans and a windbreaker. "He was very good looking and a smooth talker but he couldn't fool me," Mrs. Giardine said.

55 Sufferers From Arthritis Helped by CARS

Twenty-six city and district arthritic sufferers are able to resume normal living after months, and in some cases years of suffering and crippling, thanks to the Quinte Branch of the Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism Society.

Over the past six months, these 26 citizens had received the maximum benefits possible from CARS and their cases are now closed. This brings the total to 32 cases closed, as several former cases have moved from the city.

During this period of arthritic sufferers have received treatments from the Society's physiotherapist, as prescribed by their physicians. In all, 507 treatments have been given, the majority to Belleville patients.

One such district patient who is now able to resume normal living is Mrs. S., who speaks highly of the help she received from the Society's physiotherapist.

Mrs. S., who is 69 years of age, suffered from rheumatoid arthritis for the past six years. A year ago she was referred to the Society by her physician who prescribed physiotherapy treatments.

At that time the patient's hands were badly deformed, the finger-nails were curled and the treatments and exercises to be carried out daily. Also crippled the patient by the physiotherapist. Splints, to prevent further deformities were supplied. Treatment for her shoulders was also supplied.

Marked improvement was shown in the patient's condition within two months. Mrs. S.'s hands improved to the point where she is now wearing the third set of right splints. After 20 treatments she is now able to do most of her own housework which she had not been able to do for years.

The services of C.A.R.S. are available to all sufferers from arthritis and rheumatic disease on recommendation of the patient's physician. Help is made possible through your support of the Belleville-United Appeal.

Fire Prevention Week Parade Draws Big Crowd

TRENTON — In spite of the fact that the weather was cold and was underway, a large crowd was on hand Sunday afternoon to witness the Fire Prevention Week parade staged by the combined forces of the RCAF Station Trenton and the Trenton fire department.

The parade proceeded through Middleton Park, broke up, and reformed at College St. and moved on the east side of the river. Led off by a police escort it then proceeded down Dundas St. through the business section of the town to Queen St. and so on down King St. to the fire hall where refreshments were served to those participating.

Several marching companies from the RCAF station were featured as well as two Boy Trenton's new aerial truck had a prominent place in the parade. Brownies, Girl Guides, Cubs and Scouts joined with local civic and fraternal bodies in both departments to make the parade a success.

Sparky the dog rode along in a special truck, and delighted the children of Trenton, as his warnings about fire hazards.

This week everyone in Trenton will be made fire conscious by means of posters, radio announcing, and personal publicity. Fire drills will be held in schools and factory areas next week. Commercial properties will be checked for fire hazards, and town citizens asked to check their homes.

Car Passenger Suffers Severe Face Injuries

Monday afternoon, Roger Baker, 23, Division Street in Trenton was rushed by ambulance to Trenton Memorial Hospital following a two-car head-on crash at Bayside. Baker was a passenger in a car driven by Lorne Simpson, 25, also of Trenton. Simpson was treated at the hospital for abrasions to his knees. Baker suffered severe face injuries and body abrasions. He was treated by Dr. W. Gray of Trenton.

Warrant Officer Wilfred Doyle, RCAF, Trenton, aged 47, the brother of the late Cecil Doyle, lived in the accident, was examined by the police doctor, and allowed to go home.

More Robberies Mark Weekend; Recover Safe

TRENTON — For the third successive weekend, commercial premises in Trenton have been robbed of cash, cheques and merchandise, adding up to a considerable amount of loot.

Two weeks ago, entry was gained to the Riverside Dairy on Front Street, by forcing a back door, and around $2,000 taken in cash and cheques.

Last weekend the Skill Tool plant on Sidney Street, was entered and between $1,500 and $2,000 worth of merchandise stolen.

This weekend, thieves gained entry to the Bellamy Groceteria on West Street, and removed a safe containing around $500 in cash. The robbery took place late Saturday night or early Sunday morning. Monday afternoon the safe was recovered on the second concession of Sidney at Tobinstown. The door had been forced open and the money removed.

Thieves also broke into the Delft Gelatin plant, on the Carrying Place road on the outskirts of Trenton, on Monday night. Entrance was gained through the window of an apartment above the plant, nobody being at home at the time. From the apartment the thieves made their way into the plant itself but no money or safe could find was some $5 which they obtained by breaking the "coke" machine, but Manager Ben Krouse reports that the culprits made a great mess by scattering gelatine powder about the plant.

All four break-ins are being investigated by Inspector R. J. Rutherford of the Trenton police department.

Several cars and one truck were reported stolen in the Quinte area over the week-end also.

On Saturday night, Mrs. Harold Lewis, 5 Blatan St., parked her car just off Ontario St. early in the evening. When Mrs. Lewis came out of the Orpheum hall on Ontario St., around 10.30 she found that the car was gone. The car was recovered at Johnstown Sunday afternoon. Wires had been crossed to start with, but was completely out of gas, but undamaged.

Fire Prevention Week

This is Fire Prevention Week.

Every year, about this time in the fall, the Joint Fire Prevention Publicity Committee, sponsored by the Association of Canadian Fire Marshals and the Canadian Association of Fire Chiefs, endeavors to spur Canadians into eliminating fire hazards.

"Don't Give Fire a Place to Start" is the slogan of the campaign this year and it is addressed to almost every Canadian. There are very few of us who cannot, through carelessness, create a fire hazard. Therefore, there are very few of us to whom Fire Prevention Week is of no interest. Nobody wins when property is destroyed by fire—and in a very real sense everybody loses. Adequate fire insurance should, of course, be carried by all who own property, real or personal, but insurance is no adequate answer to the heavy damage caused by fires. It compensates the owner, but at the expense of others who did not suffer loss; it does not eliminate the loss but only distributes the burden of it over many more shoulders.

Not until we reduce the loss by fire to the lowest amount possible will we have reason for complacency. We have a long way to go. Complete figures for fire losses in 1959 are not yet available, but it is estimated that the total was $120,422,402, or $8.82 per capita. This does not include forest fire waste and some Federal Government losses. In addition to this material loss, there was a heavy toll of lives, 556.

Fire Prevention Week officials, however, have reason for optimism. Heavy as the 1959 loss was, it showed an encouraging reduction over that for two years earlier, when per capita loss was $8.05 and 638 persons perished.

Different Attitude

The Scarborough conference of the British Labor Party has voted in favor of unilateral nuclear disarmament by Britain—in other words the conference wants Britain to count itself out of the nuclear arms race and renounce such weapons.

This vote, however, does not make such renunciation the official policy of the parliamentary party and indeed the leader of Her Majesty's Loyal Opposition, Hugh Gaitskell, has not only opposed such renunciation in the past but has indicated he is determined to fight for a reversal of the Scarborough conference's decision.

It is interesting in the light of these facts, to quote from an article by Ernest Atkinson, written before the conference opened. This was distributed by the United Kingdom Information Service. We quote: "The Gaitskell—the official—policy acknowledges the need for the nuclear deterrent. We see here, independent observers would say, a sound example of the prudent exercise of Opposition leadership. For whatever the formal expectations may be of the life of a government, Mr. Gaitskell knows as well as anyone else that the political system of Britain provides that he may be called to power at any time should Mr. Macmillan and his Government lost the confidence of the House of Commons and the nation. Therefore his policies in opposition must be consistent with what he would have to do were he to come to power. No one indeed may think it very likely just now that Mr. Macmillan's Government should be defeated and Mr. Gaitskell be brought in. But the British constitutional system assumes the possibility, and the Leader of the Opposition must comport himself accordingly. The political life for which he takes responsibility as Opposition must be those he is prepared to carry out if he comes to power."

Our Canadian constitutional system, of course, is exactly the same as Britain's, but there the likeness ends. Does any well-informed Canadian believe that opposition parties in this country, whether in the federal house or the provincial assemblies, habitually confine themselves to advocating policies they would be prepared to implement if they should come to power?

Don't be silly. Here it is a case of any stick to beat a dog.

STRENGTH FOR THE DAY

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

CONCERNING PREACHING

A minister speaking recently before a group of fellow ministers had this piece of advice to offer: "Either put more fire into your sermons—or more verse."

We wonder sometimes as we partake of tasteless food if by some people can take the wonderful food we have today and refuse it almost inedible. Likewise we should wonder every time we hear a dull sermon how anybody could possibly be guilty of such an outrage. To be sure, it happens many hours of consecrated work to produce an effective sermon, or an effective address of any kind. But the material is at hand if we only have the sense to use it. Just as it is a crime of major proportions to take good food and spoil it by poor culinary procedure, so it is a crime before God to take the precious message of love and redemption and make out of it a dull, uninteresting, meaningless.

Why the poor preacher, He has to please all kinds of people, to be on the alert all the time, to be up to date and yet to hold fast to eternal truths. There is no group in the world who work harder than ministers and who frequently see so little result from their efforts. But there are results which the Most High knows and which will help them to put fire into their sermons. And if they can't do this, then counsel them to put verse.

Strictly Personal

Wives Let Husbands Think They Win

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

"The only way to fight a woman is with your hat". John Barrymore once advised. "Grab it and run!"

Barrymore was not exactly a novice in matters matrimonial, and he seldom spoke is as unscient as the Analects of Confucius. The bitter fact is that a man can never win an argument with his wife, even though sometimes she permits him to think he has won.

In the end, feminine strategy will triumph over Reason, Justice and Truth—and nowhere more than in the law courts, where these grand abstractions are supposed to prevail.

For the benefit of the new autumn crop of husbands, let us look for a moment at the argument to demonstrate how the man hasn't a chance. Suppose the conflict hinges on his promise to go and play poker with the boys tomorrow night. There are several effective techniques a clever wife can employ to stop this sortie.

First, there is the Appeal to Fair Play. Here the man would saddle his wife with the kids all day long and then disappear again after dinner. Even those few hours, the only time in a month, a conscientious husband can be made to feel small—for the poker game is only a few moves in this gambit.

Second, the Remembrance of Things Past. Here the wife silently recall that once, seven years ago, when he went to play poker, you failed to return until 3 a.m. Despite the fact that every time since then you have come back promptly at the 11:30 deadline, during the numbers away at this 6 a.m. theme is until you remember you did something scandalously wrong that night.

Third, the Ad Us Be Gay motif. She tries to rival the fascination of the poker game by suggesting a jolly evening in front of the fireplace, popping corn, listening to old Danny Kaye records and working crypthogrmas on the floor. She frequently does her hair in pigtails for this attack, and you'll be surprised how often it succeeds.

Fourth, the Master of the House line. She suddenly recalls that she needs a big, strong male like you like the present—to haul barrels out of the shed and help your bewildered little wife straighten out her befuddled household accounts, because you have such a wonderful head for figures. Masculine vanity can rarely resist this premium blend of banana oil.

Fifth, the most deadly technique known, the Big Sulky Siren approach, in which she sits and waits with a moment until I phone the boys that I won't be able to make it tonight?

Mayor Shows Right Spirit

Sudbury Star

Would you like to have your faith renewed in human nature? Read this one-paragraph news item from Summerside, Prince Edward Island:

Mayor W. A. Currie cheerfully paid a fine for illegal parking and congratulated the policeman for issuing it.

So many times there have been reports of municipal politicians becoming irked by the vigilance of policemen who ticket them for illegal parking. It is not so many months ago since a mayor in Northern Ontario municipality a few years ago there were reports of an indignant politician seeking dismissal of policemen who persisted in giving him tickets for illegal parking.

Hovercraft Put to Work

Milwaukee Journal

The Hovercraft, Britain's revolutionary plane which skims over land or water on a bubble of compressed air, will be its first commercial test next month when it will haul bananas from plantations in the British Cameroons to embarkation points. Each flight will carry 18 tons of fruit. Plantation owners claim the Hovercraft will not only speed bananas to market, but will save expensive building and upkeep of roads.

So flying saucers are here. Some of them even with bananas.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FILES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

October 11th, 1940

Thanksgiving which is a settled official holiday in the New World, satisfies a human sense which has been felt all through the ages and which has been demonstrated in the harvest festivals and church services in many parts of the world for centuries. It is the natural expression of the human heart in gratitude for blessings which many a later using the gifts of nature through a beneficent Providence has been able to harvest and reap for the year.

The harvest festival, the thanksgiving for the bounty of the growing season which has come to an end, is particularly fitting at the present time. At this hour if there were no official thanksgiving, there would be thanksgiving in the hearts of Canadians as there is in the Motherland, that the autumn has come and that Britain in her island fortress, the centre of the British race, has resisted the German forces with such success.

Through unity and devotion, through sacrifice and leadership and through the ability to endure and fight the sinister powers which are arrayed against her by Hitler and Mussolini, she has for this season of year successfully beaten back the enemy and so achieved one of the greatest victories in that of the Battle of Britain. At this time Britons everywhere are pouring out the gratitude of their hearts for the confidence in their strength and powers to fight evil.

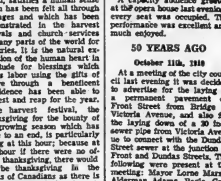
Indus Accord Bright Omen

Financial Post

In a world numbed by the terrifying poise of cold war strife in the UN and paranoia in the Congo, there is a bright omen of hope at an earnest of man's eventual sanity in the Indus Waters Agreement. Quite the Indus Valley dispute has been settled.

The waters of the Indus are a matter of life or death for 50,000,000 Indians and Pakistanis in the valley. The bottompreyed literate of water relations between India and Pakistan between India and Pakistan far more than did the more famous Kashmir dispute. It was almost a cause of war.



But a few days ago, through the good offices of the World Bank, the two countries signed a water rights treaty.

Will We Soon Copy Caesar?

Brantford Expositor

"Notice: Henceforth no wheeled traffic will be allowed in the streets of Rome during daylight hours."

The foregoing, or rather it's Latin equivalent, was posted about 2,007 years ago by order of Julius Caesar, Dictator.

Invention of the wheel, usually attributed to the Chinese, has contributed greatly to the human progress in more ways than one, but, as we can see for ourselves, it is now slowing us down due to vehicular congestion on streets and highways, or, where drivers decline to be slowed, is increasing the toll of death and injury and property damage to a tragically high figure.

It is inconceivable that in Caesar's time the traffic jams in his capital, or even the best-disciplined Roman holiday were comparable with the confusion that exists in our cities today. Yet as long ago as 47 B.C. regulations, restrictions and equally inconsiderate drivers of less glamorous rigs were causing trouble, and the great organizer cum-administrator chose an intelligent if drastic method of curing the nuisance.

Has the wheel turned full circle? Not quite. But it will be noted that several large cities in North America have set up safety areas for pedestrians only. There is talk, in Toronto, of a subway for cars, trucks and buses becomes more burdensome and shopping havens as motor cars, trucks and buses become more burdensome and shopping havens as motor cars, trucks and buses become more burdensome and shopping havens as motor cars, trucks and buses become

Newest Mink Stole

By ALICE ALDEN

Some of the far-out stylists tell us that the mink stole isn't such a must any more; that many smart women tend to disdain it these days.

Well, in this wonderful land, where luxuries of all sorts aren't confined to the upper crust, the mink stole isn't a status symbol but an ever-so-useful and handsome accessory; both pretty and practical.

Of course mink stole fashions do change and here's the latest version. Fashioned of Autumn Haze mink, it has handy pockets and a very new, wide, notched collar.

Halloway C-D Club Plans Future Events

Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Donaldson entertained the members of Halloway Kum Double Club at their regular meeting on Wednesday evening.

The worship service, led by Mr. and Mrs. Reg Workman, was on the theme, "Courage". Reg gave the meditation and John Wilson read an appropriate story. A fine article by Pedro W. A. Young was read by Charlie Huffman. The Rev. F. H. Darke also assisted with the service.

The president, Mrs. John Wilson, reported on the executive meeting in Trenton, where plans were discussed for the fall dance at Tobe's later this month and the rally in Picton in November.

Correspondence included letters of thanks from John and Alta Vance and from Stan and Mary Stanley.

Next meeting will be at Verna Townsend's.

Lois Morgan read the latest gossip as reported in "The Howler".

Delicious pies, a la mode, along with tea and coffee, were served by the lunch committee and hostess at the conclusion of the meeting.

Five Australian Girls Work Way Around World

TORONTO (CP) — Five Australian girls working their way around the world arrived in Canada three months ago and now are in Toronto preparing for the next leg.

The girls are Barbara McKenzie, 22, store clerk; Marilyn Pass, 21, governess; Lorna Watson, 20, clerk; Elizabeth Morrison, 19, secretary, and Maureen Casey, laboratory technician.

"When we arrived here three months ago we were nearly penniless," said Miss McKenzie.

"But working opportunities in Canada and the overwhelming hospitality shown us by everyone is something we will never forget."

The girls set out 12 months ago and sailed from Australia to London. After hitchhiking through Britain they headed for the Continent where they had some strange experiences.

In Spain they were guests of a gypsy queen who let them sleep in a dungeon after showing them the mediaeval torture chambers in a castle.

MARRIAGE OFFERS

In Germany Miss Morrison looked down the end of an East German border guard's rifle when she returned from a visit to East Berlin.

"Neither of us could speak the other's language and they let me pass. They were so angry they forgot to detain me."

The girls say they have received numerous marriage proposals and are beginning to wonder if they will all return home together.

They all agree the most charming men they have encountered were in Europe. But Miss. Pass and Miss Watson say the Italians are best; Miss Morrison picks the Germans, and Miss Casey and Miss McKenzie the Swiss.

They remarked diplomatically that they haven't been in Canada long enough to make up their minds about Canadians.

Their plans for the rest of the trip include the United States, Hawaii, Japan, New Zealand and then back to Australia next year.

And they haven't any serious money worries. "We all left sufficient money behind in Sydney for return passage home," said Miss Pass.

Mr. Employer:

Have your employees all 4 of these important benefits

.... in the program which you have provided for their security?

LIFE INSURANCE—An adequate amount of protection for the family is more easily provided when group life insurance, with its low cost, is combined with individual policies, to make up the employee's insurance program.

WEEKLY INDEMNITY INSURANCE—When an employee's earnings are cut off because of a spell of illness or an injury—then weekly indemnity insurance can step in to help pay household bills, and meet other current expenses.

COMPREHENSIVE HEALTH INSURANCE—This coverage is available both to employees and dependents, and affords protection against the heavy costs of serious or prolonged illness, in addition to normal medical expenses. Under this plan, up to $10,000 may be paid in the case of a single illness.

PENSION BENEFITS—For the day of retirement, every employee wants assurance of a pension which will help him to live independently, comfortably, and without money worries. Group annuities are being more and more widely used to assure the needed income.

The London Life Insurance Company has been providing group life insurance plans since 1919; and the group life insurance in force now exceeds one billion dollars. This Company was also the first Canadian life insurance company to issue group sickness and accident benefits, and today is one of the leaders in Canada in providing this form of coverage.

The London Life has group insurance offices across Canada, staffed with trained group insurance representatives to provide service to employers and employees.

Complete information about group insurance plans may be obtained through any of the London Life's 90 agencies. If your plan does not include the four important benefits described above, a telephone call to your local London Life office will bring a qualified Group Insurance specialist to you immediately.

Pr. Wales H-S Assoc. Holds First Meet

On Tuesday of last week, in the school auditorium, parents and teachers gathered to launch a busy year for the Association's President Mrs. Kay Bushell chaired the meeting.

Mrs. O. Slack, school principal, introduced her staff and briefly outlined some of the school policies. She particularly emphasized that phone calls to the school (except in cases of emergency), should be made before nine and at the recess period.

The membership convener and her committee were kept busy at the door, selling Home and School membership cards. Quite a number of parents were in attendance.

Mrs. Bushell read a letter from the Belleville Public School Board which stated that a public address system had been approved for Prince of Wales School and would be installed this year.

On Hallowe'en, the grade seven and eight children of the school will be campaigning for UNICEF. Its work was outlined by Mrs. Kathryn Soulet, Shell-Out for UNICEF will begin at 6.30 and run until 8.00. The children will work in pairs and will be wearing UNICEF badges. One penny will buy five large glasses of milk for an underprivileged child, and any amount given will be quite acceptable.

DIRECT ARTIFICIAL RESPIRATION

The remainder of the meeting was given over to Mr. Fred Clark, Chief of the Point Anne Volunteer Fire Department. His topic was "Direct Artificial Respiration or as it is more commonly known mouth to mouth Resuscitation". A film "That They May Live", was shown which gave graphic accounts of incidents in which the use of D.A.R. was directly responsible for lives being saved. Even a child of 11, after having seen this film, could save a life by this method. Every parent there showed intense interest in the film and Mr. Clark's talk.

Roll call was taken. The junior banner was won jointly by Mrs. Slack's grade one class, and Mrs. Fenton's grade one and two classes. The senior banner was won by Mrs. Hollywood's grade four and five classes.

Home and School meetings at Prince of Wales, will, as usual, be held the first Thursday of every month. However, November's meeting will be in the form of 'Open House'.

After the meeting adjourned refreshments were served by the parents of Mrs. Slack's grade one class.

'Spiritual Growth' Outlined At Keen Age Club Meeting

The Keen Age Club of Tabernacle United Church heard an interesting address on "Old Letters and Postage" at its regular supper meeting.

The guest speaker was Ross irwin whose highly interesting talk was augmented by old letters, one dating back to June, 1796. It was interesting to note the perfect penmanship in most of these letters written with a quill pen. There were no envelopes at that time, the letters being folded and sealed with sealing wax. As the paper was very expensive, every available space was used. Postage was also high. It was noted that it cost 52 cents to phet a single page letter from Halifax to Toronto as they were charged by mileage as well as weight. The first post office in Belleville was in 1816 and was called "The Sign of Quinte" post office. The first stamp originated in 1831.

The president, Stella Burley was in the chair.

Jean Beers conducted the devotional period, reading the Scriptures from Luke 11-31-32 and gave a paper entitled "Spiritual Growth," in which she said: "We cannot add one cubit unto ourselves by our boastings, so we cannot grow by the exercise of the mind.

"We, instead, must fulfil the conditions of growth, the principal one being food and exercise. We must decide to neglect the resources of inner strength will soon find that he has ceased to grow. The same is true of the disciple who evades his God - given opportunities for Christian service.

"A note found in Oliver Cromwell's Bible after his death said, 'if we are not growing better, we are growing worse.' There is no standing still.

"Christian growth must include growth in knowledge. A disciple is by derivation a learner and growth comes by learning and is convinced that he knows all worth knowing he ceases to be a disciple. The Christian disciple will grow, too, in kindliness and forgiveness, in tolerance and tact, in serenity of soul and spiritual nature.

When Alfred Zimmern, an authority on international affairs, was asked to name the greatest obstacle to world peace, replied, 'The small scale individual.' Growth in grace refuses to be a learner and closes his mind to God's new truth, who refuses to grow as an individual, because he will not commit himself to conditions of spiritual growth, is a real obstacle to the coming of God's kingdom, to the community, the nation and the world."

A vote of thanks was tendered by Betty Priest.

The hostess and her committee served refreshments, which brought to a close a very interesting and educational evening.

PEIR — RITCHIE

St. Clement's Anglican Church, Toronto, was the setting for the marriage of Miss Glenna Isabel Ritchie, to Mr. Jack Beaumont Peir. The Reverend B. W. Lambsdorff officiated at the candlelight ceremony.

To Purcell's beautiful "Wedding March"-the bride entered the church on the arm of her father, James Glenn Ritchie, wearing a gown of white silk organza and silk taffeta, lavishly embroidered and re-embroidered with seed pearls. The illy-point sleeves and a court train held at the waist by two large self-made roses, enhanced the Edwardian silhouette. Her veil of silk illusion was held by a tiara of seed pearls and she carried a cascade of white roses.

The matron of honor, Mrs. James Aldarch, was gowned in beige Chantilly lace over apricot taffeta. A necklace of self-made roses and veiling She carried a cascade of blue irises, with a paddle and two roses.

The bridesmaids, Mrs. John Matthews of Trenton, Ontario and Noreen Taylor of Toronto, wore similar gowns of beige Chantilly lace over pale blue taffeta.

They flower girls were Miss Vickie Mashelson, and Miss Jo-Ann Bairon, who were blue and apricot taffeta under beige organza. They carried matching miniature cascades.

Harriet Stevens Addresses Alpha Lambda

The importance of correcting children's speech habits in the formative years was stressed by Mrs. John Haig, "Harriet Stevens" in an address given at Alpha Lambda Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi on October 4th.

The speaker, Mrs. Haig, a well known local figure, who was introduced by Mrs. Robert Hinchey, discussed ways in which voice improvement and control could be cultivated "to make the most of what we have", and recalled many incidents of her own life to illustrate her points.

She spoke with much enthusiasm of the various dialects in Canada and the United States, noting that the change in speech was due in great part to a change in way of life and various outside influences.

Her topic, "Voice, Oratory and Speech" was a most interesting one which provoked much group discussion.

Mrs. Haig was thanked by Mrs. Gordon Thompson, and a token of the chapter's appreciation was presented to her.

A short business meeting followed, conducted by president, Mrs. Howie L. House. It was decided to buy a membership in the Belleville Coral Reef Mom's Auxiliary for the convener of the Samaritan Cupboard.

Wool was distributed among the members to be knit into baby blankets for Samaritan Cupboard.

More information had been received about the two children adopted by the chapter through the Canadian Save the Children Fund. Dr. Joan Bronskill told of their needs, which included their personal history.

Acknowledgements of the donations to the Girl Guides' Camp Site Fund at Waupoos, and the Salvation Army's Red Shield were received.

It was decided that the next meeting, October 17th, would be an open one, and invitations will be extended to relatives to attend.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Ed Hutchison, who assisted the hostess of the evening, Mrs. John Hayman.

CANE — ROSS

Tall sprays of multi-colored gladioli adorned the chancel in Holloway Street United Church, on Saturday, September 24, at 4.00 p.m., when Autumn wedding when Jean Heather Margaret Ross, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alex Ross, of Belleville, became the bride of Edward Clifford Cane, of Calgary, Alberta, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Cane, in a double-ring ceremony solemnized by the pastor of the church, the Reverend C. W. Coleman.

Mrs. Victor Barkley, of Belleville, presiding at the console of the organ and rendered the traditional wedding music.

Given in marriage by her father, Mr. Alex Ross, the bride was charming in her bridal gown of white silk embroidered organza over taffeta, fashioned with smoothly molded bodice having a scalloped bateau neckline, long, sheath-like sleeves ending in tulip-points over the wrists. The floor-length skirt of nylon over taffeta fell in graceful folds. She wore a waist-length veil of nylon tulle and coronet headdress encrusted with seed pearls and rhinestones, and carried a cascade bouquet of white baby 'mums and red roses with white ribbon-knotted satin streamers. A single strand of French pearls, the gift of her bridegroom, completed her nuptial costume.

Miss Catherine Ross, of Belleville, sister of the bride, as maid of honor, was attired in shell-pink nylon chiffon over taffeta, featuring a fitted bodice and crinoline skirt in street-length accented by a large back bow and streamers.

Miss Louise Cane of Calgary, sister of the bridegroom, was senior bridesmaid and Miss Jean Crichton, Montreal, cousin of the bride, and Miss Deborah Ross of Belleville, sister of the bride, were junior bridesmaids. All wore gowns similar in style to that of the maid of honor, the senior bridesmaid in pale blue, and the junior bridesmaids in mauve and turquoise, respectively. All the attendants wore matching bow-type headdresses in velvet, and carried nosegays of white 'mums centred by pale pink roses. The attendants' gowns were created by Mrs. Norman Wood, aunt of the bride.

The bridegroom was attended by Mr. John Fields, of Belleville, and the guests were ushered by Mr. John Smith of Belleville, and Mr. Ross Crichton of Montreal.

The wedding reception was held at the bride's home which was profusely adorned with summer flowers for the occasion. The bride's mother, wearing a mink-brown, two-piece ensemble with bolero jacket, beige accessories and corsage of bronze 'mums, received the guests, assisted by the bridegroom's mother who was in a green wool, two-piece ensemble with matching green hat, beige accessories and corsage of white 'mums.

The bride's table was daintily appointed with an all - white three-tier wedding cake (made by the bride's aunt, Mrs. George Crichton, of Montreal), topped by a tiny vase of yellow roses, and surrounded about the base with maill-colored summer flowers. Tall white candles in crystal holders and the bridal bouquets added a lovely bridal accent.

For the wedding trip to Niagara Falls, the bride wore a gold-colored dress, green top-coat, and beige accessories, with white 'mum corsage.

Guests attended from Montreal; Calgary, Alberta; Picton, and Belleville.

Mr. and Mrs. Cane are residing in Kingston, Ontario.

The bride was honored, prior to marriage, by a miscellaneous shower held at the home of Miss Jane Gray, of Belleville when she was the recipient of many lovely gifts.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Clifford Cane are pictured following their recent marriages in Holloway Street United Church, Belleville. The bride is the former Miss Jean Heather Margaret Ross, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alex Ross of Bellville. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Cane, of Calgary, Alberta.

QUESTION BOX

Question . . . Regarding your recent column about a woman of fifty-two dresses in the mode of a girl of 18: I agree with you that clothes do help your manners. If you are well dressed, you feel more at ease. But I have a secret to bear. I am fifty, but wear a size seven. Trying to find clothes that fit me, as well as my age, is almost impossible. Why don't the manufacturers realize that some of us size sevens and nines do grow old? Won't you tell them so? — Mrs. R. R. K., Evanston, Ill.

Answer . . . I'm glad to find someone who "knows her age," and sincerely hope that some manufacturer will read your complaint and perhaps do something about it. I can well understand your problem. It is difficult when you want to do the right thing and can't!

Question . . . I am planning an "open house" to celebrate our twenty-fifth wedding anniversary. The trouble is that the date is the twelfth of October, which falls on a Wednesday. I would like to have my party on a Sunday, either before or after that date. Is it proper to hold it on a different date than the actual one? — Mrs. D. W. B., Berlin, Wisc.

Answer . . . I see no reason why you can't hold the festivities to celebrate a special occasion on a day other than the actual date upon which the occasion occurred. A party on a weekend is usually more convenient for the hosts, and it certainly is for the guests. To avoid confusion, don't mention the actual date on your invitations. Word them somewhat as follows: "Open house to celebrate our 25th Wedding Anniversary, Sunday, October 16th." Ordinarily, a date following the anniversary is chosen.

W. A. Diocesan Board Holds Fall Meet

Mrs. W. F. H. Mitchell, president of the Ontario Diocesan Board of the Woman's Auxiliary to the Anglican Church, presided for the first fall meeting of the WA Board, held in the town hall, Arden, recently.

A splendid attendance of members from all parts of the diocese heard an interesting address by Mrs. F. G. Cousins of Vancouver, B.C., vice-president of Western Canada.

Mrs. Cousins, who is also the WA representative to the Provincial Board of Missions to Orientals in British Columbia, spoke of the work of the Mission. She traced its progress from a small beginning to the present time, when there are now two churches, one Chinese and one Japanese, such with its own native rector. Mrs. Cousins told of many personal experiences and showed a number of pictures of these Japanese and Chinese Canadians in various phases of their work and play.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a women's editor and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actual case history. The Council reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counsellors.

Elsa B. — I love to be alone.

Larry B. — Then why did she get married?

Elsa B. — Whether you're married or not, isn't everyone entitled to some quiet time alone? My husband is like a little boy. He would like me at his side 24 hours a day.

I was an only child and always had a room of my own. I learned to enjoy quiet and solitude, and even now I like to close my eyes and think about the meaning of things without interruption. But too much quiet seems to annoy my husband. With calendars and clocks all around, he'll ask me what day it is or the time, just to break the silence.

I know marriage means sharing and I enjoy sharing my time with Larry. But he wants all of it. Can't he develop a few interests of his own and not depend upon me as a sort of full-time babysitter?

* * *

Larry B. — What did Elsa expect — an engagement ring, a wedding, a honeymoon, a new home, and then back to life as usual?

Marriage means two people become one. You don't go your separate ways any more. But with Elsa, having me around seems to annoy her. She says she loves me, but if you love someone you can't get enough of him, can you? Yet every time she talks to me she acts as if she's doing me a big favor.

Walk in the park, go to the movies — everywhere you see people in couples. But she tells me to go alone. Once in a great while she gives me a big break and we play cards together or go for a drive. Is she acting like a wife or a prima donna?

* * *

The Council: There seems to be a fear here, on each side, causing the extreme demands each is making. Elsa is afraid of losing her precious "island" of privacy completely. Larry worries lest the one thing he counted on marriage to give him — steady pal — is slipping away.

This fear makes the demands almost hysterical. And naturally, the reaction of each party is also extreme and childlike.

It's true, Larry, that marriage makes two people one, but one what? One couple, with one set of goals. One of the goals is to make the other party happy, fulfilled, more effective than he or she could possibly have been alone. Elsa is still a separate person, as well as a mate, and Larry must show some deference and restraint toward that part of her. Instead he has been to possessive, such a consuming companion, that she is gasping for some free air.

Elsa, on the other hand, has the job of learning how to share herself, not just her time, her closet, her toothpaste. A successful marriage doesn't just happen; it must be sweated over. If she really loves Larry, she will sense his shyness, his "lostness" when among others, and will stay close to him in the early years of their marriage, as he gains in social poise and confidence.

This may be the small sacrifice she must make, for a while, in return for the added richness marriage has brought to her life.

Chances are that Larry, as part of the mutual determination to fill in the gaps for each other, will voluntarily offer Elsa large gobs of time for herself, knowing that this need on her part is entirely consistent with her need for his company, too.

And Elsa may choose to accompany her husband to meetings, classes or hobby clubs, once she sees how ungrudgingly he goes alone. It'll be more fun to be together when, for at least, it's optional.

When two people marry, they still remain two people, but love makes them two less selfish people.
